Louis Ginsberg, of Quaker Hill, formerly justice of the peace in Waterford was arraigned Friday evening before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton, charged with trespass. Monday at 10 a. m. Justice Morton will hear summary process proceedings brought by Fred L. Goss, who was also complainant in the trespassing charge.

Justice Morton reserved decision in the trespassing case, but announced he would give the decision Monday when the summary comes up civilly.

Goss is the owner of the grocery store and the land on which it stands, occupied by Ginsberg. He also owns land on the opposite side of the street, which has on it two houses and a well of fine water.

In order to clear out the store preparatory to remodeling the building so that it will bring a higher rental, Mr. Goss sought summary process procedure by which to oust his tenant.

The drought came on and the well maintained for tenants of the dwelling house was running low of water. Therefore Mr. Goss issued orders for Mr. Ginberg not to use the well, but it is alleged that Mr. Ginberg kept on drawing water from the well. Thus the trespass charge was brought.

JUDGE BROWN RESPECTED THROUGHOUT COUNTRYSIDE

With reference to the death of Hon. Lucius Brown of this city, the New Haven Journal-Courier says in an editorial:

The death of Judge Lucius Brown of Norwich removes from the state one of the type who made the name Connecticut great. He was simple and substantial and respected through the countryside, honored by his fellows. It is no surprise that from such a home came Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court, whose career as senator and personal qualities, reflecting the integrity and sense of the father, have made more than one conceive that he might be even more useful in state administration than on the bench, for which many eligibles stand available.

OBITUARY

Frank Leslie Lathrop

Frank Leslie Lathrop passed peacefully away at 11 o'clock Sunday morning at his home at 250 Maple street after an illness of nearly two years, during which time he was tenderly cared for by the members of his family. He was born in the town of Franklin, September 1856, the son of Jonathan Lester and Harriett Bliss Lathrop, being a descendant in the ninth generation of Rev. John Lathrop.

The deceased passed his early years in Franklin and Lisbon, on a farm, later attending school at the Plainfield Academy. He came to Norwich in 1876 making his home with an uncle and aunt while being employed in the machine shop of Hopkins & Allen In 1881 he entered the insurance business with his father, under the firm name of J. L. Lathrop & Son, and for 41 years he was actively engaged in looking after the interests of his patrons. By close attention and sound business principles the agency became one of the largest and best known in eastern Connecticut. The death of his father in 1911 and of his brother, C. Arthur Lathrop, also a member of the firm, in 1915, left Mr. Lathrop in charge of the entire business. In August 1922, Mr. Lathrop sold out the business to Walter T. Camp, who continued the agency under the same firm name.

In a letter of appreciation received by Mr. Lathrop from the Agricultural Insurance Co., upon his retirement, their appreciation of his efforts is shown by the following brief quotation: "Our records indicate that your father represented us in 1872 and we believe you came into the business about ten years later. That means a half century connection, which is not usual to any business and indicates that there must have been sympathetic feeling by both parties to the arrangement. There must have been in this long relationship, differences of opinion but evidently each has held a compromising spirit toward the other, so that it has endured and continued pleasant. The Lathrop family has represented us so long and so satisfactorily that the change caused us regret.

Mr. Lathrop was united in marriage with Gertrude Barrows, September 21, 1884, her death occuring April 17, 1888. One son, William B. Lathrop was born on this union.

In September 1892 he married Agnes M. Wheeler of Stonington. Two daughters were born to them, one of whom, Miss Marion Lathrop, is now living. There are two grandchildren, Ralph Willard and Gertrude Adams Lathrop. He leaves one brother, George A. Lathrop and a sister, Mrs. Henry D. Johnson, both of this city, also five nephews and one niece.

Mr. Lathrop was connected with no organizations. He was a member of the First Baptist church, in which he was deeply interested having served as treasurer for a number of years, also as deacon and as one of the trustees. He was at all times ready to contribute, to help in the welfare of the community and in every good work. His passing away will be a loss keenly felt by the community.

Sea Water Affects Glass

Glass is considerably affected by exposure to sea water. The lenses of signal lights on ships become covered by a thin layer of sea salt which eventually etches into the glass. The United States bureau of standards in an investigation of this subject has found that lead glass was quite susceptible to this corrosive action, while ordinary soda-lime glass and boro-silicate glass are little affected.

DUWELLS EVEN SERIES WITH VELVETMEN, WINNING SUNDAY 12 TO 5

While the Duwells were nicking the deliveries of Morin, Murphy and Shahan for fifteen hits Tillie Daniels youthful Buckeley star held the J. B. Martin team to seven scattered hits and the local boy returned on the long end of a 12 to 5 score at the J. B. Martin grounds Sunday, thus ending the series between the two teams. The local team started off strongly in the four innings after Smith had grounded out, Ringland, next man up got a single over second and scored on Dinty Moore's long triple to center who later scored on Dugas' double.

The Duwells also scored two runs in the second on singles by Coughlin and McInnes and another long triple by Daniels.

In the fourth they bunched hits off Morin and drove him to the showers scoring 4 more runs. Murphy who succeeded him didn't do much better and gave way to Buck Shahan, one of the leading pitchers in the New London twilight league who did fairly well except when there were men on bases.

Dugas and Moore both had a big day at bat and in the field handling many hard chance and poling out long hits. With the exception of Joe Barry who went hitless all the local boys hit hard.

For the Velvetmen Decelles turned a star game getting two hits and fielding well. The score:

INDIANS HAUL YANKS OUT OF FIRST PLACE

Cleveland, Aug. 10. — Cleveland knocked New York out of first place today by beating the Yankees, 7 to 1, while Detroit was defeating Boston. The Indians knocked Gaston from the box in the fourth inning. The Yankees' run came in the first after two were out, on a pass to Ruth, and singles by Meusel and Pipp. After that Shaute was invincible, and while he held Ruth hitless, he made a home run himself for the Tribe's seventh run. Joe Sewell played spectacularly for Cleveland, handling 13 chances without an error.

HERRUPS TAKE EASY GAME FROM RIVERVIEW

The Herrups of Hartford revenged themselves for a previous defeat at the hands of the Riverview club Saturday afternoon at the State Hospital by trouncing the Riverview club 8 to 2 in an easy game in which the Hartford boys were never in danger. Sayres, the Villa Nova star, was complete master of the game and his support was spectacular many times. Although Sayres had only one strikeout while Posick fanned seven, the Riverview boys were unable to hit him safely but six times. The Herrups hit Posnick at opportune times and coupled with a few bad heaves and errors piled up their eight runs.

The Herrups played exceptionally fine baseball in the field and although they were favored by what is called "the breaks of the game," nothing can be taken from them. They stopped balls that ordinarily would have been hits with ease and someone seemed always at the right spot at the right time when the Riverview team hit. The fielding feature was contributed by McKernan in left field in the fourth inning. Coullard hit safely and Noel poled out what looked like a sure hit to left field. McKernan running at top speed scooped the ball with his bare hand close to the foul line for as pretty a catch as has been made this season. In the same inning Maier pulled a double play unassisted when Mills crashed a terrific drive toward third which Maier caught and touched third, putting out Coullard, who had stolen the bag a minute before. McKernan also hit a three bagger in the second inning. Sayres was the leading hitter of the Herrups, getting two doubles and a single in two times up. The score:

DUWELLS WOULD LIKE CHANCE AT RIVERVIEW

The Duwell A. A. team, with victories over Moosup and the J. B. Martin team, would like nothing better than to take a crack at Billy Donovan's Riverview club next Saturday, if the game can be arranged. Manager Pedace of the Duwells feels that his team is every bit as good as the Riverview club, if not just a little bit better. He bases his claim on the fact that the J. B. Martin team has twice defeated Riverview in their ball lot, while his team has won one and lost one to the Velvetmen. In the game Sunday the Duwells slaughtered the mighty Mike Morin, who has proved a stumbling block for the Riverview club. The Duwells have also trimmed the Moosup team, which is made up largely of Riverview players.

A series between these two clubs, which are nearly on a par, the Duwells having a slight advantage, should prove a real baseball attraction, and fans hope that this series can be arranged.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Captain New York Giants

Batter hits sharply down first base line and first baseman lets the ball roll through his legs.

Who should back up this play?

Because the simple plays of baseball cause the most trouble, this simple little play is a trouble maker in many games. The second baseman should always back up the first baseman on all balls hit into that territory and a right fielder of the Ross Young type will always be found backing up such a play. Unless infielders and outfielders back up plays a good many runs get by in the course of a year that otherwise would not score.

BROWNS WIN HECTIC BATTLE FROM ATHLETICS

St. Louis, Aug. 10.—In a game featured by St. Louis errors which figured in the Philadelphia scoring in the second and fifth innings, and in which the Athletics used four pitchers, the Browns today won the final contest of the series, 10 to 8. Rommel was wild and gave nine hits in six innings. Baumgartner, who succeeded, but was removed after hitting the first batter. The score:

WESTERN GOLF TITLE TO BE DECIDED TODAY

Chicago, Aug. 10.—A struggle between champions will furnish the final rounds of the women's western golf championship tomorrow at Onwentsia Country club, Miriam Burns of Kansas City, western titleholder, playing against Edith Cummings of Chicago, national champion.

Miss Cummings is a member of Onwentsia and is not only thoroughly familiar with every nook of the links, but has been shooting fine golf all during the previous rounds. Miss Burns, however, has outgolfed the national champion thus far.

Brassoes Win Double

Waterbury, Conn., August 10.—Waterbury bunched its hits today and took both ends of a double header from Pittsfield, winning the first 5 to 1 and the twilight affair 3 to 2 in ten innings. Pittsfield rallied the 8th inning of the second scoring two runs, tying the score and driving Crowder to the showers, but Rush took up the burden and stopped the rally.

Rip Conway's single scored Schauffel with the winning tally in the extra frame.

FITCHVILLE WINS PITCHING DUEL FROM FAST SOUTH WINDAM TEAM

Playing yesterday afternoon before one of the largest crowds of the season Fitchville took the hard fighting South Windham nine into camp in 10 innings by the score of 3 to 2. Not often does a team line up to its press agents' laudations, but not so South Windham. Coming to Fitchville with a reputation as a first class ball club, notwithstanding the assertions of Yantic to the contrary, the visitors lived up to their fame in a worthy manner. As a well-balanced aggregation the visiting team showed that it is the superior of most that have appeared on the local diamond this season.

Starting with a zip and pepper South Windham scored two runs, which for several innings looked as if plenty to win. Scribner, the first man to swing the willow, crashed out a double when his hit made a lucky bound through Sweet. Meikle was thrown out at first. Nichols laid the foundation of a fine strike out record for Jones by whiffing the ozone for a count of three. Adams made first on an error by the local shortstop, pilfered second and followed Scribner across the plate on Mathewson's single to right. In attempting to steal third the latter was out.

In their turn Fitchville attempted to even the score but was held to a lone tally by the snappy work of the visitor's infield. H. Hoxie, who had the local batting list, was out at first. Cummings doubled to left and advanced to third on E. Hoxie's infield hit. Sweet endeavored to come through with the needed clout and made first when E. Hoxie was tagged out at third, Cummings scoring. Sweet made a nice steal of second but Paul followed Nichol's example and struck out.

The sixth inning showed the mettle of the local ace. Scribner was safe on what should have been an easy out, made second but was out at third on Meikle's grounder. Nichols made first when his infield out was handled slowly. Adams singled and the bases were loaded. Mathewson and Kenyon were completely baffled by Jones' offerings and were retired by way of the strike out route.

Fitchville evened the count in their turn at bat. E. Hoxie made first when the invading centerfielder muffed a high fly to deep center, flew to second made third on a low pitch, coming home on Sweet's sacrifice. Paul lifted the longest hit of the game to left for three bases but was tagged out at third for violation of the grounds rules, ones was out at third and the seventh inning began with both pitchers twirling better than in the early frames.

The effective pitching of Jones, who struck out six men in the last four innings, was a notable achievement. Mathewson, the visiting slabster, proved a wonder but a base on balls eventually turned out to be his undoing. In the tenth Sweeney was presented with a ticked to first, sacrificed to second, and scored on a wide throw to the plate.

This brought an interesting and exciting pitchers' duel to a close. The local ace was at his best and on his record deserved to win: Mathewson's performance, however, classes him with the best in this section of the state.

The work of Adams at short for South Windham and that of McCall in center field for Fitchville deserve commendation. Casey and Thomas handled all disputes in real major league style.

Score by innings:

Fitchville	1	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	1	0	3

Summary: Two base hits, Cummings, Paul, Jones, E. Hoxie, Scribner, McCall; sacrifice hits, H. Hoxie, sweet; struck out, by Jones 13, by Mathewson 5; bases on balls, off Mathewson 2.

OIL CANS WIN EASY GAME IN DUSTY LEAGUE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 10.—"Work had and ye shall reap the profits of thy labor", this old adage applies suitably to the Standard Oil Company nine of the industrial league. Taking the cellar position from the Post Office nine and also inheriting its standing, which was not so good, for all games were lost by thias team and not one repose on the winning column, the Standard Oil nine had to fight an uphill battle but on Saturday after all hard work a victory was at least made possible because of two reasons. The first was the able twirling by Gaffery, a dark horse in the stable of the Oil nine and second, the good all round work of the team. Caffery's pitching being a potent factor in the victory, the Oil men gained their first victory and that by an overwhelming margin at the expense of the strong Connecticut Power nine. The final count read 11 to 1.

Caffery fanned twelve of the Power players, and was scored on in the first inning only. After that he was unhittable and yielded nothing that resembled a good ball. Caffery's mates, being in the hitting mood, smote the apple with a venegrance in the sixth and broke up all dreams of the Power men, who had an idea of a 1 to 0 victory. Five runs in the sixth, and Priestly retired from the mound for the Connecticut Power. He was succeeded by Hutchinson, who fits in better at third than he does in the pitcher's box. Six more runs were scored off Hutchison and the Oil men gained their first victory in this league.

The Standard Oil team is getting to be a dangerous team and the other teams in the league will have to watch their step when they meet with this nine.

SUB BASE TAKES FARCE GAME FROM HARTFORD

New London, August 10.—As poor an exhibition of what was supposed to be the national pastime, was exhibited at the Submarine Base Saturday afternoon. The Hartford Grays A. C. a team supposedly coming from the Capitol city were the gobs opponents—or rather tried to be. They showed very little on the defense and less on the offense, giving the base one of the easiest games this team has won in a number of years. The final accounting was 16 to 1 in the gobs favor.

A total of nineteen errors of every description were made by the Capitol City bunch, and had they made a few more they would have come within the record for errors by a team in a single contest. Probably had the visitors connected for nineteen hits instead of errors they would have given the Base something to think about. The pitching of the invading horde was anything but first class, and although there were two of thesse misfits, neither proved to be effective for any length of time. Both were slammed hard and often, and with miscues made rather frequently, the Grays were never in it.

The gobs who were only awaiting a signal from their boss, Hawes, for an uprising began in the first frame and scored ten round, large and juicy runs before the final man was put out. An error started the procession around the paths, and it was Hawes in person who started the gobs on the right road to victory. He was given a lift on an error, hits by Harrell, Anctil, a triple by Moore, single by Mangold and one base slams each by Crompton, Orsi and Holder, brought the Base batting order to start all over again. Harrell obliged with another single in his second time up in this frame and a medley of errors, gave the Base a total of ten trips around the bases. Throughout the Base picked up a run here and there, adding to it's total.

The one run scored by the visitors came as the result of a force over the plate. Only five hits were made in all by the Grays batters and two players made these. McMahon received three of these blows, and Kelly two. The rest of the visitors were helpless before the pitching of "Baldy" Locke and "Saint" Nichols.

A football game could not have the substitutes that the Base team used. Fifteen men were rushed in the fray and each and every sub gave an accounting of himself. It the Base has many more games of this kind, some more uniforms will have to be ordered to enable the remainder of the gobs at the Base to get into the game. The gobs getting little or no kick from Saturday's farce, patiently await the resuming of the series with Newport Training Station. Between the practicing of the baseball team and the first work of the football team, which will be August 15, there will be plenty for everybody to do in the way of athletics at the Base. Score:

WEEKLY MARKET REVIEW.

New York, Aug. 10.—Profit-taking in the markets and reports of a further slight improvement in industry divided attention in business and financial quarters during the past week with continued ease in money and encouraging reports from the London conference.

The cheapness of money was emphasized by a fresh reduction in the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank at New York, the new rate of 3 per cent comparing with one of 3 1-2 per cent that had existed since June 12. As the member banks at New York are nearly out of debt, at the reserve institutions and as the official rate was above the market, the reduction did not have much effect on the open market conditions. It was interpreted as indicating a belief that no early or sudden firming up in rates is likely.

Reports from the steel industry revealed a maintenance of the slight improvement in production and buying that began in the latter half of July. Output for the industry as a whole was somewhat in excess of 45 per cent of capacity. The trade reviews indicated that the pickup that occurred was chiefly because of the reduction in the stocks in consumers' hands. No great improvement is anticipated until a revival occurs in other lines of industry. Steel prices continued soft, desirable orders drawing out fresh concessions from the manufacturers.

Rail car loadings continued to hold to a fairly even level. The total for the week ended July 26 was 926,000 which was slightly smaller than that for the week before and some 115,000 below the total for the corresponding week of last year. The statistics revealed a materially increased movement of grain, which was a natural response to the better conditions that now prevail in the grain markets.

Grain prices were subject to considerable fluctuation with hedging sales a restraining factor. Values were, nevertheless well maintained with the September future holding around $1.30. This occurred despite a government crop report that raised the previous month's estimate by 74,000,000 bushels.

The government report on the cotton crop also placed the yield at a higher figure. There the increase in the estimate during the last two weeks of July amounted to 417,000 bales. It put the anticipated total up to 12,351,000 bales. Prices were somewhat lower. The development was constructive as far as the textile industry is concerned, as a large crop at moderate prices is needed to stimulate consumers' buying of cloth and clothing.

Fresh cuts in oil prices were taken as showing that the industry still is embarrassed by excessive production, consumption being good.

Both the Dunn and Bradstreet indices of commodity prices rose appreciably during July. Rallies in the prices of farm products were chiefly responsible. Prices of industrial commodities were steadier but displayed little positive strength.

Strength in the foreign exchange called attention to the firmer money market at London and to the progress made in the reparations negotiations. The Bank of England rate has not been marked up but the commercial banks have advanced their rates to make the official rate more effective. Prospects for an agreement with regard to the Dawes plans are considered good.

FIRE DEPARTMENT CALLED TO BOTTLING WORKS

Sunday mroning at 10.56 o'clock the fire department was called out by telephone for a small fire in the Washington Bottle works, Zephyr street. The firemen found an old coat or old piece of cloth smouldering on top of an electric motor in the plant and the fire was put out before it had a chance to blaze up.

Someone left the motor carbonizer switch on, a short circuit developed somewhere in the motor, which became hot, and the old coat or piece of cloth placed over the motor for protection started to smoulder.

Improved Laboratory Service

The arrival of specimens intended for bacteriological, serological and chemical examinations via the three separate bus lines coming to Hartford marks the beginning of quicker service by the State Department of Health whereby material reaches the laboratory from one to two hours after it is shipped by the physician. Thus all material arriving in Hartford up to 9 o'clock in the evening is collected and immediately taken to the bureau of laboratories of the State Department of Health. By this new service, specimens which need to be placed in the incubator to stimulate the growths of organisms and germs are placed in the incubator and are ready for examination the next morning. The result is very prompt service to physicians in reporting on specimens sent in this manner.

This service extends into three separate parts of the state—to New London in the south east, to Winsted in the north west, and to Willimantic in the east. In addition, physicians are planning to send specimens from other places by bus lines which connect with the present bus line service, thus making quick service for many parts of the state.

OVER 150 KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS AT WHITE CROSS COUNCIL OUTING

There was not a dull moment Sunday, at Poquetanuck Drawbridge, where members of White Cross council, No. 13, Knights of Columbus, gathered to hold their annual outing. Over 150 members left Norwich at various times during the morning and when the opening event for the day was called there was a big crowd on hand to cheer or jolly the contestants.

Always a popular feature at a K. of C. outing is the baseball contest between the single men and the benedicts, and this year's game was not out of the ordinary. As usual the married men came out a poor second in the argument, something most married men are used to anyway, for the score was 6 to 4 against them when the dust of the battle settled on the field. McClafferty and O'Brien hurled a fine game for the benedicts, but even their work with McManus behind the bat failed to check the single men. Wozniak, Leonard and Ryan pitched for the winners and Hammell caught. At 12 o'clock the married men entered a contest where they broke even, this coming when clam chowder was served with the usual good things that go with it.

At 2 o'clock William J. McClafferty marshalled his water "nymphs" for the aquatic sports at the drawbridge and over 100 lined the banks and watched the sport. Rivalry was keen and finishes were close in several events, Hammell proving to be a shark in the water, winning three firsts. In the diving contests the result was Hammell, first; Schefhauser, second; Diggins, third. The 50 yard swim was a race between Hammell and Mahoney for first, Hammell finally winning. Finnegan was third. Hammell showed his ability to swim when he won another first by trimming Finnegan in the 100 yard event, Schefhauser taking third in this event. The underwater swim for distance gave the audience a laugh when a number of the contestants, carried by the tide, practically made a complete circle ending up only a few feet from the starting place on a direct line. W. Kane won first place in this event defeating Finnegan by only a few feet. Cochran was third.

An event which proved to be a feature, although not listed among the events on the water, was the paddle race between eight husky knights. The start was from the middle of the river, two paddling and two cheering in each boat. The race was close from about a quarter of the distance when suddenly one boat dropped behind. A mis-stroke by one of the huskies in the boat sent the unsteady craft on a skid, which ended with the four occupants in the briny, costing them the race.

Following the water events Henry Gorman lined up the contestants for the field sports. Fast time was made by Mara in the 100 yard dash, getting him first place. L. Hammell placed second and J. Zukla, third. The 50 yard dash was another easy event for the fleet footed Mara, with N. Higgins scoring second. The feature event was the fat man's handicap. Carrying his load well, Frank Deroski puffed in first, closely followed by "Tim" Gallivan. "Billy" Fitzgerald and "Frank" Diggins brought up the rear, collecting third place between them. The field sports closed with the three-legged race, won by Finnegan and Desmond who worked together best in harness.

Shortly after the field sports Daniel J. O'Brien called the members together and sprung the surprise of the day, which proved a feature and was greatly enjoyed.

The call for the bake soon sounded and, gathering about the tables in the grove, a fine bake was served, in charge of "Teddy" Schultz. This event was welcomed by all, the menu being as follows.

Baked Bluefish With Gravy
Clam Fritters Sweet Corn
White Potatoes Sweet Potatoes
Clams Lobsters
Sliced Cucumbers
Tomatoes Lettuce
Watermelon Muskmelon
Lemonade

The outing, which was one of the most successful yet held by the council, was arranged and promoted by the following committee: Daniel O'Brien, chairman, Walter D. Casey, Patrick F. Coleman, Henry Gorman, and John Shea, Jr.

NORWICH ESCAPES WIDE SPREAD ELECTRICAL STORM

Norwich escaped the severe electrical storm that swept over Connecticut from New York state and through Massachusetts, leaving a trail of damage by fire and lightning in its wake. The storm, rapidly travelling from west to east, appeared at one time as if headed for this city but it passed considerably to the north.

Brilliant and almost continual flashes of lightning could be seen lighting up the heavy dark clouds, and the deep rumble of the thunder could be heard for an hour or more. About 11 o'clock a smart shower caused the mercury to drop slightly.

CALLED FOR SMALL BLAZE IN SMITH AVE. SHED

Six gallons of chemical were used in extinguishing a blaze in a shed on Smith avenue, near the Eighth street bridge, and owned by the Peck-McWilliams Co., Saturday night. Squad A went out on a telephone call at 8.59 o'clock and the blaze was quickly extinguished. The cause of the fire is thought to have been a cigarette or a match dropped on a pile of burlap bagging by someone who was in the shed.

STORRS HENS HAVE LAID TOTAL OF 133,296 EGGS

The hens in the thirteenth annual egg laying contest at Storrs have a grand total, to date of 133,296 eggs. The total production for the fortieth week was 3458 eggs or a yield of a little over 49 per cent. Owing to the severe hot and dry weather the egg production for the week was 169 less than that for last week, 33 eggs less than last year for the same period but 5 eggs more than the eighth year average when electric lights were not used. Storrs Experiment Station's non-competitive pen of Barred Rocks were an easy first for the week with a production of 60 eggs. Pinecrest Orchard's pen of Rhode Island Reds from Groton, Mass., was second with a yield of 54 eggs. A pen of Rhode Island Reds owned by Red Mount Farm of Franklin, Mass., was third for the week with a score of 51 eggs. F. M. Johnson's pen of White Leghorns from Waldoboro, Maine, and a pen of the same breed owned by Andrew L. Ohr, of Wallingford, Conn., were both tied for fourth place with a production of 50 eggs each.

Owing to the present weather conditions the natural green food has become too fibrous, consequently in order to prevent too great a decline in egg production it will be necessary for poultrymen to supply the laying hens with plenty of tender green food such as kale, swiss-chard or rape. This weather is also favorable for the development of all kinds of hen lice, consequently one should be on their guard in applying preventive methods.

The four leading pens in each of the principal breeds are as follows:

LA FOLLETTE SUPPORTERS BUSY IN STERLING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Sterling, Aug. 10.—"Any way to beat Coolidge" appears to be the way La Follette supporters look at it in this town as many, in fact, all of the La Follette supporters in this town rushed the registrars at the last moment Friday night handing in long lists of names for the democratic caucus list, many of them taken from the republican list. It is the first time in the history of the caucus here that such a movement has been made by the democrats and with new voters to be made, the leaders claim they will get 150 or more to the democratic party this year in the town of Sterling.

WOMEN VOTERS ENTER RACE FOR LOVING CUP

Women voters of Connecticut are banding together to capture vote-getting laurels in the coming November election.

They are out to win the prize silver loving cup, offered by the National League of Women Voters to the league in the state which records the greajest proportional increase in the vote of 1924 over the vote cast in 1920.

Miss Belle Sherwin, president of the national league, has just been notified by Mrs. Herbert Knox Smith, president of the Connecticut league, that Connecticut has entered the race for the national cup. In accordance with regulations governing competition for the cup, Connecticut's get-out-the-vote plan has been received at national headquarters. Many influential organizations, composed of men and women, have been recruited for the work.

Many other state leagues are now putting the finishing touches on the outline of their campaign, preparatory to notifying Miss Sherwin of their intention to compete for the cup.

The cup, a handsome trophy standing two feet high, is on exhibition in Washington headquarters. The name of the 1924 winner will be engraved on the cup, but it does not become the permanent possession of a state league. It is to be competed for every two years, and in 1926, when state and congressional elections hold sway, there will be another keen contest.

DEATH RATE SECOND LOWEST IN STATE'S HISTORY

Commissioner Stanley H. Osborn of the state department of health has submitted the annual report of the department for the year ended June 30, 1923, to Governor Templeton. The report covers the activities of all branches of the department including the laboratories, sanitary engineering child hygiene, public health nursing, vital statistics and the bureau of preventable diseases.

Dr. Osborn calls attention to the fact that, since the last report of the department the state lost its first commissioner of health, Dr. John T. Black, who resigned November 30, 1922. He had been at the head of the department since 1917. The department Mr. Osborn says, still follows the lines originally laid out by Commissioner Black.

There has been but one change in the administrative staff, the commissioner says, Dr. Millard Knowlton being appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the change in commissioners. Dr. Osborn says that as a result of the interest shown by the 1923 legislature the next two years will show lasting results because of a material increase in the appropriation for carrying on the activities which will contribute to the health and comfort of the people of the state.

The report gives the death rate for 1922 as 12 per 1,000 population, an increase over the rate of 11.4 in 1921, but the second lowest in the history of Connecticut. There were 17,433 deaths, according to death certificates filed, compared with 16,168 deaths in 1921.

There were 127 physicians licensed during the year, making a total of 1,699 in the state. In addition thirteen chiropractors, five osteopaths, one chiropodist, 120 natureopaths and eight midwives were registered during the day.

A study of the cases of reportable diseases shows that, with four exceptions, the health of the state in 1922 was comparable to the fine record of 1921. These exceptions were the prevalence of smallpox, influenza, labor pneumonia and measles. Dr. Osborn says that it is regretable and startling that smallpox, a disease practically wiped out of the civilized world by immunizing persons against it by vaccination should be allowed to return because of failure to protect against this scourge by the same process. More cases of the disease were reported in the state in 1922 than for many years.

Child hygiene activities included giving out information by leaflets, lectures and conferences on how to diminish infant and maternal mortality. The midwife problem is given as one of the vexing questions, but is improving as a result of recent legislation. The infant mortality rate for 1922 was 77.3 for each 1,000 babies born.

The infant death rate which has shown a steady and almost continual decline since 1910, increased slightly from 73 per 1,000 live births, which was the rate for 1921 and which was the lowest ever recorded for the state, to 77 per 1,000 live births for 1922. During the year 1922, eighty less infants died than died during 1921, but the number of births for 1922 was less by 2,917 than for 1921. Hence, the ratio of deaths to births was higher. In 1922, 580, or 24 per cent., died before they were one day old; 387, or 14 per cent. died during the interval two days to one week. During the period three weeks to one month, sixty-seven or 3.8 per cent. In 1921, 71.43 per cent., of the infants who died were under three months old. In 1923, 61.4 per cent. were under three months old.

On account of the increase in the mortality rate, Connecticut has lost the enviable position which it held last year. In 1921 among all the states east of the Mississippi river, Connecticut had the lowest infant mortality rate, and only six states in the Union had a lower rate. In 1922, however, Connecticut holds tenth place in the list, one state of those east of the Mississippi having a lower rate, Indiana leading Connecticut with a rate of 73.

BREED THEATER

Rex Beach's Recoil is the feature attraction at the Breed theater today and tomorrow. This is a romantic melodrama of a wealthy man who marries a penniless girl, but discovers her unfaithful. He suffers disillusion but the old love returns when his wife saves him from a blackmail plot. The plot is a typical Rex Beach one and is strong in dramatic value.

The cast is one of uniform excellence. Betty Blythe is an ideal type for the role of a penniless American adventuress who forces herself into Kent's presence and marries him the same day. She wears some stunning gowns and does some real acting. Mahlon Hamilton is good in the role of Kent. Clive Brook, the English actor, Fred Paul and Ernest Hilliard have the other principal roles and all acquit themselves admirably.

Other pictures on the bill include Pathe news and a Sunshine comedy. For this week only ladies will be admitted to the matinees for ten cents and children will be admitted for five cents.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

There is a novel idea behind the plot of Borrowed Husbands, which was shown at the Palace theater last night, that increases its entertaining value and offers food for thought. The title gives the keynote to the whole plot which all titles should; but few do. A devoted wife is separated from her husband for a few months and as all of their set are married and require husbands as escorts the young wife decides to borrow a few while her husband is away.

The idea appears a good one on the surface and Nancy finds many friends who are willing to loan their husbands. Then complications set in, which form a photoplay of well balanced emotions, light patches of humor, touches of pathos, intense dramatic situations with an occasional thrill.

Added attractions, the local pictures have arrived and are being shown at this performance. Mack Sennett's latest two reel comedy entitled Nip and Tuck, Pathe news.

Broadway Theater

The audience which assembled at the Broadway theater last night to see the first presentation here at popular prices of the widely heralded Universal production The Hunchback of Notre Dame, witnessed a picture as beautiful, as profoundly stirring, as anything ever hoped for. Universal has taken Victor Hugo's famous novel and converted it into a production that will reach a great many more people and impress them more deeply than the book ever did. It is an indisputably fine achievement.

The conversion process has not been a polite one, in that many changes were made, but they are changes that were decidedly for the better. Entertainment is for all people and it is only right to make changes in points that were offensive to a religious creed.

Universal claims that $1,500,000 was expended on the production and after seeding the picture one wonders that that is in it could have been obtained for this sum—truly it can be said that not one cent was wasted. Months of research work went into the production and it is evident from start to finish. Nothing more thrilling has ever been screened than the scenes in connection with the storming of the cathedral.

The picture is here. We have seen scores of million dollar pictures and never before felt that one was worthy of the amount claimed to have been expended thereon, but in our estimation The Hunchback of Notre Dame is a bargain at any price. It' worth coming any distance, even from Australia, to see. If you would behold real screen art by all means see this magnificent production. It is an unforgettable picture.

A comedy and news were the short subjects.

There are only two shows daily at 2:15 and 7:30. The prices are matinee, 26c, evening 25-35c. We urgently advise you to see it and come early.

POETRY

THE LAMP IN THE WEST.

Venus has lit her silver lamp
Low in the purple west,
Casting a soft and mellow light
Upon the sea's full breast:
In one clear path—as if to guide
Some pale, wayfaring guest.

Far out, far out the restless bar
Starts from a troubled sleep,
Where, roaring through the narrow straits,
The meeting water leap;
But still that shining pathway leads
Across the lonely deep.

When I sail out the narrow straits
Where unknown dangers be,
And cross the troubled, moaning bar
To the mysterious sea,
Dear God, writ thou not set a lamp
Low in the west for me?
—Ella Higginson.

A SINGING LESSON.

Far-fetched and dear bought, as the proverb rehearses,
Is good, or was held so, for ladies; but naught
In a song can be good if the turn of the verse is Far-fetched and dear bought.

As the turn of a wave should it sound, and the thought
Ring smooth and as light as the spray that disperses
Be the gleam of the words for the part thereof wrought.

Let the soul in it shine through the sound as it pierces
Men's hearts with possession of music unsought;
For the bounties of song are no jealous god's mercies,
Far-fetched and dear bought.
—Algernon Charles Swinburne.

DAVIS FORMALLY ACCEPTS PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATION

Formal Ceremonies Were Conducted in a Drenching Rain at Clarksburg, W. Va.,—Democratic Candidate Launched a Bitter Attack Upon the Republican Party—Mr. Davis Delivered His Address While a Friend Held an Umbrella Over His Head.

Goff Plaza, Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 11 (By the A. P.)—John W. Davis opened his campaign for the presidency of the United States tonight in a veritable torrent of rain, a rain that soaked the thousands of persons who had journeyed from many cities to witness the formal ceremonies to notify the candidate of his selection as the standard bearer of the democratic party.

Undaunted by the weather, Mr. Davis stood upon the speakers' platform while a friend held an umbrella above his head and launched a bitter attack upon the republican party, declared it had shaken public confidence to "its very foundation," and the great throng gathered to listen to his speech, only a few of whom were able to provide a makeshift shelter from the storm with newspapers and other non-waterproof mats, stayed on despite the rain.

They listened to Mr. Davis denounce the republicans for having "exhibited a deeper and more widespread corruption than any that this generation of Americans has been called upon to witness."

The supreme need of the time, said the nominee, is to bring back to the people confidence in their government.

Having thus sounded the rallying cry of democracy's hosts in the battle ahead, Mr. Davis presented the program to which he pledged himself if given the mandate of the American people.

He promised as the chief features of this program an honest, impartial and just government; Tax and tariff revision; farm aid; cooperation "officially with legitimate endeavors to lessen the prospect of war; economic in government and conservation of all of the nation's natural resources and strict enforcement of the prohibition laws as well as all the other laws.

Returning to the subject of religious freedom which was the basis of a sharp fight in the New York convention that named him the party candidate, Mr. Davis did not mention the Ku Klux Klan by name but was emphatic in his declaration of opposition to any challenge, organized or unorganized, under whatever name or in whatever character it might appear, of the constitutional guarantees of religious freedom.

DEM. NAT'L COMMITTEE HAS BEEN REORGANIZED

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 11.—Reorganization of the democratic national committee was perfected today with the unanimous selection of Clem L. Shover of Fairmont as its chairman.

James W. Gerard of New York, former ambassador to Germany, was named treasurer, and Mrs. yEmil Newell Blair of Missouri, Frank S. Hagen of New Jersey and Suel Amidon of Kans aswers elected vice chairmen. Charles Greathouse of Indiana was re-elected secretary, and Burt New of Indiana was made executive secretary.

Jesse Jones, a Texas banker, was named chariman of the finance committee which will raise campaign funds.

Ratification of Mr. Shaver's selection by John W. Davis, the party presidential candidate, as the head of the committee, was but a formality. A fight developed, however, over unsuccessful effort to increase the number of vice chairmen from three to four.

A special nominating committee recommended four vice chairmen in place of three provided for by a resolution adopted by the democratic national convention at New York, the fourth being J. Bruce Kremer of Montana, who had held the position for eight years.

Edmond H. Moore of Ohio made a point of order that the committee on nominations had exceeded its authority. Chairman Shaver sustained the point of order. Appeal was made from this decision of the chair.

A motion to lay the appeal on the table was adopted after George E. Brennan of Illinois had urged harmony and Senator Carter Glass of Virginia had declared the decision was correct.

After some discussion a motion carried to approve the selections of Mrs. Blair and Mr. Hagen and to vote separately on the third member. Mr. Amiden and Mr. Kremer were nominated, but Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut withdrew Mr. Kremer's name, declaring the purpose benind the motion for the separate election was to eliminate the Montana national committeeman. Whereupon Mr. Amiden withdrew his name, but Senator Glass insisted that the committee proceed with his selection.

Mr. Brennan declared there was no personal fight on Mr. Kremer and that he would be one of the three leaders in Chicago for the Chicago headquarters of the national party organization.

CRUISER RICHMOND IS TO SEARCH FOR DANISH STEAMER

Reykjavik, Iceland, Aug. 11 (By the A. P.).—Rear Admiral Magruder today flashed a message from his flagship, the Richmond, to the cruiser Raleigh, off the coast of Greenland, to endeavor to find the Danish steamer Gertrud Rask and give her all possible assistance in making her way through the ice fields toward Angmagsalik to land the supplies she has on board for the American round-the-world fliers.

The order was sent by Admiral Magruder when news reached here that the Gertrud Rask, which has been drifting about for more than a week amid ice floes and unable to reach her destination, at last had broken out of the pack but still far to the south of Angmagsalik.

The Iceland trawler Karl Solmundarson also is on her way to pick up the Gertrud Rask, for which she has 300 tons of coal. It is thought the three vessels will meet some time tomorrow afternoon.

The Raleigh on Sunday made her way through small broken fields of ice floes, but while the sea was smooth, intermittent banks of fog along the east coast of Greenland prevented the two reconnaissance planes on board the cruiser from hopping off and making a survey of the coast lines in an endeavor to pick out a safe harbor for the planes of Lieut. Lowell H. Smith and Lieut. Erik Nelson to hop off from Reykjavik. In cutting her way through the ice one of the propellers of the Raleigh was slightly damaged.

It was addressed to Charles R. Gardner, of Fort Hamilton, N. Y., replying to a protest of the letter against the candidacy of a negro for a seat in congress from New York.

COAST GUARDS ARE NOT ASSISTING RUM RUNNERS

Asbury Park, N. J., Aug. 11.—Superintendent M. Rasmussen in charge of the Fifth district, United States Coast Guards, after a two-hour investigation of charges by County Detective Davenport, that coast guards of the Avon station were assisting rum runners, late today declared that he believed the men accused were innocent of the detective's charges.

Detective Davenport had reported to Prosecutor Sexton that Saturday night, he had seen a coast guard flashing danger signals to a rum runner approaching the shore at Shark river and that two other members of the force were cooperating along the beach.

The guards declared they had been turning their flashlights on a 300-pound turtle which had been washed in by the undertow.

Detective Davenport tonight repeated his charges that the guards had been signalling to rum runners. It was intimated that a report of the charge would be forwarded by Supt. Rassmussen, tomorrow, to Federal Judge Bodine, at Washington.

Ruhr Evacuation Being Considered

M. Herriot, the French Premier, Had Long Interview With Dr. Stresemann, German Foreign Minister.

London, Aug. 11—(By the A. P.)—The reparations conference has finally shaken itself down to the basic question of the Ruhr evacuation, and the leaders are attempting in private interviews to effect a settlement of this acute political problem, which really is not on the agenda of the conference.

M. Herriot, the French premier, had a long interview today with Dr Stresemann, called on M. Theunis, the Belgian premier, and the leading German delegates also conferred with Ramsay Macdonald, the British prime minister.

While M. Herriot is supposed to have returned from Paris with authority to agree to the Ruhr evacuation within eleven months, the question of when evacuation will begin and the details of its execution, including the desire of the French and Belgians to keep their nationals on the railways, must be settled among the French, Belgians, English and Germans before the conference can proceed in a definite way with the program for instituting the Dawes plan.

Reports from all three committees of the conference have been agreed to in principle, but the jurists are busy studying and editing the protocols, which are not yet in final form. The opinion now seems general in conference circles that the outcome will be definitely settled by Thursday or Friday, and the majority opinion is decidedly optimistic respecting the results.

The "big fourteen" met today to receive the report of the third committee, which outlined how Germany will make payments in kind. There was much argument in this committee about the quantity of coal and coke Germany shall deliver, but an agreement was finally reached, with the understanding that the matter shall be subject to arbitration.

The "big fourteen" will meet again tomorrow morning and there is a chance that the private interviews may have effected a settlement of the Rush evacuation problem by that time in such a manner that the conference can act on the technical problems without standing under the shadow of a political controversy between the French and Germans over the district where the Krupps and other manufacturers of war supplies have their headquarters.

Boston Welcoming Civil War Veterans

Upwards of 4,000 Members of the G. A. R. Have Assembled For 58th Annual Encampment—Parade Today.

Boston, Aug. 11.—The Veterans of the Civil War stormed Boston in earnest today, and by mid-afternoon upwards of 4,000 members of the Grand Army of the Republic had streamed in for their 58th annual years ago dwelt upon the flags and long roads to Shiloh and Gettysburg beat the pavements, and the eyes that sighted rifles and cannon sixty odd years ago dwelt upon the flags and bunting flying in welcome.

The uniforms of blue were everywhere, the wearers escorted through the masses of traffic. A fife and drum corps of veterans played the old tunes before the Hoel Vendome, the soldiers' camping ground, and Boston slipped back in memory to this historic sixties.

Registration and the meeting of the committee on credentials were the main official events of the day. At the Wayside inn in South Sudbury, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford held open house for the Women's Relief Corps the G. A. R. and the affiliated bodies and served an old time New England breakfast of melons, broiled ham, baked beans and brown bread, doughnuts, pie, cheese, rolls and coffee. Commander-in-Chief Gaylord M. Saltzgaber, in thanking the Fords for their welcome, expressed the veterans' gratitude for their preservation of the famous inn.

The Sons of Veterans went sightseeing to Lexington and Concord in busses and private cars, the First Massachusetts Regiment of Heavy Artillery held its reunion at the Crawford house. Other Grand Army men took their families to the Shaw statue, the old state house in the city, or gathered in groups to "fight the war" over again. The streets were roped off in readiness for the G. A. R. parade tomorrow, probably the last that will ever be held in Boston, the city surrendered gladly to the invaders.

GILPATRIC SHORTAGE IN PUTNAM BANK REMAINS A MATTER OF CONJECTURE

The Directors Continued in Session Last Night Without Issuing Any Statement—Several Depositors in the Savings Department Have Closed Their Accounts—Withdrawals Were Heavy Yesterday, But the Bank Extended the Hours Five Minutes to Accommodate Late Comers.

Putnam, Conn., August 11.—Following confirmation today that a shortage exists in the funds of the First National Bank, whose cashier G. Harold Gilpatric, also state treasurer, attempted suicide by shooting last Thursday and is critically ill and permantly blinded, directors of the bank went into session tonight with every indication that the session would continue until morning. Just how much shortage exists at the bank institution or the condition of Mr. Gilpatric's personal finances remains as much of a mystery tonight as it was 48 hours ago when it first became common gossip that the bank's funds were not as they should be. The directors refused to issue a statement tonight and declined to give their reason for holding an all-night session. They indicated, however, through Guy Baker, assistant cashier at the bank that some statement might be given out tomorrow morning.

Indications that Putnam is becoming restless as a result of the reported bank shortage was indicated today when several depositors in the savings department withdrew their funds. A line formed at this department window this morning and continued throughout the day. The banking hours were extended five minutes this afternoon to enable late comers to secure funds if they desired them. Bank officials would give no estimate tonight of the funds withdrawn but stated that they were not alarmed and that the bank was in a position to meet all of its obligations. The bank has sixty days clause in its savings department which could be invoked at any time. Under this clause, depositors would be obliged to give two months notice before drawing funds from their accounts. This clause was not invoked today. Business in the commercial department was said to be normal.

The Federal Bank examiners returned to Putnam today and went to work upon the books of the bank immediately. They also declined to make any statement and it is reported that they advised the bank directors against making a public report.

Several of the visitors at the bank today were those who have bonds and securities at the institution for safe keeping. Many of these were left in the hands of Mr. Gilpatric.

Reports that Mr. Gilpatric was in charge of the large estate of the late Norman B. Ream, multimillionaire of the New York and Chicago were denied today by the judge of probate court of the town of Putnam. The Putnam banker had nothing to do with the estate, according to the judge, who said that final accounting had been made a year ago by two sons of the deceased, Norman P. and Robert Ream and Otto E. Bennard, and executive of the New York Trust Company who were administrators of the estate.

Among the most recent investments of Mr. Gilpatric were the Hilltop Stables in Putnam and the Thayer Gilpatric Company of New London. In the former he was connected with Dr. Frederick Baldwin and Frank Witman. The stables were started a few months ago and two race horses were purchased. These were entered in the Short Ship Circuit races in Worcester and also last week at the races in Norwich. In the Norwich races, one of the horses was a loser because of a lame leg.

The New London company had the exclusive selling rights for an oil burning appartus for homes and apartment houses. The financial success of the two ventures have not been learned.

There is a possibility that the bank examiners in the near future will carry their investigation to the bedside of the wounded banker. It is understood here that this will be the next step in their inquiry. Mr. Gilpatric it became known today has been serving without bond as the administrator of the Mary Gardner estate valued at $85,000. The sole heir-at-law is a Miss Barber of Ellington, Conn., a niece of the deceased. No accounting has been made by the administrator.

Mr. Gilpatric's condition was slightly improved today but doctors at the hospital reiterated that he still was dangerously ill.

CRUISER GALVESTON HAS BEEN ORDERED TO HONDURAS

Her Commander Has Been Directed to Confer With the American Consul at Ceiba—Recent Reports From Honduras Have Indicated the Possibility of Labor Disturbances in the Region of Ceiba—Sending of Warship There is Regarded as a Precautionary Measure to Safeguard American Interests.

Washington, Aug. 11.—The cruiser Galveston, on patrol duty in southern waters, has been ordered to Ceiba, Honduras, her commander being directed to confer with the American consul there.

Announcement of the sending of the warship was made at the navy department with no other explanation than that the commander was to get in touch with the consul.

The movement, however, comes after the outbreak recently of a new revolution in Honduras and was generally taken to be in connection with that development.

Earlier in the day it was said at the state department that no step had as yet been taken by the Washington government in connection with the renewal of revolutionary activity in Honduras. It was assumed that in sending the Galveston to Ceiba, where there are extensive American interests and a considerable American population, the government was merely taking a precautionary step to have a means of protection available should the outbreak spread to that port.

Recent reports from the north coast of Honduras which have reached the Washington government have indicated the possibility of strikes and other labor disturbances in the region of Ceiba, so far as is known here this condition is not directly connected either with the Fonseca revolution or the Ferrara revolt.

As American property would be exposed to any serious labor disorder particularly in view of the disturbed state of the government in Honduras, it was deemed wise to send a war vessel to Ceiba as a precautionary measure and the Galveston was dispatched by the navy department at the request of the state department. The exact date of her arrival is not known.

PROSECUTOR MAKES POINT IN LOEB-LEOPOLD CASE

Chicago, Aug. 11 (By the A. P.).—The theories of the phantasy life and functional disorder of the endocrine glands built up by the defense through its fourth alienist, Dr. H. S. Hulbert of Chicago, in its plea for mitigation of punishment of Richard Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., for kidnapping and slaying young Robert Franks was attacked vigorously by the state today in the hearing before Judge John R. Caverly.

Batting away at the mass of written and oral testimony developed by the defense in its claim that the youths were influenced by childish phantasies which continued to sway them as they developed into manhood—Loeb dreaming of committing the perfect crime and Leopold blindly following because of a "king-slave" dream that had persisted for years—Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, forced from Dr. Hulbert the admission that it was possible the youths had been rehearsed by attorneys and doctors interested in building their defense.

Hammering relentlessly, the prosecutor also gained the admission that the effect of the nedoctrine glands or forming and fixing mentality is as yet a seriously debated question.

The young mental patheologist admitted his conclusions that both Loeb and Leopold were "mentally sick" were based chiefly on statements made to him by Loeb and Leopold and that he knew the two had lied to him in some instances.

He admitted there were gaps in his report which if filled in with information withheld might have influenced him to conclusions different from those he has cited.

Dr. Hulbert joined the three alienists who had preceded him in stating that Leopold, while intellectually powerful, was of an emotional age of below 12 years.

"It is possible," Dr. Hulbert replied when the prosecutor asked him if Leopold had not been "posing" throughout the various jail examinations while portraying himself as unemotional and the ready subject of phantasies.

WILLIMANTIC

The August meeting of the board of aldermen was held in the town building Monday evening with a full attendance, Acting Mayor George W. Hickey presiding. The main business of the evening consisted of preliminary reports and discussion on a proposed change in traffic regulations in the city. Mayor Hickey reported for the police committee, which met recently with the police officials, that the two outstanding suggestions agreed upon were to change the parking angle on Main street to parallel parking and to make Church and Center one-way going north, also North and Temple streets one-way going south, with parking on both sides.

Alderman J. J. Lee, of the police committee, reported that it was proposed to place warning signs at dangerous intersections in the city, to erect traffic law signs in the various city entrances and to establish a uniform system of electric flashing signals to replace the present silent policemen from Lincoln square to Railroad street.

As reasons for going back to parallel parking on Main street, Mayor Hickey said that the thoroughfare was too narrow for angular parking and that fewer cars could park on that street by reverting to the old system, therefore congestion would be eliminated to a great extent, to give freedom of traffic for Boston to New York travelers and for the local fire apparatus.

The restolution by Alderman W. A. Finch was adopted to instruct the ordinance committee to call a public hearing of the citizens, to consider suggestions to improve traffic conditions.

Resolutions introduced by Alderman Buck and adopted follow: That the city engineer and superintendent of water works investigate the feasibility of purchasing the storage supply water reservoir; that the purchasing committee secure all necessary coal for next winter and that th epolice committee purchase traffic signs as needed.

A petition from residents of Windham road to have the city limits extended about 1,100 feet in that section to the Willimantic Camp Ground entrance, so as to include their properties was placed on file and the matter will go over until the next state legislature which is the only body authorized to act upon such a demand. A lengthy report of observations taken during a recent patrol of the water sheds from which the city draws its drinking water supply was read by City Clerk Donohue. The patrolling was in charge of Arthur H. Arnold. Although not alarming, it was pointed out that conditions were not of the best and the question will be taken up with the state board of health to prevent contamination along the water sheds.

An application of Patchaug street residents for sewer was referred to the sewer committee. Reports for the month were read and accepted from Supt. John S. Sullivan, Chief of Police Allen MacArthur and Fire Chief James J. Tighe.

Adjournment was taken at .45 o'clock.

Although drenched by a sharp electrical storm, which broke away only to begin again for another ten minute downpour, Willimantic escaped damage Sunday evening. A considerable amount of hail fell along with the rain in the first storm. A number of local people noticed that the skies to the north of the city were red, shortly before nine o'clock and some started to investigate, with the belief that a fire was raging in Chaplin, or vicinity, but upon arrival there the blaze appeared to be further to the north and some twenty miles distant. A large barn owned by Anton Kalechits, on the Yetter farm in Eastford, was struck by lightning and the structure along with forty tons of new hay was destroyed. The stock in the barn was saved. A number of farm impements were ruined. The Kalechits homestead was in grave danger of catching fire from sparks from the burning barn, but a hard working group of volunteers succeeded in saving the building. Not having a sufficient supply of water or chemicals with which to fight the blaze, the firemen used an emergency method of saving the house, securing a half inch wire cable around a shed which stood between the barn and house and pulling the shed out of the way, while it blazed.

Fred Bigelow, 30, of Stafford Springs, injured in an automobile accident at Eastford, Saturday morning and taken to St. Joseph's hospital in the Day-Kimball hospital ambulance, is improving. His injuries consist of two broken ribs, a strained back and a bruise on one leg. Bigelow is employed by the Wagner and Ide Electrical Company of Stafford Springs and was riding to Eastford from Phoenixville with an associate employe. A truck owned by Anton Kalechits, followed by an automobile came along from the opposite direction and as the Bigelow machine met these the car behind the truck attempted to turn out and go ahead, with the result that Bigelow was forced to drive into the bushes, where his michine overturned and he was thrown out. His companion escaped injury. The accident was reported to the Danielson state police barracks, from where an officer was detailed to conduct an investigation.

With the recent announcement that the New Haven railroad would resume running excursions to large cities and popular beaches, the first excursion to leave Willimantic in over twelve years was run out of the local yard Sunday with a long list of passengers. Over one hundred and thirty local people took the trip to Boston, from which city they visited Nantasket and Revere beaches.

The marriage of Arthur Leblond and Miss Doris Willis, daughter of Homer Willis of 8 South Park street took place at St. Mary's rectory Saturday evening at 8.15 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. C. Belec. J. Stanley Healy and Miss Ruth Weatherhead were the attendants. Later a wedding dinner was served at the Windham inn. Mr. and Mrs. Leblond left by automobile in the evening for a honeymoon trip to New Jersey and Pennsylvania. They will return in two weeks and will make their at No. 168 Jackson street, with the parents of the groom. Mr. Leblond is the son of Joseph Leblond and is employed as clerk at the Willimantic post office. The bride has been a bookkeeper at the American Thread Company plant.

Many of them lunched at the Lakeside Casino and remained for the evening. Among the bathers were said to be members of the South Coventry Water Supply Company which fought so bitterly against bathing in the lake last year. A woman was drowned thirty years or more ago and a Manchester young man lost his live at a deserted section of the lake last year. The channel near the bathing beach, which frightened a few bathers this year, has been well fenced off and there are now no dangerous spots anywhere along the beach.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

A quartet of young men whose homes are in Woonsocket were before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court Monday morning to answer to charges of breach of the peace. They were Wilfred Dusablon, Fortunate Lussier, Adelard Savoie and Edgar Deragon. Each was fined $10 and the total costs in the case, equally divided between the members of the group, amounted to $63.84.

They were arrested Sunday afternoon on complaint of Harry O. Ware, resident on East Franklin street. For reasons best known to themselves, the young men became noisy and were creating something of a nuisance to disturb the Sunday quiet, so the complaint against them followed.

There is good cheer in the announcement made here Monday morning by one of Danielson's manufacturing concerns dealing in goods used in the textile industry that more orders were received by this concern in the first week of August than during all the month of July.

The concern referred to sells goods through all sections of the country where there are textile activities, so their orders, from widely scattered points, indicate that a revival is under way.

Another Danielson concern, also manufacturing for the textile trade, has witnessed a rapid accumulation of orders during the past two weeks. While it is too early to say that the textile business is good again, for it is not, generally speaking, the tendency during the past three weeks has been toward a notable improvement and the promise for fall and winter now appears to be encouraging.

Sunday last ever will remain an outstanding memory fro Rev. Arthur R. Vegiard, M. S. It marked the celebration of his first solemn high mass as a newly ordained priest, in St. James' church, where he attended divine worship as a boy. Present at the service were upwards of 500, including his mother, Mrs. Rosanna Vegiard, for whom the occasion was one of great happiness, and many of his relatives and friends. A festival banquet followed the church service, at which honor was done him by priests of the Missionary Order of LaSalette, by his relatives and by his friends, and at which he was presented many beautiful and valuable gifts, the majority of them for use in his holy calling. In turn, it was the joyous privilege of Father Vegiard, exercising an authority conferred upon newly ordained priests of the order of which he is a member, to confer upon all who attended the church services the papal benediction.

Father Vegiard was the celebrant and Rev. F. X. Richards and Rev. Augustus Chapignac, respectively, were deacon and sub-deacon of the solemn high mass. The able sermon at the service was delivered by Rev. Father Richards, an assistant at St. James'. Father Vegiard's benediction was given the congregation at the close of th eservice.

A woman riding in an automobile that crashed into a tree in that narrow section fo Reynolds street where Killingly has unanimously voted that trees should be cut down that still stand—after about a year's waiting—lost a diamond Sunday night. Somehow in the accident the gem was knocked from its setting in a ring. On the whole, the accident was not a serious one. The people who figured in the affair drove away without reporting the accident to the police. The tree which their machine struck was the same one into which a Massachusetts car crashed a few months ago, badly injuring two men and bringing a threat of a suit against the town of Killingly, a threat that has never materialized, however.

The funeral of Mrs. Louise Breault was held at her home, with services at St. James' church, Rev. A. R. Vegiard, M. S., a nephew of the deceased, being celebrant of the solemn high mass of requiem, Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S., deacon, and Rev. J. A. DeMers, M. S., sub-deacon. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Rocque Breault, Peter Rondeau, Peter Allard, Narcisse Blanchette, Isaac Quintal and Paul Dubuc. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Blanche Gileau, 24, wife of Wilfred Gileau, is dead at their home on Main street. Mrs. Gileau's death came after an illness of about six weeks. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Dumas and had lived here for years.

HUGH CAFFERY DIES SUDDENLY AT DAYVILLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Aug. 11.—While engaged as a mason's helper at Dayville Monday forenoon, Hugh Caffery, 42, toppled over and died. Dr. W. A. Tanner, acting medical examiner, viewed the body and gave permission for its removal by Undertaker L. E. Kennedy. Mr. Caffery's death came with such suddenness as to be startling. He had not complained of being ill when leaving for work Monday morning and during Sunday had appeared to be his usual self.

Mr. Caffery was born in Attawaugan and had lived practically all his life in this town. He was a son of Bryan Caffery, an old resident of Killingly. Mr. Caffery, who was a widower, leaves a daughter, Mrs. Mary Lapoint, and two sons, Hugh and Floyd, all of this town. He also leaves two brothers and three sisters.

PUTNAM

Thursday, the date set for the annual field day trip of the Windham County Farmers' association, those who take the trip are to assemble in automobiles on Brooklyn common at 9.30. When the line forms and gets under way the first stop will be at the farm of DeForest Wells, a short ride from the starting point. Many varieties of vegetables are being grown at this farm. A. E. Wilkinson, a vegetable specialist, will have charge and bring forward the interesting things to be seen. There will also be a ditching demonstration.

The second stop will be at the Birchwood Farm, Central Village, one of the largest poultry farms in the state, having about 4,000 laying hens and between five and six thousand chickens. There incubators with a capacity of 14,000 eggs will be seen. A chance to inspect this large poultry farm and the way poultry is raised on a large scale will be afforded.

The Wauregan company's farm at Wauregan will be the third stop. This farm has built up a fine herd of 38 Guernsey cattle within the last few years and these will be exhibited. P. J. Chabot, who has a farm nearby, will exhibit an Ayshire bull and cow, and W. S. Brown, of the same village, will exhibit Holsteins. Anthony Walton will exhibit Jerseys. A. R. Merrill, dairy specialist, will give a talk.

Basket luncheons will be eaten during the stop at the Wauregan farm, under the shade of trees in the nearby apple orchard. After luncheon will come the speaking program. Those who will talk include Whitman Danielson of Putnam, secretary and treasurer of the Farmers' Association, F. L. Davis, county agent, B. W. Ellis, extension director and Dr. Arthur W. Gilbert, commissioner of agriculture for the state of Massachusetts. Dr. Gilbert, who will be the chief speaker, was for a number of years a member of the faculty of Cornell university. Later he became secretary of the agricultural committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce. As chairman of the regional milk committee he has served the dairy industry for some time. Dr. Gilbert is in charge of the certified seed improvement work of the Vermont growers. He was also made chairman of a group of agricultural leaders from different parts of the United States, who attended an agricultural institute in Rome, Italy.

Miss Anna Sampson and Mrs. A. M. Douty left Monday for a week's trip to Portland, going from Boston on the evening boat. They had expected to make the trip to Maine with G. Harold Gilpatric who had planned to leave Putnam Saturday for Juniper Point where he has a summer home, the route taking him through Portland. When he heard that Miss Sampson and Mrs. Douty were going to Maine he invited them to ride with him and they had accepted. Later events terminated the trip by motor.

William Madison, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Madison, of Church street, is at the Day Kimball hospital with many cuts and bruises, including a serious wound in his thigh, as the result of an accident in which his motorcycle, with side car, was in collision Sunday night, with an automobile owned by a man named Phaneuf, of Grosvenordale.

Madison had motored to Newport with his mother during the day. He returned early in the evening and left his mother at their home and started to Webster to make a call. The accident happened between Mechanicsville and Grosvenordale. The driver of the automobile stated that Madison said, following the accident and his being rendered unconscious, that the last he remembered was seeing the headlights of an approaching car. The driver of the automobile implies that the motorcycle was not properly lighted.

The Putnam Coolidge Women's club is to hold its meeting in Odd Fellows hall Thursday evening. As this is the evening during which President Coolidge is to be officially notified of his nomination as the republican presidential candidate and will deliver his address of acceptance, the club, through the courtesy of Putnam Music Shop, is to install a radio so that all enrolled members and any who wish to join the club may have the privilege and pleasure of hearing him.

Since the club was organized a few weeks ago there has been a campaign for membership. The enrollment has grown to 200 and as the result of a systematic effort members are joining daily.

BANK OFFICIALS SILENT AS TO GILPATRIC MATTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Aug. 11.—Interest in matters concerning the First National bank did not abate any over Sunday. Stories circulated on that day that the bank's funds were involved, together with the fact that there was no specific statement forthcoming from federal inspectors or bank officials Monday, created the first apparent uneasiness. Not so much that there is any belief that a dollar will be lost to depositors, as the air of mystery which has surrounded the entire proceedings since the tragedy of the bank's cashier, G. Harold Gilpatric. The public plainly showed that it was not satisfied with the meagre statement that the bank is financially sound. Citizens wanted to know the exact state of affairs, but this knowledge has so far been denied them.

Just before the bank opened for business this morning, it was noted that there were no people waiting about the doors of the institution. A few minutes after 9 o'clock, however, there was a line at the window of the savings department, mostly women, averaging from 12 to 15 depositors. Only one clerk was serving these people there to withdraw their savings and it was a slow process. The payments were made in bills of small denomination, one dollar bills predominating. Just what brought this about is not known; but large stacks of bills were counted out and made a cumbersome bundle for the person making the withdrawal.

The line at the window decreased toward the noon hour; but about 1 o'clock it began to grow and all the afternoon there were from 15 to 18 in line. At 3 o'clock the bank's doors were still open and remained so until nearly five minutes after the regular closing time.

In the checking department it was not so easy to ascertain whether any 100 per cent withdrawals were being made or not. It is known that there were, more or less, and it was also plain that many of the business men of the city were making their usual Monday morning deposits. There were times during the morning hours when the three tellers had no one before their windows.

The greatest alarm seemed to be engendered by the uncertainty. No statement could be gained from anyone connected with the bank as to its condition. All that people were told was that the bank is perfectly solvent. This did not satisfy all, as evidenced by the increased withdrawals. But, according to officers of the institution, the run was not as great as had been anticipated, in view of the stories published Sunday regarding a shortage of the bank's funds.

The directors held a meeting soon after the bank opened. The board was in session for over two hours. When they came out of the bank the directors were as uncommunicative as before, maintaining their policy of silence. One director stated that the board was being governed by the federal inspectors, who had advised that no statement be made. This attitude has been maintained in the face of a growing conviction on the part of the public that it was entitled to know how the affairs of the bank stood.

Two bank inspectors arrived about 10 o'clock this morning and immediately went to work on the books. Chief Inspector Bean arrived this afternoon.

Assistant Cashier Guy L. Baker refused to confirm or deny that there was a shortage in the bank's accounts. He stated that the examination had not gone far enough to determine the exact state of affairs. He was emphatic in his reiteration that the bank is solvent.

As far as can be learned, Mr. Gil-patric was executor of only two sizable estates, that of the late Mary Gardner, who left property estimated at $85,000. No final accounting has been filed in this estate as far as the probate records disclose. The other is the estate of the late Joseph Cutler. A final accounting has been rendered in this estate, but Mr. Gilpatric is trustee of a trust estate estimated at between $30,000 and $40,000. It is understood that the greater part of these trust funds are invested in Hartford real estate.

It has long been known to friends of Gilpatric that he had invested considerable sums in a variety of business ventures and had invested more or less in stocks. Some of these ventures are known to have been failures. How many have shown a profit it is not known; but it is now believed that the losses were considerably above profits in most of his deals.

According to the probate records, the father of Mrs. Gilpatric left an estate of $65,000. He left surviving his wife and five children; but it is understood that he disposed of a considerable part of his estate during the last year of his life.

Mr. Gilpatrick's condition was reported this morning as about the same. It was said that if anything he was a little stronger. Tonight it was stated at the hospital that his condition had remained about the same during the day.

Mr. Gilpatric's relatives, including his two brothers, Attorney Walter Gilpatric of New York and F. Raymond Gilpatric, of New Britain, still remain in the city. State Bank Examiner John B. Byrne, formerly a teller in the Putnam bank and at present a stockholder in the institution, also remains in Putnam and is giving such help as he can about the bank.

It was announced by Assistant Cashier Guy L. Baker, just before a meeting of the bank officials Monday evening, that no statement would be given the press for publication; but it was intimated that one might be made public Tuesday.

Breed Theater

Rex Beach's Recoil will be the feature attraction at the Breed theater today.

Here is a picture off the well beaten path. Possesing a plot original in theme and a scenic background that takes the observer into the show places of Europe such as Paris, Deauville, Monte Carlo, Marseilles and the Riviera and then comes back to New York. It affords a treat in the actual exteriors of these famous places and lavish interiors that are absolutely genuine, instead of the pleasure grounds of the old world give the picture an atmosphere of distinctiveness, class and novelty.

The plot is a typical Rex Beach one, strong in dramatic values, filled with emotional fireworks and throwing in some "wild parties," beautiful women, pep, luxury and the inevitable fistic battle for good measure. The party given by Kent fo rthe 10 most beautiful women of Europe is the last word in lavishness. It is "wild" enough also to satisfy the most jaded fan.

There is real thrill in many of the scenes, especially those in which Norma elopes with Marchmont and the millionaire Kent and his detective friend pursue them to the Riviera where Kent reveals the past of each and then beats up the man, and, as a final blow, commands that they shall both live with each other for all time in spite of their hate for each other. There is also suspense in the tense climax in which Marchmont kills Norma's husband and Kent comes to realize that Norma really loves him when she seeks to save him from a black mail plot.

Other pictures on the bill include the Pathe news and a Sunshine comedy.

Flirtation is a kind of circulating library in which we seldom ask for the same volume twice.

The production made by Universal of Victor Hugo's immortal story, The Hunchback of Notre Dame, at the Broadway theater, has met with high favor, exceeding any big production within ready memory and promising a permanence most gratifying to all who have the welfare of the screen at heart. In massiveness and thoroughness this production is a revelation and gives truth to the pronouncement by able critics that it eclipses any thing previously offered.

The enormity of the task in producing this moving picture production is almost forgotten in the development of the story and the masterly skilful acting of Lon Chaney and his supporting cast, which includes Ernest Torrence, Patsy Ruth Miller, Norman Kerry and a host of others well known to devotees of the screen.

The Hunchback of Notre Dame, made from the famous story by Victor Hugo, has again brought up the value of visual education through the films and shown how the most wonderful acting, together with most powerful dramatic action, can be blended with sincere fidelity to historical fact.

AWAY FROM MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP.

Experiences in New York state in the municipal ownership and operation of electric light plants are not of the kind, apparently, that encourage communities to continue such operation. The trend is away from municipally owned public utilities, and the taxpayers of several communities have recently very emphatically declared by their votes that they wanted to get out of the business.

At a special election at Newark Valley, Tioga county, the vote was 145 to 5 to sell the municipal plant for $20,000 if the privately owned utility company would extend its transmission lines to that place.

There was a vote of 132 to 2 in the village of Sherman, Chautauqua county, in favor of turning over its plant and equipment to a private company if the private utility would take over the $12,000 in bonds outstanding.

Another place that has had enough of municipal operation is the village of Theresa in Jefferson county which proposes to get out of the business by leasing its plant to a private company, the village retaining the option of selling in three or five years.

Although Boonville, Oneida county, has a plant that is considered a model for a village, which indicates that it operated under the most favorable conditions, the citizens there found that the demands upon the plant could best be met by purchasing electric power and the taxpayers of Arkport, Steuben county, where the municipal plant had been operated as a distributor of purchased power, have voted to abandon this business in favor of service from a public utility that is connected with the Niagara distribution system.

Other municipal electric plants which have turned over their business to private companies in the last two years are at Burdette, Tully and Clinton Springs, N. Y. It is significant that the possibility of linking in with great sources of electric power has been a factor in the determination to abandon municipal operation.

Municipal operation of electric power plants has apparently taken no great hold in the Empire State, as the United States geological survey shows that less than 1 per cent of the generating capacity of the state is credited to municipally owned electric plants—and even this proportion is growing less.

THE ALIENIST EXHIBIT.

The so-called alienists and their lawyers in the Chicago case evidently regard the court and the public as gullible and, they will be justified in their estimate if the court is fooled into a soft and silly verdict not befitting the crime. Anybody, who has ever had boys about him in school or in his own home, knows the game these Chicago lads are playing. They are smart—smart enough to excel in college work, and smart enough to see that it takes cunning to get them out of the position in which they are caught. So they and their lawyers fall back behind a smoke screen. Alienists, psychiatrists, psychologists and other faddists are sent forward to explain crime on some occult theory rather than as plain sin and cruelty. These young men are guilty. They say so themselves, and it has been proved besides. They have unusually acute minds. They plotted their deed long and secretly and committed one of the most heinous crimes in American criminology. From the flood of letters that has been pouring in to Judge Caverly, he may well conclude that the public [illegible] Justice will not be served until Loeb and Leopold are hanged as high as Haman. Only this way can the specialists and lawyers who have tried to make a mystery of the case, be sent back to their holes soundly spanked as it were, by an indignant public. Vexed by occasional outbursts of laughter in his court, Judge Caverly said recently: "This is not vaudeville." The general impression that was must therefore have been a mistaken one.

DEBITS AND CREDITS.

Debits and credits in the account between human health and modern civilization are offered in an informative way in the address of Sir David M. Bruce before the British association for the advancement of science, meeting in Toronto. Among the credits are bath-tubs, saner diving, shorter hours of work, serum safeguards against bacterial disease, safer milk and water supplies, the X-ray and more efficient surgery. Among the debits are polished rice, whitened flour, tinned beef, tinned vegetables, and the unrealized poisons incident to sewage disposal. Dr. Bruce, who is chairman of the governing board of an institute of preventive medicine, declares that "the untutored savage living on the natural fruits of the earth and the chase knows no deficiency disease."

Civilization, partly because of these debit items, has not been very successful in keeping [illegible]. According to Dr. Bruce, illness among insured working people in Great Britain represents sickness and economic loss equivalent to having 375,000 toilers out of work the year 'round. He figures the money loss there as $750,000,000 a year and the loss in the United States at three billion annually.

Science is discovering things all the time. We know something about the need of vitamines—what used to be called a balanced diet—which was an unconscious acknowledgment of their existence. We know something and we may soon know more about the part that the glands play in human health and human growth. Most of us will agree with Sir David's conclusion: "Medicine in future must change its strategy. Instead of awaiting attack, it must assume the offensive. It must no longer be said that 'the man was so sick he had to call a doctor.' But the philosopher will note that in this attitude of "the offensive" modernity will only be going back to Confucian concept. The Chinaman pays a physician to keep him well and stops paying him if sickness comes. Psychologically that is a tremendous advantage.

INVITING DEATH.

As if to illustrate that warnings mean nothing whatever, three men living at New Brunswick, N. J., drove their motor car upon a grade crossing, the car stalled, was struck by an express and all three men were killed. They were presumably familiar with this location. They knew there was a grade crossing and that trains were operated at frequent headway and they were well aware of the fact that just about twenty-four hours earlier three other persons had been killed at that same point. These others might not have known about the crossing as they were from Oakland, Cal., and Philadelphia. But the New Brunswick people, it is reported, had driven to the place to view the scene of the earlier fatal accident.

In all likelihood this crossing presents certain physical difficulties. In both cases the automobiles were stalled on the tracks. That probably means that it was necessary to change pace and shift gears in negotiating it and the drivers were not equal to the situation. Evidently, also, it is not a protected crossing. No mention is made of gates or a watchman. There are probably certain warning lights that may or may not be visible, and there may be a bell, the ringing of which may not be heard by those in a motor car. In short, this is probably a typical rural station grade crossing with inadequate or inefficient safeguards. Within twenty-four hours it cost six lives.

The warning of one tragedy does not teach its obvious lesson of carefulness. The crossing remains an open invitation for road users to pass. Responsibility cannot be removed from the railroad company and the local authorities because of the failure of victims to observe the primary rules of caution in the face of a danger of which they may be unaware.

FROM LUCILLES DIARY

About three weeks ago I met Besse Hall in Michigan avenue and I asked her where she was going "all dressed up like a plush horse," as Uncle Bob says. She said she was on her way to the spring luncheon of the Altrurian league, where she was to make a speech.

"What's your subject?" I asked. "I should love to hear you, but unfortunately I don't belong to the league."

"Suppose you come along now," she replied, "and hear me make an impassioned appeal to the league to sell tickets for our annual benefit concert? I shall be delighted to have you for my guest."

"And I shall be delighted to accept," I answered, "for I should love to hear that 'impassioned appeal.' "

"Well, you know," Besse laughed, "our league does a great deal of good work, and we certainly need money in order to carry on, and I shall say all I can to make the girls feel the importance of selling all the tickets possible."

I was really surprised at her eloquence, which made me feel that I should like to help, and I rose and asked the speaker if it would be permissible for outsiders to assist in the ticket selling. I said if so I should gladly undertake to dispose of quite a number of the tickets. Besse's answer could scarcely be heard in the hearty applause that followed my offer.

"I don't believe you had better take more than five," said Besse as she gave me the tickets. "It isn't so easy to sell them as I wish."

"Oh, I should think anybody would be glad to pay $2 for such a charming concert as the league is giving," I answered.

"Well, if you need more, you'll be most welcome to them. Remember please, that the money must be turned in three weeks from today."

"I'll probably have mine in long before that," I said gaily.

And that very evening when John Fenwyck was at our house I began my campaign by asking him whether he had heard about the league concert.

"No," he replied, "but have you heard about that gala performance of 'Midsummer Night's Dream' which is to be given by the North Shore Elisabethan Players? It will probably be one of the most beautiful outdoor dramas ever given. I am hoping that you'll enjoy it with me. You see I have reserved two seats."

"Oh, John, how dear of you!" I shall simply love it, I know." I said enthusiastically, for I had read all about it, and I knew it was to be a very smart society event. Realizing that he had paid $5 a ticket I could not importune him to buy tickets for the league concert.

Besse called me up one morning to ask whether I need any more tickets to sell. I told her no, and explained that I was so busy with innumerable social affairs that I had not yet disposed of those I had.

"But you will, won't you?" she asked.

"Of course, dear," I replied, and I really meant to.

But I went quite unexpectedly to Milwaukee for the week end with the Thorndales. I had heard they were planning a motor trip to the Yellowstone, and I thought perhaps they would like to have me go with them. I think it is really deplorable how selfish some young married people are. When I mentioned to Molly and Billy Thorndale that I had always had a great desire to see Yellowstone park, Billy said that he hoped I could some day but that he and Molly never liked to take the responsibility of a passenger in their car for any long journeys. He was so extremely definite that I let the matter drop.

"Have you sent in your money for the tickets?" asked Besse Hall on the phone this morning. "This is the last day, you know."

"Oh, dear, I forgot all about those tickets," I answered.

"Forgot!" she cried. "Why, how could you?"

"I've been away and so busy and—I suddenly realized that she had rudely broken the connection.

Betty and Uncle Bob were here this evening, and Betty told us that Besse would have to pay for those tickets. Mother declared that I should reimburse her. I don't agree with her.—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

A. V. Donahey whose renomination as governor of Ohio is expected to result from the primaries in that state today, is one of the comparatively few democrats who have been chosen to fill the governorship in the buckeye state in recent years. His election was unmistakably a personal tribute, since he was almost the only representative of his party who was elected to state office. Eight years of efficient service in the office of state auditor were responsible in large measure of efficient service in the office of State Auditor were responsible for election to the governorship he pledged himself to stringent law enforcement. Governor Donahey was born of parents in humble circumstances and at the age of 15 he found it necessary to leave school and strike out for himself. He chose the printer's trade as his vocation and after years of hard struggle rose to a position of independence. A wife and ten children contribute to the happiness of the governor's home life.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

GREENLAND

With measurably green Iceland behind them, the American round-the world flyers will recognize Greenland because of the ice!

Such, says a bulletin from the Washington Geographic Society, are some of the paradoxes of geography.

"Greenland may look good to the American airmen because it is on the fringe of the home continent," continues the bulletin, "but they will find it vastly different from their own land, especially on the east coast where the first stop is scheduled at Angmagsalik.

"This east coast of Greenland has been dubbed 'the most inhospitable shore in the world.' A broad stream of icebergs and smaller fragments of ice is constantly moving southward along the coast, forming a barrier that is impenetrable by ships for a large part of the year. The airmen may fly over this with ease if all goes well, but their ability to land successfully on the floating ice in case they are forced down is problematical.

"The ice is troublesome in still another way because it may prevent the landing of supplies. After the airmen fly over the off-shore ice barrier, however, they are likely to find bays and inlets wholly free of ice at this season.

"Angmagsalik is the only permanent settlement on the east coast. Its population consists of several hundred Eskimos and a mere handful of Danes—trader, missionary, doctor and a few minor officials. In the summer a considerable volume of water flows out from glacial rivers centering at Angmagsalik, which tends to make an opening in the drifting off-shore ice. There is a better chance of a ship's getting through at that station, therefore, than at most other points on the east coast.

"When the flyers leave the east coast they will strike southward, skirt the southern end of Greenland at Cape Farewell and fly a short distance northward on the western coast to Ivigtut. They will be tracing in the air the path that was followed below by that famous old Viking, Erik the Red, who discovered Greenland from Iceland in 982 A. D., and lived to see his son, Lief Erikson, push on to America along the remainder of the airmen's route.

"At Ivigtut the flyers will be near the remains of one of the most interesting colonies the world has known, the settlement built up on the edge of America by Erik and his followers and conducted as a Christian community 500 years before Columbus crossed the Atlantic. On the narrow ice-free strip of coast, some 5,000 men of Norwegian blood maintained this colony and another farther north for several centuries. In addition to substantial houses they had a cathedral, 16 churches, a monastery and a nunnery. A resident bishop lived at the southern settlement.

"If the airmen should strike across from the east to the west coast instead of doubling Cape Farewell, they would survey a unique terrane. Greenland's mountains are 'icy' as the missionary song has it. All mountains that are high enough are icy even under the Equator. But the song missed the real point. Greenland's valleys are icy—filled solidly full of ice, in fact. It is doubtful if anywhere else in the world such a tremendous ice sheet exists as in Greenland. The snows of perhaps a dozen or more millenniums have built up a crystal blanket that in places is six or seven thousand feet thick. It has buried valleys, hills and mountains alike, making central Greenland into a huge snow and ice plateau, a single tremendous glacier with countless tentacles that extend down into the coast fjords, ever feeding icebergs to the ocean.

"Greenland is the largest island in the world, having an area of 750,000 or more miles. So vast is the land and so huge the ice-cap that it is estimated that if Greenland's ice were spread out over the United States it would cover the entire country a quarter of a mile deep."

Stories That Recall Others

Simple When You Know It

They were sitting on the piazza of a summer hotel swapping stories. "Ever hear this one?" asked the dark young man. "A dog was tied to a rope fourteen feet long. Twenty feet away was a fat, juicy bone. How did the dog get to the bone?"

"Oh, that's an old gag," said his companion. "You want me to say, 'I give it up' and then you'll say, 'That's what the other cur did.' "

"No, you're wrong, for the dog got the bone."

"Well, how did he get it?"

"Why, the other end of the rope was not tied."

Informing Father

A south side father has prided himself on keeping up to date with all the frills and fancies of this modern age. His daughter, only recently graduated from manual training high school, came in the other evening, flushed with enthusiasm after an automobile ride with a party of young girls and boys, and anxious to tell about the trip.

She named all the [illegible] passed on the route, and ended with, "and when we stopped at a barbecue."

Father remembered in his young days that the old fashioned barbecue was the hang-out for a lot of roughnecks, and his face blanched.

"What," he interrupted, stern-voiced, "Don't you know that's not a very good place for young people to go?"

Then the daughter seized the occasion to broaden father's education with a description of the modern barbecue stands that have sprung up at every country cross-road to tempt passing motorists with roast meat and hot dog sandwiches.

Rea Needed Great Patience

Quiet, modest and self-effacing Samuel Rea had to move forward step by step, but he suffered set-backs and often had to wait a long time between advancements.

In little Hollidaysburg, Pa., where he was born, he attended the public schools and the academy, but had to give up his school work at 15, when his father died, and hunt a job.

After clerking in a country store two years he got a job as a chainman for the Pennsylvania Railroad [illegible]. He liked the work, and studied engineering at home but within two years the panic of 1873 caused the railroad to curtail all engineering work.

Again he was a clerk, this time for the Hollidaysburg Iron & Steel Company. He still liked railroading but had to wait two years before he was able to obtain work with the Pennsylvania's engineering corps at Connellsville, Pa. The year he was married he was made assistant engineer, while the chain suspension bridge at Pittsburg was being constructed, then helped build the Pittsburg, Virginia & Charleston railroads and later he was placed in charge of surveyors reconstructing the Western Pennsylvania line.

Made assistant to a vice-president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, he worked in Philadelphia until sent to Baltimore to supervise the digging of the tunnels under that city. Chosen assistant to the president, he was sent to London to investigate the underground railroads.

At 42 he became fourth vice-president and was given charge of construction of the road's tunnels under the Hudson river and its station in New York, all costing $100,000,000 and considered the greatest engineering feat in the country. He was not a college man, but educational institutions honored him for his achievements.

When President Cassatt died it was rumored that Rea would succeed him but McCrea was chosen and had to depend on Rea to continue the work. Slowly Rea was promoted and at 55 was elected president of the Pennsylvania system. He then directed the construction of the bridge over East River at Hell Gate.

Today, at 68, he still is actively at the head of the system and is respected as one of the greatest railroad men of the country.

Tomorrow—McCormack Hunted for Engagements

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

The Reindeer Team

When Little Jack Rabbit woke up the next morning in the little old woman's Tree House where we left him in the last story, he heard someone talking in the kitchen.

There stood the little gray squirrel who had given him his warm cap. Pretty soon, in came the little brown mink and they, too, lived in the tree, only the old blind mole lived deep down among its roots.

"These are my little friends," explained the old woman as she gave the squirrel a roasted chestnut and the mole a piece of celery. But just as she was about to give the little mink something, the cow began to moo like everything. Throwing on her shawl, the little old woman ran to the tree next door. Pretty soon she came back with a cowbell. "My old cow dropped it last night and I must mend it at once, for she can't get along without her bell at her neck."

By and by Little Jack Rabbit said goodbye and set off for the chilly north country, and after he had gone for many a weary mile, he sat down on a fallen tree. Dear me, it was so cold that his whiskers were all covered with ice. All of a sudden, a gnome came by [illegible] a sled drawn by four little reindeer.

"Whoa!" shouted the gnome, stopping right in front of Little Jack Rabbit. But, would you believe it? He was sound asleep, and you know how dangerous it is to go to sleep out in the cold, for sometimes you never wake up.

"Hello, hello," cried the gnome, shaking him by the shoulder and carefully holding a bottle of hot jamaica ginger to his lips, he soon had the bunny boy feeling ever so much better.

"Now get on the sled with me," said the gnome. "We will soon be at the Ice Palace of the King, if that's where you want to go," and gently whipping his reindeer, away they went like a flash over the snow, and by and by, not so very long, they saw in the distance a magnificent castle made of ice. The rays of the sun made the turrets gleam like diamonds and rubies and sapphires, and the ice bridge that led up to the front gate looked just like a rainbow of many colors.

Then, over the bridge galloped the reindeer and in less than five hundred short seconds, the palace doors flew open and they were inside the beautiful castle of the North King.

POETRY

CARGOES.

Not with the jeweled cargoes they have sought
Do ships bear home to port with slanting sails
And holds agleam with treasure safely brought Through tranquil seas and unrecorded gales.
No eager watchers throng the harborside
To cheer their brave return; no bells are ringing
As, splendidly upon the filling tide
With flash of spray, the giant birds come winging.

But slowly do they creep to port with spars
And ragged sails awry. The seagulls scream
Above their cluttered decks and scornful stars
Alone recall the beauty of their dream.
Bearing the scar of bitter storms, they bring
No cargoes home to crown their voyaging
—Medora Addison, in The Forum.

MY MIND TO ME A KINGDOM IS.

My mind to me a kingdom is;
Such perfect joy therein I find
As far exceeds all earthly bliss
That God or Nature hath assigned.
Tho' much I want that most would have,
Yet still my mind forbids to crave.

Content I live, this is my stay:
I seek no more than may suffice;
I press to bear no haughty sway;
Look what I like, my mind supplies
Lo! thus I triumph like a king,
Content with what my mind doth bring

Some have too much, yet still they crave
I little have, yet seek no more;
They are but poor, though much they have,
And I am rich with little store.
They poor, I rich! they beg, I give;
They lack, I lend; they pine, I live.

My wealth is health and perfect ease.
My conscience clear my chief defense
I never seek by bribes to please,
Nor by deceit to give offense;
Thus do I live, thus will I die;
Would that all did so well as I!
—Ben Johnson.

FUNERALS.

Miss Rosina Sevin Allyn

New London, August 11—The funeral of Miss Rosina Sevin Allyn, the daughter of Mrs. Hazel B. Havens, of West Pleasant street, and the late Edward A. Allyn, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. The high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. John J. McGrath. The bearers were Lawrence Hamilton, John Blake, Henry Robinson, James Butler, Frank Lathrop and William Leary. The body was taken to Norwich where burial was in Yantic cemetery, and where the committal service was read by Rev. Michael H. May, rector of St. Patrick's church, Norwich.

Friends from Norwich and Jewett City, joined the mourners from New London for the funeral and burial. There were especially beautiful flowers.

On all sides there were heard expressions of sorrow for the death of Miss Allyn, who, during her young life had won numberless friends by her sweetness and amiability and who had met death with a fortitude and resignation which had had their influence upon all who had known her during her illness. The beauty of her Christian character has left an indelible impression upon many outside of the household circle so deeply saddened by her early death.

Mrs. Michael Connell.

Funeral services for Mrs. Michael Connell were held Monday morning at 8.15 o'clock at her late home, No. 30 Pratt street, followed at 9 o'clock by a solemn requiem mass in St. Mary's Memorial church. The mass was celebrated by Rev. William A. Keefe, who was assisted by Rev. Myles P. Galvin as deacon and Rev. Frederick M. Coholan, sub-deacon. Henry LaFontaine was in charge of the music during the mass.

Burial was in the family lot in St. Mary's cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Father Keefe. The bearers were four sons-in-law, Felix Keenan, James D. McCarthy, John S. Nagle and J. F. McCarthy, and her two grandsons, Felix J. Keenan and John A. McCarthy.

There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the services and the floral tributes were most beautiful, a silent testimonial to the esteem in which the deceased was held by her many friends.

Among the large number of floral pieces were a pillow marked Mother; a heart marked Grandma, from the Keenan children; a basket from Arline McCarthy; a basket from Gwendolyn Nagle; wreath, J. A. McCarthy; wreath, Margaret Kane; spray, John and James Royle; spray, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Burns; crescent, Mrs. M. Sweeney; spray, James Nagle and family; spray, Mrs. Catherine O'Neil; spray, Miss E. AUTO DRIVERS PROVIDE MUCH COURT BUSINESS

Automobile drivers of late have been providing nearly one-half of the business in the local city court. The majority of the automobile cases before the court are those resulting from failure to observe to local traffic rules, such as passing traffic beacons on the left, parking on cross walks, parking over time limits, passing standing trolley cars, etc. So far this month there has been but one arrest on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor and the accused in this particular case was discharged.

The 26 auto cases that have come before the city court so far this month have resulted in fines and costs amouting in all to $102.50 which is about one quarter of the total fines and costs assessed in all cases that have come before the court since August 1st. The total fines and costs assessed in the court since the first month amoun tto $455.36.

DISTRICT DEPUTY GRAND CHANCELLOR INSTALLS WAUREGAN LODGE OFFICERS

RUDOLPH HENSCHEL

Under the direction of District Deputy Grand Chancellor George E. Robertson, Jr., of Undaunted lodge, No. 84, of Jewett City, the recently elected officers of Wauregan lodge, No. 6, Knights of Pythias, were installed Monday night at the new Pythian Castle in Steiner's hall. The officers were installed as follows: Chancellor commander, Rudolph Henschel; vice chancellor, George Kaplan; prelate, Dr. S. M. Goldberg; master at work, George Schiller; master at arms, Philip Herst; inner guard, Sid Snaig; off. outer guard, Dr. K. K. Markoff; master of finance, E. Pieper; keeper of record and seal, M. Epstein; master exchequer, James Smith.

Wauregan lodge has made remarkable progress since its re-organization less than two years ago. The many social events of the past have certainly put this growing popular order far ahead of its brother lodges.

The open charter has proved a success, as this gives those who desire admittance a chance to apply for membership at a much lower rate of initiation fee.

The present chancellor commander has all qualifications to guide Wauregan lodge, No. 6, to a still greater achievement for the ensuing term.

After the installation, the work of rank of esquire was conferred upon a number of candidates, and this certainly proved a treat to those present. Following this a social session was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

THIEVES GET LOOT AT SCHWARTZ RESIDENCE

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Aug. 11—Thieves continued to operate in New London for it was disclosed today that since Saturday night two stores and one residence were burglarized. The stores were the Capital Haberdashery, 38 Bank street and The Eaton-Wilson Company, 28-218 Bank street and the residence to receive the attention of the crooks was that of Michael Schwartz, vice president of the Schwartz Furniture Company, 41 Squire street. But little plunder was obtained at the two stores, but at the Schwartz home considerable loot was taken, the extent of which, was not known this evening.

At the Schwartz residence the thieves had easy work gaining an entrance and removing the plunder for Mr. and Mrs. Schwartz were absent, having left New London for a visit with friends over Sunday. Before the family departed the shades at all the windows were drawn, but Mrs. Schwartz in locking the windows failed to fasten the pantry window. The crooks carried a barrel to beneath the window and standing upon it raised the window and allowed them to enter the house. Once inside the place the crooks ransacked it thoroughly. Going to a bed chamber they took a 17-jewel Waltham watch and a small pearl watch, Swiss movement, and from a closet a large quantity of Mrs. Schwartz's clothing, including a long black Hudson seal coat was taken. Other plunder obtained was a quantity of silverware and a number of pieces of linen.

Entrance to the haberdashery store was gained by forcing a rear window. The entire place was ransacked, but none of the stock was taken, the only plunder the thieves removed was a six-piece silver set.

At the Eaton-Wilson store entrance was obtained by forcing the door to the stock room in the rear. So far as is known no plunder was taken there as only iron and metal piping was stored on the ground floor and entrance to the store was not made.

COUNTY HOME CHILDREN SEE CIRCUS PERFORMANCE

All the children at the New London County home were made happy Monday when they were extended an invitation by the Gentry Bros.-Patterson Circus to witness the big show during the afternoon. Transportation was furnished for the children and needless to say no more tickled bunch of youngsters watched the performance and enjoyed goodies and balloons.

Following the afternoon performance the management backed by Norwich Lodge of Elks transported 16 of the acts to the State Tuberculosis Sanatorium where patients and staff were royally entertained for about an hour. Clowns, acrobats, tumblers and other circus performers worked hard to please their audience and needless to say the circus management and Elks were warmly thanked for their thoughtfulness and courtesy in providing the entertainment.

The Elks home was thrown open Monday evening to the circus performers and not a few availed themselves of the opportunities of inspecting and enjoying the many privileges of this fine order.

The circus management was more than pleased at their treatment by Norwich people, especially the Elks, who had arranged for their comfort and pleasure during their two days stay in the Rose of New England.

CIRCUS CROWDS PLEASED WITH PERFORMANCES

Hundreds of Norwich people enjoyed the day Monday beneath the canvas of the big tent of Gentry Bros.-Jas. Patterson Circus, one of the oldest and best known on the road, at the two performances given at the Norwich fairgrounds.

No circus which has visited Norwich has left behind it a better record. For clean, and high class programmes, a record maintained for many years, this circus is noted, and the showing in Norwich simply served to make friends here and there will be a welcome here in future years, according to those who witnessed the performances Monday.

Beginning with the big street parade in the morning which started shortly before 11 o'clock, covering the downtown section, until the final moves were made late at night preparatory to going to Plainfield for the next showing, everything was handled in first class manner. As usual the parade was witnessed by hundreds, the streets being lined with people during the morning. The kiddies and grown-ups enjoyed seeing the elephants, tigers, lions, camels, horses, dogs and the many performers and clowns with the circus. Horses, equipment and people were in the best of condition, the wardrobes were bright and flashy and without a doubt it was one of the cleanest of its kind and a credit to the management.

The big show opened in the evening promptly at 8.15 o'clock with "Fairyland," in which over 100 performers, horses, ponies and animals appeared, featuring three prima donnas, Misses Smith, Grigsby and Harris, and the circus band of 25 pieces, most ably directed by John Dusch.

The opening number was a solo by Miss Pompei Christian, rendered from a howdah perched on the top of the largest elephant of the herd. In quick order followed the performing elephants, trained ponies, dancing horses, bareback riders, tumblers, acrobats, tight wire artists and trapeze artists, giving a variety of entertainment selected to please the capacity audience.

The audience was immediately put into good humor by the rough and tumble act with the bucking mules. Then there was a thrill — the Misses Rotavia, Matlock and Williams went through their amazing gyrations in the dome of the big top on flying aerial ladders.

The Misses Dennis and Tucker with their trained elephants provided a sensation as they played with their monster pachydrms, concluding their act with a feature tango dance by Modoc, the big elephant.

Eddie Limoge and his troupe of clowns kept the audience in laughter between the various numbers of cleverness and ready wit, featuring the devil act and the midget boxing act.

Other features included the Cottrell-Powells and the Hollis troupe in riding carrying acts, a fine display of riding ability and well trained horses; the Matlocks and the McKeon family, snappy and clever wire walkers; Johnson Brothers, Ellis Duo and Mason & Sims, a clever and thrilling revolving ladder act and the Misses Loretto, Clark Sisters and Webber, who chanced with luck while riding through the air suspended by their teeth. The Myers Duo, the Rotavians and the McKeons introduced a number of unique stunts in high wire and trapeze acts.

Other hits of the programme were the high school horses, handled by twelve pretty young women, who put their steeds through their paces to perfection, a series of clever animal acts by dogs, horses, ponies, greyhounds and goats, the latter featuring the tight wire walking goat.

Following the main show those who remained were treated to thrilling acts by the daredevil riding cowboys and cowgirls who sent their mounts dashing wildly about the arena. The Sioux Warriors, Crow Horsemen and Comanche Raiders gave exhibitions of Indian riding, dancing and acting. In conclusion A. L. Trageson, challenge heavyweight wrestler met Frankie Busch, local light heavyweight in a ten round bout. Trageson fared well for two rounds but fouled Busch in the third. Leonard, the referee, of the bout gave the fight to Busch but the local lad, refusing to take it by a foul, waited his time and then crashed a right to the face that sent Trageson down for the count of seven. Trageson got up from this and Busch drove another right to the body which sent Trageson to the mat for the count, blood coming from his mouth and nose.

Sideshows and other attractions completed the entertainments.

AWARDED BANNERS AT FARM BUREAU PICNIC

At the annual picnic and field day of the New London County Farm Bureau Saturday in Waterford the tug-of-war was won by Lebanon.

The games for adults caused considerable merriment. As these events were run off as an inter-town competition, there was a good deal of interest in the adding of the score at the end of the day. Waterford led with 71 points and took the blue banner, Lebanon came second with 62 points and took the red banner, while Ledyard had 45 points and got the white banner.

W. Ellery Allyn of Waterford has offered a silver loving cup to the team (Lebanon or Waterford) taking two out of three games in a series of baseball games to be played some time this summer.

The Thimble Bees of Jordan had a booth and a good amount was realized for the Jordan church by the sale of ice cream, soft drinks, hot dogs, sandwiches, cakes and candy.

This is one of the big events in the Farm Bureau year and is looked forward to by farmers and their families from all over the county. The banners which were won by the three towns coming out first, were very attractive, being lettered in gold and bound with gold cord. These can be hung in community clubs or grange halls.

NO DANGER YET OF LOCAL WATER FAMINE

Although Norwich, with other cities in the state, has been in the grip of one of the longest dry spells in many years, the water supply in both reservoirs is about average for this time of the year, and, unless something very unusual happens, Norwich is not likely to face any serious shortage of water supply.

J. J. Corkery, president of the board of water commissioners, said Fairview was down 3 feet from full pond and Stony Brook down 6 feet from full pond on July 31st. This, he explained, is not exceptional and Norwich is better off than many other cities in the state.

One thing is spoken of, however, and, that is, that Norwich does need a larger water supply, for had the drought come in the spring, instead of in the summer, the water supply would have run short.

During the month of August, thus far, the rainfall has measured but .54 of an inch, this rain coming during the last two thunder storms. As there is sufficient water in the reservoirs there is no danger of a shortage, for the present at least.

George Farrell presided at the organ and during the offertory Mrs. Morgan G. Cronin rendered Ave Maria.

Chappell Co., Mrs. Donald (Almy) Chappell was married to Commander Wilson Brown, U. S. N. The wedding took place in Seattle, Wash., and the news reaching across the continent from that city has set the upper strata of New London's society agog. Mrs. Chappell, now Mrs. Brown, was formerly Lydia Ballou Almy of Norwich, and is a daughter of the late Dr. Leonard B. and Carrie Webb Almy. On the death of her father, she and her sister, Mrs. W. Ellery Allyn, wife of Colonel Allyn, prominent political leader of Waterford, came into a fortune estimated at $500,000.

MARRIED MEN OF EAST SIDE MAKE PUBLIC LETTER TO THE SINGLE MEN

The following open letter from the manager of the East Side Married Men's team to Jimmy Pedace, manager of the East Side Single Men may be of interest to local baseball fans. It seams that the Married Men have repeatedly challenged the men who are fortunate enough to be single to a series for the championship of the East Side. For some reason or other Manager Pedace has been sidestepping and evading a direct answer to the challenges which leads the Henpecks to believe that the doughty little manager is still smarting under the defeat handed him last year.

Jimmy was never known to hold a grudge or fail to defend his honor when the occasion demanded for he is known to be one of the best little sports in the city to say nothing of the East Side. It would seem that the manager of the Married Men was taking an unjustified slam at Jimmy's sporesmanship, but we print the open letter as it was given us and we hope Manager Pedace will realize that we have no hand in the matter. The letter is as follows:

To the Manager of the East Side Single Men:

Now that the Masked Marvels have gone, the Twilight league nearly through and the Fat and Lean men have had their little game how about the annual setto between the Married and Single Men of the East Side?

Ever since the first of July we have been trying to get started but for some reason or other every time it has been mentioned we have been put off for a "couple of weeks." Now we don't mean to be put off any more as we are "rarin' to go" and we want action and we are going to get it or know the reason why.

Perhaps the bitter memories of last year's series which finally ended with our team victorious and the highly touted Manager Pedace of the Single Men chaperoning a lowly Billy Goat through the main streets of the city may be one of the reasons why there hasn't been anything done or said in regards to the series. We are going to have this series if its the last thing we do. When it came to financial backing this year we were content to furnish it and sit on the grandstand and watch until we have about decided that a bunch of cripples or even misfits could get out on the field and do as well or even better than you alleged youngsters can. It is our aim to show you how the old national pastime can and should be played. We may be old but we have young ideas. So get busy and let's get started, the sooner the quicker.

Yours for real baseball and not a weak attempt at it.

Baltic Splits Even

The Baltic A. A. base ball team playing two games at the week-end won one and lost one breaking even. Playing in Putnam on Saturday the team had an uphill battle to fight with decisions of the umpire favoring the home club. With all this the Baltic team nearly carried off the bacon when they lost out 6 to 5 against the H. K. H. team on their home grounds.

On Sunday the Baltic team played in Danielson against the Danielson A. A. team and by slugging the ball in the first inning for three runs and again in the fifth for four runs knocking Deforest out of the box the Baltic team took the home club into camp by score of 7 to 4. Recave for Baltic pitched a good game.

PIRATES TAKE BOTH ENDS OF DOUBLE HEADER

Philadelphia, August 11.—Pittsburgh won both games of a double header with the Phillies today by scores of 7 to 3 and 6 to 4.

Yde had little trouble in subduing the Fletchermen in the first game, holding them to eight hits. Carney's two homers into the bleachers featured the contest. In the second contest Pfeffer was relieved in the eighth after the first two batters hit two-base blows. Kremer retired the side without further scoring and sent the Phils down in order in the ninth. How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch

Seventh inning. Score tie. One out. Runner on first. Pitcher at bat and a weak hitter.

What should the team in the field look for?

Most managers instruct such a batter, in this situation to bunt the ball in order to advance the runner to second. They take a chance that the next batter will score him with a base hit. If they don't make the play in this way, the chances are that the pitcher will hit into a double play and thus retire the side. So the team in the field should be on the lookout for a bunt.

Arrows Tie for First

The Arrows and the Braves clashed at the Academy Campus Monday evening and the former team came away with the long end of a 6 to 2 score. Johnny Greene pitched a stellar game for the Arrows, getting seven strikeouts and allowing only four hits. The lineups:

Arrows—Hamell rf; Kamos 3b; W. Burns cf; Marchand 1b; Kampf ss; J. Burns c; Moore 2b; Couture lf; Greene p; Rutchick rf.

Rosedales 4; Yantic Rubes 4

In a last inning rally aided by two wild throws the Yantic Rubes tallied four runs tying the Rosedales at 4 all in the game played Monday evening at Yantic. Nawrocki and Beyny Steinman were responsible for their tying of the score as each stole home in the final inning. Nawrocki pitched good ball for the Rubes getting eight strikeouts and was ably supported by his team-mates. Twinky starred at third for the Rubes while McGowan and Carroll were the stars for the Rosedales. The batteries were: Ferguson, Macey and Goldblatt for the Rosedales; Nawrocki and Steinman for the Rubes.

New York, Aug. 11—The New York Giants broke Carl Mays' winning streak of nine straight here today defeating the Reds in the fifth game of the series. New York won the series, three games to two. Watson pitched a strong game for New York, and was well supported, especially by Frisch, Jackson and O'Connell. A fumble by Jackson let in Cincinnati's first run, but the short stop redeemed the error with two sensational stops and by driving in two runs in the sixth.

RENAULT PUMMELS MADDEN BUT THE STUBBORN IRISHMAN ABSORBS IT ALL

New York, Aug. 11.—Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight, gave Bartley Madden, a scientific boxing lesson in a 15-round match at the Queensboro A. C., in Long Island City, tonight. Decisively defeating his opponent all through the route and cutting him up badly about the face. But despite the battery of rights and lefts which were trained on him from long and short range the stubborn New York Irishman remained upright, refusing to succumb to the terrific punishment.

It was Renault's fight by a wide margin. The Canadian, however, lacked the necessary steam to his punches to floor Madden, contenting himself with cutting his opponent when the knockout appeared impossible.

The Irishman was beaten. Even Harry Wills' lumbering blows failed to etch their marks upon Madden's face to such an extent that Renault's cutting jabs produced.

After the first few rounds Madden crawled into his shell and fought purely a defensive fight. Evidently contented to avert a knockout. But Renault was relentless in his attack. He bore into the crouching Madden, driving him around the ring with a fury of blows that seemed almost impossible to remain upright under. Despite this fusillade of blows Madden occasionally came out into the open to get in a blow but Renault took all that Madden could send without attempting to defend himself.

At the termination of the match Madden's eyes were bleeding from cuts over and under the optic. His cheekbone on the left side was torn open and blood gushed from a nasty gash on his nose. But he appeared unhurt despite his battered appearance.

Renault, during the fifteenth round stormed his opponent; rushed him to the ropes and poured gloves at him from long range, but his endeavors only met with stubborn resistance and the bell found Madden's record unmarked by a knockout or even a trip to the canvas. Madden's showing was a sorry one but he was given a great hand for his wonderful powers of resistance and his ability to keep from being floored.

The Preliminaries

In the first preliminary, Paul Johnson of Sweden knocked out James Martin, New York, negro, in the second round of a scheduled four round match.

Timmy Singleton, New York negro, and Salbatino Morocco of Salvador fought a six round draw.

LEONARD GETS NEWSPAPER VERDICT OVER MORAN

Olympic Arena, Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 11. (By the A. P.)—Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, defending his title for the first time in 11 months, easily defeated Pal Moran, New Orleans challenger in a 10-round no-decision contest here tonight. A tabulation by the ringside experts gave Leonard nine of the 10 rounds, while the sixth went to Moran.

The champion, boxing with his old time skill, so far outclassed Moran that the result was never in doubt. Leonard blocked perfectly and danced away from Moran's wild rights whenever the challenger dared to carry the fight to him.

The victory, however, may prove costly to Leonard, as he dislocated fourth round. This injury may force the thumb of his right hand in the him to suspend training in preparation for his match with Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, scheduled for ten days later. The damaged thumb was encased in splints as Leonard sat in his corner after the fight.

Billy Gibson, the champion's manager, said tonight he could not determine what effect Leonard's injury would have on his training for Walker until an examination can be made tomorrow.

Leonard convinced his admirers that he had lost none of his speed as a result of his layoff of nearly a year. His judgment of distance was marvelously accurate and he whipped over his punches in championship form.

The champion continually had Moran on retreat except for the sixth round to escape a possible knockout. In the eighth round he drove Moran to the ropes, under a smashing attack, causing the New Orleans lightweight to sag as a result of solid punches to the head.

Moran boxed timidly and was wild with his right hand swings.

Mechanicsville Wins Another

Mechanicsville added another win to their string, Sunday afternoon defeating the Thompson Town team six to three. Johnson pitched a steady game yieldong only four hits, while his mates found Coderre for eight safe blows. After the fourth inning the game settled down to a pitcher's battle and some real baseball was shown. Bellsie starred at third and McKenna carried off the batting honors collecting three hits out of four times at bat. The score by innings:

M. A. A.	0	5	0	1	0	0	0	0	—6
Thompson	0	0	0	1	2	0	0	0	—3

On Sunday Mechanicsville will play Harry Collins team of Baltic, Conn., at Mechanicsville.

Local Woolmen Swamp Moosup Team

For the second time in as many weeks the fast American Woolen Co., team took in their fellow woolmen of Moosup by a terrible score of 20 to 5 at Moosup Sunday. The locals took kindly to Hill's offerings and clouted the old apple to all corners of the lot. When they didn't hit they got free passes. The local boys went right after the game in the first four innings scoring 5 in the first, 3 in the second and third and 5 more in the fourth, four more were scored in the 6th. This ended the scoring for the locals. Many times after, they had chances to score but laid down with men on bases.

The Moosup boys collected the same amount of hits as the local boys, 11 a piece but Fuller kept his opponents hits so scattered that they were unable to score except the second, when he was touched for 5 hits and 3 runs. From then on the local boy held the Moosup boys well in hand while his teammates were hitting hard in back of his great pitching. Moosup again scored in the 5th on 2 hits, again in the 7th on a base on balls a sacrifice and a hit. This ended the scoring for both teams. Hill the Moosup ace lasted six innings after a total of 20 runs were scored off his delivery and was relieved by Young who pitched fairly good ball. Hill was not at fault to all the scoring of local boys, his team mates playing a terrible brand of baseball, booting and misjudging ground balls and for ever throwing away easy putouts. Taking in all the game was more or less a comedy affair. The manager of the local boys wishes to get in touch with some real ball clubs as he has a few open dates left.

NATIONAL WOMEN'S TENNIS TOURNEY AT FOREST HILLS

Forest Hills, N. Y. Aug. 11.—Twenty-seven entries, in addition to three of the five players who had drawn byes, advanced to the second round of the National women's singles championship at the West Side Tennis club today. Mrs. Molla B. Mallory of New York reached the third round through her defeat of Miss Caroma Winn of Mountain Lakes, N. J., in straight sets at 6-1, 6-0. Mrs. Mallory and Miss Winn had drawn byes in the first round.

The match between Miss Helen Wills, of Berkeley, Cal., winner of the 1923 championship and Olympic title holder for this year, and Mrs. L. C. Beaupre of Quebec drew the largest gallery of spectators. It was Miss Wills' first appearance on the courts since her return from abroad.

Miss Wills outplayed her opponent from start to finish, her placements constantly catching the Canadian girl off her guard. Only twice during the match did Mrs. Beaupre seriously threaten the champion. In the fourth and fifth games of the second set she brought the score to deuce but Miss Wills eventually captured both and won the match at 6-0, 6-0.

Mrs. Mallory, former national champion, had an easy time defeating Miss Winn. After Mrs. Mallory had taken the first game by breaking through her opponent's service Miss Winn, came back to win the second, only to lose the next eleven games. Mrs. Mallory captured the match at 6-1, 6-0.

The only match of the day to go three sets was that between Mrs. Martin Worhaus of New York and Miss Carolina Bannister of New York. Miss Bannister won at 6-4, 5-7, 6-3.

RIVERVIEW WILL PLAY DUWELLS ON SATURDAY

Sports Editor: In reply to the challenge of the Duwell management I wish to state that the Riverview club of the Norwich State Hospital has a game scheduled with the Bridgeport Terminals for Saturday August 16th.

Nevertheless I will cancel this engagement to accomodate the robust athletes supporting the colors of the East End. They apparently feel that they have reached the pinnacle of fame by trouncing the J. B. Martin velvet-twisters but this doesn't mean a thing to us. The Riverview Club has produced the fastest semi-pro club in this neck of the woods for the past several seasons and our records substantiate this statement. The club this season has been woefully weak in the hurling department and this has been the cause of several defeats recently.

I do not wish to utilize any more of your valuable space, Mr. Editor, as this argument of baseball supremacy can be settled in the commodious ball park bordering the historic Thames, and not through the columns of your valuable newspaper.

Manager Pedace can get in touch with me by calling 416.

Yours Respectfully,
Bill Donovan
Manager Riverview B. B. C.

Another upset came when Trumpet, another of Murphy's stable, met defeat in the 2:09 trot in which he also was a favorite, this event went to Guy Lightning in straight heats after Trumpet captured the first preliminary heat.

With the exception of the feature all of the races were under the elimination plan.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

RAILS FEATURED MARKET

New York, Aug. 11—Steady accumulation of the high grade railroad shares, eleven of which established new high prices for the year, was the outstanding feature of today's stock market. Although several points of heaviness developed in other sections of the list, the market appeared to have resumed its upward trend, bullish demonstrations being successfully conducted in a number of specialties, particularly the baking issues.

Reports that the allied and German experts on reparations had come to an agreement on the Dawes program had a bullish effect on sentiment, and was directly responsible for the strength of the foreign exchanges, demand sterling moved up 3 3-4 cents to a new 1924 high at $4.57 3-4. Trade news was mixed in character, but largely favorable. A better demand and copper with indications of a stiffening price tendency.

Brokers reported a good investment demand for the dividend paying rail shares with increased buying for Dutch and British account. Merger rumors also contributed to the heaviness of these issues, Jersey Central being the outstanding feature with an extreme gain of 14 3-4 points over Saturday's final quotation. Other issues to break through their previous high prices for the year were Lackawanna, Delaware and Hudson, Atlantic Coast Line Line, Louisville and Nashville, Union Pacific and Omaha, the gains ranging from 1 to nearly 3 1-2 points.

"Nickel Plate" closed 1 1-4 points higher at 114 1-4 but Erie, Chesapeake & Ohio, and Pere Marquette lost ground, active buying also took place in Baltimore and Ohio, Rock Island, St. Paul preferred, Chicago Northwestern, Great Northern preferred and Lehigh Valley, the demand for the western carriers being influenced to some extent by higher car loadings.

Standard industrials showed little change on the day, U. S. Steel fluctuated within a range of one point, closing 1-4 higher at 107 3-4. Baldwin, American Can and Studebaker showed only fractional changes.

Baking issues made a quick response to reports of high earnings, General Baking soaring 13 1-2 points to 130 1-2, a new peak price on reports that the company had purchased a year's supply of wheat at the summer's low price. Loose Wiles and National Biscuit also bettered the previous high prices. Additional highs were recorded by National Lead, Foundation Company, Montgomery-Ward, Pullman, Wells Fargo, American Radiator and Sloss Sheffield Steel.

Trading in the oil shares was rather listless, as a result of the omission of dividends by two Standard Oil units and another cut in Gulf Coast crude pr

BUILDING PROGRESS IN NORWICH

During the past week good progress has been made on building projects now in hand. At the State Hospital the ward buildings had been brought to the second story and the steel structure work for one is being erected while the other will be ready for the roof this week. The work on remodeling the Merchants bank on Main street is progressing favorably. The brick walls of the building have been torn down to the Main street level.

On Durham street near West Main street two houses are in the process of erection. One has been boarded in and the foundation for the other is being laid. The foundation for a building at the corner of Nelson place and West Thames street is being laid. In the East Great Plain section of the town several houses are being built.

At the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton six building permits were granted during the past week and one refused. The one refused was for a frame addition to a building within the fire limits and was rejected on this account. The six permits are for a dwelling house, garages and alterations and the total value placed on the new construction work is approximately $10,000.

The permits issued are as follows:

To William N. Ortmann to erect a frame house on Orchard street for himself. The house will be 24x36 feet with three rooms on the first floor and three rooms and bath on the second floor. The foundation will be of stone and cement. The construction will be frame with exterior finished in clapboards and the roof shingled in composite shingles. The exterior will be finished in plaster and cypress.

To Frank P. Emanuk to build for Guiseppe De Pollo an addition to the present house at 137 Chestnut street. The alterations to be made to the house will change it from a one-family house to a two-family building. The construction will be frame to conform with the present structure.

To Mrs. Julia Blair to erect a frame garage at 16 Mechanic street. The garage will be 16x16 feet and will be finished on the outside in composite shingles.

To Joseph Boisclair to build a garage at the rear of 73 Sherman street. The garage will be of frame construction with stone foundation, 16 by 13 feet. The roof will be covered with slate.

To Miss Rose A. Uterstadt to erect a frame garage of a two-car type. The garage will be 21x17 feet and one story and a half high with basement. The foundation will be concrete. The garage is to be located at 137 Talman street.

To Louis B. Curtin to alter and extend the present building at 68 Myers avenue which is used for a garage. The addition will be 8x14 feet.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 16 sales of real estate as compared to 30 sales for the corresponding week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $39,400 and $61,400.

There were 8 sales of real estate in New London during the past week, exactly the same number as for the same week in 1923. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $65,500 and $61,750.

The Building Situation

Building permits were issued this week in the leading cities of the state to the number of 268, a slight gain over the corresponding week of last year, when 276 permits were issued and an increase of 75 over the same week in 1922. Total construction started this week amounted to $1,138,-553, comparing with $655,729 a year ago and $880,434 in 1922.

New London

Work has been started on a cottage at the corner of Briggs and Norwood avenues, for B. A. Armstrong. The plans call for a one-family house, 28x26 feet, of frame construction, provided with the usual conveniences.

From private plans work has been started on a new house on Riverside avenue by B. H. Hilliar. The house will be of the twin design, of frame construction, 28x40 feet, the flats to have six rooms, with hot water heat and all conveniences.

D. M. Buckley and James F. Ryan of Hartford, owners of Oswegatchie Park, have plans for building 12 cottages on the site, all to be of frame construction. A water supply will be installed, the contract for this portion of the work having been awarded.

A permit has been issued for a house at 17 Sherman street, for J. F. Moran. The plans call for a frame house, 26x30 feet, arranged for one family. The house will have six rooms and both will be provided with every convenience. The cost will be $5,000.

Contractor M. L. O'Connell has started work on two houses for himself on Brooks street. The plans provide attractive frame houses, each 24x26 feet, of frame construction, of the one-family type. The houses will have six rooms each, and will be heated and provided with all conveniences. The cost will be $4,000.

The contract has been awarded to Nathan Lubchansky to build a brick storehouse on Blinman street for Iman Elionsky. The building will be one story high, 16x20 feet, with an ell, 14x16 feet, with slag roof.

Work has been started on an addition to the garage in the rear of 40 Chapel street, by Johnson & Leeds. The addition will be one story high, 28x6 feet, of frame construction.

C. R. Gates has been awarded the contract for an addition at 143 Howard street for Barnet Gordon.

Work is well advanced on the new house on Montauk avenue for Barnet Lubow, for which F. N. Lamphear, Gorton street, has the general contract. The house is of frame and stucco construction, arranged for one family. M. M. Malove has been awarded the contract for the plumbing and heating.

Work has been started on changes to the building at 361 Bank street for William Redden. New store fronts are being built and interior changes made.

Colchester

Abraham Agranovitch of the Aben Hardware Co. of New London has purchase the Adams property which was destroyed by fire last year. It is understood that the new owner will build a business block on the site.

Mechanicsville

From plans drawn by Architects Bilderbeck and Langdon, Inc., of New London, work has been started on the school building here. The building will be one story high, containing two classrooms, teacher's room and library. B. Beaulois of Danielson is the general contractor, and Charles M. Field, 293 Bridge street, Springfield, has the contract to furnish the face brick.

If a man doesn't think right it is oxymous with a first-class financier.

BRINGS SUIT AGAINST TOWN OF SPRAGUE FOR DAMAGES OF $3,000

Suit for damages of $3,000 has been brought against the town of Sprague by Anthony Fournier of Sprague, through his father and guardian, Dolphus Fournier. The papers in the action were filed Monday with the clerk of the superior court for this county. This suit is the result of an accident April 24th last when the plaintiff, who is fifteen years of age, fell on a sidewalk in Sprague and received a broken ankle.

The sidewalk where the boy fell is near the Sprague town building. The complaint alleges that the sidewalk was in a dangerous condition as there was a hole or depression in the walk and a metal pipe about four inches in diameter projected from the hole for about two inches. The youth, while walking on the sidewalk, stepped into the hole and fell, breaking his right ankle and receiving other injuries. He was unable to use his leg for a period of three months. The plaintiff was a mill hand. He is now seeking damages of $3,000, the action being returnable to the superior court the first Tuesday in September.

NOTED BUSINESS AUTHORITY TO ADDRESS ROTARIANS

Solutions of the problems surrounding the human element in industry will be discussed by S. F. Fannon, noted business authority and production engineer in his address before the Norwich Rotary club Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel.

Mr. Fannon's solutions, gained through an intensive study of business and industrial conditions in all parts of the country for the past 18 years, have engaged the attention of business men and many of his ideas are being put to practical use. His talk is based on facts gained through his investigations, and is presented in a very interesting manner. Mr. Fannon's subject will be The 75 Cent Dollar In Industry.

Mr. Fannon, who is now director of the department of public service of Sherman Service, Inc., was one of the speakers at the business conference held in Washington, D. C., to which all the large business organizations in this and foreign countries were invited. He has also addressed the leading Chambers of Commerce, Rotary, Kiwanis and Lion clubs as well as a number of large national and state conventions of business organizations, including the National Convention of Grocers, National Association of Retail Druggists, Associated Advertisers Club of America, National State Hardware Association, National Council of Traveling Salesmen's Associations and National Association of Cost Accountants of the Paper Industry.

DRY AGENTS WON'T RAID PRIVATE CELLARS

Reports that revenue men were to visit homes throughout the state for the purpose of levying a tax of 18 cents on each gallon of wine for manufacture of which permit was not held, was denied Monday by Prohibition Director Frank T. Putney as being absolutely false. The announcement followed a stampede on his offices, and on the offices of Collector of Internal Revenue Robert O. Eaton by persons asking for permits.

Federal officers are not allowed to enter private homes without a search warrant, and such warrant can issue only after evidence of actual sale on the promises has been received. These facts were pointed out by Director Putney, who also corrected the impression that the permit granted by the revenue bureau permits the making of wine. "The permit," said Mr. Putney, "allows the manufacture of fruit juices. These fruit juices often times ferment and become strong in alcoholic content. The permit gives the department a record of where such wine might be found."

It is required by law that the heads of households intending to make fruit juices must express their intention and apply for a permit five days before the manufacture is begun.

An honest enemy often proves to be a man's best friend.

EASTERN CONNECTICUT AS VACATION LAND

No section of New England furnishes a greater diversity of scenery, historical data, healthful environment, than is to be found in New London and Windham counties—better known as Eastern Connecticut says the current issue of The Eastern Connecticut, U. C. T. monthly.

Thousands upon thousands of rest seekers swarm into this section of Connecticut annually during the heated period from the over-crowded cities of New York, Boston, Springfield, Providence and other adjacent territory. Our coast—bordering on Long Island Sound and our many inland rivers, ponds and lakes, coupled with the high hills offer recreation and health to thousands every year.

Space forbids us to touch only briefly on the more important centers around which lies the land that attracts and entrances the fortunate city dweller who is able to share with the native the delightful months of July and August.

Norwich being the largest city in Eastern Connecticut is also noted for its romantic scenery and its attractiveness as a residential section of the state. The charm of its rivers, falling over abrupt and craggy precipices, its many high hills and its beautiful river Thames with is sloping green banks furnishes 14 miles of camping, boating and fishing possibilities in endless variety. This famous garden spot where the Mohegan Indians roamed at will and where the intrepid Narragansetts contested for the rights of this rich territory on many bloody battlefields, and where Mohegan supremacy and cunning and strategy triumphed, is marked by granite monuments bearing the simple names of Uncas and Miantonomo, the Sachems of these powerful tribes.

Its many hills and lofty eminences suggest a noble place for a town. So must have thought our early ancestors, a hardy Puritan band that formed the first settlement in 1659.

Rich in history and tradition, furnishing the last resting place for that little band of youthful French soldiers, who during the Revolution were left behind when Lafayette marched through Norwich in his relief of General George Washington, too ill to go farther and finally died and was buried here, miles from their native land. The historical charm is second only to its natural charm. The Mohegan Trail and the Military Highway running north from New London through this great vacation land, is but an indication of the progressiveness of the inhabitants of Eastern Connecticut.

Brief sketches of New London, Crescent Beach, Niantic, Groton, Willimantic, Stonington, Putnam and other places in the eastern part of the state are given. In conclusion the article says:

Eastern Connecticut offers all that can be expected or even wished for in healthful, invigorating atmosphere, and a great variety of recreational sport, sea food, fresh caught in surf-feit, and the very best of pure farm and dairy products.

FOUND UNDERGROUND STILL AT MONTVILLE

Disguised as a cotton weaver "on the bum," a member of the federal prohibition enforcement squad last week located a moonshine plant in Montville which is said to have been one of the main sources of illicit liquor in Norwich. Saturday afternoon raiders visited the farm of Louis Haack and entering a cave dug in a knoll on the Haack farm through an entrance which had been camouflaged as a hillock, found a good sized still, considerable mash, sugar, prunes and other ingredients. The recess in the hill measured 16 by 10 feet.

Haack was tried before Justice of the Peace William Smiddy of Montville, with Grand Juror Thomas Doyle prosecuting, and, after pleading guilty to manufacturing and selling liquor, was fined $100 and costs, amounting to $160.

How did you ever get your husband to give up golf?

EDWARD JENNINGS, OF NEW LONDON, ATTEMPTS TO SHOOT HIS SISTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 11.—Edward Jennings of 12 Front street was arrested this afternoon by Sergt. Frank Howard, Motorcycle Officer William Babcock and Traffic Officer John Courtney, charged with assault with attempt to kill. He was locked up at the police station pending the convening of the police court tomorrow morning in default of a surety on his bond.

Jennings went to his home about 5 o'clock and, although he had been drinking, he was not drunk. He remained about the house some time, when he engaged in a quarrel with his sister, Mrs. William Hoyle. The row ended in a short time, but later was renewed when Jennings is alleged to have attempted to kill his sister. Going to its place of keeping, a revolver, .32 calibre, was taken by Jennings, who, going to the room where his sister was engaged in housework, leveled the gun and fired. The bullet did not find its mark, but lodged in the wall. Jennings evidently changed his mind about taking the life of his sister after the shot failed to strike the woman, for he did not fire again. Mrs. Hoyle's husband, who was at home, notified the police and the officers were rushed to the Jennings house. Jennings was taken into custody, but he did not have the revolver upon his person, having secreted it. When Officer Babcock reached the street with his prisoner and while the other officers were making a search of the house for the weapon, Jennings attempted to make his escape by giving fight to Babcock. The officer forced his prisoner to the ground and then applied the twisters, after which his prisoner was placed in the automobile and conveyed to the police station. Some time afterwards Hoyle appeared at the police station with Jennings' revolver, the weapon having been found by the former. It was fully loaded excepting the one chamber from which the bullet had been fired at the prisoner's sister.

Jennings and Hoyle have been out of steady employment of late, but for a day or two have been engaged in unloading coal laden barges at the Howard Street Coal company plant.

The fire department was called out early this evening for a blaze in a shed in the rear of the residence of Mrs. Carrie Beebe, 299 Pequot avenue, when the wiring on an outboard motor became short circuited. Little damage resulted. The fire was discovered a short time after the motor had been removed from a boat and carried to the shed. A quantity of rage close to the motor took fire and the clouds of smoke issuing from the garage being observed, an alarm was sent in from Box 53, corner of Pequot avenue and Thames street. The Ockford Hose company was the first of the apparatus to arrive and a tank of chemical was sufficient to extinguish the fire.

Judge Cornelius C. Costello had many cases to claim his attention in the Groton town court this forenoon.

Roy Buddington, charged with breach of the peace, was fined $5 and costs, the latter amounting to $10.57. Buddington is alleged to have been engaged in a row with picnickers on land that did not belong to the accused.

The continued case of John Cafaraa, charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, resulted in the accused being fined $100 and costs, the latter amounting to $25.27.

Paul Bowen and J. J. Burney, charged with violation of the automobile law, failed to put in their appearance and their respective bonds of $25 and $75 were called.

Clayton Greenleaf was charged with violation of the automobile law and was fined $5 and costs, the latter amounting to $12.12, and of this amount $5 was remitted.

Irving Thornton, colored, employed at the Hotel Griswold, was charged with the theft of a camera from an automobile. He drew a fine of $5 and costs, which with costs of $15.32 made $20.42 that Thornton had to pay into the town treasury.

The continued case of John Seraghini, charged with violation of the liquor law, was partially heard and then continued until next Monday. Seraghini's place was raided two weeks ago by the state police.

Mrs. Edward LeBontillier and infant daughter of Groton, Mrs. John Marlinowsky, 37 John street, Mrs. Cofman Poro and infant son, 61 Shaw street, Mrs. Mariano Selico and infant daughter, Westerly, Mrs. Salvatore Ficarra and infant son, 10 Shapley street, Miss Lillian Richmond, 177 North Bank street, patients at Home hospital, were discharged Sunday and today.

Jesse and Ames Maynard were taken into custody this afternoon when found intoxicated on Smith street. The Maynards had created such a disturbance near the location where they were found that residents lodged a complaint against them.

Miss Mary Grint, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Alfred Poole Grint, Warwick Neck, returned home Sunday after spending a few days as the guest of E. Clinton and Arthur E. Winchester of 281 State street.

Mrs. Charles B. Gardner of the Golden Spur is visiting relatives in New Jersey.

Mrs. Edwin Keeney has returned to her home on West Pleasant street, having spent several days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Kenyon, at Stratford.

Chandler and Sylvester Jerome, William Davies and Frederick Eager of W. W. Perkins post and Mrs. Cady Rogers, Miss Louise Lieon, Mrs. Frederick Eager, Mrs. William Davies and Mrs. Francis Bracken of the Woman's Relief corps.

Shay, Mott avenue, Miss Elizabeth Kerconsen, Main street, Ellsworth Sylvia, Willetta avenue, Miss Marjorie Winship, Groton, Abraham Agranovitch, Norwich, Miss Theresa Martin, Waterford, Mrs. Edward Rosenlund and infant son, Waterford, John Donovan, Ocean avenue, Mrs. Frances Biscello, Hobron street, Miss Lucille Lamoreaux, Westerly, Mrs. Emily Chapman, Quaker Hill, and Miss Elizabeth Keating, Quaker Hill, who suffered a fractured colarbone while walking along Jefferson avenue a week ago, being struck by an automobile owned and driven by Theodore J. Evans, 143 Shaw street, were patients discharged at Lawrence hospital Sunday and today.

An automobile owned and driven by Frank T. Philbrick, 76 Golden street, and a commercial car owned by the New London Fruit and Produce company were in collision on Bank street late this afternoon. The former machine was damaged. Morris Lubchansky, driver of the truck, was ordered by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock to appear in the police court tomorrow morning, charged with reckless driving.

Two Joes, Silva and Santangelo, and Hazel Kaiser and Nonine Tobin, girls of the sporty sort, danced at Hill Top, Norwich, Saturday night, and paid for their fun in the police court here this forenoon. All the parties, when arrested at 652 Main street after midnight Saturday, procured bonds to insure their appearance for a trial in the court today. It was protested that the parties were unnecessarily held for an offense, but they were detained just the same. The action of the police court today in fining all the accused seems to have borne out the discretion of the police in holding the four till Judge Prince had a chance to interrogate them and get at the facts. "What a night it was" one of the accused is stated to have said, in conversation with friends, after the session of the court.

The stories told to the court were that the parties had gone to Norwich and remained jazzing till midnight. Then they sought to get back to New London and came in on a bus that also stopped at the base and "carries 35." The girls claimed it was after 1 o'clock when the trial avenue was reached and they proceeded to Main street. There they decided, on invitation of Joe Silva, to have a little party in his dad's house, as he had the keys to the place and he had anticipated just such an occurrence as this. The party entered the house, tired, and perspiring, so they decided to relieve themselves of some of their clothing. Nonine lay down on a bed and Hazel followed. They were found there when Policemen Dorsey and Denny Murphy used a searchlight, peered into a window and found that Santangelo had made use of the bed and that he was partially disrobed also. This feature of the experience was what led to the exclamation by one of the parties, "Oh, what a night it was!"

Silva's father testified that he owned the house and that had become tenantless a few weeks ago. Then Joe proposed to take furniture he had and fit the place for renting. The elder Silva was of the opinion that such a move might be a good one, so he gave his sanction to the scheme, but he didn't think the son was to have any midnight parties with the attendants paired, males and females. Silva, Jr., was charged with keeping a disorderly house and was fined $25. The others in the party were fined $10 for frequenting the place. Nonine had a friend in Taftville who liquidated for her and Hazel was equally favored in a New London acquaintance. The boys depended upon their parents and the unhappy parents didn't fail them.

"It costs something to get drunk in New London now!" was the declaration of Judge Prince in imposing penalty upon drunks today. He fined three of them $5 each and a drunk that had fruits attaching to it in the case of Gathruno Bruno, who insisted upon washing the floor of his room at the Casey lodging house when the proprietress objected was fined $10. Today's appearance was Bruno's sixteenth.

A few violators of the automobile laws of the state and the traffic laws of the city came in for discipline, each getting a fine to remind him that the automobile laws must be complied with as the other laws of the city are lived up to.

The Soltz store closed by attachment, looks like a blotch on the face of Main street. It is the only vacant store along the street there.

Motorman Flynn and Sherrett and Conductor Briggs, who were in charge of the trolley cars of the Connecticut company which came together in a head-on crash on Broad street, near Hempstead street, several nights ago, resulting in extensive damage to the car that was operated by Motorman Flynn and injuries to two passengers of the car, Mrs. Anna M. Richardson and daughter, Williams street, have been laid off, as a result of a hearing that took place Saturday afternoon to determine whether Flynn or Sherrett was responsible for the collision in disregarding block signals. A decision will be rendered by trolley officials within a few days.

Walter Davis, 108 Howard street, complained to the police this morning that his 12-foot sharpie had been stolen from its place of moorage in Shaw's Cove.

George H. Cottrell, of Seattle, Wash., has communicated with the New London police in an effort to locate his son, Enos D. Cottrell, formerly a sailor in the United States navy and at one time located at this port. The missing youth was discharged from the service last June.

William T. May and Charles A. Gallup have sold a house and lot on West Colt street to Patrick J. and Ellen Shaughnessy.

Benjamin L. Armstrong has sold a parcel of land on Granite street to Nellie B. Chandler.

Herman Eifenbein, formerly of New London, now residing in New York, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Eifenbein, of Hempstead street.

Sarah Bleir, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Bleir of New York, died at Oakdale Sunday, where the child and her parents have been spending the summer. The body of the child was forwarded to New York this noon for the funeral and burial.

SHORTAGE OF UPWARDS OF $225,000 IN FUNDS OF FIRST NATIONAL BANK, PUTNAM

Windham County National Bank Proffers Financial Relief to Depositors of the Closed Putnam Bank

Danielson Institution Offers to Loan Money in Any Reasonable Amount to Depositors in the First National Bank of Putnam Against an Assignment of Their Account—Putnamites Were Stunned by the Closing of Their Home Bank Tuesday Morning—Business Men of Putnam Have Drawn a Request For an Authentic Statement of the Condition of the Bank—Indications Are That Receivership Will Be Found Necessary—Gilpatric Will Survive, But Will Be Totally Blind.

Putnam, Conn., Aug. 13.—After the closing of the doors of the First National Bank of Putnam today, it was learned tonight that shortages of upward of $230,000 of the bank's funds have been discovered. These losses —a largely in negotiable securities given to the bank for safe keeping, it was said by an official of the institution.

The discoveries were made after the finding of other irregularities had been followed by the attempt at suicide last Thursday of G. Harold Gilpatric, cashier of the bank, who is also state treasurer.

The further extent of the shortages in the cashier's accounts will depend upon completion of the investigations into the bank's loans. It was known that many of these were made by Gilpatric largely upon his own responsibility. Examination is now being made of the securities.

It was determined definitely according to an announcement by Governor Templeton today, that Mr. Gilpatric's accounts as state treasurer, are correct to the last penny. State funds of approximately $100,000 are involved, however, through deposits in the commercial department of the Putnam bank and the state must take its loss, if there is to be a loss to the depositors, on the same terms as all others.

National Bank Examiner N. S. Bean refused any information today about other activities in which Mr. Gilpatric invested, but it is understood a check is being made on a large number of loans made by Gilpatric. Inquiries also are being made as to the state of several companies with which he was connected. Mr. Gilpatric was Putnam's leading citizen and had many interests, including connection with a dozen or more companies, some of which have not been successful.

Bank Examiner Bean's action in taking over the bank's affairs today was the result of a vote taken by the directors to place the bank's affairs in his hands "pending further investigation." Up until today the directors had insisted that the bank was solvent, and none would discuss the matter of solvency tonight.

A committee of depositors drew up a formal request today that a statement of conditions of the bank be made to them on the ground of their status as depositors and because the First National bank is the only commercial banking institution in this manufacturing community.

It was indicated that a receiver probably would be appointed within a day or two and that this might be Bank Examiner Bean or one of several officials from Washington.

A receiver will take over an institution which on June 30, the date of the last report, had resources which Cashier Gilpatric swore amounted to $2,330,370. This included $396,968 in deposits subject to checks and an average of $404,869 in time deposits. The capital stock paid in was $150,000. The bank has surplus funds of $100,000 and net undivided profits of $51,960. It was understood that Cashier Gilpatric's bond aggregated only $40,000.

Mr. Gilpatric in a letter left for his wife when he shot himself at his home last Thursday, admitted shortages, and the letter included the statement that "my affairs are hopelessly involved." His family and his friends have been at a loss to understand how this condition came about. Except for the belief that he had lost money in unprofitable investments there was no explanation tonight to meet the public interest in the question. Mr. Gilpatric's personal habits and his business methods as they have been known to the people of this town contain no explanation.

WINDHAM COUNTY NAT'L BANK OFFERS FACILITIES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Aug. 13.—Prompt relief from a very trying and embarrassing situation due to the posting on Tuesday of the First National bank of this city is afforded its thousands of depositors through the prompt action of the Windham County National bank of Danielson in offering, as announced in an advertisement elsewhere in this paper this morning to loan in any reasonable amount to depositors in the First National bank of Putnam against an assignment of their account.

For the present Putnam is left without a commercial banking institution. The difficulties that this creates can be readily imagined especially in view of the fact that Putnam is the only banking center in the northeastern tip of the state.

Business men and officials of large concerns were perturbed on Tuesday as how they would handle their banking while the First National remains closed and this it appears will be for an indefinite period.

The action of the Windham County National bank of Danielson will greatly relieve the situation and it is greatly appreciated here that the neighborly action is a very fine thing to do. Nathan D. Prince, vice president of the bank of Danielson, and also vice president of the Connecticut Trust company of Hartford, spent the greater part of Tuesday in Putnam and early in the evening, after many conferences, here, announced the action herein mentioned.

BUSINESS MEN TO ASK FOR AN AUTHENTIC STATEMENT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Aug. 12.—With nearly a hundred depositors waiting to gain entrance, the First National Bank of Putnam closed its doors at 10.23 o'clock this morning. Since that time nothing has been heard from the bank officials or the federal inspectors except for the following formal notice issued this afternoon by the assistant cashier, Guy L. Baker:

"At the meeting of the board of directors of the First National bank on Tuesday it was voted that the First National bank do not open up for business today and that its affairs be placed in the hands of the National bank examiners until further investigation."

Within an hour after the bank's doors were closed half sheet posters were generously circulated through the business section of the city giving notice of a meeting of citizens to be held in the chamber of commerce rooms (later changed to the Victory theatre) to see what action would be taken relative to the closing of the bank. This notice was signed by John J. Whitehead Jr., editor of the Putnam Patriot; George L. Padgett, editor of the Windham County Observer; Judge M. H. Geissler of the Putnam city court; Rev. Charles F. Bedard, pastor of St. Mary's church; Dr. H. A. Houghton; E. H. Burt, a druggist; John E. Byrne, state bank examiner; Daniel J. Byrne, treasurer of the Putnam Savings Bank; James B. Tatem, a manufacturer; J. J. McGarry, former mayor of the city; Otto E. Wulf, a drygoods merchant, and E. C. Rogers, landlord of the Putnam Inn.

Mr. Padgett called the meeting to order, explaining that its purpose was to see if some action could not be taken to relieve the situation until some statement is forthcoming from the bank inspectors. There were 500 present, including a sprinkling of women.

Judge M. H. Geissler was appointed chairman of the meeting and Frederick W. Seward, clerk. When suggestions were called for there was no response. No one apparently had an idea of a proper course to pursue so suddenly was the meeting called. The final result was the appointment of a committee composed of Mayor Victor Chapdelaine, Samuel Reynolds, Judge M. H. Geissler, John Ash, Pomfret; George M. Sampson, Woodstock; John F. Reardon, Thompson; Asa Ross, George L. Padgett, Warren S. Ames, E. C. Rogers, John J. Whitehead, Jr., Rev. Charles F. Bedard. Following the appointment of this committee for the purpose of making an investigation and seeking a meeting with the directors of the bank to see if some statement could not be had the meeting adjourned to Thursday afternoon.

The bank opened its outer doors at 9 o'clock this morning. There was at that time about twenty-five people waiting to get in. As the first person stepped through the doorway to the small vestibule they were met by the bank's president, Charles H. Brown, who informed them that the bank would not open until 10 o'clock. The outer doors were kept open. The assistant cashier, Guy L. Baker, was asked what the procedure meant and stated that the bank would be open from 10 o'clock in the morning to 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Ten o'clock arrived and by this time there were a hundred people crowded in front of the bank's doors. The time passed and the crowd was augmented by a few more anxious depositors. At 10.23 the big bronze doors were swung to and one of the bank inspectors posted a typewritten notice on the window of the door which read as follows:

"The First National Bank of Putnam is closed by order of the board of directors.

"N. S. BEAN,
"Chief National Bank Inspector."

Nearly everyone gathered before the doors of the bank read the notice carefully and turned away without commotion or disturbance but with grim visaged faces.

Following the closing of the bank to the public the first signs of alarm seen since the tragedy of last Thursday was apparent. Business men have current bills to meet. From the tenth to the fifteenth of the month is the time that they pay their previous month's accounts. A good many have sent checks out within a day or two and they have not had time to be returned to the Putnam bank through the clearing house. As this bank is Putnam's only national bank the situation has become grave and there is a corresponding atmosphere of depression in the city.

The announcement this afternoon that a photostat of a mortgage from Gilpatric to James J. Donahue of Putnam, a former Putnam druggist, was under investigation to determine if it is a forgery was the last of the many bombshells that have been hurled into this community the past few days.

It is said that this deed was given to Donahue, who went to Gilpatric seeking an investment in such security. The Trumbull property in Hartford was represented as a good proposition and Donahue placed $25,000 in this security that is now being investigated by State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn's office.

The placing a photostat of the mortgage in the state's attorney's hands followed the suspicions of Donahue being aroused by Gilpatric's attempted suicide. He sent a lawyer to Hartford to see if the mortgage was duly recorded. The attorney's suspicions were aroused to such an extent that he conferred with the state's attorney.

It has been the custom of the Hartford town clerk to sign many documents with a rubber stamp, but the deed to Donahue was in handwriting and it did not bear the imprint of the time clock of the town clerk's office indicating the time of its receipt for record. The volume and page of the public records referred to on the deed as the place where it was recorded did not disclose Donahue's mortgage, although a different mortgage on the same property is on that page in the volume referred to. The deed was acknowledged before Gilpatric.

In view of the happenings of the day, inquiries as to Gilpatric's condition, which remains the same, have not been as frequent as heretofore. People have now become so disturbed by the happenings of the past few days that the man whose attempt at suicide has brought about the deplorable conditions is being forgotten as far as his physical well being is concerned. In view of the matters coming to light as the days pass the attitude of generous judgment of a fellow townsman is on the wane. People are concerned with their own personal affairs and personal worries and worries for their home city.

Citizens of Putnam have reached a point where it would be hard to surprise them. As story after story comes out astonishment gives place to resignation and a readiness to believe or to expect most anything. The people are stirred to their very depths by the situation they find themselves in. Nevertheless they are standing shoulder to shoulder in an effort to work out their own salvation and that of Putnam.

Members of the Gilpatric family, who have given out no statement since the shooting of the cashier and state treasurer last Thursday, continued their policy of silence today and no one with the exception of dcotors and nurses and the family was allowed to approach the bedside of the wounded man.

That a receivership for the bank will be the next step in the proceedings was the belief here today.

While the confidence of the Putnam people has been greatly shaken by the series of startling events that followed the shooting of Mr. Gilpatric, it is the belief that the bank will be able to emerge from its crisis successfully and pay dollar for dollar to all of its depositors. It was reported on good authority this afternoon that the closing of the bank was necessary to conserve what assets it has and to prevent a run on the institution that would have made 100 per cent. payments impossible.

During the emergency, another bank in Putnam will give its assistance to the merchants and manufacturers, cashing all checks up to a certain amount. This bank, however, has no commercial department and is not in a position to meet all of the needs of the community. Mr. Gilpatric's condition was reported unchanged today. He is conscious at all times and converses with his relatives and doctor. It was definitely stated for the first time today that he would recover, but he will be permanently blind.

REQUEST BY DEPOSITORS TO DIRECTORS OF BANK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Aug. 12.—In an effort to bring about some definite understanding of the affairs of the First National bank of Putnam and to seek some solution for the unrest caused by the closing of the doors of the bank, a meeting of about 300 citizens of Putnam was held in the Victory theatre heer this afternoon. Judge M. H. Geissler presided at the meeting and it was the general opinion that some definite statement should be given to th edepositors regarding the bank's solvency. A committee was appointed to co-operate with the directors of the bank in quieting the unrest.

The committee appointed was M. H. Geissler, Rev. Charles H. Bedard, Warren Ames, Samuel Reynolds, George L. Padgett, E. C. Rogers, Asa M. Ross, John Ash, John J. Whitehead, John S. Reardon and George M. Sampson. The committee drew up the following letter which was presented to the directors of the bank:

Putnam, Aug. 12, 1924.

To President Charles H. Brown and the Directors of the First National Bank of Putnam:

Gentlemen: At a public meeting of about 300 citizens of Putnam held this afternoon at the Victory theatre, Judge M. H. Geissler presiding, to consider the local situation caused by the closing of the First National bank, a committee was appointed for the following purposes:

1. To co-operate with the directors of the bank in an effort to quiet the general unrest caused by the closing of that institution this morning.

2. To urge upon the directors the necessity for making public at once such information regarding the condition of the bank as they may possess.

3. To devise ways and means for carrying on the banking business of the community.

It is the desire of this committee to impress on the directors the fact that the meeting at which it was appointed was one composed of representative citizens of this banking community. It is the earnest request of the committee that the directors meet with them at their earliest possible convenience.

(Signed)
M. H. GEISSLER,
REV. CHARLES H. BEDARD,
WARREN AMES,
SAMUEL REYNOLDS,
GEORGE L. PADGETT,
E. C. ROGERS,
ASA M. ROSS,
JOHN ASH,
JOHN J. WHITEHEAD,
JOHN S. REARDON,
GEORGE M. SAMPSON.

The directors of the bank have intimated their willingness to meet the committee and there is a strong probability that such a meeting will be held tomorrow morning.

Civil War Veterans Paraded in The Rain

The Vets Smiled as Cheers Came From Sidewalks, Windows and Roofs in Boston.

Boston, Aug. 13.—America's white-haired veterans braved a driving rain today to march once more to the sound of fife and drum. The Grand Army of the Republic drew its thinning ranks together for one more parade—perhaps its last here. Those who answered the calls to arms in 1861 walked as bravely today, some of them almost tottering, others still erect in their old age, over a mile of wet and slippery pavements.

The note of sadness, emphasized by the gray clouds, was unescapable. Yet the boys in blue themselves seemed determined to put away the thoughts of the morrow and to live over again for a day the time when many of them, light-hearted striplings, were too young to realize the full import of their services and knew only that their country had called and they had answered.

There were serious faces among them, but for the most part these old men were gay. As cheer on cheer came from the crowded sidewalks, windows and roofs, the veterans smiled, waved their little flags and handkerchiefs and hats in response and seemed wholly happy.

A dreary drizzle prevailed as the parade started, the Sons of Veterans, many of them now gray-haired, in the lead with nearly a hundred massed flags. The long line passed through streets lined with hundreds of thousands of men and women, boys and girls, who had turned out in the rain to give a welcome to the veterans. Scarcely a building was without its rows of flags.

By the time Post No. 1, of Rockford, Illinois, swung into line with its fife and drum corps, given the post of honor in the line of Grand Army men, it was pouring. Most of the ancient warriors carried umbrellas, but few opened them for protection.

A band played the Battle Hymn of the Republic and the posts followed by states. Ohio was there and the throngs cheered the state of presidents as generals as they saw the old muskets borne jauntily on aged shoulders. There was a touch of youth as a fife and drum corps of white-clad girls went by. The veterans laughed at the rain and some of them took off their old campaign hats to tip the water out of the brims.

Onward, Christian Soldiers, rang out on the gale as New York came along, headed by perhaps the tallest veteran in its parade, erect, straight shouldered and dignified. California had its Pasadena fife and drum corps of five of the most lively veterans in line, the drummer rumbling away with a skill that few younger men could rival.

As Colorado and Wyoming came along together the crowd shouted its approval at the sight of a white-haired woman, arm in arm with one of the veterans and a lithe young girl walking beside another of the aged men.

Maryland aroused the enthusiasm of the onlookers to the highest pitch as its rear guard was disclosed.

Four girls drew through the streets a brightly polished little brass cannon. A fifth girl, younger than the rest, ran alongside. A veteran rammed the powder home. Suddenly there was a discharge, and its echoes were drowned in cheers.

So they passed, state after state. There were three veterans from Kentucky and they shared a single umbrella. New Mexico had one solitary figure in line and he received applause enough for a thousand. Drums were muffled now for protection against the rain, but the bands played on. Streamers of tape and myriad bits of paper floated down from office windows over the marchers.

Thus the few thousand veterans who had insisted on going afoot in spite of Boston's encampment motto, "They Shall Not Walk," passed and an ambulance followed by a gray uniformed negro band hailed the beginning of the long line of automobiles. It seemed as if every car in Boston and its suburbs had been pressed into service to carry the men too infirm to walk.

At last the final car had passed the white tent erected in Adams Square. The city folk had seen hundreds of parades, of which scores had surpassed today's procession in numbers and brilliance. They had seen the Grand Army itself in other years when its ranks were imposing. But as they turned away today they felt that they would not look upon the massed veterans of '61 again in Boston and they were unashamed of their tears.

TWO AIRMEN INJURED WHILE TAKING OFF AT CHANUTE FIELD

Rantoul, Ill., Aug. 12.—Lieut. Frank P. Albrook, pilot, and W. A. Dickinson, a private, both stationed at the Wilbur Wright flying field at Fairfield, Ohio, were injured, the latter probably fatally, when their airplane crashed while they were taking off at Chanute field here late today.

The two fliers were returning to their home field from St. Louis, where they had participated in a flying circus, and had stopped here on the way home. Their machine reached an altitude of about 200 feet over the field when it suddenly fell. Albrook received serious injuries, but it is believed he will recover. Dickinson's skull was fractured and he was severley cut and bruised. Doctors said he would probably die. The home address of neither man was known here.

Rainfall of 3.02 Inches in New York

Streets Were Flooded and Trolley Traffic Was Hampered—Two Deaths Resulted.

New York, Aug. 12—Trolley traffic was hampered, streets were flooded and small ships torn from their moorings as 3.02 inches of rain, welcome relief from the heat of several days, descended upon New York today, a record fall for the year. Two deaths were attributed indirectly ot the storm.

The two deaths occurred on third rails. A trainman slipped while crossing the wet rails in Astoria and a Holland Station, Long Island man fell to the charged iron while attempting to board a train.

GEN. JOHN L. HINES TO SUCCEED GEN. PERSHING

Washington, Aug. 112.—Secretary Weeks announced today that on retirement of General Pershing Sept. 13 next, Major General John L. Hines, now deputy chief of staff, would be appointed chief of staff by the president.

General Hines will be succeeded as deputy chief by Brig. Gen. Dennis E. Nolan, now assistant chief of staff in charge of the supply section of the general staff.

The appointment of General Hines will make no change in his rank and General Nolan will take up his duties as deputy chief as a brigadier general. The rank of general of the armies was conferred upon General Pershing by congress as a special mark of appreciation for his services in the war.

General Hines has had a brilliant career in the army and was decorated during the war both with the distinguished service cross for valor and the distinguished service medal awarded for efficiency. He was General Pershing's adjutant general during the punitive expedition into Mexico in 1916-17 and accompanied him to France. Later he was transferred to command a regiment and successively promoted to brigade, division and corps commander "on account of efficiency on the field of battle."

PLANE HAS FLOWN INTO HARBOR AT ANGMAGSALIK

On board the U. S. Raleigh, off East Greenland (By wireless to Reykijajvik, Iceland)—August 13—(By the A. P.)—One of the planes belonging to the United States Cruiser Raleigh today flew into the harbor of Angmagsalik and landed near the supply steamer Gertrude Rask, which finally succeeded in working her way through the ice pack and reached port this morning with her cargo of supplies for the American Army round-the-world fliers. The commanders of the plane found the harbor sheltered behind a small island, so that calm water is assured Lieut. Smith and Lieut. Nelson when they arrive at Angmagsalik on their flight from Reykjajvik.

The plane was the first ever to visit the desolate Greenland coast, where Eskimos in Kayaks surrounded it immediately landed on the water and examined it with great curiosity.

The Raleigh is still standing off the Greenland coast awaiting word with regard to the continuation of their flight by Lieutenants Smith and Nelson.

TO INVESTIGATE THE DEATH OF JOHN NOLAN

New Haven, Aug. 12.—Investigation of the circumstances surrounding the death of John Nolan who lost his life after, falling overboard from the steamer Richard Peck, of which he was a member of the crew, on July 24, is to be opened by the United States board of steamship inspectors in New London, August 18.

W. H. Huntley of this city, who filed complaint with the steamboat inspectors has received a summons from that board, notifying him to appear at New London and give whatever testimony he has to offer. It is understood that the New England Steamship Company, owner of the steamer, also has received a summons to appear.

Nolan was thrown from the deck of the Richard Peck and drowned when the steamer was returning from Newport, R. I., carrying some 1,200 excursionists. Huntley claimed that the company was negligent in its attempt to save the seaman's life. This was denied by the steamship company which claimed that Nolan's death was due to his inability to swim after he had fallen overboard.

CAPTURED RUM RUNNER TO BE USED AS "CHASER"

New York, Aug. 12—A torpedo boat, 55 feet in length and valued at $100,000, was captured by the new customs marine patrol off Mystic, Conn., and brought here today.

The craft is said to be the one which attempted to ram the government patrol boat, Shark, yesterday. Eight hundred shots were fired at it then. Agents say there were many dabs of fresh paint on the steel hull of the craft captured today, indicating that efforts had been made to cover bullet marks. The boat was found deserted and tied to a pier.

If it is not claimed, prohibition agents say, the torpedo boat will be pressed into service as a rum boat chaser. It is a vessel with two motors of 300 horsepower each and double control to permit operation either from the deck or from an enclosed compartment. Its name is "Come-and-Go."

TWO BARGES ARE ADRIFT OFF THE COAST OF MAINE

Rockland, Me., Aug. 12.—Two barges, each carrying a crew of five men, were adrift in a dense fog off Mattinicus Island, 25 miles from here, according to word that reached this port tonight. The barges were being towed from Boston to Rockland by the tug Cheektawaga of the Bee Line Transportation compan when the tow line parted early today.

She felt her way about through the blind mists all day, finally abandoning the search this evening. The tug, joined by another craft, will renew the hunt tomorrow.

DECISION ON EVACUATION OF THE RUHR EXPECTED TODAY

Private Meetings Are Being Conducted Between the German and Inter-Allies — Belgians Are Not Supporting the French in Their Efforts to Prolong the Occupation of the Ruhr—Feeling Prevails That Points of Difference Between the French and Germans Have Been Brought Within Negotiable Lines.

London, Aug. 12.—(By The A. P.)—The decision of the German, French and Belgian delegates on the Ruhr evacuation problem will probably be communicated to the reparations conference tomorrow. Announcement of this was made by Premier Herriot of France to the "big fourteen" this afternoon.

It is this question which has brought negotiations to a standstill, and until the problem is soved by the three directly interested powers and the British there can be no progress towards closing up th eprogramme for the inauguration of the Dawes plan.

Private meetings are going on constantly between the Germans, Belgians, French and the British prime minister, and there are rumors of many trades being made behind the scenes in an effort to satisfy the French demands which are being advanced as the price of moving the military forces out of the Ruhr.

The Belgians are not supporting the French in their efforts to prolong the occupation of the Ruhr. Premier Theunis frankly says he does not want to continue holding Belgian troops in the Ruhr, as the Belgian people are tired of the expense. The German industrialists, especially the dye manufacturers, are bitterly opposing the French demands for deliveries of dyes beyond 1930, and there are many other questions in conference with the proposed deliveries of goods under the report of the third committee, which the big fourteen discussed vaiflly at this afternoon's meeting.

The French are endeavoring to get assurances on the terms of the new commercial treaty to be negotiated with Germany at an early date and there is a battle royal between the delegates and experts of the two countries. Predictions that the conference will be concluded Thursday have given way to forecasts that Friday is the earliest posible time of settlement, and many of the delegates believe that a settlement cannot come this week. There is a general feeling, however, that the points of difference between the French and the Germans now have been brought within negotiable limits: Both countries want a settlement so badly that no delegate believes the conference will break up without action.

The American ambassador, Frank B. Kellogg, announced at a meeting of the allied delegates this afternoon that the American government desired to be represented at the meeting of finance ministers to be held shortly in Paris to discuss the allocation of the monies received from Germany. America's claims for the maintenance of the American forces in the Rhineland and her mixed claims, including the Lusitania claims, are chargeable against these monies.

The American ambassador to Germany, Alanson B. Houghton, will leave early tomorrow morning for Berlin. He expressed confidence today that the conference was progressing favorably. Mr. Houghton and owen D. Young have been consulted frequently by the German delegates and experts, who have shown eagerness to learn the American point of view about executing the Dawes plan.

Dr. Stresemann, the German foreign minister, is eager to get back to Berlin. He had hoped to be able to lay the results of the conference before the reischstag for its approval early next week, as there is uneasiness in the German capital over the delay.

CLOSING EVIDENCE FOR LOEB AND LEOPOLD

Chicago, Aug. 13—(By the A. P.)—The last evidence on which was based the plea to save Richard A. Loeb, and Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., from the gallows was presented late today and immediately the state launched its rebuttal testimony to clinch its contention for the death penalty instead of a prison term for the kidnapers and slayers of young Robert Franks.

To move Judge John R. Caverly towards, "mitigation" or "justice tempered by mercy", there is now left only the final pleas of Clarence S. Darrow, veteran chief counsel for the defense, and his two assistants, Benjamin and Walter Bacharach, against a long line of state avitnesses, which included five alienists, the first of whom just had testified Loeb was sane when the court was adjourned late today.

The defense rested shortly after one of the most dramatic periods of the nineteen days of the hearing, brought about by the appearance in the witness box in rapid success of Allan Loeb, brother of Richard; Jacob Loeb, former president of the Chicago board of education and an uncle of the youthful defendant, and Freman Leopold, Nathan's older brother.

Through them, and Mrs. Katherine M. Fitzgerald, secretary to A. H. Loeb, vice president of Sears Roebuck & Co., and Richard's father, the defense sought to show that the youths were plentifully supplied with money and the luxuries of life and that the $10,000 ransom demanded for the return of Bobby Franks even after he had been slain, was but an item of Loeb's "perfect crime," and not a compelling motive for the kidnapping and murder.

CONFLICTING VERSIONS OF TRAGEDY AT GREAT NECK, N. Y

Great Neck, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Conflicting versions as to the reasons for the death of Frederick Fayard, 35 years old, a chauffeur, and Mrs. Dorothy Wood, 31 years old, said to have been separated from her husband in Norfolk, Va., whose bodies were found here last night in a touring car with bullet wounds in the heads, have convinced the police that the true story may never be brought to light.

An unsealed letter, signed by Fayard, was found in his possession. It urged Clark Wood, Mrs. Wood's husband, to ask his wife's return and said that he (Fayard) had made a mistake. The letter concluded with the warning: "If she doesn't go back she will never marry me nor anyone else." Fayard is said by the police to have represented Mrs. Wood as seeking a divorce so that she might marry him.

An uncle and the woman with whom Mrs. Wood lived here, however, declare that she attempted in every way to avoid the attentions of the chauffeur.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Double Feature Bill at the Bread

Constance Talmadge's admirers will whoop with joy when they see her in The Goldfish, a First National picture which will head the double feature bill at the Bread theater today and Thursday.

Constance has definitely deserted the field of costume drama and has resumed her activities as a comedienne. And her come-back is made in a comedy which is a side-splitter.

In The Goldfish, which was directed by Jerome Storm, Constance has three husbands, roles played by Jack Mulhall, Jean Hersholt and William Conklin. Two of the husbands are divorced, that is to say they are handed the fatal bowl of goldfish which gives them their congees, and the third husband conveniently dies.

Just as Constance is about to marry her fourth husband, the Duke of Middlesex, a series of events occur which throw her back into the arms of her first husband and all ends happily.

The Goldfish was adapted by C. Gardner Sullivan from Gladys Unger's stage play in which Marjorie Rambeau was featured.

For the second feature Peggy Hyland will be seen in Shifting Sands a cyclonic melodrama of wild Arabian life and feminine fascinations. The Fox news will complete this big banner double bill.

Broadway Theater

Many diversified star acts will be seen at the Broadway theater the latter half of this week.

That celebrated continental exponent of terpsichore is the feature attraction, Princess Radjah offers her famous Dance of Cleopatra. The Princess is an Egyptian with all of the grace bewitchery and beauty of her race. Her dances give rare opportunity for scenic and costumic splendor.

The International artists Rov E. Mack and Peggie Brantley present In A Whirl of Grace.

Elsie Harvey and George Stone offer Versatility Exemplified.

Hugh Emmett and Theresa Lind offer a musically ventriloquial novelty.

Perfectly sustained suspense, lightened by a sparkling contrast of humorous incident with pathetic or tensely dramatic situations, is what makes His Forsaken Wife, the Palmer Photograph Corporation's feature at the Broadway theater Thurs. Fri. Sat. such a wholly satisfying picture. The film patron who sees this one is sure of more than his money's worth. Will Lambert, a former mechanical engineer, wrote this gripping story directly and expressly for the screen. Madge Bellamy, Warner Baxter, Maude Wayne and a talented supporting cast portray it; William Seiter directed the production and Max DuPont contributed some really beautiful and striking photography.

Neil O'Brien's Minstrels at the Palace Theater Tonight

The attraction at the Palace tonight will be Neil O'Brien Minstrels known throughout the country as the Family Entertainment. Mr. O'Brien will offer an entirely new production again this year with new costumes and not a single feature that has been seen before with this organization now in its thirteenth year. Each season an effort has been made to improve on the year before and in the offering this year attention is called to the combination of Neil O'Brien, Billy Beard and "Sugarfoot" Gaffney, making what is promised as the strongest combination of minstrel stars ever before offered to the public. Mr. O'Brien in addition to being one of the best known comedians is also a capable producer as well and the whole program is under his supervision, bearing the mark of his wit and good taste in staging the performance. Of course the comedian himself will appear in an entirely new act, written for him entitled Hot Dog in addition to this act many new features have been provided and the following list of artists engaged:

Neil O'Brien, Billy Beard, "Sugarfoot" Gaffney, Tex Hendrix, The McCoys (Maxine and Scott), James Berardi, Lea Laird, Gene Pearson, John Hinton, T. M. Bullock, Walter Anderson, Charles R. Wright, Herman Williams, Sherman Carr, Edward Leahy, George Bracken, Joe Cronin, Billy Henderson, Walter Arnold, Joe Nellis, Tom McSherry, Harry Shaner, C. H. Dooley, and Jack Ellis.

Performance commences at 8:15 sharp.

There will be the usual parade and band concerts.

His Worldly Goods

It was a fashionable wedding. The bridegroom had no visible means of support save his father, who was rich. When he came to the stage of the service where he had to repeat "With all my worldly goods I thee bestow!" his father said in a whisper that could be heard all over the church: "Heavens! There goes his bicycle!"

No Necessity

"Robert," said the teacher to a small pupil whose face and hands were badly soiled, "you didn't wash this morning." "No, ma'am," Robert answered. "My mother wasn't home and I didn't have to."—Life.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

While he was engaged Tuesday morning at his place of business on Main street in cutting a top round of steak, F. X. Bernier, his knife having touched a bone and slipped, cut a deep gash in his thigh and lost a considerable quantity of blood before he could receive the attention of a physician. Mr. Bernier was using a very sharp knife when the accident happened. While the cut he sustained was deep it was not of great length and was closed with two stitches. He was given treatment by Dr. J. N. Perreault and afterwards was taken to his home and put to bed.

Joseph Boiselle, an employe with the town's road repair crew, is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam. He has an injured shoulder. Mr. Boiselle collapsed while at work near South Killingly, and Fred Shippee, in charge of the crew with which Mr. Boiselle was employed, said Tuesday that it is not known just what caused Mr. Boiselle to fall. The injury is not regarded as a serious one, though it may keep Mr. Boiselle from work for a time.

Keen interest in the affairs of the First National bank of Putnam, temporarily closed Tuesday, manifested itself throughout the town of Killingly as soon as the news began to circulate. Killingly depositors, naturally, are anxious for some definite statement from the bank and would be relieved of a great measure of their uneasiness if such a statement were forthcoming. Well informed people do not question the solvency of the institution, being aware of the abundance of its assets, but the recurring daily publication in metropolitan newspapers of alarming stories relative to Cashier G. Harold Gilpatric and his operations have not failed to have an untoward effect in all sections hereabouts having business relations with the involved institution. Much of this unfortunate effect could have been offset by a statement from the bank officials even though such a statement had to be made in advance of a time when the officials felt called upon to make it.

There was nothing even up to Tuesday afternoon to indicate that any depositor will lose a dollar. Nevertheless there was uneasiness and the bank's affairs were occupying first place in the conversation of the day.

John Daly, 63, died Monday night at his home in Moosup, of which place he was a native and where he was very well known. He was a son of Patrick and Ellen Feeney Daly, old residents of Moosup. Mr. Daly had been engaged for years as a woolen weaver.

No one need waste valuable time hunting for a diamond knocked out of a ring worn by a woman who was in an automobile accident near the Congregational church Sunday evening. The gem was found by Fred Racine and returned to the owner.

Amadee Lussier of Carter street has made arrangements for the construction of a dwelling, a store building and a garage on a lot of which he is the owner on Carter street.

Many were the expressions of satisfaction Tuesday over the good old-fashioned, rainstorm, such a one as has not been experienced here for many weeks. It will contribute materially in relieving the water shortage which had become acute in some parts.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Ross and Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Bassett are at Hull Banks, on Narragansett bay, for a stay of two weeks.

In connection with a plan to erect a new school building on the grounds of St. James' parish, fronting Franklin street, the convent of the Sisters of St. Joseph is to be set back on a new location nearer the church than it stands at present. This work may be done this year, but the construction of the school will not be undertaken yet.

People are assembled here today from numbers of places in Connecticut, from Rhode Island, Massachusetts and New Hampshire to attend a sale that will include numbers of valuable antiques, from the holdings of one of Brooklyn's well known families.

Premium lists of the 75th fair of the Windham County Agricultural society, held each year at Brooklyn, have made their appearance and are being distributed by Secretary Marshall J. Frink.

Danielson people who like circuses were greatly disappointed Tuesday over the fact that the rain made it seem desirable for them to forego attendance at the talented exhibition playing in Plainfield.

These are days when children of school age are watching the rapidly diminishing margin of time between the freedom of the vacation period and the coming of the opening of the fall term.

BROCKTON MAN AND CHAUFFEUR HURT

Danielson, Aug. 12.—Edward J. Burke, of 20 Maxim street, Brockton, Mass., and his chauffeur, William Davies, of the same city, were injured Tuesday morning, about 8.30. The touring car in which they were riding went off the state highway on the Providence road, a little more than a mile east of here, near the Mezzarelli farm, crashed head-on against a bolder just off the highway and somersaulted, pinning Mr. Burke beneath the car and throwing Davies clear.

Mr. Burke sustained a broken right leg, a fractured shoulder and cuts and bruises. Davies suffered only minor injuries. His nose was puffed and his eyes swollen and he had some cuts and abrasions. Both men were removed to the Day Kimball hospital, Putnam, in an ambulance and it was later stated at the institution that in neither case were the injuries regarded as dangerous.

Gaetano Mazzarelli and Vincent Marro were the first to reach the overturned machine, which after somersaulting lay headed back toward Providence and with its four wheels in the air. Everything above the level of the top of the tonneau had been swept clean. Mr. Burke lay with a leg protruding from under the car and in a mess of broken glass and other wreckage. Mr. Mazarelli opened the front door of the car on that side and succeeded in extricating Mr. Burke, who was faint from his injuries. Davies lay on the state highway, gasping and calling for a drink of water.

A passing motorist inquired if Mr. Burke desired the attendance of a priest and being assured that he, the injured man, would be very grateful if one came, Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S., was hastily summoned from St. James' rectory and made the trip in the ambulance to the hospital with the injured man, the nature of whose hurts was not known at the time. Mr. Burke retained consciousness on the trip to the hospital and even asked assistance in getting a smoke, which he appeared to relish.

Davies is quoted as saying that the car was proceeding at an average road speed when it started to swerve on the wet surface of the roadway and to slide from side to side, finally going completely out of control and off the highway. Aside from having its top completely ruined, a broken steering wheel and steering post and some damage to the running boards and fenders the car did not seem to be otherwise badly damaged, at least such damage was not revealed by superficial examination.

PUTNAM

Miss Pauline Perreault, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Perreault, on Church street, and Louis H. Mathieu, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Mathieu, of Providence street, were married at seven o'clock Tuesday morning at St. Mary's church by the pastor, Rev. Charles F. Bedard, who also celebrated the nuptial mass. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends.

The fathers of the couple were the witnesses and they were attended by two bridesmaids, Miss Agnes Mathieu, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Agnes Mathieu, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Jeanette Lacroix. The ceremony was performed within the sanctuary, as the bride is a member of the Children of Mary.

The bride wore a gown of white canton crepe trimmed with hand-made lace. She wore the veil of the Children of Mary and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and sweet peas. The bridesmaids were dressed in canary colored crepe, wore black hats and carried pink carnations.

Following the nuptial mass, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where many beautiful gifts were displayed. During the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Mathieu left by automobile for a trip which will take them over the Mohawk trail. For her going-away dress the bride wore a black dress trimmed with sand colored crepe, and had a hat to match. Her neck-piece was of baum martin, a gift of the bridegroom.

After their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Mathieu will reside in Putnam where both are well known in the north end of the city.

Two little boys, aged about nine, were taken to the Putnam police station Tuesday afternoon by Louis Macdonald. Macdonald was driving into Putnam from the north and met the little adventurers trudging along the highway. He picked them up and upon questioning them was told that they had started for New York. The lads looked, tired, hungry and dusty and Macdonald turned them over to the Putnam police.

The police learned from the youngsters that one of the boys lived in New York and he and his mother were visiting the home of the other boy's parents in North Grosvenordale. The city lad had painted highly colored pictures of life in the metropolis and finally volunteered to take his country cousin to see the sights of his home town.

With a joint cash capital of twenty-five cents the lads started forth early in the morning. Being such little fellows they had not been invited by automobilists to ride and had hiked about six miles when their woebegone condition attracted Macdonald's attention.

The youngsters had had all the adventure that they wanted and were willing to return to the quiet mill village up the Quinebaug and to abandon their excursion in favor of home sweet home. After getting in touch with an officer in North Grosvenordale, Sergeant Laird put the children on a north-bound trolley car and the officer at the other end saw that they reached home safely.

THE DAVIS SPEECH.

To the throng that stood under umbrellas in Clarksburg to listen to the acceptance speech by Mr. Davis, the democratic nominee for president, there must have been disappointment in his inability to live up to his promise to "treat 'em rough," when referring to the republicans. His speech was not a fighting speech. It flowed along with the sure touch of a master of sauve, lawyerlike English, the power of a tongue that weaves a magic web of words. He did all that a great advocate might do under the handicaps of the democratic platform and a ticket that burdens him with Governor Bryan of Nebraska as a running mate.

Naturally he was happiest in his denunciations of the republican party, in calling the roll of the sins of omission and commission of some of its members, but he fails to face all the facts in this connection when he ignores the question of the responsibility of President Coolidge for the acts and lapses of his predecessor and his predecessor's advisors. When giving notice that he proposes to make one of the big campaign issues out of the republican record, Mr. Davis prefers to ignore the force of the claim that the "Ohio gang" has been banished, that Mr. Coolidge is now the candidate for president and that the behavior of a future republican administration must be judged by his character and his acts as chief executive. The new cabinet officers appointed by President Coolidge have stainless records and unimpeachable integrity. The moral tone of the administration has changed decidedly for the better, and it is this fact that gives republican voters new confidence in their party's friendship and its capacity for further service.

Along the line of the tariff, Mr. Davis follows familiar democratic ground, denouncing the present protective tariff and promising a competitive tariff in its place.

He is obliged to follow the democratic national convention in eliminating the league of nations from the campaign, keenly aware of the handicap placed upon him by the referendum plank in the platform. He overcomes his own divergence from the platform plank by announcing that "common judgment" should precede entry into the league. "Common judgment" means that substantially all parties must agree to it.

Mr. Davis has made the best, perhaps, of the situation in which he finds the democratic party after its national convention but his speech can hardly be said to have in it the heat and passion and power to weld together the divided party and put into it the fighting spirit which vanished in the conflict of sectionalism, hate and ambition in Madison Square Garden.

THE G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT.

As the diminishing hosts of the Grand Army of the Republic come together this week in Boston for their national encampment, there is a solemn significance in the thought that these survivors of the battlefields of '61-'65 are within measureable distance of their last encampment. The first of such gatherings was at Indianapolis in 1866. Four other encampments have been held in Indianapolis and four others besides the present one in Boston. This will probably be the last in the Massachusetts city. Those who in 1866 were the very youngest members of the G. A. R., having gone into the war as boys in their teens, are now old men, past the three score and ten, while numbers of those who still survive are fourscore. In the order of nature it will be only a few short years before "taps" are sounded for the last encampment.

The rate of decline in numbers foreshadows this. When the G. A. R. had its maximum membership of 409,489 thirty-four years ago, the mortality was from one to two per cent a year. The rate has now increased to 10 per cent. In 1922 the membership had fallen to 76,126. This year it is probably little if any above 60,000. What will it be in another decade?

The stage is held today by the American Legion, far more numerous than was ever the Grand Army of the Republic and much closer to the personal interests and sympathies of a vastly greater proportion of the American people. No honor that can be paid to it will be too great, but the Legion itself must do deference to the Grand Army, thinking of them as Webster did of the Revolutionary survivors at Bunker Hill: "Venerable men, you have come down to us from a former generation." What the mighty host that has passed on and what the diminishing remnant that is left meant to the Union can never be forgotten.

SETTLING THE RUHR.

The sore spot between the French and the Germans, the evacuation of the Ruhr, has intruded itself into the London conference, although the question is not one of direct concern for the other nations but a matter for direct negotiation between France and Germany. It is not unnatural that the Germans should want to take home with them a signed and sealed agreement setting a date for the military withdrawal of the French and this seems to have been the main thing the Germans went to London to obtain, since the terms of the French economic evacuation had already been agreed upon.

It is natural also that the French should consider military evacuation an extra concession on their part for which Germany should be willing to pay extra. Mutual acceptance of the Dawes programme will be of mutual advantage; Germany will benefit as much as France, if not more; the two therefore are even.

But the French went into the Ruhr as a means to an end; they wished to make sure that Germany would pay reparations. They consider themselves privileged to stay until all uncertainty is removed, even until an appreciable amount of reparations is in their hands. If, therefore, they are willing to concede something to the German viewpoint by fixing in advance a date for withdrawal, it should be for a price.

The price they demand covers two points. First, the French iron and steel industry wishes to be assured of getting German coke after the treaty limit for deliveries in kind is reached in 1930. Second, there is the matter of a commercial treaty to be negotiated. Under the Versailles treaty, Germany consented to accord "most favored nation" treatment to all signers up to January, 1925. France wants a commercial treaty extending such treatment to come into operation at that time.

If the way can be smoothed for these Franco-German parleys at the international conference, so much will be gained. Otherwise the bargaining can be done later. A side issue which is really not on the agenda of the conference should not be permitted to bring it to naught.

THE PERFECT MILITARIST.

If Rear Admiral W. L. Rodgers were still chairman of the executive committee of the navy general board, a position he formerly occupied, something of alarm might well be taken from his utterances the other day before the Institute of Politics at Williamstown, where he blossomed out in a reckless prophecy that rang strangely like what the German militarists were accustomed to feed upon in the days before the World war. But the admiral is now on the retired list and he is not the first to take advantage of such a situation. His public utterances will be discounted because they have no official responsibility. The admiral presents the unalluring picture of the United States becoming some day an international robber, seizing the territory of weaker states in a war of aggression and plunder.

The admiral has a vision of a time when our population shall be too great for our resources and we shall need room for expansion. Then we will take up the war club, the admiral says, select our victim and promptly bludgeon him into submission in the most approved style of the imperial nations. Might will be right, for the rights of others need not be considered in the process. Only purely selfish interests will count. Coveting our neighbor's vineyard as the wicked Ahab coveted the vineyard of Naboth, we shall murder our neighbor and his household, take his property and grow fat on the fruit of his industry and thrift.

This is the picture that Admiral Rodgers paints of the United States that is to be. It is chiefly valuable as indicating the peculiar frame of mind to which one is brought by long contemplation of the idea that physical force is the only solvent of human problems. There will be few that want to follow the admiral in his forecast.

JOB FOR THE SHENANDOAH.

Quite by accident, it is reported, the giant dirigible Shenandoah has demonstrated that it is an ideal rum chaser. Returning from a recent cruise, the Shenandoah struck terrer into the rum fleet off the Atlantic shores by playing its searchlights upon it. The smugglers fled in panic. "Had the dirigible been under specific orders from enforcement authorities," we are told, "it could have bagged the rum runners in short order."

Here is an idea for the authorities. The Shenandoah represents an enormous expenditure. In case of war the money would prove well spent. But there is no war on the horizon just now. There are plenty of rum runners on the Atlantic horizon. Why not give the Shenandoah specific orders to co-operate with the prohibition enforcement agents, and see how many smuggling boats it could bag, or help to bag?

This is not at all fantastic. Picking up rum runners off the coast should be good exercise for the dirigible. This type of aircraft is particularly valuable for observation purposes. The Shenandoah is supposed to be the eyes of the Atlantic fleet. What could the big ship do by way of improving its usefulness that would be more advantageous than spotting rum runners, if the government really wants to spot them?

EXPLAINING A COMPLEX

"I had Jim Hake come over here this morning to dig up those currant bushes in the lower garden where I am going to put in some fancy new cherry currants," remarked Miss Belinda to her brother. "I thought he would like them over at his place, but he talked so unpleasantly about women that I was almost sorry I had given them to him."

"If he's so disagreeable in his feeling twoards your sex, I'm surprised that he will accept a gift from you," laughed Ben.

"I thought of that myself, but on the contrary he appeared delighted to get the currants, and he even suggested my t hinning out the gooseberries and giving him some. I asked him if Isabel had decided to go to Deervale to high school in the autumn.

"'No, ma'am, Miss Belinda, she ain't, he said. "I do the decidin' for my girls, and I don't hold with any of this higher education for women. Isabel don't need no more geography or arithmetic to earn her living in a kitchen. 'Stead of going to Deevale to school, she's got to work out. I can get her a good place over in Jefferson. Lots of them folks keep hired girls over there.'

"'But, Jim,' I protested. Isabel is a fine girl, and she has a desire to be a teacher. You haven't any right to interfere with her ambitions."

"'Gosh, Miss Belinda, I don't believe in women going out in the world, and battlin' with men for fame or fortune,' he replied, 'I'm the good old-fashioned kind that believes women should stay home and tend to their knittin'. I think the country was crazy when it gave 'em the vote.

"The men been runnin' things pretty satisfactory for a pretty long spell, and if I'd had my way they'd be at it yit, without no assistance from the women folks. It's ridiculous for women to stick their noses in government. Why government's a serious matter, Miss Belinda.'

"He was simply ridiculous."

"I can quite understand your feelings, Belinda, my dear," interposed her brother, "but to tell you the truth, I have a good deal of sympathy with Jim Hake. I can see his side plainly."

"Why, Ben, you're joking!"

"No, I'm not, sis. I know that Jim simply must assert his masculine superiority—away from home. You see, I'm aware of facts that you don't know about. Jim spoke to me the other day in the village in regard to a little debt. I don't believe I happened to tell you that I ran across him at the state fair last fall, and he borrowed $10 from me. He said he was awful short of money, and he did want to see all the shows and stay overnight so as to be there for the races the next day. Of course I let him have it. He was really craving a little pleasure."

"He doesn't get away from home often. I wish you had taken him to some nice place for dinner, Ben."

"Why, I did, and I wish you could have heard the way he talked about the delights of men getting off for a real time without no petticoats 'round to bother 'em."

"Now, Ben, he is, but I feel for him. As I was saying a moment ago he spoke to me in the village about that $10, and poor chap he looked so sheepish I felt sorry for him. He said he was sorry he hadn't paid it long ago, but he just couldn't help it.

"'You see,' he explained, 'my woman, she's an awful hand to watch every cent, and I ain't been able to get hold of ten dollars, but it's all right with you, I'll slip you folks a few eggs from time to time, and get the matter closed up that way, without no argument.' Now, sis, doesn't your heart soften toward him? He's in bondage."

"Yes," Miss Belinda laughed, "but Isabel must go to school. If we have to send her ourselves."—Chicago Daily News.

McCormack Hunted for Engagements

When John McCormack was a boy his parents could not decide whether he should be a priest, a lawyer or a doctor, and after he chose to be a singer he had to strive for a mere livelihood.

Born in Athlone, Ireland, he attended the Marist Brothers' school and then the Dioccsan College at Silgo where, at 18, he was graduated with highest honors. His parents sent him to Skerries Academy, in Dublin, to prepare for a civil service examination, but he became so deeply interested in singing that he forgot to take the government examinations.

He returned home, and decided to be a singer. When a friend advanced him money to pay his way to Dublin, he tried for a role in opera, was offered a place in the chorus, and went home disheartened. Returning to Dublin, he obtained a place in the Marlborough street Cathedral choir, at $125 a year, then learned to read music.

Next singing at the Irish Village at the World's Fair in St. Louis twice a day, for $50 a week, he resented the introduction of a burlesque Irish comedian, quit and hastened home.

Small fees were earned singing in concert and for phonograph records. Friends gave him a benefit and sent him to study with Sabatini in Milan, Italy, but funds ran low and he had to borrow to continue.

After two years of musical education he returned home, was married and immediately started to conquer London. Now 24, he struggled to earn a living. Engagements were few, the phonograph company would not employ him again and managers in Italy refused to hear him.

Finally he was given a place on a London ballad concert program, he was enthusiastically received. Then he tried three times for the Convent Garden Opera Company, before he was accepted and given a chance to appear.

Oscar Hammerstein offered him a three-year contract with the Manhattan Opera Company made his debut in 1909. He immediately became a favorite, but Hammerstein soon had to give up opera.

McCormack sang with Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston Opera companies and appeared in concert. Today he is one of the most popular tenors in the world.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Albert A. Michelson, who has perfected an apparatus for the rapid measurement of the earth's gravitation, is recognized as one of the largest figure in the academic world resident in the United States. For a number of years he has been a professor in the University of Chicago and in 1907 he was awarded the Nobel physics prize. He is a native of Germany. His parents having settled in the United States, he was educated in the schools and later found his way to the United States Naval Academy, where he became an instructor in physics and chemistry. Later he went to Europe and studied at the best universities of Germany and France. Returning to the United States with a doctor's degree, he taught, in turn, at the Case School in Cleveland, at Clark University and at the University of Chicago. For his researches in connection with light, as well as for his general attainments, he has had the highest honors from the societies of Europe and election to their membership. His supreme recognition came when he was awarded the Nobel prize, he being the second American so honored.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

VISITING THE ICE KING

Let me see, we left off in the last story, just as Little Jack Rabbit entered the Ice Palace of the North King, and in less than five hundred short seconds the Gnome followed, first having seen that his reindeer were taken to the stable to be fed.

At the farther end of the great hall stood a crystal ice throne on which sat the great North King with a s icicle sceptre in his hand and a wonderful ice crown on his head.

"Who wishes to see me?" he called out in a voice that sounded like the wind in the winter time.

"Ha, ha, ho, ho! A bunny in boots" and his breath was so cold that it made frosty laces all over the windows and froze the great golden key in the front door so fast that the janitor—Oh, dear! I made a dreadful mistake, for they don't have janitors in palaces. I mean the Royal Electrician had a hard time to get it out.

"Why do you ask me this question?"

But Little Jack Rabbit wasn't frightened at all this. No siree! He boldly hopped up to the throne and said right out loud, just like that, "Why have you given orders to paint white all the crows in Rabbit Land?"

At first the Ice King was so surprised that he didn't reply at once. You see, he couldn't understand how a little rabbit had learned of his royal order. And I'll tell you something more, which is a secret, too. He was the brother of the king who sat in his counting room counting out his money when that naughty blackbird flew down and bit off the maid's nose, while standing in the garden hanging out the clothes.

After maybe five short seconds, the bunny boy repeated his question.

"How dare you question my commands," shouted the Ice King, standing up on his throne and pointing his icicle sceptre at Little Jack Rabbit.

"I fear no one!" replied the bunny boy pointing his popgun at the Ice Man. Please excuse me, I mean the Ice King.

This rather startled that cross old icy king, for he said in a much gentler voice,

"Why do you ask me this question?"

"Because," answered Little Jack Rabbit, "I have a friend, an old black rusty dusty crow who doesn't want to wear a white coat." And in the next story you shall hear what the Ice King replied.

MAKES PLEA FOR BARBLESS FISH HOOK

In the bulletin of the American Game Protective Association Harold T. Pulsifer makes a plea for the use of the barbless fish-hook. The Japanese get large catches with it in fly fishing. British anglers find it effective. If you ask for a barbless hook in those delightful emporiums devoted to angling equipment, the chances are that it bears the name of an English maker. Seth Green of precious memory preferred the barbless hook, especially when his purpose was to transfer game fish from one stream or lake to another. The fish lives when thrown back into the water, though often it dies when it has been hooked with the barbed point.

The barbless hook makes for sportsmanship, says the New York Times. A slack line means that you will lose your trout or bass. If the law forbids the taking of more than so many fish, and you go on casting or still-fishing with the barbed hook, throwing back the over-catch, many of the released captives will die.

The angler who must have his quota for the camp might try fishing with the barbless hook after getting his supply. It would be humane and it would be good practice. He would probably end by using the plain pointed hook altogether. Throwing fish back to comply with the law is common. Why not experiment with the barbless hook on a vacation in still waters anyway? There would be more fun if more anglers tested their skill by adopting it.

The soda fountain is again fixable. Don't read ancient history if you want to be up-to-date.

Stories That Recall Others

The King's Barber.

Speaking of royalty traveling incognito, King Alfonso does it occasionally and not long ago he motored thru through the wild region of Castile and put up at a modest inn. The following morning, desiring to shave he asked the chambermaid to bring him a mirror and when she had done so she remarked: "You are not just an ordinary traveler, are you?

"Why do you ask me that?"

"I don't know," said the girl, "but there is something about you—perhaps you belong to the royal court at Madrid."

"Yes, I do," he answered.

"Perhaps you work for his majesty himself."

"Yes."

"And what do you do for him?"

"Oh, lots of things," the king replied. "I'm shaving him just now."

Her Attraction.

Little George came to his mother apparently in great distress of mind. "Why, what is the matter, sonny boy?" she sympathetically inquired.

"Well, mother, I'm in an awful fix. I can't decide whether to marry Mary or Ethel when I grow up. You see Mary is awful pretty, but"—there was a long meditative pause—"Ethel has a white rat!"

This is the first treaty Ecuador has filed with the league and provides a method for the settlement of a century-old dispute. It would create delegations in Washington to negotiate with the president of the United States acting as an arbitrator.

COMPENSATION AWARDED ALBERT J. HALL'S CHILDREN

In a decision received at the office of the clerk of Middlesex county superior court Commissioner J. J. Donohue, of Norwich, of the second district, grants compensation to the three orphaned children of Albert J. Hall, of Middletown, who was fatally hurt while going to work on the morning of May 22. The request for compensation was opposed by Maryland Casualty Co., insurers, and Denis O'Brien and Sons, Inc., the deceased being in the employ of the latter company.

Under the orders of the commissioner, who found that Hall's average earnings were $27.20 a week, the three dependent children, Melva L. 14; Raymond J., 12; and Mildred, 10, are allowed fifty per cent. of this, or $13.20 a week for 312 weeks, six years.

The commissioner also allows $104.50 for funeral expenses and attendance after injury. It is further provided that the sum of $149.60, the amount due since the accident is to be paid to the guardian of the children, Mrs. Rose M. Daniels, their grandmother.

The contention made by the respondents against paying the award was that the accident, which caused Hall's death, was due to wilful negligence and misconduct on his part.

Commissioner Donohue finds that while Hall might have been careless there was nothing to show that degree of carelessness and misconduct which the supreme court has defined as "wilful."

The finding reviews the facts briefly. Hall went to work on the morning of May 22. He got upon a truck with a d[illegible] others. Upon meeting his fellow workers he said he "had a couple of [illegible] that morning. On the way to work he insisted on riding on the running board, although warned to get off. He had frequently ridden that way before.

The commissioner found that although Hall was warned not to ride, he continually did ride and nothing was done by the employers to punish him for so riding.

It was further found that the three children were entirely dependent upon their father for support. Their mother died six years ago. The compensation is to be paid to their guardian and is to be used for their support and education.

UNCASVILLE DOCTOR'S AUTO SIDESWIPES TROLLEY CAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 12.—An automobile owned and operated by Dr. Merton E. Fox, Uncasville, was wrecked and a New London and Norwich trolley car damaged when the automobile sideswiped the trolley car on Williams street near Grove street shortly after 11.30 o'clock tonight. The automobile suffered the loss of one wheel, a bent front axle, demolished running board and mudguard. The trolley car had one step and post ripped away. Dr. Fox escaped injury. The accident occurred when Dr. Fox was operating his machine from New London to Uncasville. When approaching Grove street the trolley car, Motorman C. E. Singer, due to arrive from Norwich in New London at 11.45 o'clock, approached. Just as the car was about to pass, Dr. Fox evidently misjudged the distance between the car and the automobile, for the machine struck the front step of the trolley car, carrying the post and step away, and came to a stop with the collapse of the left front wheel of the auto.

NORWICH TO OBSERVE FIRE PREVENTION WEEK IN OCTOBER

Norwich, in common with other cities and towns throughout the country, will observe Fire Prevention Week in October, Chief Howard L. Stanton, of the Norwich fire department, has been notified by the National Fire Protection Association, that the week of October 5th to 11th has been designated as Fire Prevention Week. In speaking of the annual fire prevention campaign Tuesday, Chief Stanton called attention to the huge fire loss each year in this country about five hundred millions of dollars, and in addition there are 15,000 lives lost by fire every year in this country and Canada.

Fires can be prevented and Fire Prevention Week is intended to drive this fact home to the general public. It is the rallying time to strengthen what are called the three lines of fire defense. These three lines are: the first line, not allowing fires to start; the second line, minimizing combustible material and making construction such that if fire does start it cannot spread, the third line, extinguish fires after they have assumed serious proportions.

Three fourths of the fires which the firemen are called out to extinguish are the results of carelessness. Some of the causes of fires are: defective chimney and flues, hot ashes, hot coals, matches and smoking, gasoline, spontaneous combustion, rubbish, over-heated stoves, sparks on roof, etc. Burning leaves and dead grass is also dangerous.

LEGION BOYS GOING TO TAFTVILLE FRIDAY

Members of Robert O. Fletcher Post, No. 4, American Legion, are to meet at the legion rooms on Main street, Friday evening and then go in a body to Taftville where they will attend a meeting to be addressed by State Commander E. P. Armstrong. It is expected that a new legion post will be formed in Taftville and plans are to organize the post in time to allow the members to join the Voiture in New London Saturday night of this week.

Jonathan L. Johnson, who is in charge of arranging for the Voiture in the Norwich territory, has reported that this city will send a good sized delegation to the Whaling city Saturday. All indications point to a "whale" of a time in the city down the river on that evening, starting with a county legion meeting at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and winding up with the initiation of candidates for the "Forty and Eight" about midnight. The mayor of the city of New London has opened the city to legionaires on that day and it is expected that hundreds of legionaires and their wives and lady friends will make the trip to New London for the big event.

A big parade is arranged for the evening, including four bands, detachments from Fort Wright, the submarine base and possibly from the U. S. S. Savannah, if it is in port, also Forty and Eights and legionaires from all parts of the state. It is expected that over 100 candidates will be initiated and that the Voiture of New London county will get off to a flying start.

RAIN BREAKS GRIP OF LONG DRY SPELL

A patter of raindrops Tuesday, soon becoming a steady fall of rain, served to break the long dry spell that has held Norwich in its grip for about seven weeks, barring a few heavy downpours of shorter duration which came with thunder showers.

The rain of Tuesday came early in the morning and continued practically all day, with only an occasional letup, serving to brighten up local gardens and lawns. The farmers also benefited by the rain which soaked into the ground and, although it came rather late in the season, it will be of great aid in saving the late crops.

Reports from Preston Plains, where large potato crops are gathered every year, indicate that a part of the crop would be lost this year owing to the continued drouth. The rain yesterday, however, is ceratin to save a large port of the crop, which will be welcomed by the producers.

Although a rain is not generally looked upon with favor by the average citizen, there was no word of complaint yesterday. People got out their raincoats and umbrellas and viewed things with a smile, noting how green everything had begun to look with only a few hours of steady rain.

MACHINES WRECKED BETWEEN COLCHESTER AND HARTFORD

A Norwich man who motored to Hartford and back Tuesday said that between 15 and 20 machines were wrecked along the road between Colchester and Hartford, due to the slippery condition of the highway. A Buick sedan with four or five passengers, men, women and children, skidded, crashed into a fence and turning around, shot down a bank, landing in a swamp about 30 feet from the highway. The occupants escaped with minor injuries.

Five machines were wrecked on a curve within a short distance of each other and other wrecked machines were strung along the road and on hills. One machine went off the road and tore down a good sized section of stone wall near Westchester.

AMERICAN WOOLEN CO. OPENING MONDAY NEXT

The entire line of these goods, including staples, semi-staples and fancies, will be opened on that day. This is somewhat of a departure as different days have been allowed for the staple and fancy groups at the openings for the past few seasons. The delay in the date of the opening accounts for the showing of the goods all at once. By departments, the forthcoming showing is as follows: 1A and 1B, 2, 3A and 3C, 7 and 8A.

WILLIMANTIC ROTARIANS MEET AT STORRS

Willimantic, Aug. 12.—The occasion of a new arrival in the family of Secretary Charles W. Hill was duly celebrated at a meeting of the Willimantic Rotary club held in the vestry of the Spring Hill Congregational church at Storrs Tuesday evening. President Harry W. Standish presided. Little Miss Althea Hill was honored by a shower of miscellaneous gifts presented the child's father by the Rotarians through John S. Ahern and William A. Dawson. There were two speakers of the evening, W. S. Kirkpatrick, expert poultryman and head of the poultry department at Connecticut Agricultural college, was introduced by Prof. Richard Dodge. He gave a most interesting resume of his experiences during his travels in Europe after attending the first World Poultry Congress held in Barcelona, Spain. He also visited France, Great Britain and Holland. The next congress will be held in Ottawa, Canada, in 1927. Rev. Leonard Smith of Mansfield was the other speaker of the evening. Characterizing the four attributes necessary for the making of the four-sided man as a healthy, physical and mental condition and education, a liberal amount of the good things of life and religion, Rev. Mr. Smith compared them to the parts of a wheel, in clever simile. His inspirational talk was received with a round of applause. The Smith family comprised Albert B. Smith, Frank M. Smith, Ellison S. Smith and guests of the latter two. Benjamin L. Smith and son Charles of New Haven and Rev. Leonard Smith furnished the bulk of the entertainment during the meeting. Coached by Song Leader Ahern and others, the members of the Smith group were led into sextette renditions, speechmaking and individual singing. Charles Smith favored with a tenor solo. Rev. Mr. Smith rendered one of his own compositions which captured the lion's share of applause for the various acts. Guests present were Eugene E. Hickey, Carlton P. King, Robert C. Rose, pioneer scoutmaster; Albert J. Piche, town tax collector; Judge Lewellyn J. Storrs, Nelson A. Daniels, apostle of Izaac Walton, and Judge of Probate Otto B. Robinson. The latter three came to the limelight as original joke tells. Charles B. Pomeroy and Albert B. Smith also pleased with high class humor. Secretary Hill read an article on golfing. President Standish opened the ceremonies. Before the closing of the meeting at 10.30 o'clock a vote of thanks was given the ladies who served the delicious repast. Appreciation was also shown Chairman James P. Bath of the entertainment committee. Mrs. A. J. Dubreuil was at the piano.

CLOVER AND ALFALFA INJURED BY DROUGHT

The dry weather in June, July and now continuing into August has done serious damage to many newly seeded fields of clover and alfalfa. In some instances the small plants have all been killed, in others some plants are still vigorous and many not dead but decidedly injured. Wherever a considerable number of plants is dead or injured, next year's crop will be reduced unless a new seeding is made soon.

Land seeded in the spring can be put into good condition for seeding in August or September by discing and smoothing with a drag harrow or weeder. Plowing is not necessary or even advisable, harrowing need not kill all of the plants already started.

Late summer is one of the best times to seed clover and grasses. Alfalfa is more certain when seeded before August 10, but the drought has prevented early sowing this season. On well prepared fertile soil, alfalfa frequently does well sown as late as September.

Moisture conditions have been a serious handicap to spring seedings this season. There is still another opportunity by re-seeding as quickly as possible. The value of a good crop of clover or alfalfa hay justifies a second attempt at seeding.

TAFTVILLE MAN FINED IN LOCAL CITY COURT

In the city court Judge Arthur F. Libby fined Benjamin Hunt, $5 and costs amounting to $13.50 for intoxication.

A Taftville man charged with obtaining goods under false pretenses had his case nolled on payment of actual costs which amounted to $8.27, which he paid. The man was arrested by Constable Paquette of Taftville after he had gone into a store in the village and ordered two quarts of ice cream. When it came time to pay the man said that he would step out to his machine and then return. He went out of the store and forgot to return, his arrest following.

Frank Wilbur was arraigned on a charge of breach of the peace and intoxication. He was given a suspended sentence of 15 days for a period of six months and was advised to move out of the apartment of his mother-in-law.

Emile Frechette, charged with non-support was ordered by the court to pay his wife $6 a week.

COLLIDED WITH SEDAN PARKED BY CURB

The Ford sedan, owned by Joseph J. George, was slightly damaged about 6 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, when it was struck by another Ford car driven by a local man. SEEKING MOTIVE FOR THE MURDER OF DAVID M. NOBLE

Somerville, Mass., Aug. 12—With Dr. Raymond D. Theiry under formal arrest at the Massachusetts General Hospital, charged with the murder of his brother-in-law, David M. Noble, in this city last Friday, the state and local police are concentrating their efforts to discover a possible motive for the shooting. Believing that ill feeling may have existed between the two men for months, the authorities today, it was learned, were considering exhuming the body of Mrs. Noble who was attended by her brother before her death four months ago.

Dr. Thiery is still in a serious condition and the police tonight stated that it might be weeks before he is strong enough to be arraigned. He was semi-conscious when found the night of the murder and has since undergone an operation.

NEW ATHLETIC COACHING SYSTEM MAY BE INAUGURATED AT BULKELY HIGH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, August 12.—With the decision of Robert T. Aldrich, physical director at Bulkeley High school, to enter the insurance field in his home state, Vermont, the man, who will fill this position, has not been as yet selected and a good deal of speculation is being made as to his successor.

At present two men stand out prominently and it is almost certain that one of the two will be selected to the position of Athletic Coach at Bulkeley for the ensuing year. Frank S. Shea and Thomas R. Cook are the two applicants for the position. Mr. Cook occupied the position of English instructor last season and it is understood that he will once again return to occupy the same position. Frank S. Shea is a graduate of Bulkeley and at present is practicing law as a member of the firm of McGarry and Shea on State street.

Little or nothing is known of the ability of Mr. Cook in coaching the athletic teams in the various branches of sport. Frank Shea, should he be given the position of athletic coach at the local institution, will without a doubt be a good selection for the open position. His experience on the gridiron is a varied one and considering the fact that he has seen college service, with Georgetown at the quarterback position, his chances for being accepted as the Bulkeley athletic coach seems bright.

Shea while at Bulkeley was one of the best quarterbacks ever turned out at the school. For a period of four years he held down the general's position on the Orange and Black and was a streak of lightning on the field. Every year when the Bulkeley team begins its season with the customary training, before the regular season begins, Frankie Shea is a familiar figure on the gridiron, helping the mentor with the many problems that confront him. For a period of five years Shea has helped whip the team into shape and has always taken charge of the second team men. He proved to be great help. He proved to be a valuable aid in the early season and a good amount of the past Bulkeley success was due to his efforts.

Shea has made an application for the position, and considering that he possess college experience, and that with the famous Georgetown eleven, his application for the position for football least if not for all sports will be given consideration by the trustees when they make the selection. The sports Shea will coach are football, basketball and baseball.

Another announcement comes from an unofficial source that the Bulkeley trustees will pay more attention to the picking of the mentors for one sport only and in which the instructors must be qualified to hold down. This will do away with the obsolete method of giving one coach priviledge of coaching all three branches of sport, when he is qualified to coach in but one. Following this announcement followers of Bulkeley sports in this city, expected to see Billy Nealon, former right fielder of the New London Planters, and who at one time had a try out with a major league club, and then played in the international league, send in application for the coaching position of the baseball team. If this rumor of Nealon applying for the mentor of the Baseball team is true, all dreams of a former league baseball star dreamt by members of the team will come true.

A man of Nealon's calibre of the old school of baseball players, is the one that is needed to make the Bulkeley team of 1924 be the greatest of all teams turned out at this institution. It is understood that Fordham University freshmen have already been placed on the Bulkeley schedule for that season, and other college freshmen and other leading preparatory schools will be played during the season. A total of thirty games in all are expected to be played and prospects point to the greatest team of all times.

Before any decision as to the acceptance of any coach for the various sports can be made by the trustees, a consultation with Head Master Homer K. Underwood must be had. As Head Master Underwood is at present in New Hampshire, an attempt to select the coaches or coach for the coming campaign is impossible, at present at least.

Bulkeley students are looking to the greatest year in athletic activities this year, and this will be made possible if the proper selection of coaches is made. The material on hand for the coming season is the best, and if past performances on the gridiron, court and diamond are a criterion there will be no doubt that the most successful years in the various branches of sports will be had. There are plenty of seasoned players returning to school in all branches of sports, and it is also being discussed in the various gatherings of sport lovers that athletic relations between Bulkeley and Chapman Technical High will be once more resumed. If this is true, Bulkeley will play Tech for the first time in football and an open date for such an emergency has been made. All eyes are focused on the announcement as to the selection of coaches and they will be awaited patiently by those concerned.

ENTRIES FOR E. C. TENNIS TOURNEY BEING FILED

Russell A. Clapp, chairman of the Eastern Connecticut Tennis Championship tournament, is receiving entries for the tournament which will be held at the Norwich Golf club courts Aug. 30-Sept. 1. Chairman Clapp reports there are a great many entries coming in from New London and other clubs in the Eastern part of the state but very few from the local players. This seems an unusual thing as it is a local tournament and should interest local players who should have enough pride in the home town to try to hold the title in Norwich.

Allyn L. Brown is present holder of the title and although in Europe at the present time will be home in time to defend his title. If the tournament proves a success this season it is probable that some of the ranking tennis players of the country will be invited to come here next year.

ENTRIES FOR NATIONAL DOUBLES LIMITED TO 32

Boston, August 12.—The number of entrants for the National Lawn Tennis doubles championship starting at the Longwood Cricket Club next Monday will be limited to 32. It was announced today that this was necessary in order to ensure competition of the tournament in five days of play, allowing a day for possible rain, so as not to conflict with the national singles starting August 25 at Forest Hills, N. Y.

Robert and Howard Kinsey, Pacific coast champions, sent their entries today. Other new entries are B. I. C. Norton, winner with W. T. Tilden, 2nd., last year and paired this year with Wray Brown, St. Louis; Clarence Sanders and M. B. Hutchinson, northwestern champions; M. Gallacher and H. McElvaney intermountain champions; and W. Newell and C. Meyer, Missouri Valley champions.

Jimmy Pedace's Answer

To Whom it May Concern

As one might say I was both astonished and amazed yesterady morning while looking through the Bulletin when I ran across that appealing letter from the poor neglected married men of the East Side who have done so much to help finance baseball on the East Side and then in turn have been turned down when they themselves wanted to show up us misfits as they choose to describe us and demonstrate baseball as it should be played.

I really must admit that anyone who would dare to deny anyone the priviledge of giving a real exhibition of the national pastime would be at fault, but everyone knows as well as I do that there have been enough punk baseball games on the East Side this year, without having a bunch of men who are about to enter their second childhood raving about what they can do on a baseball field.

As far as last years series is concerned I had really forgotten it even though I did have to lead a lowly Billy goat through the main streets, but if the married men still insist that this is the cause of the series being so sadly neglected this year I will say this, that I am willing any day in the week to lead the same Billy goat around if these married men can really display this wonderful brand of baseball of which they speak.

Every man on this East Side who has ever taken unto himself a better half seems to have bestowed upon himself the honors of being manager of the married men and has been crying for action, but last night I tried to fathom out the whole thing and find out who is really manager but all has been in vain. Now that they have started something it seems that they all want to crawl or put it onto the next fellow. If they really mean business let them get settled and decide what they want to do or else forget about it and not try to startle the world with cheap talk.

Moosup Woolmen Win

Moosup Woolmen won a one-sided game from Yantic Woolmen Saturday afternoon the score 17-7, the features of the game being Young's pitching and Brunelle's hitting. For Yantic as much cannot be said as they played poor baseball, missing grounders and otherwise throwing the game away. Moosup played a good game making but two errors and finding Yantic for 14 hits, while Young allowed only 7 which were scattered. Bassette caught a wonderful game for Moosup allowing but one man to steal second. Ross Stevens, the young short stop played a good game getting a two base hit when needed badly. Blair, left fielder, nearly broke his leg but got the ball. This makes one game won for each team.

INJURIES DELAY ARGENTINE WOMAN IN CHANNEL SWIM

Dover, England, August 12—The Young Argentine woman, Lillian Harrison, owing to injuries received in striking her leg against a rock when she started Monday in an attempt to swim the English channel from Cape Gris-Nez, France, to Dover, will not be able to take to the water again for a week. Dr. Tillot, her Boulogne physician, sent word to Dover to this effect today. Dr. Tillot found that the muscles in her thigh had been severely strained and declared Miss Harrison must remain in bed for treatment and rest.

Miss Harrison according to the advices, is quite heart-broken over the accident. Her trainer is planning for her to make another effort on August 21, but owing to a probable change in the channel currents, the start may have to be made from a different point on the French coust than Cape Griz-Nes.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Fordham, New York Giants

Fifth inning. One out. Score 6 to 4 in favor of the team in the field. Runners on second and third.

How should the infield play in a situation of this kind?

The infielders should always play back in a situation of this kind. Remember that it will take a single to score both runners and if the infielders play up it is easier for the batter to hit through them than when they play back. Another thing this position of the infielders takes care of is a short fly just over the infield. If they were playing in, such a fly would prove very costly. But when they play back, they frequently catch such flies. The percentage is with them on every possible play when they are back.

RAIN CAUSES POSTPONEMENT OF N. L. CITY GAMES

New London, August 12.—Inclement weather held up two ball games here this evening. One game was in the City league between the Tabs and Fort Trumbull Stars at Morgan Park and the other at Calkins Park, the City Hall team was to oppose the Lions Club. Both games will have to be deferred to later in the season.

With the postponement of the Tabs-Fort Trumbul Stars game this evening, the City league which was playing its last week of scheduled baseball in the city, outside of the postponed games will have to add another postponed contest to its already long list. One deferred game from earlier in the season was to be played Thursday evening between the Knights of Columbus and the Tabs. Providing the weather man is considerate enough to provide good weather, the city league will begin playing off its postponed games next week. The league will wind up its affairs before Labor Day.

Voluntown 9, Pioneers of Groton 5

The Voluntown baseball team accompanied by a large number of loyal rooters invaded Groton on Sunday afternoon and administered a neat trimming to the Pioneers, by a score of 9 to 5. Voluntown opened the session with a terrific bombardment driving the offerings of Havens, their star twirler to all corners of the lot. Magrey the first man up driving the first ball pitched for a two bagger, followed by Gaudette with another two base hit, after several more hits passed galls and an error. Magrey again came up and drove out another two bagger with men on bases. Havens retired and was replaced by Nash who ended the inning after seven runs had been scored. Again in the fifth, after two were down Gilbert hit safely and Magrey connected for another two base hit bringing in Gilbert and in the 8th Gaudette was safe on an error. A. Dupont flied out; Lachapelle sacrificed, S. Liberty singled scoring Gaudette which ended the scoring for the visitors. The home team opened their half of the first by scoring three runs on a base on balls, one hit a fielders choice, two stolen bases and an error, in the sixth they looked dangerous with one down and two on the racks, Burgess drove out a long fly to center field which was labelled three bases, C. Dugas after a hard run pulled it out of the air with one hand, the play looked so impossible that the runners were sent home and the brilliant piece of fielding was turned into a double play retiring the side. Dupont was given a great hand by all the spectators. The home team again got dangerous in the eighth when they scored two more runs. Both pitchers Nash and Liberty pitched a good game and after the first inning received good support. Stanton of New London as umpire gave satisfaction as an umpire. These teams meet again next Sunday at Voluntown and a great game is expected. Score:

Epinard Does Half in 51 Seconds

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 12—Epinard, French thoroughbred, galloped a half mile in 51 seconds today in his first real workout with Everett Haynes, his American jockey, up. The going was heavy but the French star displayed plenty of run.

After the workout, Haynes said, "Epinard is apparently in good shape and has benefitted by his stay here."

Athletics Buy Shortstop Smith

Evansville, Ind., Aug. 11—A deal was closed here today whereby Marvin Smith, shortstop of the Evansville Three-I league was sold to the Philadelphia Athletics. The price was not stated though it is rumored it was $5,000. Smith will report at the close of the Three-I season.

SPORTING NOTES

The proposal for the organization of a Pacific Coast Golf Association, along the same lines as the Western Golf Association, is meeting with favorable response from many clubs and players in California, Oregon, and Washington.

One of the most remarkable games in the earlier history of professional baseball was that played August 17, 1882, at Providence, R. I., between the Providence and Detroit teams. Not a run was made on either side until the last half of the eighteenth inning, run over the fence and won the game for Providence by 1 to 0.

Austin, Texas, has been selected as the place for holding this year's swimming championships of the Southern A. A. U.

Mexico expects a number of the tennis stars of the United States to compete in the national championship tournament of the southern republic, to be held this year in Mexico City during the last week of October.

Everett Scott, New York Yankee shortstop, who holds the world's record for the greatest number of consecutive games played in, also holds the record for the greatest number of games played in this year.

The first printed code of baseball rules contained but fourteen sections, and under it the pitcher could deliver the ball as wildly as he chose, and the batsman could strike at it at his option, thus making the game rather tiresome and uninteresting, especially when the teams were evenly matched.

One of the greatest reputations in the annals of the English boxing championship is based upon a pugilist who entered the ring only thrice. He was John Jackson, and when he met and defeated Mendoza, the first Jew of any note as a boxer, who was the champion, he had only fought twice before.

During the '70s a baseball team was said to be "Chicagoed" when it was defeated without being able to score a single run. The term owed its origin to the reputation of the Chicago team for shutting out its opponents.

Star players are purchased by the professional football clubs in England in much the same way that baseball players are bought and sold in America, except that in England it is customary to refund a part of the purchase price in case the player fails to "make good" with his new club.

RELIGIOUS SERVICE BY RADIO LOUD-SPEAKER

Stockholm, Aug. 12.—A radio loudspeaker has taken the place of a minister for the first time in Sweden on the Island of Utoe in the Stockholm archipelago. The congregation after having taken part in the service broadcast from Stockholm, were enthusiastic in their praises of the new scheme, since their island, especially in the winter time, often cannot be reached by ministers, owing to bad navigation conditions.

Otto Kahn, president of the Metropolitan Opera company, New York, returning yesterday from a European visit, indicated that the company planner a new and larger building for its performances.

Chrysler Power Plus Chrysler Economy

The Brougham

Its tubular front axle—big and amply strong for its job—is another important bit of testimony to the thoroughness of Chrysler Six engineering. This axle is actually 34 per cent more rigid—it has approximately 400 per cent more strength to resist the up-and-down strains—than an I-beam of the same weight. Its resistance to horizontal or fore-and-aft strains is five times greater; its resistance to the twisting strains is 138 per cent higher. Exceptional riding is assured by the Chrysler spring suspension and six-ply special high-speed balloon tires.

The Chrysler Six

Pronounced as though spelled, Cry-sler

Anyone can build a powerful car by building a large gas-eating motor, but the Chrysler gets 68 horse-power and over 70 miles an hour out of a motor which gives better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Anyone can build a heavy car that holds the road—but the Chrysler, which can actually be driven in comfort at 60 miles an hour over rutted roads or cobbled streets, is far from being a heavy car.

The Chrysler Six brings its owners entire absence of a vibration period at any speed; a crankshaft, whose seven bearings absolutely preclude whip and distortion; a new type of combustion chamber that burns all the gas; a new way of distributing the gas equally to all cylinders; an air-cleaner for the carburetor; an oil-filter which cleanses all the crankcase oil every 25 miles.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Chrysler's attractive plan.

MARKET WAS REACTIONARY

New York, Aug. 13—The reactionary trend of today's stock market generally was attributed to extensive profit taking in some of the high priced specialties, which recently have enjoyed a big advance; liquidation of a number of oil shares resulting from the unsettled condition of that industry and the correction of an overbought condition in some of the standard rails and industrials. Sales exceeded the million share mark for the first time in nearly a week.

Heavy buying of the pan-American issues coincident with heaviness in most of the other oils was one of the day's features, while authentic information was lacking, Wall Street heard that the forth-coming six months report would show earnings about twice dividend requirements for that period with the bare possibility that higher dividends might be declared at the September 4 meeting of the directors. Nearly one tenth of the day's business was conducted in these two issues, which closed about 2 points higher.

Opening prices were firm, due to a fair sized accumulation of overnight buying orders, particularly for the rails. In this initial burst of buying, new 1924 highs were recorded in this group by New York Central, Southern Pacific, Nickel Plate, Atlantic Coast Line, "Katy" preferred, Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis and Jersey Central. Several of these issues, however, forfeited all or part of their gains while net losses of 1 to 3 points were recorded by Norfolk and Western, Chesapeake and Ohio, Delaware and Hudson, Louisville and Nashville, Lackawanna, Pittsburgh and West Virginia and the Pere Marquette issues.

With the exception of Baldwin, improved fractionally, the so-called pivotal shares lost ground. U. S. Steel common closed a point lower at 106 2-4 and American Can dropped 1 5-8 to 134 1-4.

Coppers held firm on reports of higher commodity prices, Kennecott and Chile establishing new, 1924 highs. Other stocks to better their previous peak prices were Allis Chalmers, Foundation Company, Montgomery Ward, Pullman, Railway Steel Spring, and U. S. Distributing Corporation. General Baking touched a new top at 134, broke to 128 and then rallied to 129 for a net loss of 3 1-2 points. General Electric broke 6 points to 267 2-2 and then rallied slightly.

Selling of the oil shares was stimulated by unconfirmed rumors of a forthcoming cut in mid-continent crude prices, producers and refiners. Phillips, Sinclair preferred and Houston showing net losses of 1 to 2 points with most of the others receding fractionally.

Call money continued to rule at 2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged with business quiet.

Foreign exchanges were reactionary. Demand sterling sold down a cent to $4.53 and French Francs were quoted around 5 1-2 cents. Silver exchanges lost ground in sympathy with the decline in the silver metal market.

BOND MARKET

New York, Aug. 12—New financing today overshadowed interest in bond trading, which was marked by narrow price fluctuations. Profit-taking checked the recent advance of foreign obligations, but the underlying tone was firm in other sections of the list, with a fairly good demand for railroad obligations.

One of the largest and most important railroad bonds offerings of the year is announced for tomorrow by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company which will sell $75,000,000 first mrtgage 6 per cent. bonds to retire a similar amount of prior lien 3 1-2s maturing next year. The bonds will be offered at a price of 98 1-2 to yield 5.10 per cent.

With the sale of this issue the Baltimore and Ohio will complete its large refunding program, except for extending a $45,000,000 issue of Southwestern Division bonds. The road sold $35,000,000 in bonds earlier this year.

Heavy oversubscription was reported by bankers for the $22,000,000 loan to the Industrial Bank of Japan which was offered today, with the usual provision that it would be payable in time of war or peace, irrespective of the nationality of the bondholders.

Realizing sales of the French government and city issues today caused average losses of about a point in this group. Fractional gains were recorded by most of the active railroad and industrial liens.

CURB MARKET

New York, Aug. 12—Stock prices moved irregularly lower in today's curb market, which was featured by the heavy liquidation in the oil shares. Standard Oil of Kansas broke 3 points in further reflection of the omission of the dividend while losses of a point or more were recorded by Standard Oils of Indiana and Kentucky, Prairie Oil and Gas and Penn. Mex. Fuel. Recent activity of Red Bank was explained by the announcement that the Prairie Company had completed a new four inch pipe line to its Elk Hill, Kansas, pool. Imperial of Canada showed independent strength by advancing 5 points to 168. South American issues held firm.

Coalers were mixed, a gain of 1 1-4 in Glen Alden being offset by a loss of a point in Lehigh Valley Coal certificates. Revival of speculative activity in the radio shares sent most of the active issues to higher ground. Public offering of 100,000 shares of the Joseph W. Jones Radio Manufacturing Company will be followed by an application to list it on the curb. Ford Motors of Canada jumped seven points on a few odd lot sales and Foundation Company preferred climbed three points to a new high at 107 1-2.

Several new bonds were admitted to trading, including the six per cent. notes of the Imperial Bank of Japan.

New York, Aug. 13—Cotton spot steady; middling 30.90.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Aug. 12—Active buying based largely on the Canadian government crop report brought about a decided advance in the value of wheat today. The wheat market, helped also by corn strength closed firm at 2 1-8 to 2 1-2c gain, with corn 1 1-2 to 2 3-4c up, oats 7-8c to 1c higher.

Although most of the private estimates here regarding the probable yield of wheat this season in Canada were much smaller than the amount indicated by the government report, it was deemed significant that official recognition of damage had been made to the extent shown. There were also misgivings about reports of freezing temperatures in Manitoba, especially as the Winnipeg market showed more strength than was the case in Chicago, and forecasts pointed to likelihood of more frost tonight.

Indications of liberty export business gave additional strength to the wheat market as the day drew to an end. Besides advices from Argentina said the weather there was cold and frosty. A marked falling off in the volume of receipts at Kansas City, St. Louis and Omaha was also apparent. On the other hand, the spring wheat movement was starting in the northwest, although as yet on a much smaller scale than a year ago.

Demand for corn was greatly stimulated by unseasonable cool weather and heavy rains, whereas higher temperatures and less moisture are desirable at present. Oats, like wheat, were affected by bullish aspects of the Canadian government crop report.

Provisions were irregular, the influence of higher quotations on hogs being more or less offset by the grain bulge.

POLICE ABOUT NEW LONDON SEEK TWO MISSING DANIELSON GIRLS

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, August 12—The state police at Groton barracks, this evening were requested by the police of the Danielson barracks to maintain a lookout for two young girls, who had run away from home. The girls left this afternoon and it was believed that they would come to this city. One of the girls is Ruth McGovern, 15, described as being about five feet, one inch in height and weighing 105 pounds. She has brown bobbed hair and is attired in a dark blue dress, black stockings and patent leather shoes. The other girl is Alice Litke, 15, about five feet, 10 inches in height and weighing about 110 pounds. She is a blonde and has bobbed hair.

Following the robbery at the residence of Michael Schwartz, 41 Squire street, vice president of the Schwartz Furniture Co., which was discovered last night and which revealed the theft of about $1,500 worth of plunder, Patrolman Timothy C. Sullivan, in making his rounds through Squire street this evening, visited the residence and to his surprise he found the same window unfastened which had provided the means of ingress to the thief Saturday or Sunday night. Motorcycle Officer William Babcock was sent to the house and climbed through the window and secured it, then leaving the house by the front entrance. Mr. Schwartz occupied the house last night, leaving this foreman.

No trace of the thief or the plunder has been obtained by the police. Mrs. Schwartz, who has been visiting friends in the country will return to her home tomorrow and it will then be possible to ascertain just what articles have been stolen, together with their description. Among the valuables not taken by the thief was a large hunting case Waltham watch, chain and Elks' charm, which was presented Mr. Schwartz by members of Norwich Lodge of Elks some time ago. The watch it is believed, was left behind by the thief because it contained an inscription on the back case.

Leon Samuels, 151 Arnold avenue, Edgewood, R. I., reported to the New London police last night that while he was about the streets yesterday afternoon his brindle bull dog jumped from his automobile and strayed away. Mr. Samuels stated that he prized the dog highly, and that he would give a reward to the finder of the animal. This afternoon Patrolman William Graham saw George H. Ryley, 69 Lewis street, with a dog that answered the description of the lost animal and inspecting the collar of the dog, found that the dog was Samuels, for the dog's name, "Boy" appeared on the collar. Ryley accompanied the officer to the police station where he stated that in passing last night, through Huntington street, he was summoned to a house by a woman, who gave him the dog, the woman stating that she had found the animal in the hallway. Ryley was directed to deliver the dog to Frederick Brown, of Fremont street, who would turn the reward over to Ryley.

John Davis, a bargeman, who has been before the police court many times, was found on State street this evening making an address to a score or more of curious pedestrians. He was taken into custody by Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky and will be presented in court in the morning.

Mr. and Mrs. James N. Snow are spending a week in Maine.

Mrs. Jastore Cutsica and infant daughter of Westerly, Mrs. John Litt and infant son, New York and Miss Alice Cooper, 159 Connecticut avenue, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were able to return to their respective homes today.

Richard Stoddard of Pequot avenue, is spending a few days in New York.

Edward R. May, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. May, 53 Montauk avenue, returned last night to New York, where he is a practicing attorney, having visited several days with his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. John O'Brien, Jr., Mt. Vernon, N. Y., are the guests of Mr. O'Brien's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John O'Brien, 17 Rogers street.

Miss Annie Peck, daughter of E. C. Peck, 54 Golden street, is visiting friends in Willimantic.

Launch Com-an-go, which was seized at the wharf of the West Mystic Sea Sled Co., West Mystic, yesterday by the New York patrol of the prohibition forces and which is alleged to have been one of the two craft whose crews engaged the crew of the patrol in a gun battle a fortnight ago in Long Island sound, was taken to New York this morning by prohibition enforcement agents connected with the revenue department. The identity of the owners of the Com-an-go is not known to the revenue authorities.

The Com-an-go and the launch William II were proceeding through the sound the latter part of last month, after the craft are alleged to have received a supply of liquor from the fleet of craft off "Rum Row". The two boats were sighted by the crew of the patrol, but when the government boat attempted to overhaul the rum-runners the crews of the two launches refused to stop their boats. The crew of the patrol opened fire and this caused the crew of the William II to return the fire, as did the crew of the Com-an-go. The William II was finally captured and aboard the craft was several hundred cases of liquor. The crew of the Com-an-go managed to operate the craft at a high speed away from the patrol boat and make their escape with their cargo of about 500 cases of Scotch and rye whiskey. A watch was maintained by the crew of the patrol for the Com-an-go daily since the gun battle until yesterday, when the patrol visited the plant of the sea sled company and finding the craft moored there, took charge of the boat.

An automobile owned and driven by William Salup, 64 Evergreen avenue, Trenton, N. J., and a machine, owned and operated by Harold K. Howard, 25 Walden avenue, were in collision on Bank street, near Tilley street, late this afternoon. Both machines were damaged.

Max Landsman, of Packer, Conn., was ordered this afternoon by Sergeant Frank Howard to appear in the police court tomorrow morning charged with violation of the automobile law in passing an intersecting street without reducing the speed of his automobile or sounding his horn.

Edward Jennings, 13 Tenth street, arrested late yesterday after having attempted the life by shooting of his sister, Mrs. George Hoyle, and then giving battle to the police, and who was locked up charged with assault with attempt to kill and resisting an officer, escaped luckily when presented in the police court this forenoon. Acting Prosecutor Perry J. Hollandersky amended the complaint to breach of the peace and intoxication. The accused pleaded guilty to the amended complaint, was fined $10 and costs on each count, and paid. The trouble at the Jennings house, where his sister resides, came about because Jennings had not been working, to earn a sufficient sum to contribute toward the support of the house. When Mrs. Hoyle reprimanded her brother for spendnig his money for drink instead of defraying the bills of the home, Jennings became enraged and securing his .32 calibre revolver fired at the woman, but the bullet missed its mark. Jennings then gave battle to Motorcycle Officer William Babcock in an endeavor to escape, but was overpowered.

Louis Ginsberg, postmaster and justice of the peace at Quaker Hill, was before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton in the Waterford town court last night on a summary process instituted by Ginsberg's landlord, Frederick L. Goss. Prior to the convening of the court, Ginsberg and Goss effected an agreement whereby Ginsberg will vacate the premises he now occupies, of which Goss desires to obtain possession, and this within four weeks. The parties agreed upon Justice Morton as an arbiter to see to it that the agreement was fulfilled. With the agreement to the adjustment by both Ginsberg and Goss the case was nolled.

The continued case of trespass brought by Goss against Ginsberg was also nolled upon Ginsberg agreeing to pay the costs of the action. Ginsberg was arrested a week ago when he entered other land owned by Goss and drew a quantity of water from a well.

Harold Sargent of New London, a chauffeur, and Miss Lorraine E. Laye, stenographer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Laye, Waterford, were married yesterday afternoon by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth at the parsonage of the First Church of Christ.

Joseph Matthews of Mott avenue, Ocean Beach, Mrs. Adam May, Mystic, Mrs. Frank Barber, Thames street, Luther Damon, Groton, and Mrs. Lillie Leake, Mystic, were patients discharged today at Lawrence hospital.

Walter S. Garde, owner of the Colonial Shoppe, corner of State and Meridian streets, has acquired three parcels of land on Meridian and Church streets of Frederick W. Mercer, John P. T. Armstrong and Theodore Bodenwein. The price paid was $28,000.

Addie Wright, 69 Hempstead street, complained to the police this morning that George Burke, also colored and a lodger at the Wright home, disappeared last night and simultaneous with Burke's sudden departure there was missing $13 belonging to the complainant.

An automobile owned and operated by Wallace D. Fessler, 56 Bellevue place, employed by the New London Ship and Engine company, in passing through Jay street this afternoon collided with a motionless car owned by Miss Mary C. Kiley. Neither car was damaged of consequence.

Another meeting of the Ku Klux Klan membership in New London, Norwich, Mystic and Stonington was held last night in the vicinity of Fort Hill, Groton. The session was attended by about 300 members.

Donald M. Smith, New London, a clerk, and Miss Marian K. Gifford, formerly a teacher, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Gifford of Willimantic, were married late yesterday afternoon by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth.

Amos and Jesse Maynard, brothers, went to jail from the police court this morning when Judge Prince had finished hearing their story of how it happened that they were found drunk yesterday on Howard street. Each of the accused has a record that is discreditable and both have heretofore been shown leniency when they were accused and convicted of intoxication. The judge reiterated what he has said many times of late, that "it costs money to get drunk now." Attorneys and others in court did not know just how to regard this statement inasmuch as liquor costs more than ever before and court expenses have increased in recent years.

NORWICH TOWN

Rev. James B. Aldrich, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, chose for his text at the Sunday morning worship Luke 2: 34, And Simeon blessed them and said unto Mary His mother, behold, this Child is set for the fall and the rising again of many in Israel, and for a sign which shall be spoken against.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor service was an open air meeting held on Huntington green, opposite the church. The topic was Beautiful Things I See in Nature: Their Lessons. Matthew 6: 26-34. Mrs. William H. Whitman was the leader.

Wednesday of this week the Methodist Sunday school is to hold its annual picnic at Ocean Beach. Members and their friends who are planning to attend are to take a special trolley car leaving Yantic at 9 o'clock (daylight time).

Under the auspices of the social committee of the Christian Endeavor society a musical and social is to be held at the church this week.

Because of camp meeting, there will be no service of any kind at this church for two weeks, beginning Sunday, Aug. 17th. It is expected that Sunday services will be resumed Aug. 31. The pastor, Rev. James B. Aldrich, and members of his family, including Mrs. Aldrich and their sons, Lewis and Mark, are to leave Saturday next for Willimantic camp ground, to remain for about two weeks.

The address at the Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church was by Thomas Bacheler, who spoke from John 15: 14, Ye are my friends if ye do these things which I command you. In the absence of the organist, Herbert L. Yerrington, Mrs. Olive Riley Roberts of West Thames street was organist and directed the music.

Rev. Edward Huntington Smith of Ing Hok, China, conducted the opening exercises and offered prayer.

In the course of his address Mr. Bacheler said: The Christian is a friend of Christ, for Christ is his friend. Christ addressing his followers gave this text as a sort of test of their friendship, and it is a test of our sincerity if we always do that we are commanded to do by our Saviour. There is a great deal packed into this verse, and I am not going to get it all, but some thoughts that I hope may be helpful to us.

What are the outstanding characteristics of real friends? First they like, sometimes they love one another. Then they are congenial cmopanions. I want to ask you, do you feel sure that you love Christ who has done so much for you? Do you like to talk about Him to others, to talk to Him in prayer, to think of Him, His life here on earth, His sacrifice for yuo, and for the whole world, His life in glory, where He is pleading for such sinners as you and me? His help in daily living, in the trials of this life (be they bodily, mental or spiritual). Is this all real to you? Is all this the highest thing in your life? If it is, you are one of Christ's friends.

Some of you may say, I don't find many things He definitely commanded. The injunction to love one another, even as I have loved you, sometimes called the eleventh commandment, that means so much, shows so much of our duty to our fellow men; we all realize that there are many professing Christians who fall woefully short of their duty in obeying this command. There are many things commanded by Him, not exactly definitely, by so many words, but by implication. His example, His teaching, the life He lived while not seeming to be thinking of making any rule for His followers, even by example.

His teachings that have come down to us, did not set the law of God as understood by the prophets and teachers of the Israelites, ancient people, to one side, only confirmed them, sometimes showing the spiritual significance and meaning of certain observances that the people had missed. We read in one Prophet, Micah, a rule of life, that reminds one of this text, "What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and love mercy, and walk humbly with thy God?" That seems to sum up all the Christian's duty; walking with God we will partake somewhat of the nature of God, our walking Companion, and will do only what pleases Him. If we are Christ's friends we will do what He wants us to do.

Then we find James giving almost the same rule, "Pure religious and undefiled before our God and Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world." These three texts, are all a guide for right living.

In referring to the matter of friends the speaker said: Are we ready in congenial companionship prith Gods our Father, and Christ our Saviour? Christ tells us that God our Father knows our needs and wants; but that we should "First seek His Kingdom and righteousness and God would supply our needs." That seems to me to mean if we are determined to live a consecrated Christian life, we will seek not only the blessing of God on all our daily plans and business of life, but His leading in the making of plans, etc., will make His work our first and chife business, and will not engage in anything in which we can not feel His sanction ad look for His blessig on it. Further we will not do anything that is not pleasing to Him, or what we think might not be. When we fully trust i nGod and are willing and ready to do His will, He will guide and help us. All things work together for good to them that love the Lord.

Miss Margaret Chapin was the leader at the Young ePople's Christian Endeavor service, when the topic was Beautiful Things I see in Nature: Their lessons.

STATE MAY SOON SECURE WAR TROPHIES

Secretary of War Weeks has announced that the World War trophies are now ready for distribution among the states, according to a report from Washington. Although it was said at the state capitol that Governor Templeton has not received official word from the war department in regard to Connecticut's share of the trophies, it is expected that he will soon receive a communication directing him to ask for those which the department is allowing this state. Although the governor has taken no step so far in providing for the securing and distribution of these relics, he will do so immediately upon receiving word from Washington. It is believed that he will appoint a commission to take care of the transporting and distribution of these trophies.

In accordance with the provisions of the bill passed by congress during the spring the government will pay for packing them, but Connecticut must pay for the transportation and internal distribution.

The Nutmeg State allotment includes five suits of body armor, more than a thousand bayonets, about 100 canteens, 200 cartridge cases, about 200 helmets, more than 100 machine guns, a thousand and more rifles, about 200 swords and sabers and about thirty pieces of artillery. The trophies must be called for within a year. Otherwise they will be sold at auction by the war department.

The man who says that he can marry any girl he pleases is seldom able to please one.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF
MRS. ADAM TROEGER,
Who Died Aug. 13, 1923.

What would we give her hand to clasp,
Her happy face to see,
To hear her voice and see her smile
That meant so much to us.

She suffered much, she murmured not,
As we watched her day by day,
Until at last, with broken hearts,
We laid her to and passed away.
MR. ADAM TROEGER AND FAMILY.

CARD OF THANKS

We, the undersigned, wish to thank all our friends and relatives for their kindness and sympathy shown us in the recent death of our beloved mother, and also for the beautiful flowers sent to the funeral.

The Taftville Field Day association held another important meeting at the Army-Navy club on Monday evening. The annual election of officers resulted as follows: President, John B. Benoit; vice president, Archie Molleur; secretary, Armand Fontaine; treasurer, Napoleon Peppin. Committees were appointed to make preparations for the coming field day to be held in September. The officers and committees plan the largest attractions ever staged in the village, in order to secure a good sized sum of money for another big celebration on July 4, 1925. The association will hold another meeting at the Army and Navy club on next Monday evening at 7.30 p. m., and an invitation is extended to anyone who might be interested in any way in making these celebrations a success. The experience gained by the different members of the association in staging occasions of this kind, will no doubt prove to the public that Taftville does not have to take a back seat from any town its size in New England in giving the public something for their money, and it is hoped that they will appreciate the efforts being made to keep Taftville ahead in this line.

TOWN SCHOOL BOARD ACCEPTS RESIGNATIONS OF TWO TEACHERS

The town school board, at its August meeting Tuesday evening in the office of Supt. Edward J. Graham, received and accepted the resignations of two of the public school teachers. The resignations were submitted by Miss Vera Stetson, who has been a teacher at the Elizabeth Street school and Miss Florence E. Tracy, a teacher of the kindergarten department. No appointments were made at the meeting to fill the vacancies caused by the resignations. The usual school department bills were approved by the board.

The school board is still working on the plans for the new school to be erected on the East Side. Recently members of the board went to Warwich, N. Y., to inspect a school building in that place, having in mind plans similar to the Warwick building. As the members of the board have not yet decided upon the plans for the new building no definite announcement can be made at the present time.

The appropriation for the new building was voted at a special town meeting in June the amount authorized being $100,000. The board meeting adjourned about 9 o'clock.

LEDYARD WOMAN DIES AT AGE OF 100 YEARS

Mrs. Mary A. Wilbur, widow of Thomas Wilbur, aged 100 years, died at midnight Monday night at her home in Ledyard. She had been in failing health for several weeks. She celebrated her 100th birthday March 3 of this year and was at that time in good health.

Born in Warren, R. I., March 3, 1824, the daughter of George and Eliza Pierce Miller, Mrs. Wilbur lived to welcome two children, 10 grandchildren, 18 great grandchildren and five great-great grandchildren on the celebration of her 100th birthday anniversary at the Ledyard home of her son-in-law, Emil Wydler. She passed most of her life in that town and recalled with pleasure the days when it was not an uncommon thing for her to walk the 15 miles from Ledyard to Norwich. She was a member of the Baptist church, to which she was always religiously devoted.

Although she lived a retired life, Mrs. Wilbur was always keenly interested in current events and her impressions given to a reporter on the occasion of her last birthday proved of absorbing interest. She was born three months prior to the promulgation of the Monroe doctrine and it was her privilege to see 24 presidents of the United States inducted into office. During her long life 14 states were admitted to the Union and Alaska, Hawaii, the Philippines and our island possessions were either annexed or purchased. Not less than six foreign and domestic wars occurred during her life. She witnessed the excitement attending the construction of the first railway and of many other achievements and inventions extending to the conquest of the air and the present around-the-world flight of the American army aviators.

She is survived by one son, Thomas W. Wilbur of Quaker Hill, Waterford; a daughter, Mrs. Simeon Morgan of Gales Ferry; eight grandchildren, Elmer, Robert, Ernest, Arthur, James and William Morgan of Gales Ferry, Frank Wilbur of Norwich and William Wilbur of New Jersey; 18 great-grandchildren, Mrs. George Tift, Mrs. Lester Chesebro; Emil, Clarence, Fred, Ralph, Everett, Ernest and the Misses Lillian, Fanny, Grace, Dorothy, Ella and Minnie Wydler, all of Mystic; Mrs. William Bradshaw of Groton, Mrs. Celia Schoville, Miss Mabel Wilbur and Willard Wilbur of Norwich, and five great-great grandchildren.

NAVAL OFFICER PAYS FINE ON AUTOMOBILE CHARGE

New London, Aug. 12.—The continued case of Lieut. C. H. Miley, stationed at the submarine base, charged with reckless driving, was concluded before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton in the Waterford town court last night, when the accused entered a demurrer, which was overruled and a fine of $50 was imposed. Same paid.

Miley was arrested July 27th when operating a car belonging to a friend, on the Hartford turnpike, near Prospect Hill. The car was operated in a zig-zag course and collided with a machine owned and driven by Frederick Herman, 205 Main street, Norwich, and of which Mr. Herman's family were occupants. After colliding with the Herman car, the machine driven by Miley struck a car owned and operated by Max Kaplan, 13 Clover court and in which were Kaplan's parents. Mrs. Kaplan sustained bruises and after the collision was attended by a physician. All three cars were damaged. Miley was arrested by State Police Officer Henry Albright of the Groton barracks, charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, but when he was given a hearing last night the complaint was amended to the less serious charge.

GENERAL IMPROVEMENT IN HEALTH CONDITIONS

The reports from town health officers for last week indicate on the whole an improvement in the health conditions of the state. There were 21 new cases of diphtheria, the same number as that for the previous week. Cases of scarlet fever increased from nineteen to twenty, and cases of measles fell from twenty-four to eight, cases of typhoid fever decreased from eight to six and those of whooping cough from forty-one to twenty-five.

Meet at Camp Ground

At a recent meeting of the W. F. M. S. at Willimantic camp ground, Mrs. Andrew S. Muirhead, Mrs. Fred Davoll and Mrs. Arthur Morrill were elected a nominating committee for the selection of officers for the annual meeting in September. Mrs. A. I. Burlingham was appointed solicitor among the campers for money and articles for the Christmas box and Mrs. Wesley Morse solicitor for money and articles among the members in the city. Mrs. George Elmer gave an interesting talk of her life and work in Japan. Refreshments were served. There were ten present.

PUBLIC MUST COOPERATE TO COMBAT DISEASE

In a review of disease conditions in Connecticut during the past six months, Commissioner Stanley H. Osborn, of the state department of health, said recently that the cooperation of the public with health officials is essential if any great degree of disease prevention is to be established successfully in the state. He said that communities are not taking full possible advantage of immunity from disease offered by antitoxins and other preventives for various communicable diseases.

"Health officers are continually urging the use of diphtheria toxin-antitoxin," he said, "which is proving a real eighth wonder, at least in the present day. The number of Connecticut children now protected by the method is approximately 100,000. But the records of health officers and of the state department will show that many deaths from this disease might have been prevented by a more universal use of the preventive.

"Diphtheria is most prevalent in Connecticut in the late fall months. There is no reason why all of the people of the state should not take advantage of immunization offered by the toxin-antitoxin. All doctors are supplied with it and persons unable to pay for innoculation can obtain the preventive without cost by applying to community health officials.

"Smallpox is another disease which should be and can be eliminated. In 1922 there were more cases of the disease in this state than in any other year since 1890. The number of fatalities from smallpox during the first six months of this year exceeded the death rate from the disease during the corresponding period in any year since 1900. There is no justifiable reason for this as certain immunization is offered by vaccination.

"The mark or scar left by the vaccination process should be considered a badge of honor as it shows that the individual is trying to protect himself, his family and the community. The time for prevention measures is before an outbreak. Vaccination after a patient is afflicted with the disease is of little avail. Community foresight is evident when the community at large is taking proper immunization methods to prevent epidemics."

Dr. Osborn says that the hard work of tuberculosis prevention societies and organizations is steadily reducing the tuberculosis death rate in this state. Despite the increasing population in 1923 Connecticut reached the lowest point in the tuberculosis death rate. There were 1,691 cases of the disease with 1,316 deaths resulting. The death rate, from all forms of the disease was 89.0 for every 100,000 population, whereas five years ago it was 116.6. Up to the end of June indications are that the 1924 rate will be much lower than in 1923, the record low year.

NATIONAL GRANGERS WILL PASS THROUGH STATE

New Britain will be the host city of Connecticut to a motor caravan of more than 250 automobiles, carrying over 1,000 members of the 1924 National Grange Tour when they stop here over night on Sunday, August 17th, on their way from Battle Creek, Michigan, to Plymouth, Massachusetts. As New Britain is the only Connecticut city where they will stop over night, elaborate preparations are being made here to entertain the visiting Grangers who come from cities throughout the middle west and other places, and to make their visit to New Britain a pleasant one.

Annually, the National Grange makes a motor pilgrimage to some spot of historical interest on this continent and this year, the place chosen was Plymouth Rock, Massachusetts—the spot where the settlers aboard the Mayflower, first set foot on American soil. The Grangers will come directly here from Tarrytown, New York, by way of Danbury, Newton, Sandy Hook, Southbury, Middlebury, Waterbury, Millidale, Southington and Plainville to New Britain. They are expected here in the early afternoon and upon their arrival, will be treated to a barbecue at Walnut Hill Park.

"Arrangements for their reception are in the hands of the New Britain Chamber of Commerce and a cordial welcome for the visitors will be accorded them—A. F. Marsh being general chairman. It is planned to secure Lieutenant-Governor Hiram Bingham of New Haven to extend greetings on behalf of the State of Connecticut and Mayor Angelo M. Paonessa of New Britain will proffer the visitors, the keys to the city. George B. Chandler, secretary of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce, will outline for the Grangers, the history of the Nutmeg State and recite a sketch of its rapid growth.

TO HOLD ROTARY CONCLAVE AT EASTERN POINT

Announcement has been made that the fall conclave of the 30th District Rotary clubs will be held at the Griswold hotel, Eastern Point, September 3, 4 and 5. The Norwich Rotary club will play a prominent part in the entertainment of the visiting Rotarians.

The event to which all Rotarians look forward in anticipation of a glorious time, will open with a luncheon of which the Norwich club will have charge, at noon time on the first date. From 2 until 6 p. m. the Boys' Band of Pittsfield will give a band concert, and during the same hours, out in the wide open spaces at the rear of the hotel, and up on the Shenecossett golf links, competitive sports will be in order.

At 6.30 the club presidents' dinner will be held, followed by informal dancing in the ball room until midnight.

The second day's events will start with a separate breakfast for the presidents and secretaries, and a conference of these officers. The other Rotarians have to eat, however, so a general breakfast will be served for them and their guests.

From 9 o'clock until noon, the only business session of the conclave will be held under the leadership of District Governor Albert E. Lavery of Bridgeport. While the men folks are talking business the ladies will be given an opportunity to discuss the latest styles and scandals and at the same time enjoy a motor boat ride about the harbor.

At 12.30 luncheon will be served with the Hartford club in charge, and then will follow afternoon sports in charge of Lew Olney, who is coming all the way from Rutland, Vt., just for the purpose. Ed Regan, president of the New London club, will provide music for all those Rotarians and guests who are harmonically inclined.

The district governor's dinner is scheduled for 7 p. m. and those who survived the first night's dancing will be given an opportunity after the dinner to again indulge in stepping about the ballroom.

After breakfast on Friday a trip will be taken around Block Island. Neither Chairman Howard W. Selby of Springfield, or Secretary Louis M. Pawlett of Bridgeport, of the executive committee will give out any details, but they state in their announcement that the trip will be something that will long be remembered, and knowing Howard and Lou as well as they do, local Rotarians are thoroughly satisfied that whatever is up the executive committee's sleeve for the boat trip, is worth looking forward to.

Returning to the hotel at noon the Rotarians and guests will be seated at a courtesy luncheon to First International Vice President Donald A. Adams. The remainder of the day will be spent by those present in following their own whims and that's all there is, there isn't any more until next year.

The hotel management already reports numerous reservations and the attendance at the conclave is expected to be very large.

THREE MEN HURT WHEN MACHINE SKIDDED

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, Aug. 12—Three Willimantic young men were injured and a Hudson touring car was badly wrecked in an accident on the Hartford-Willimantic highway at Hop River shortly before 5 o'clock this afternoon. The car was being driven toward this city from Hartford by Benjamin Hochberg, local restaurant owner, and with him were Stanley Allbozek of Ives street and Ernest Whistle Bernard of the lower village, this city. The machine skidded while rounding a curve in the road near the Abraham Goldstein home and after ripping up two fense posts on the right of the highway, swerved to the left where it ploughed into the state fence after going a distance of 90 feet. The car broke four posts on this side and a two by four railing, some twelve feet long, was driven through the front of the machine which plunged down an embankment and turned over, pinning Hochberg underneath. Allbozek and Bernard were thrown through the air Bernard landed safely and escaped with slight scratches. Allbozek was quite severely injured and he was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, where it is thought he is suffering from internal injuries. Hochberg was badly cut about the head and body and he received treatment at the hospital after which he was taken to his home on South Park street. The car is owned by his father, Isaac Hochberg. On the strength of statements made by witnesses who claimed that the car was being driven at a high rate of speed at the time of the accident, Deputy Sheriff Allerton L. Frink of Andover came to this city Tuesday evening and notified Hochberg to appear in the Columbia town court Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock to answer to a charge of reckless driving.

JAFFAR.

Jaffar, the Barmecide, the good Vizier,
The poor man's hope, the friend without a peer,
Jaffar was dead, slain by a doom unjust;
And guilty Haroun, sullen with mistrust
Of what the good, and e'en the bad might say,
Ordained that no man living from that day
Should dare to speak his name on pain of death.
All Araby and Persia held their breath;
All but the brave Mondeer; he, proud to show
How far for love a grateful soul could go,
And facing death fro very scorn and grief
(For his great heart wanted a great relief),
Stood forth in Bagdad daily, in the square
Where once had stood a happy house, and there
Harangued the tremblers at the scimitar
On all they owed to the divine Jaffar.

"Bring me this man," the caliph cried. The man
Was brought, was gazed upon. The mutes began
To bind his arms. "Welcome, brave cords," cried he;
"From bonds for worse Jaffar delivered me;
From wants, from shame, from loveless household fears;
Made a man's eyes friends with delicious tears;
Restored me, loved me, put me on a par
With his great self. How can I pay Jaffar?"

Haroun, who felt that on a soul like this
The mightiest vengeance could but fall amiss,
Now deigned to smile, as one great lord of fate
Might smile upon another half as great.
He said: "Let worth grow frenzied if it will;
The caliph's judgment shall be master still.
Go; and since gifts so move thee, take this gem,
The richest in the Tartar's diadem,
And hold the giver as thou deemest fit."

"Gifts!" cried the friend; he took, and holding it
High toward the heavens, as though to meet his star,
Exclaimed, "This, too, I owe to thee Jaffar!"

I FIND BEAUTY EVERYWHERE.

I find beauty everywhere
On the earth and in the air—
Highest cloud that sails the blue,
Lowliest cloud that drinks the dew;
Tawsled gold that belts the bee,
Tossing spindrift of the sea;
Bloom of weed and plume of flower
Lifting in the lily tower;
Bridal white of waterfalls,
Mosses purpling mountain walls;
Dawn upon the crests of snow,
Eve on valley lands below;
Deep pool water, and therein
The swift prismy flash to fin;
Sheen upon the swallow's breast,
Catkins, thistledown, the dried
Glint an autumn's last red leaf;
The new moon's thin scimitar,
And the virginal vesper star.
I find beauty everywhere
On the earth and in the air!

NAT'L BANK EXAMINER COFFIN APPOINTED RECEIVER OF FIRST NAT'L BANK OF PUTNAM

Directors Place Minimum of the Gilpatric Defalcation at $262,000—Movement is Afoot for the Liquidation of the Closed Bank and the Formation of a New National Bank in Putnam—Warrant Has Been Issued For the Arrest of G. Harold Gilpatric For the Embezzlement of $100,000—Walter H. Gilpatric, Brother of the Accused, Expresses the Opinion That Undoubtedly All Losses Will Be Made Good—A Public Dance Was Held in Putnam Square Last Night at Which Subscriptions Were Taken For a New Bank.

Putnam, Aug. 13.—There was no respite today from the accumulation of sensations that for a week past has marked the unfolding of the operations of G. Harold Gilpatric, cashier of the First National Bank of Putnam, and their effect upon the institution and the public.

High lights in the day's developments were the appointment of George W. Coffin, a national bank examiner of Washington, D. C., to be temporary receiver of the bank, this appointment by the Comptroller of the currency; the issuing by United States District Attorney Cohen at Hartford of a warrant charging Mr. Gilpatric with embezzlement of $100,000 of the bank's funds; the assignment by Mr. Gilpatric of all his property and assets to the bank against any loss his acts may have caused, and a meeting between a citizens' committee and Examiner Bean, who has been checking up the institution that is in such difficulties, to hear Mr. Dean discuss the formation of a new bank in this city.

Putnam is a city without a smile. The revelations of the past few days have been so astounding, the details so amazing, as they have been revealed from hour to hour, that the people are steeled for any subsequent disclosures that may come.

The fact that Examiner Bean discussed with a citizens' committee today the forming of a new bank in Putnam is taken as indicating that the present First National organization is due for liquidation.

This morning Judge M. H. Geissler, heading the citizens' committee formed Tuesday, was informed by an official of the First National bank that the directors of the institution would not meet the committee for a conference. Out of the committee's efforts, however, came Examiner Bean's agreement to address them during the afternoon, with the stipulation that he would discuss the formation of a new bank.

That agreement had hardly been reached when there came the announcement of the appointment of a temporary receiver and within another hour a message from Hartford telling of the issuing of the warrant charging Cashier Gilpatric with embezzlement. On the heels of these developments came a statement from Attorney Walter H. Gilpatric of New York, brother of Cashier Gilpatric to the effect that G. Harold Gilpatric has today executed and delivered to the First National Bank of Putnam an assignment of all his property to meet any loss sustained by reason of his acts. It is estimated that his assets will go a considerable way toward offsetting such losses. The value of Cashier Gilpatric's assets are not stated, but they are believed to be very material.

To Form New National Bank.

The conference between Examiner Bean and the citizens' committee was productive of results. Emerging from a session of nearly three hours, members of the committee announced that an agreement had been made to form a new National Banking corporation to succeed the First National Bank, which, it now appears, is not likely to resume business.

The new national banking corporation will have a capital of $150,000, of which amount $25,000 was subscribed at this afternoon's conference. The shares have a par value of $150, and subscriptions for them will be solicited at once. It is stipulated in the agreement which the subscribers signed at this afternoon's conference that sales of the shares are to be restricted to residents of the Putnam banking community or those financially interested in this community up to a point where control of the issue will remain in the hands of such purchasers.

The text of the agreement is that "We the undersigned each in consideration of the promise and agreement of the other subscribers hereto hereby subscribe for the number of shares opposite our respective signatures at $150 each of the capital stock of a proposed new National Banking corporation to be organized in Putnam as soon as the same be paid to the board of directors of said bank upon three days' call."

"This agreement is on the understanding and condition that a controlling interest in said corporation shall be held by persons resident or financially interested in the banking community of Putnam."

The subscribers and the number of shares taken by them at the conference is as follows: Dr. Joseph C. Hoppin, Pomfret, 66; J. Lawrence Perkins, Pomfret and utnam, 30; The Patriot Press, J. J. Whitehead Jr., 3 1-3; Jacob Alpert and Hyde Smith, 6 2-3; Asa M. Ross, 10; Samuel Reynolds, 10; Judge M. H. Geissler, 7; E. C. Rogers, 10; The Observer company, 3 1-3; Mary Helen Rogers, 5. These subscriptions at $150 per share represent $25,000.

Rapid accumulation of further subscriptions is looked for and there are those who predict that the full amount of the proposed capital stock will be pledged within the present week. Speed is one of the essentials in perfecting the organization of the proposed new National Banking corporation, that Putnam may have restored its normal commercial financial facilities.

Dr. Hoppin, who heads the lists of subscribers, is one of the most wealthy residents of eastern Connecticut. He has one of the beautiful country estates that make Pomfret so attractive.

J. Lawrence Perkins is also a Pomfret man of great wealth and his home, Ufton, is one of the show places of Pomfret. He is heavily interested in The Patriot Press, publishing a weekly newspaper in this city and owning the building—the Union block—in which the publication is housed, and also a number of business enterprises and the postoffice.

J. J. Whitehead a subscriber in the name of The Patriot Press, is a close business associate of Mr. Perkins and his intimate friend. He is the editor of The Patriot.

Messrs Smith and Alpert are the owners of the S.-A. Amusement company, operating two theatres in this city, one at Danielson and one at Rockville.

Asa M. Ross is a retired business man of wealth, formerly a resident of Thompson, but for the past few years making his home in this city.

Samuel Reynolds is one of the executives of the Putnam Foundry and Machine company, one of the most important of the city's industries.

Judge M. H. Geissler is head of the Putnam city court and one of the best known attorneys resident here.

E. C. Rogers is owner and proprietor of the Putnam inn and active for many years in advancing Putnam's interests. Mr. Rogers is a member of the common council. Mrs. Rogers also appears in the list of original subscribers.

The Observer company is represented by George L. Padgett and Lewis T. Champion, owners and publishers of The Observer, a weekly publication of this city.

Around this nucleus of subscribers who have come forward in a time of stress and pledged their money to establish a new national banking corporation here there is every reason to believe there will assemble in a very brief period a sufficient number of other subscribers to make possible the complete organization of their bank.

Receiver Coffin who has been appointed to have charge of the affairs of the First National bank, is an expert bank examiner of many years experience. He is a very likable man and bankers who have become acquainted with him upon the occasion of his visits into this territory in the past have the highest praise for him.

As on every day since the storm of financial trouble struck the First National bank through the operations of its cashier, there were many stories being told today relative to more or less obscure and alleged deals in which Mr. Gilpatric is said to have figured. All of these stories are being gradually checked up with a view to establishing whether they are true and whether they represent possible further trouble.

No positive statement can be made as yet as to the exact losses of the bank. This is due to the fact that in the nature of things all the necessary information for making such an exact statement is not yet at hand. Today the bank's losses appeared to be between $225,000 and $250,000.

No statements for publication were forthcoming from any official of the bank, the same policy of silence persisting that has been maintained since the first crash following the attempted suicide of Cashier Gilpatric, who was resting comfortably today and evidently a little further along on the road to recovery.

STATEMENT BY BROTHER OF G. HAROLD GILPATRIC

Putnam, Aug. 13.—Walter H. Gilpatric, brother of G. Harold Gilpatric, defaulting cashier of the First National bank of this town, who is still fighting for his life at the Day-Kimball hospital, where he lies partly blinded for life, as a result of his attempt at suicide, announced that the state treasurer has assigned all his property to the bank to meet its losses. Mr. Gilpatric estimated that these losses would not be as great as previously indicated and that the assets available would closely match them.

Mr. Gilpatric said:

"We are sorry. We are concerned now in getting together all possible assets to make up the losses. If these losses amount to anything like $262,000 I will be greatly surprised.

"When this thing is finished up I think that Putnam will find that all losses have been made good. It will be true if they let us see things together. If they put Harold into bankruptcy no one knows what will happen.

"He has to face the courts on this. We are prepared for this. We are prepared to let the law take its course. We are not concerned so much with the past as we are in making up for the consequences of the past and you may be sure that every effort is being turned in that direction."

With respect to reports that there had been forceries on mortgage deeds given by Mr. Gilpatric to James Donahue, to the Cutler estate and to other interests in this city who had given him an aggregate of approximately $200,000 to invest for them, Walter H. Gilpatric said that his brother assured him specifically in the case of the Donahue and Cutler instances that the transactions were entirely regular.

"My brother told me that he hand-

Kid M'Coy" Held on Suspicion of Murder

Former Pugilist Claims, Mrs. Theresa Mors, With Whom He Had Been Living, Committed Suicide.

Los Angeles, Aug. 13—(The most thoroughly tangled case in the recent police annals of Los Angeles, with Norman Selby, "Kid McCoy," of prize ring fame, as its central living figure, and Mrs. Theresa W. Mors, divorced wife of a wealthy antique dealer shot to death, tonight claimed the attention of the Los Angeles police homicide squad.

McCoy, dazed and incoherent, is held by the police on suspicion of murder.

Albert Mors, divorced husband of the dead woman, also has been located after a search following the discovery of Mrs. Mors' body this morning.

The ex-pugilist, nine times a husband, and who, common report said, was planning to make Mrs. Mors his tenth wife, in the first hour or so after his arrest would make only one statement, and that was "he killed the only woman I ever loved."

Later, he varied it.

"She committed suicide last night," he mumbled. "First I put her on the Davenport. Then I moved her on the floor."

Detectives found what appeared to be corroboration of this—a large blood spot on the Davenport and a smaller one on the floor where the body was found this morning by the apartment house janitor.

Near the body was a .32 calibre automatic pistol, and a bullet to fit it was taken from the woman's head by police surgeons. Clasped in the hand of the corpse was a photograph of the ex-pugilist. They had been living at the apartment as "Mr. and Mrs. N. Shields."

Shortly after the body was discovered McCoy threw the first complication into the case.

Brandishing a .45 calibre pistol and shouting incoherently, he appeared in the residential district brokerage office run by Sam Schapp and his wife, and William J. Ross, a New Yorker, was standing by the counter.

McCoy, swearing meanwhile, according to these three, robbed them and ordered the men to disrobe, apparently to block pursuit.

Ross attempted to disarm the former fighter and received two bullets in the thigh. McCoy fired four more shots and slightly wounded Schapp and his wife, then departed, running.

As he fled across West Lake Park his pistol fell from his pocket, and a patrolman arrested him.

McCoy's apartment was searched and a note was found. It read:

"To whom it may concern: All my belongings to go to my mother, Mrs. Mary E. Selby, 6111 Mesa drive.

"Norman Selby."

The note was dated August 12.

Mrs. Mors, was killed or committed suicide about midnight of August 13, according to police surgeons.

Closer examination of Mrs. Mors' body revealed further complicating evidence. The lip had been cut through as though by a heavy blow and there were other cuts on the arm, indicating a possible struggle.

The bullet had entered her left temple, ranged downward across the face and lodged under the right eye.

McCoy was taken to the scene of the death but was unable or unwilling to throw any further light on his previous unconnected statements.

Mrs. Mors and her husband had been divorced recently. Then she charged Mors with robbing the antique store of $50,000 in securities and valuables while a property settlement was being arranged.

Mors was brough into court several times and last Monday. His preliminary hearing was set for August 15. His bail was fixed at $62,000, which he furnished.

At all the court sessions, excepting that of last Monday, Mrs. Mors appeared accompanied by McCoy. Neither of them attended that session.

Alienists For State In Loeb-Leopold Case

Declare Their Examinations of the Accused Disclosed no Abnormality of Dream Life or Emotion.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—(By The A. P.)—The structure built by the defense in support of its plea for penitentiary sentences for Richard Loeb and Nathan F. Leopoul, Jr., kidnappers- murderers of young Robert Franks, was attacked today by the state, which, in rebuttal, kept two alienists on the witness stand throughout the day.

The theories of four alienists for the defense that childish phantasies continuing into young manhood as malaign influences, stunted emotional growths and functional disorders of the endocrine glands, blended into a whole of "mental sickness" in each youth were disputed by Dr. Hugh T. Patrick and Dr. Archibald Church, of Chicago, who said their examinations of Loeb and Leopoul indicated no abnormality of dream life or emotion, nor in the endocrine system.

Dr. Church testified he found "no most throughout the day, declared both youths normal, "except as far as commission of a deliberate, cold-blooded murder indicates disordered mentality."

He told of various displays of emotion by both youths and asserted that phantasies, or "air castles or castles in Spain," are "highly normal."

Dr. Church testified hwe found "no mental disease of any nature whatsoever," in either Loebor Leoold by examination of them or in reading reports of defense alienists.

Attacking the findings of endocrine pathology in Leopold, Dr. Church said the X-ray pictures of the pineal gland could not be relied upon, as the gland frequently contained a quantity of gritty matter known as brain sand, which would indicate on X-ray plates a calcified condition. It was the contention of Dr. H. S. Hulbert, of Chicago, who brought endorcrineology, the "chemistry of character," into the hearing, that the pineal governed the other endocrine glands, and that in Leopold's case the pineal had galcified at the age of 16, whereas it should not have done so for several years yet. Dr. Church testified that the gland calcified at no special age.

Long hypothetical questions covering all items of pathology, irregularities of personality, and emotional adolescence set forth by the defense alienists as indicating "mental sickness," in Loeb, and Leopold were asked Drs. Patrick and Church. Their replies to all were without variance: "I found nothing in my examinations or in printed reports to lead me to a diagnosis of mental disease," by Dr. Patrick, and "there was no evidence of any mental disease," by Dr. Church.

Boston, Aug. 13.—Turning to business after two days of entertainment and the parade of yesterday, veterans of the Civil war assembled here in the 58th annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, heard at their first official session a denunciation by the commander-in-chief of the coinage of 50 cent pieces commemorating the valor of the soldiers of the south.

The report of the adjutant general was also heard in which a membership of 65,382, in 3,770 posts, was shown. The adjutant general reported that the death had taken a toll of 8,354 members in the year which terminated December 31, last, and upon which the report was based.

The Women's Relief corps, at its meeting, voted to increase its annual contribution to the Grand Army from $1,000 to $5,000 and this year's gift was taken to the veterans' meeting place, Symphony hall, where more than 700 G. DEADLOCK BETWEEN FRENCH AND GERMANS ON THE RUHR

Delegates Fail to Reach Agreement on the Question of Time to be Allotted For Military Evacuation—Meeting to be Held This Morning in Another Effort to Arrive at an Agreement—French and Belgians Have Waived Their Claims to Maintain Their Nationals on the German Railways.

London, Aug. 13—(By the A. P.)—After two conferences, the French and German delegates to the international conference tonight still were deadlocked on the question of the time to be allotted for the military evacuation of the Ruhr and it was decided that Premier Herriot of France, Chancellor Marx of Germany, Premier Theunis of Belgium and their associates would meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning in another effort to reach an agreement.

Louis Loucheur and several other French political leaders are in London conferring with M. Herriot and the German delegation is of the opinion that these men have induced the French premier to stiffen up his policy as he seems more adamant in his convention that a year's time must be left for the evacuation, than when he returned from Paris on Monday.

During today's conferences, the French and Belgians waived their claims to maintain their nationals on the German railways. Agreements also were reached on the amnesty question and on other minor matters.

At the conclusion of the conference this afternoon, Mr. Herriot said. "We are in the midst of negotiations which are progressing normally and which will be continued tomorrow."

The Germans were not so calm in their estimate of the negotiations which Foreign Minister Stresemann regards as being in a critical state.

The Americans have let it be known that they are anxious to render any possible assistance if the principals in the controversy desire outside intervention of any sort.

While both the Germans and the French said that the terms of the proposed commercial treaty were not discussed today, it was understood the French were holding out firmly for guarantees of liberal treatment.

The Germans declare that a delay in evacuation of the Ruhr might be fatal to German interests as a change in the French government might bring in a party which would refuse complete evacuation. The French and Germans in their private conferences have agreed upon the provisions of the report of the third committee, which provides for the arbitration of controversies which may arise over the quantities of goods to be delivered by the Germans.

CAMPAIGN TO SWEEP RUM FLEET FROM THE ATLANTIC

Philadelphia, Aug. 13.—Unusual activity and rigid censorship of all the news spread over a section of the League Island Navy Yard tonight as the United States coast guard settled down to preparation for its campaign to sweep the rum fleet from the Atlantic.

More than a thousand men, secretly mobilized, busied themselves in grooming the sleek destroyers, sturdy mine-sweepers and speedy coastal motorboats for the hour when they will put out to sea to establish an armed barrier along the coast against the illegal traffic in liquor, narcotics and aliens.

Throughout the day, mechanics labored upon the war craft putting on finishing touches that will enable them to endure the rigors of sea-patrol in all kinds of weather while gun crews were drilling aboard the destroyers.

Twenty destroyers of world war type, some with the star on their smokestacks that marks them as having sunk a German submarine, comprise the battle-line of the coast guard fleet. The secondary squadron is composed of two mine sweepers, while scout-work and near-shore patrol duties will fall to the motor-craft, of which three hundred are expected to be utilized. Twenty-four bases for the fleet are said to be planned along the coast, with three recruiting stations later.

THREE CLOSE CONTESTS IN THE OHIO PRIMARY

Columbus, Ohio, August 13—(By the A. P.)—Three close contests which may require a virtually complete vote for decision had developed tonight as returns from yesterday's state-wide primary continued to come in.

Two of these contests were for nomination to the state supreme court, one on the democratic and the other on the republican ticket. The third was for the democratic nomination for state treasurer.

Late returns showed all other races to have been decided as indicated by the early tabulations. These included the nomination of former Governor Harry Davis, as the republican gubernatorial candidate, and the selection of Governor A. V. Donahey, as the leader of the democratic ticket. One candidate for the supreme court on both the democratic and republican tickets had been definitely nominated, but the battle in each case was for the second nomination, two candidates being chosen by each party.

ANN LUTHER LOSES $100,000 BREACH OF CONTRACT SUIT

Los Angeles, Aug. 13.—Ann Luther, actress, today lost her $100,000 breach of contract suit against Jack F. White, wealthy mining man, when Superior Court Judge L. Valentine dismissed the case.

The court, after yesterday characterizing the story of the principals' relations as the "most dissolute violation of decency that has ever come to my attention," said in its decision that "this court will not become a party to the wrongs done by both principals in this case. This court is a place for the administration of law and justice and not a place for the flagrant violation of the law."

Judge Valentine dismissed the action on the ground the verbal agreement between White and the actress fell "within the statute of fraud."

At the announcement the actress wept and White grinned broadly.

New York, Aug. 13.—Manned by French naval seamen rushed aboard August 4th, when members of the regular crew joined the merchant marine strike at Havre, the liner Lafayette came into port today within her usual sailing time of nine days.

The ship's personnel comprised a lieutenant, two petty officers and 130 sailors. Naval discipline was in force, under orders of the French government.

BANDIT KILLED WHILE ATTEMPTING BANK ROBBERY

Seattle, Aug. 13.—D. C. Malone, alias A. J. Brown, leader of a bandit gang, which attempted to rob the Snauqlamie Valley bank at Tolt, Washington, today was killed. Ted Lashe, of Jerome Idaho, was fatally wounded in the leg when Sheriff Matt Starwich and six deputies frustrated the holdup after receiving a "tip" from a criminal.

COOLIDGE TO TAKE VACATION AFTER FORMAL NOTIFICATION

Washington, Aug. 8—Satisfied with progress of the republican campaign President Coolidge decided after receiving a report on the situation today from Chairman Butler of the national committee to take a vacation of ten or twelve days shortly after the formal notification exercises to be held here August 14.

Mr. Coolidge plans to go to his father's home at Plymouth, Vt., following a custom of many years. Mrs. Coolidge and their son, John, will comprise the remainder of the party. It will be the first time Mr. Coolidge has left the white house for more than two days since he entered office a year ago. At Plymouth, Mr. Coolidge was administered the oath of office by his father early in the morning following the death of President Harding last August.

Despite his ability to keep going in the intense heat which has prevailed here during the last week, friends have urged the president to take the rest, pointing out the difficulties under which he has worked the past year, coming into office so suddenly, and the strain he and Mrs. Coolidge were under during the recent illness and death of their younger son.

The president made known today after the conference with Mr. Butler his satisfaction with the progress reported but joined with the national committee chairman in planning a vigirous campaign. Also later the conference, Mr. Butler announced the republican fight would be carried into the northwestern states, considered the stronghold of Senator Lafollette of Wisconsin, independent candidate, in respose to the advice of many party leaders who have declared sentiment in that territory is markedly strong for the Coolidge-Dawes ticket.

Reports generally from the country, Mr. Butler said, after visits to the Chicago and New York offices of the national committee, "show an enthusiastic display of confidence in the character, ability and fitness of President Coolidge and General Dawes."

The improved economic conditions of people in the northwestern states has aided the campaign materially also, he reported, but added that establishment of regional headquarters at Minneapolis had not yet been decided upon.

DEM. NOMINEE DAVIS HAD CONFERENCE WITH HYLAN

New York, August 13—Returning here early today from Clarksburg, W. Va., where he formally accepted the democratic presidential nomination, John W. Davis gave immediate attention to plans for his speaking tours and he financing of his campaign; had a luncheon conference with Mayor Hylan, of New York City, and discussed the general political situation with other party leaders.

The visit of Mayor Hylan was pointed to by friends of the candidate as another evidence of the effect Mr. Davis' acceptance address has had in bringing together discordant elements within his party, in a statement last week the mayor left open the question of his support of the national ticket, but after reading the address at Clarksburg he announced that he was for Davis.

At the meeting today with the candidate he personally extended his congratulations.

The question of Mayor Hylan taking the stump for Mr. Davis did not come up, but it was declared that the nominee would like to have him do so.

John T. Quinlan, local pianist, was in an accident Tuesday afternoon when a Buick roadster which he was driving struck a stone and overturned at the foot of Dugway Hill on the South Windham road. Mr. Quinlan was pinned in the machine and forced his way out with some difficulty. He escaped with a shaking up. The car was damaged and was hauled to this city for repairs. Mr. Quinlan called at the local police station and secured an accident blank to fill out for the state motor vehicle department. He was driving the machine through a mudhole in the road when the front wheel struck a stone, causing him to lose control of the car, which skidded and toppled over.

While investigating the accident in Hop River Tuesday afternoon, in which a Hudson touring car was damaged and three local young men were hurt, Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink of Andover was informed that another wreck lay about half a mile east of Noble's garage on the Hartford-Willimantic highway. Traveling there, the sheriff found a Dodge roadster bearing Rhode Island registry number 5694 leaning against the embankment at one side of the road with one wheel off. The driver said that he skidded, while making a sharp turn in the road. His name was not made known. As evidence of reckless driving could not be proven against him, no action was taken in the matter. The machine was placed in the Jordan Auto company garage for repairs and the driver proceeded to his home in Providence Wednesday morning.

The dilapidated condition of the Bank street engine house, which houses the members and apparatus of Engine company No. 1 of the fire department, has been brought to the attention of the general public through one source or another but it now appears that repairs must be made at once, without delay. The flooring appears about ready to cave in and repairs must be made on the tower. To be convinced that the floor is unsafe one need only notice it sag and hear it creak as the big trucks are being moved over it. Alderman Pierre J. Laramee, chairman of the fire committee, stated Wednesday that that body had already taken action to insure the repairs. Estimates placed at $800 have been received for the work on the tower and a number of contractors are figuring on the replacement of the present floor. It is expected that Mayor George W. Hickey will soon issue a call for a special aldermanic meeting, when a call for a special city meeting would be drawn up to vote on an appropriation for the repair work. At the request of several taxpayers a special meeting is to be called for the voting of an additional appropriation to continue the work of constructing sidewalks this summer, and the request of the fire committee can be included in the warning. It is also likely that the public may be asked to vote on an appropriation for repairs at the Jackson street station house of the Montgomery Hose company No. 2. The Hilltop station on Summit street will probably be closed at an early date and the call members there will be transferred to the Bank street engine house. Another matter which has been under consideration for some time is the purchasing of an aerial truck, to replace the present hook and ladder truck, but as present conditions would not warrant further expense, the project will be taken up at some later date.

While Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink was driving to his home in Andover from this city Tuesday evening he and two other drivers were forced to stop their machines rather suddenly to avoid striking a stray horse which had taken a position in the road and refused to budge. Bearing in mind the fact that there have already been two accidents on the Hop River road this summer when motorists turned to one side to dodge straying domestic animals, Sheriff Frink took the horse in hand and after some investigation learned the identity of the owner, Joe Patrofski, who lives near by. Patrofski was notified to appear in the Columbia town court Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock to answer to the charge of leaving an animal loose on the highway as a menace to travel.

E. L. Switzer of Jordan road is looking for what he considers the meanest man he ever came in contact with. Dr. Switzer was coming down Jillson Hill, off Windham road, on a recent evening, when one of his tires went flat and came off the rim. As another machine was approaching toward the hill the surgeon drove his car along on the rim to a spot where he would be out of the way to make repairs. He noticed the other machine had stopped for a few moments and then had gone on in the direction of Norwich, but did not surmise anything until he searched for the tire and failed to find it. Lieut. Frank McLean of the police department was notified and a machine driven by Cyril Blackmar was commandeered to follow, the other car, but it had disappeared.

A Reo speed wagon, one of the fleet run by the Standard Oil company from its Norwalk station, figured in an accident at noon Wednesday at Andover when the left front wheel came off while thee truck was coming down a hill west of the railroad station. WESTERLY

A five-ton 75 anti-aircraft gun on trailer mount rumbled into Westerly Wednesday afternoon about 4 o'clock and was wheeled into position on the driveway south of the Westerly Furniture building on High street. It came to Westerly from Fort Adams, Newport, R. I., to assist Capt. John Datson of Battery E, 243d coast artillery to secure ten more enlistments for Westerly battery, so that by Saturday night next the quota may be sufficient to take the 15 day tour of duty at Fort Wright, Fishers Island, beginning Sunday, next. Failing to get the requisite number of enlistments, the trip to the fort could not be made and Westerly would lose its military unit, which would result in the closing up of the state armory on Dixon street.

Through the courtesy of the federal enlistment office in Providence, Lieut. Elliot R. Thorpe, U. S. A., a Westerly young man in command, this heavy piece of ordinance which requires a gun crew of fifteen men to handle properly and has an effective range of 4,000 yards, has been permitted to come to Westerly to help speed up the Battery E enlistment. Beside Lieut. Thorpe, who is on leave of absence, this businesslike piece of artillery is in active charge of Sergt. Joseph Theriault and Sergt. Homer St. Germains, of the Providence recruiting station. While in Westerly the sergeants will occupy the tent which has been pitched on Wilcox park.

In a determined effort to secure the needed men, an intensive recruiting drive will be conducted by the battery for the remainder of the week. The organization will be assisted by Sergeants Joseph Theriault and Homer St Germaine of the Providence regular army recruiting station.

Rallies will be held in Westerly and nearby villages each night this week. This (Thursday) evening a rally will be held in front of the local post office. Friday evening Clarkville will be visited and the drive will come to a close Saturday evening when a flying trip will be made to Ashaway, and the party will return to Dixon square for the final effort.

Officer George Madison, detailed by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown to investigate the breaking and entering of the engine house of the Westerly Blue Granite Co. on Tower street over the week end has found that it was the work of two small boys who, it is said, admitted their guilt. The officer was also successful in locating the material and tools taken and all have been returned, with the exception of glasses, the location of which is known by the police and these will be returned later.

Miss Hilda K. Young of Hillandale farm, Haversham, formerly in Westerly, now of Hope Valley, is a member of a camping party of eight Hope Valley young ladies who are enjoying a weeks' outing at the camp of Frank Hill, on Yawgo pond.

Tuesday evening a large aeroplane, flying at an elevation of only a few hundred feet and very rapidly, passed over Pawcatuck and Westerly in a northeasterly direction. The plane was evidently forced to fly at the low altitude due to the foggy condition of the atmosphere and low rain clouds that it might be able to follow the tracks of the New Haven railroad.

Mrs. John William Opie, of the Boston Post road, Westerly, was the hostess Wednesday to the members of the King's Daughters of Pawcatuck Congregational church.

Today (Thursday) is Tag Day in Westerly for the Westerly Visiting Nurse association which, it is estimated, will need $1,500 if the work of last year is to be continued along similar methods this year.

Mrs. George F. Barbour will be captain of the Avondale team and will be assisted by Misses Elizabeth and Isabelle Chapman, Corinne Hall and Martha Holbrook. Captains in other sections of the town have already been announced, and it is expected that today (Thursday) they will have full teams of workers on the streets.

The boxes which will hold the collections are again furnished free of charge by the Ashaway Line & Twine company through the courtesy of Julian Crandall. In years past this concern has donated the money receptacles for the Nurses' association.

As usual, there are many young people soliciting for the association, and the officials issued a warning to all automobilists to watch out that the safety of the workers may be assured. The plan of past years will be followed. The beaches will be visited and banners for automobiles will be sold at $1 apiece. It is thought that the revenue from this source should be even greater this year than in the past.

While dues are paid into the Visiting Nurse association here they amount to so little in comparison to the total needed to carry on the work that each year the association is obliged to resort to a tag day. It is only by the generosity of Westerly citizens on that day that the work of the association is made possible. Association officials are expecting that this year's tag day will be responded to as generously by Westerly people and residents of the shore resorts as in past seasons.

Boy Scouts will pass boxes in Wilcox park tonight during the band concert.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Pearson and daughter Mary are in New York.

ABANDONED FT. MANSFIELD TO BE AVIATION BASE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, R. I., Aug. 13.—Fort Mansfield, at Napatree Point, Watch Hill, abandoned for a number of years as a fort, and with the reservation in charge of an army sergeant, is expected in a few years to become active again in military affairs. It is planned by the general staff of the U. S. army to make the grounds an aviation base for the army. To this end it was announced the past week that it has been definitely withdrawn from sale, as previously announced by the war department.

When the war department over a year ago decided to dispose of its unused fort properties along the Atlantic coast, Fort Mansfield at Watch Hill, a well garrisoned fort up to the time of the Spanish-American war, was listed with others to be disposed of, by sale or auction to the highest bidder. A part of the plan was to offer the property first to the state government, and if a purchase was not completed then to the county and town in which the abandoned property was located with the idea that it might be made a public park. If a disposition of this nature was not made then after being advertised it was to be sold to the highest bidder. With this in view the government sought an appraisal of the entire property at Watch Hill, and three Westerly men were selected, Walter C. Hiscox, a tax assessor of Westerly, Harvey C. Perry, president of the Westerly Board of Trade, and Frank W. Coy, a real estate dealer, were asked to place a value on the Mansfield property. The value named by these men was $90,000. When the time limit for the state of Rhode Island to secure the property had expired, then there being no county government, the offer was up to the town of Westerly. Previous to this time, Senator Abraham P. Datson, Westerly member of the Rhode Island legislature, appeared before the Westerly town council, to know if that body had any recommendation to make. He was informed that although the idea of a public park appealed to them, there was no money available to attempt its purchase and the state and town option lapsed.

With the state, county and town out of the market, there have been many stories of various parties and syndicates which stood ready to secure the site and able to furnish the money with which to do it. There have been stories that if it was secured a model and exclusive residential colony would be located there. However, the recent announcement that an army airplane base is to be established at Napatree point, the site of Fort Mansfield, does away with these rumors. When it is known that the army and navy airplane bases are used interchangeably, it can readily be seen that this sandy peninsular in the shape of a double sickle, separating the waters of Long Island sound and Little Narragansett bay, will have a busy future.

Many a man after losing a political job is compelled to work for a living.

This New Laundry Soap
saves you the hardest work of washday soaks dirt out—no more hard rubbing

The old washday that meant hard, harmful rubbing is a thing of the past.

Simply soaking in rich Rinso soapsuds takes the place of rubbing—does the hard work for you. The loosened dirt comes out easily. Even grimy places where dirt is ground-in come clean with so little trouble to you—just a light rubbing.

Because Rinso dissolves completely, it rinses out thoroughly. No bits of soap left to turn your clothes yellow under the iron.

You need only Rinso for your Monday wash—no other soap or soap powder. It is made by the makers of Lux, the largest soap-makers in the world. It is perfect for all types of washing machines—fine in the boiler—and just wonderful for soaking in set tubs.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at her home in Brooklyn, funeral services for Frances Ella Spalding were conducted by Rev. Charles Graves, pastor of the Unitarian church of Hartford. Burial was in the South cemetery at Brooklyn. The bearers were relatives—Arthur Spalding, L. J. Burnham, Mortimer Marlor and Donald Smith. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Like a sketch from a book of war days, a Rhode Island cavalry command spread its equipment over the fairgrounds at Brooklyn Wednesday morning and remained there over night.

Scores of horses, tents and all the impediments of such a camp made a picturesque scene as the command settled down for a respite from travel, after a journey that, by easy stages, had brought them out from Providence.

Wednesday morning, the funeral of Mrs. Blanche Gileau was held from her home here with services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. E. K. Richards, M. S., Rev. James McCarthy, M. S., and Rev. Joseph E. McCarthy, the last named of All Hallows' parish at Moosup, were officers of the solemn high mass of requiem. Following the service here the funeral cortege proceeded to St. Mary's church at Putnam, where Rev. Chas. F. Bedard, Rev. Adrian Dykemans and Rev. W. Arthur Routhier were officers of another solemn high mass of requiem. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, Putnam. The bearers were Napoleon Beaulac, Severin Beaulac, Honore Beaulac, Joseph Beaulac, Eugene Beaulac and Leonard Martel. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Having been in failing health for some time, Mrs. Ida Frances Clark, 68, died Wednesday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Dowe, on Hawking street. Mrs. Clark had been seriously ill but two days, and the announcement of her death came as a shock to her friends.

Mrs. Clark, who was born in New Bedford was Ida Frances Parkinson and was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Parkinson. Her husband, Ernest T. Clark, formerly superintendent of what is now the mill of the Goodyear company in this town, died ten years ago. For some time past Mrs. Clark has made her home with her only child, Mrs. Dowe.

Danielson's commercial banks found their proffered services and facilities appreciated and improved Wednesday by Putnam business men who have been placed under a considerable handicap as to transacting banking affairs in their home city, because of the First National bank of Putnam, the only commercial banking institution in that town, being closed.

The action taken by the Danielson banks is based purely on a desire to be of service to the people of a neighboring town in time of stress, and distinctly without any view of entering into competition for Putnam's banking business. This, it is believed, is thoroughly understood in well informed circles. It is realized here that Putnam is entirely capable of restoring its banking facilities to normalcy, but such aid has been proferred as merely to tide that city over an unfortunate period and a very trying one.

Wednesday morning, the funeral of Hugh Caffery, who died suddenly at Dayville Monday, was held from his home in Attawaugan with services at St. Joseph's church in Dayville at 9 o'clock. Rev. Ignatius Kost, the pastor, was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Burial was in St. James' cemetery at Dayville. The bearers were Bryan Moran, John Gillian, Bernard Moran, Edward Kilgariff, Frank Pechie and Joseph Barber. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

The fact that bids, asked for by the state highway commissioner, are to be opened tomorrow (Friday) brings nearer the construction of another long section of the proposed concrete highway between Putnam and New Haven. The next section of this splendid highway to be built in this part of the state is to be in the town of Plainfield and will be in excess of 19,000 feet in length; in fact, very nearly four miles.

It is understood that work will be undertaken within a few weeks and will continue until the coming of real cold weather. It will replace a broken and battered stretch of macadam that has been repaired time and again through Plainfield street and will be an improvement that all who travel through this section of the county will appreciate.

Ruth McGovern, 15, and Alice Litke, 15, Goodyear misses who ventured out to see the world Tuesday, were apprehended in New London by state officers from the Groton barracks and held until Wednesday, when relatives went for them.

Howard A. Elliott, chief special deputy of the bureau of domestic animals, was in Danielson Wednesday on business connected with the administration of his department's affairs.

Wednesday scored as another August day on which the temperature ran up to 90 degrees in Danielson.

Danielson's Chamber of Commerce has designated August 23 as the date for the first Dollar day here this year and it will be made a great merchandising event.

For the first time in two weeks, some farmers who have been carting water for their cattle were relieved of the necessity, Wednesday, as the result of the heavy rain of the preceding day.

Another week will find the members of the Service battery en route to Camp Eustis, Va., for their annual tour of active duty.

Cashier F. E. Storer of the Windham County National bank, Mrs. Storer and their children have returned from a motor tour through northern New England.

Henry C. Williamson of New Bedford was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Wednesday.

Tomorrow (Thursday) is the day set for the annual field trip of the Windham County Farmers' association. The tourists will assemble at Brooklyn Center and will make their first stop at the De Forest Wells farm on the West Side. The trip will then take them into the town of Plainfield.

BIG AUCTION OF ANTIQUES HELD AT T. D. POND PLACE

Danielson, Aug. 13.—About everyone in Brooklyn village who could get there as well as people from scores of cities and towns throughout New England were at the auction sale of antiques at the T. D. Pond residence, in Brooklyn, Wednesday.

It has become a sort of tradition that if postponed auction is never quite as successful as one held on the day originally set, but that never could be true in this particular instance; at least so it would seem.

One's ears fairly wiggled and one's eyes fairly popped, being unfamiliar with such values, at the prices bid for old mirrors, old tables, bits of glassware and other things that have come down from other generations. A chair that to an uninformed person had an apparent value of 'steen cents seemed a prize to be competed for by bidders, who offered $10, $20 or $30, as the case might be. One's sense of ordinary values just crumpled up and went into the discard, when an old glass bottle commanded a score of dollars. But the bidders were well aware of what they were doing, know what things are worth in this advanced age and in every instance were glad of their bargains, no matter what they cost. Some of them remarked that they could resell at a good profit and in all probability will do so. J. Carl Witter and N. A. Witter, who arranged and conducted the auction, achieved one of the most notable successes credited to them in their long period before the public.

It was a remarkable sale in every sense of the word and gave Brooklyn a real holiday.

The real estate, sold during the afternoon, was struck off to Sherwood Potter, for $3650.

It is estimated that in the cotton mills in China 40 per cent of the workers are women, 40 per cent are children and only 20 per cent are men.

PUTNAM

Recently two East Putnam dogs were brought into the lime-light as killers. Each dog was credited with twelve woodchucks. A story coming from the outskirts of Putnam on the extreme west is one that distances the performance of the dogs from over east. E. E. Sanderson, who has a large farm in the Gary district, has a Scotch collie named Ted. This dog has caught and killed to date 44 wood chucks. Mr. Sanderson says he has kept an accurate score of the wood chucks Ted has killed it is 44 so far this season and he is still going strong.

State's Attorney and Mrs. Charles E. Searls returned Wednesday afternoon from a vacation at Oak Bluffs and Nantucket Island.

Mrs. Carrie B. Gascoigne, South Main street, has gone to Ohio where she will spend several weeks visiting in Cleveland and Toledo. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Frank Forster and son Herbert of Toledo, who have been on a visit east for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. James Barnes of Bridge street, left Wednesday for a trip through Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont and as far north as Canada.

At a meeting of the Putnam Women's Coolidge Club in Odd Fellows' hall a radio will be installed and those present may listen to Mr. Coolidge's speech of acceptance of the nomination of the republican convention as its candidate for president of the United States.

Harold S. Corbin, of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Corbin, of Fremont street, who has been in Putnam covering the story of the First National Bank for the New York Herald-Tribune on which he has been a reporter since the combination of the Tribune and Herald, ended his work for that paper, Wednesday. Mr. Corbin resigns to become editor of the Moose magazine. After spending Sunday in Pennsylvania, he will go to Chicago and Mooseheart to get in touch with his new duties returning later to New York. Mr. Corbin was born in Putnam and began his newspaper career on the Windham County Observer. It is a coincidence that he has left the newspaper game in the same city where he started, coming here on his assignment, Monday. He has also worked as reporter for the Worcester Telegram, has been a proof reader on the Saturday Evening Post and editor of a trade magazine.

A number of business men of Putnam established banking connections Wednesday with banks in Danielson.

Edwin L. Robinson, the new principal of the Putnam high school, and his family, have arrived in Putnam and are making their home in the Tatem house on Grove street. Mr. Robinson is ready to consult parents of pupils respecting courses for the coming school year. Mr. Robinson is a native of Lebanon.

Clarence W. Chase, a rural route carrier at the Putnam post office, has returned from a 15 days leave of absence.

A representative of the Windham County National Bank will be at the office of the Putnam Light and Power Co. daily between the hours of 1 and 4 p. m., to consult any of the business men or residents of Putnam and surrounding towns on any fiancial matters.—adv.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Newton Vaughn have returned from a vacation spent at Pine Inn, West Dennis, Mass.

Mrs. George T. Lamarche is at her home on Church street, following a visit with her parents in Springfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Richardson, Intervale street, are visiting their son, Percy Richardson, and family in Bridgeport.

INTERALLIED DEBTS.

Out of a maze of uncertainty that marked the assembling of the allied conferees in London to adjust World war reparation difficulties, there is emerging the distinct outline of a settlement. With that in mind it is logical that the allied delegates should have turned, as they have done, to an informal discussion of the feasibility of a later conference to consider allied war debts. Reparations first, then debts, that was the sequence of problems set out a few weeks ago by Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain, and others appear of the same mind.

If hopes are fulfilled in this respect, a long step will have been taken in establishing the basis for economic stability in Europe. The application of the Dawes reparation programme, with some modifications, will be a great advance. Without it, such is the interrelationship of reparations and debts in the mind of Europeans, there would be little or no hope of a quick adjustment of the debt problem. In this, the United States, with more than eleven billion due from the various nations and with no funding plan yet agreed upon for six billion or more, has a definite interest. Then there is the direct influence on foreign trade with the vitalizing effect that comes from an approach to greater stability. Needed loans for industrial purposes overseas doubtless would be negotiated more readily.

No one conversant with all the demoralization in European affairs will expect a complete recovery over night, but in the last few weeks the road to progress surely has been traveled. It already is having a psychological effect, and it will have much more than that if the remaining knots the London conferences are dealing with can be untied. The predictions of success appear so well founded that few dispute them. Prime Minister MacDonald, Premier Herriot of France and the American unofficial representatives are deserving of great credit for what thus far has been accomplished. A word of commendation also is due to Chancellor Marx and the other German delegates for the attitude they appear to have held.

SOMETHING NEW IN LOANS.

The Japanese loan, arranged in this country and amounting to $22,500,000, is remarkable because it provides that no matter of what nationality the bondholder is or what the status of affairs between this country and Japan, the bond must be redeemed at date of expiration. Obviously this upsets the established practice of nations at war. To pay a debt to an enemy in the field has been accounted treasonable from the beginning of borrowing between nations.

The procedure opens up interesting possibilities. With such a guarantee a rival nation could buy up all a prospective enemy's issues and, if the word of the bond could withstand the shock of war hatreds, could paralyze an enemy's finances. It would make the diplomats of a nation partners with the treasury since it would be necessary to arrange loan flotations so they would fall due in times of peace. Loans might be floated and bought up to prevent wars.

The reason for the extraordinary proviso in the Japanese bonds is merely to reassure the investing public that jingoes of this country and Japan may not jeopardize the collection of the loan. The Japanese are proud of the fact that they have always kept their word in international relations. Doubtless there is reason to expect they would not deviate from such a course even in the event of war with the United States. But if they should redeem these bonds during such an eventuality they would be the first who ever did. War wipes out obligations as well as lives, except, of course, in the case of the borrower being so unfortunate as to be the loser also.

POSTAL SERVICE ECONOMY.

In a letter to the press, President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard criticises the management of the postal service on the ground that economy is practiced from which the public suffers. He calls it an "inexpedient economy," and goes on to furnish arguments to show the peculiar relationship that the post office bears to the American public.

President Eliot makes the opening statement that "in the post office, economy works serious harm to the American people, harm both material and moral." While the viewpoint of the administrator of the postal service may not differ materially from that of President Eliot in his conception of the general purposes and function of the postal service, it may be said that he travels in circumscribed limits in accordance with the money that congress gives him. President Eliot takes issue in two ways as to this. He holds that what money is available is not used wisely and that the postal department is not given enough. Advancing from this he lays it down that the department has two distinct functions, one to promote productiveness in American industries and activity in foreign and domestic trade, the other to promote among all the people education, family life and thinking power." And the promotion of thinking power among the people is accomplished by "actively circulating among them not only letters but newspapers and the infinite variety of printed circulars, magazines and reading matter of all kinds."

Herein President Eliot touches upon the personal relation between the public and the department, certainly a great contribution towards the spread of information in this democracy. How then is this relation subserved by the governmental agency in whose hands its interests are placed? Upon this point President Eliot charges that it falls short of doing what it should, because delivery is slow, not frequent enough, and hindered by faulty lines of communication. There are not enough clerks and carriers, of whom the individual has too much to do. There should be deliveries on Saturday afternoons and Sundays. There are not enough railway clerks. These are some of the reasons that President Eliot gives for what he calls the inadequacy of the present mail service, through all of which the American farmer and business man are put at a disadvantage.

In a broad question like this there are many considerations to be taken into account, but summed up the criticism seems to center on the post office budget. These things exist "because of the inexpedient economy of the United States post office" and a neglect of the obvious advantage of promotion by merit.

MERGERS.

Mergers in industry appear to be on the increase. Recently there was announcement of the union of five large grain elevators in Chicago, and their purchase by the American Farm Bureau Federation. Dispatches also have told of a proposed combination of bituminous coal interests in West Virginia. A witness for the American Telephone and Telegraph company indicated to the interstate commerce commission that it was the aim to join with it many of the independent systems in the country. The increasing desire for fewer units is so widespread that public attention necessarily is attracted. The principal justification offered for mergers is that combination will cut down waste and reduce operating expense.

Unless a gain for consumers is reflected in better quality, or lower prices, or both, there is something wrong with the merging process. There is a great amount of popular sympathy for co-operative farm marketing now, and, to the extent that it will enable farmers to put in their pockets the legitimate profits that come from handling agricultural products, it will continue to merit approval. If, however, co-operative marketing assumed the aspect of a monopoly, and monopoly prices were fixed, public sympathy would change to public resentment and opposition. Fortunately farmers seem little disposed to such a course, even if they had the power. They are only insisting, as they have a right to insist, on a reasonable return. The warning that applies to co-operative marketing, applies equally to mergers in coal and other branches of industry. Trouble and loss may be avoided if federal and state agencies will take care in advance to see that anti-trust regulations are not violated.

EARLY SIGNS

"I had no idea that Prunella Carrot was such an interesting girl!" declared the simple young man who was very handsome and didn't know it. "And she has brains—you should have heard the good advice she gave me last night about my career. She thinks I am wasting myself on the business I am in and that I should go in for the law or diplomacy or some profession in which I would have a chance to develop the best that is in me—"

"Run!" advised the cynical and experienced roommate. "There is danger! Unless a girl has made up her mind that she is going to marry you your career doesn't mean any more to her than your Great-Uncle Jasper's brand of hair tonic. All that she requires of a casual acquaintance is sufficient income to pay the check at the cafe or the tea dance and the ability to make cabmen cringe, a clever what kind of collar to wear. You yourself don't care a whoop whether Flossy, whom you have not thought of marrying, is good to her folks and can cook and never slams her little brother. And even if you've thought of matrimony, you don't care much of a whoop, because men have such infinite trust in the belief that any girl is bound automatically to develop into a perfect housekeeper after the wedding, no matter how well manicured and lilywhite her hands have always been.

"There's many a man carrying around a sense of injury because the breakfast coffee is always poor and he can't find any buttons on his clothes and every time he touches anything in the house he has to wash the dust off his hands. Usually he's getting only simple justice and his punishment is fitting the crime.

"Didn't his mother praise that little Jerusha Hemlock, who ran her mother's house when she was 16 and whose cakes took prizes in the domestic science class? And didn't he after one look at bright, cheerful but somewhat prosaic Jerusha turn pale, shut his eyes and paw the air until he reached the clear ether illuminated by the sophisticated, sylphlike, string-bean, marceled type of hand painted girls, from whose number he enthusiastically chose the airy fairy who now forevermore makes his domestic life a marathon between bills, more bills and general inefficiency?

"It behooves you to consider carefully this Miss Prunella Carrot, who has thrown down the stake, so to say, and signified that she is serious if you are. A man is so apt to be flattered by a dose of intense interest on the part of a woman that it is a marvel to me more women don't use it for bait. Heretofore he has been kicking around the world with nobody paying much attention to him. And all of a sudden a charming girl begins burning at his approach and thither hies he is working too hard and looks pale and he must be sure and eat nourishing food to keep up his strength and inquiring wether they appreciate him down at the office.

"Does he like it? He eats it up! Here, he tells himself, is a real, genuine girl, smart, too, and full of sweetness and sympathy, and, gosh, how does it happen that somebody hasn't married her before this? Unless she yawns inopportunely he is hers any time she wants to take him and she wants to take him and she knows it.

"I is fortunate for you that I am here to bring all these facts to your attention and warn you to watch your step, because to an old campainer like me the course laid out by this Prunella friend of yours is just as clear as the atmosphere after a rainstorm in summer time. She had you hooked on the first throw."

"You are a goof and a fish," the simple young man told him indignantly. "Some girls may be like that, but you don't in the least understand Prunella Carrot! She is very different from these other girls and a remarkably lovely, sympathetic, unselfish person with merely a friendly interest—"

"Well, you're gone," the cynical young man cride hopelessly. "It was a good brand of chlorcrom that girl used on you and it's taken effect quickly! Go on and clear out, because I am going to have a real hard crying spell over your my poor lost friend!"—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Plea For Water Conservation.

Mr. Editor: At last meeting of court of common council the mayor gave notice that the citizens of Norwich would be called upon to take action on an increased supply of water for the needs of our city. It seems pertinent at this time to make some inquiries relating to present conditions as compared to ten years ago. Ten years ago our water shed consisted of 2 3-10 square miles.

According to the best authority a square mile of water shed will produce one million gallons of water per day under normal conditions. So that our dependable supply at that time was hardly 2,300,000 gallons per day.

Since that time our water shed has been increased to 4 6-10 square miles, providing a normal supply of 4,600,000 gallons per day. The public are informed now that our consumption is 4,700,000 gallons per day. 100,000 gallons more than our present shed will supply under normal condition. It seems that in ten years or about that time our consumption has more than doubled. It is not because of increased population as the percentage of increase of population is small compared with the increase in consumption of water. At the rate we are using water today, it amounts to 157 gallons per capita per day, which is nearly double the amount most cities use. The increase in revenue at the water office does not show any such percentage of increase in consumption of water.

If the consumption of water in our city was on a par with other cities we should be using about 2,000,000 gallons per day instead of 4,700,000 gallons a day (as claimed at the water office). We would have a surplus of 1,600,000 gallons per day.

Question: What becomes of the water?

Mr. Editor, this information has been obtained from reliable sources, which satisfies me that it is a correct statement of the facts.

"Lohengrin's Wedding March."

Norwich, Aug. 13, 1924.

Strange, but every little while I note that some correspondent of your paper refers to a wedding where they played "Lohengrin's" wedding march.

Can it be possible that in this so-called intelligent age there is anybody over seven who does not know that Lohengrin is the name of a grand opera written by Richard Wagner? Of course the proper expression is "the wedding march from Lohengrin," or, if one would be more precise, "The Bridal Chorus, from the opera of Lohengrin." Please tell the world that there is no gentleman named Lohengrin who ever wrote a wedding march! It is to laugh!

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Napoleon Antoine Belcourt, who, according to rumor, may become the first Canadian minister to the United States, is a French-Canadian lawyer with a long and creditable record in Dominion public life. A native of Toronto, he was educated chiefly at Laval University, and in 1881 was called to the Quebec bar. After a brief career in local politics he was elected to the Dominion house of commons for Ottawa in 1896. He was twice re-elected and for two years filled the speaker's chair. In 1905 he was called to the privy council and two years later was appointed to the senate. Senator Belcourt was one of the signers of the address from the liberal party to the pope, in 1896, which resulted in the appointment of a papal delegate to Canada. He also moved a resolution in the house of commons inviting the late King Edward and Queen Alexandra to visit Canada. Recently he has been in London as the Canadian representative at the inter-allied conference.

Fuller Couldn't Find the Right Job.

After being discharged from three jobs in succession Alfred C. Fuller decided that he should no longer put off his desire to work for himself.

Born on a farm near Grand Pre, Nova Scotia, he worked in the fields and attended the country school. At 17 he decided he would follow his five brothers to the "big city" of Boston but had to work for a year on a neighbor's farm to earn enough to save carfare.

In Boston he first was a conductor on a street car. After 18 months service he ran a car across a sidewalk, and was fired. Next gardener and hostler for a wealthy woman, he was discharged within a month forgetting to curry the horse. Then a teamster on an express wagon, he was out of the job in quick time.

The youth's brother had started a brush business but had sold out because of ill health. Alfred got a position with the purchaser, selling from house to house but was not a brilliant salesman and his earnings averaged only $20 a week. He had wanted to go into business for years. He saved and within a year had $375, then prepared to start.

Establishing a "factory" in his married sister's home in Somerville, he peddled brushes in the morning and made them in the afternoon and evening, working 16 hours a day. Four months later he moved his shop to a shed in Hartford, Conn. Soon he was making $35 a week. He hired a man and devoted all his time to selling.

Deciding to have his brushes sold by agents, he tried to secure men, but the enrollment was slow. He advertised in a big way, and applications poured in. Business grew, he organized the Fuller Brush company, the little factory was steadily enlarged and branches were established.

Today the concern is one of the largest brush manufacturies in the world, with 150 branches and nearly 2,700 salesmen, and Fuller, at 38, is its president.

A Little Talk on Thrift

Which Kind of Spots Do You Prefer?

In reprimanding children, one should be very careful not to antagonize them, otherwise the harm done may be greater than the offense which called forth the reprimand.

Warren, in his eagerness to help Mother — for he really was a very warm-hearted little boy—had spilled paint on the floor of the new porch of their cabin in the woods. He had been commanded — yes, that is the right word — to keep Teddy, the dog, off the porch till the paint could dry.

Now it happened, just after this, that some friends called to take Warren, his little sister and their mother on a picnic. Mother, however, could not go, as she was expecting company. So the children went without her.

Warren was fascinated with the little paper forks with which they ate their lunch as he had never seen any before. He begged for one to take home to mother. He even saved his piece of cake for her. Seeing this, his hostess gave him a piece of each kind of cake, and one of each variety of sandwich. These he wrapped in paper napkins.

When the party stopped once more at the cabin, Warren rushed in, and dumping the bundles in his mother's lap, he cried, "See, Mother, what I brought you!"

In his great joy at giving Mother a present, he did not notice that he had left the screen door ajar, and that Teddy, eager to see his little master, had slipped in.

His mother was sitting right by the spot of paint, and so Teddy jumped into it and tracked it all over the porch. She could have said: "Yes, that's lovely, dear, but now let's get Teddy out, for just see what he's doing," and later, very soon perhaps, could have said something to remind Warren that he was not to let Teddy on the porch.

Instead, what

She took not the least notice of the lovely little present, but scolded Warren vociferously for letting Teddy in. In fact, she shouted, "Take that dog out of here, just as fast as you can!"

Warren paused to say reproachfully, "Gee! Mother! I thought I was bringing you something nice, and see how treat me."

Then he put the dog out. He also grabbed the bundles he had put in his mother's lap and emptied the pieces of cake, the sandwiches and even the little paper fork on the ground in front of Teddy. As he did so, his face was not a pretty thing to see, so distorted it was with resentment and rage.

Again his mother spoke, still angrily, "Warren Farnsworth, did you give all those nice things to that dog?"

Warren went and huddled himself over on a log, his elbows on his knees, and sobbed, not with repentance but with hurt feelings and anger.

The spots on the porch could soon be cleaned up, but what of the spots caused by the fires of resentment

Stories That Recall Others

He Bit

A man in a mental hospital sat dangling a stick with a piece of string attached over a flower bed. A visitor approached, and, wishing to be affable, remarked:

"How many have you caught?"

"You're the ninth," was the reply.

Another Matter

"The trouble with you is the same as with another patient of mine," said the doctor. "He worried and got nervous dyspepsia. He was worrying himself to death about his tailor's bill. Now he is cured."

"But how did you cure him?" asked the patient.

"I told him to stop worrying and he has," replied the doctor.

"I know," was the doleful answer: "I know he has. But I am his tailor."

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

On the Albatross.

"So our old friend, the black, rusty, dusty crow doesn't wish to wear a white coat," said the Ice King, who, you remember, in the last story was very angry with the little rabbit.

"I have traveled far and wide, Your Icy Highness. Through Mother Goose Country and over the ocean to Neptune's Island. I have met many kings and great men, but in all my travels, until I reached this cold land, I have never met so disagreeable a person as you."

My goodness gracious me! As I write this down I'm almost afraid to think what may happen to Little Jack Rabbit. If it were only the Ice Man I could tell you right away what would happen. But, would you believe it? The Ice King suddenly turned his scowl into a smile and put out his hand.

"I admire bravery. I love my brother, King North Wind, because he never gets soft and silly like my younger brother, King South Wind. And I respect you, Little Jack Rabbit, for the way you stand up for your friends. Here is my hand, and I promise you that the crows shall wear their old black coats forever and ever."

During this long speech the Ice King's breath made the palace so cold that it was necessary to put on 20 more pounds of steam in the boiler and the engineer threatened to leave if it happened again, so you see there are labor troubles even up in the Snowflake Country.

Well, after that, Little Jack Rabbit said he must be going, so the Ice King called for a snow white Albatross to carry him back to the South where the roses were in bloom.

"Do you know how to ride a feathered steed?" asked his Icicle Highness kindly.

"I have ridden with Mother Goose upon her wonderful Gander and on a Circus Horse," replied Little Jack Rabbit. "Have no fear for my safety. I am as much at home upon a feather saddle as a leather one," and, jumping Big White Bird, flying toward the sea.

Pretty soon they passed a high-masted ship, and all the sailors waved their caps, but the Albatross never stopped but flew on and on. After a while they saw Neptune in his water car drawn by the Great Sea Horses with their foaming tails. Although Neptune blew his horn three times, the Albatross never stopped.

By and by a great storm came up and the sea grew mountains high, so the Albatross was forced to fly above the clouds, where it was still and quiet. And after a while Little Jack Rabbit fell asleep and when he woke he found himself at the foot of a tall green tree, with a big white feather in his paw. But the Albatross had flown to the Ice King's Palace.

WOMAN AILING FOR A YEAR
Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Happy Results

Newcastle, Pa.—"I was all run-down and everybody thought I was going into a decline. I had been ailing for a year with pains in my right side so that I could hardly stand on my feet. When I walked I felt as if something was falling. I was not able to do any work and had a nurse most of the time. She spoke to me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I gave it a fair trial. Some women think one bottle should cure them, but I did not stop at that. I took more and got better and am able ever since to do my own housework. There was a time, when I would complain of not feeling well, that my husband would say, 'Go to the doctor.' But now he will tell me to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's, and it has always helped me. I have had druggists tell me that they had something better, but they don't tell me that now, for I take no other. I have been taking the Vegetable Compound now for five years. Any woman who cares to call or write, I will be glad to tell her how it helped me."—Mrs. Mabel List Sherrard, 515 Newell Ave., Newcastle, Pa.

SEDAN OVERTURNS WHEN DRIVER LOST CONTROL

The Oakland sedan, owned by the Nejime brothers of this city and driven by Paul Nejime, was completely wrecked about 5.15 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, when it overturned on the Occum road near the lower switch and Mr. Nejime and his companion, J. A. Barril of Baltic were injured.

It was claimed that the accident occurred when Mr. Nejime turned out to avoid hitting a car approaching from the opposite direction, the wheels of the Oakland slipping into the wet car tracks causing it to skid. When the brakes were applied Mr. Nejime lost control of the car, which skidded into the switch box of the Connecticut company at the switch and overturned, smashing the car.

Barril escaped from the car by crawling from the rear window and was picked up by a passing autoist and taken to Baltic where his injuries were treated. He suffered a dislocated shoulder, deep cuts on the forehead, a sprained back and several other injuries.

Mr. Nejime was taken to the Backus hospital where a deep cut across his face was closed, six stitches being taken. He also suffered bad bruises. Later in the evening he was taken to his home.

FINED $25 AND COSTS FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

Will Geer of New London appeared before Justice of the Peace William Smiddy, at the Montville town hall, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, charged with reckless driving. He was fined $25 and costs.

Geer was arrested following an accident on the Palmertown-Oakdale highway when the truck he was driving, crashed into a touring car driven by Henry Hamilton of Palmertown, practically demolishing the touring car, Mr. Hamilton being painfully injured.

According to the testimony, Mr. Geer was headed towards Palmertown after delivering a load of ashes with his truck and lost control of his machine, allowing it to veer sharply to the left and strike the Hamilton machine almost head-on.

Mr. Hamilton received a cut above the forehead that ran back about three inches, cutting in to the skull, a cut on the hand and other bruises. His brother, who was riding with him, suffered minor bruises. Geer escaped with a deep wound in his leg, abrasions at the right side of the head and a cut on the lower lip. Dr. John J. Donohue was called and the injured men were taken to his office at Montville where their injuries were treated.

State Policeman Fred Caron was notified of the accident and investigated, Geer's appearance at the town hall following about an hour after the accident.

RECOMMENDS OFFER FOR CITY'S GAS AND ELECTRIC PLANT BE REJECTED

The board of gas and electric commissioners have recommended that the offer made to the city by the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., for the purchase of the municipal gas and electric plant be rejected. The board's recommendation is contained in their report to the special committee of the court of common council appointed some time ago to take under consideration the proposals made by the Eastern Connecticut Power Company, to buy the plant from the city. The members of the council's special committee are Mayor Milo R. Waters, Alderman Henry Gebrath, Alderman Edward Crooks, Councilman William H. Aldrich and Councilman Alfred G. Lillibridge.

In regard to the G. and E. offer the following letters have been exchanged by Mayor Milo R. Waters and the board of gas and electrical commissioners:

Norwich, Conn.
July 17, 1924.

Board of Gas and Electrical Commissioners,
City of Norwich.

Gentlemen:

I am directed by the Special Committee of the Council in regard to the sale of the city electric plant to or the purchase of electricity from the Eastern Connecticut Power Company to submit to the Board the following question:

Knowing that propositions in regard to the sale to the city have been made to the Board and have been discussed by it at various times during the past two years and that they have thoroughly investigated the matter, the committee requests that they will state to them officially their opinion as to the advisability of making such a contract and the reasons therefor.

I am directed to request that a meeting of the Board be called at an early date to act on this matter.

Respectfully
Signed
MILO R. WATERS
Chairman of Committee

Hon. Milo R. Waters
Mayor of the City of Norwich,
Norwich, Connecticut,

Dear Mr. Mayor:

In behalf of the Board of Gas & Electrical Commissioners, I am handing you herewith a reply to your letter of July 17th in relation to the two proposals of the Eastern Connecticut Power Company, and referred to therein.

The commissioners have made a most careful study of the two proposals submitted, and the accompanying report is the result.

If additional information is required, I can assure you that the commissioners will be only too glad to furnish the same to you if same is in their power to do so.

Very respectfully
JAMES L. CASE
President of the Board

The G. and E. board in a statement to the special committee recommends the rejection of the proposal of the Eastern Connecticut Power company to purchase the plant and calls attention to the fact that for the last fiscal year of the department, ending April 30, 1924, a loss would have been incurred if energy had been purchased of the power company under the terms of its proposal. The statement follows in part:

To His Honor, Honorable Milo R. Waters, Chairman, and the Members of the Special Committee of the Court of Common Council.

Gentlemen:

The Board of Gas and Electrical Commissioners beg to respectfully submit the following statement in reply to your communication of July 17th, in relation to two proposals submitted to your Committee by the Eastern Connecticut Power Company.

a.—That the offer of the Eastern Connecticut Power Company, to purchase the City's Gas and Electric plant be rejected, for the reason that the price named, is, in the opinion of the Commissioners, inadequate and much less than the property would bring if offered for sale in an open market.

b.—In relation to the proposal of the said Eastern Connecticut Power Company to furnish all electric power required by the department to meet the city's need, other than that now being furnished by the Uncas Power Co. we respectfully submit for your consideration, a report prepared for us upon the subject by General Manager Charles W. Taggart, and which report we have accepted and hereby make a part of our reply to your committee. We would direct your attention to the fact that this report shows that, for the last fiscal year of the Department, ending April 30, 1924, a loss would have been incurred if energy had been purchased of the Eastern Connecticut Power company under the terms of their proposal.

The report also calls particular attention to the several conditions in the proposed contract which, if accepted, would, in our judgment, operate to the detriment of the city.

This we consider particularly true, in the matter of the application of the "demand charge" proposed.

At the present time the department sells its energy to its customers upon a flat rate basis, varying according to the character and quantity sold to the consumer. If the same method of sale is to be continued, the city would be purchasing power from the Eastern Connecticut Power Company on a "demand and energy charge" basis and this under the present load conditions might be a questionable policy and would require much careful study and consideration.

If the city should change its method of selling to a "demand charge" basis similar to that, under which it would purchase its energy, the majority of its power users would be penalized by the change.

The city now holds a contract for approximately nine years with the Uncas Power company and pays for the energy delivered to it upon a "flat K. W. H. basis" of .01 per K. W. H. delivered at the city station in Norwich on the 2300 volt side of the transformers.

The Uncas Power company is now owned and controlled by the Eastern Connecticut Power company and the operation of the Uncas plant and the use of the stream flow of the river might so be regulated as to materially increase the "demand charge" which the city would be called upon to pay under the Eastern Connecticut Power company proposal.

Under the proposed contract the rates named therein are not for the entire proposed ten-year period, but are subject to revision, and, if necessary by arbitration, at the end of the first three years and thereafter every two years.

The contract further provides that the Eastern Connecticut Power company, while it agrees to exercise reasonable care and diligence to prevent interruption to service, "shall not be liable to the city for loss, cost or damages resulting directly or indirectly from interruptions," and it does not guarantee uninterrupted service. This fact is mentioned because interruptions to service are more liable to occur when energy is furnished over transmission lines, than when produced in a local power station.

We would respectfully suggest that it is both necessary and essential that your committee should carefully study the terms of the proposed contract of the Eastern Connecticut Power company, a copy of which is enclosed herewith, inasmuch as Mr. Taggart's report discusses in detail the several paragraphs into which the proposed contract is divided.

If there is additional information we can furnish you in connection with the subject, please be assured that we shall be very glad to secure the same if we can possibly do so.

Respectfully submitted,
JAMES L. CASE,
CLARENCE E. CARPENTER,
FRANK P. WELCH,
JEREMIAH A. DESMOND,
Commissioners.

The fifth commissioner was absent from the city and could not attend the meeting at which the above report was accepted and the memorandum dictated.

General Manager Taggart's Report.

July 31st, 1924.

The Commissioners, Gas & Electrical Department, Norwich, Connecticut.

Dear Sirs: With a view of determining the value to the city of Norwich of the rates proposed by the Eastern Connecticut Power company to sell power, I have prepared a comparison for the last fiscal year of the department, namely ending April 30th, 1924, of the actual costs of operating the city's plant and what the cost would have been if energy had been purchased from the Eastern Connecticut Power company in accordance with the rate submitted by them in their proposed contract.

For the twelve months ending April 30th, 1924. Actual cost of generation on energy by city:

K. W. H. generated, 6,547,745 K. W. H.
Cost of production including maintenance as per the department's books	$162,660
Book value as of April 30th, 1924, of city's electric power plant equipment, not including buildings or real estate, $426,807. Depreciation, 5 per cent. of $426,807	21,340
Total	$184,000
Cost of purchase of same energy by city:
Energy charge: 6,547,745 K. W. H. @ 1.166c	$76,347
Demand charge: Details given on one of the following sheets	52,298
Charges on capital invested in Norwich by Eastern Connecticut Power company, 11 per cent. on an estimated investment of $50,000	5,500
Energy losses in transformers, 331,089 K. W. H. @ 1.166c	3,860
Assume transformers losses increase. Demand charge by .1 1-3	800
Amount city would have paid to Eastern Connecticut Power company	$139,805
Payment to Eastern Connecticut Power company as above	$139,805
Cost of switchboard and miscellaneous labor	7,000
Additional cost of steam for gas plant if electric plant were shut down	8,000
Amortization of electrical plant in 10 years, book value of electrical power plant equipment, April 30th, 1924, not including building and real estate, $426,807. 10 Per cent. of $426,807	42,681
Total expense to city if energy had been purchased	$197,486
Comparison of cost of city's operating its own power station with the purchase of energy from Eastern Connecticut Power company for the 12 months ending April 30th, 1924:
Cost if energy had been purchased	$197,486
Actual cost of operating city's power station	184,000
Additional cost to city if power had been purchased	$13,486

The additional cost of $13,486 to the city for the purchase of energy would unquestionably have been increased under actual operating conditions.

The proposed contract is for a term of 10 years and would necessitate that all energy sold and used by the city be purchased from the Eastern Connecticut Power company with the exception of the energy the city is under contract to purchase from the Uncas Power company. If this proposed contract were accepted by the city, it would necessitate the complete shutting down of the city's electric power station, resulting in virtually abandoning that station, for apparatus of the character installed therein, if idle for a period of 10 years, would be practically useless for commercial operation at the end of that time.

AUTO CASES HEARD IN THE CITY COURT

In the city court Wednesday morning the usual number of intoxication cases were disposed of by Judge Arthur F. Libby and automobile cases were heard.

Andrew Fitzgerald, charged with intoxication and being a common drunkard, was sentenced to the State Farm for Inebriates for a period of six months and was fined $5 and costs, suspended for a period of six months.

A Jewett City man paid $5 and costs, totalling $12.50 for being intoxicated in Norwich.

Two cases of violations of parking laws of the city were heard. Robert McAllister paid $3 for parking inside the white lines for crosswalks. Rudolph Henschel entered a plea of not guilty to a similar charge. Mr. Henschel was freed of the charge when he stated that he had not parked inside the lines, but that some automobile owner who evidently wanted to get in behind his car had relied his machine ahead a few feet, causing it to rest within the forbidden space. Judge Libby nolled the charge against Mr. Henschel following his testimony.

ITALIAN BAND GIVES SPLENDID PUBLIC CONCERT

The Italian-American Band, Inc., gave a splendid concert Wednesday evening on Union square under the auspices of the amusement committee of the court of common council. The large sized audience was more than pleased with the numbers played by the band under the leadership of Prof Pasquale Puca. This was the first number in a series of three concerts to be given by the band at Union square.

ADDRESSED ROTARY CLUB ON THE 75c DOLLAR

The fifty Rotarians that attended the weekly luncheon Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel heard a most interesting talk on "The 75-cent Dollar in Industry," given by S. F. Fannon of the Sherman Service, Inc., production engineers of New York city. Mr. Fannon has made a thorough study of economic conditions in the various industries in the country; getting the personal views of executives and employes alike; studying the viewpoint of each, and learning through personal contact what each thinks of the other. Through this personal study Mr. Fannon has found the reason of so many labor difficulties and the reason why the manufacturer receives only 75 cents for his dollar which he has spent.

Mr. Fannon, in speaking on the subject of "The 75 Cent Dollar in Industry," referred to the great business fallacy of giving 95 per cent. attention to machinery and 5 per cent. attention to employees, notwithstanding the fact that man-power is vitally essential to machine-power, and to the profitable operation of any industry. The viewpoint of the employee is the most neglected asset in industry, and the executive attitude in this respect as reflected in smaller profits than could be otherwise obtained.

The need for full cooperation of man-power applies universally and regardless of the type of plant or product. Between a negative and a cooperative attitude of mind on the part of the employees there is a difference in productive value of as high as 25 per cent. of the annual payroll. This 25 per cent. loss is a serious factor in the prosperity and well-being of the community, for the reason that it is a loss which effects everybody in the community, including business houses, retailers, manufacturers, employees and naturally all the banks. For the prosperity of our banks is dependent on, and is indeed a direct reflection of the prosperity and stability of the community.

Most executives fail to realize that the payroll investment is fundamentally more important than investment in plant and equipment.

In the average business cash invested in payroll will exceed cash invested in plant and equipment within two or three years, and even in the largest enterprises payroll investment will exceed plant investment within five years.

Every year there are large and preventable losses on payroll investment which eat a big hole in net earnings. Far-sighted executives today admit that they suffer on payroll investment a serious loss which they are unable to prevent even in modern and well managed plants, and they are glad to utilize the aid of the engineering specialist to salvage their payroll loss. Some employers think that wages control productive effort, but Mr. Fannon says that Sherman Service, by years of experience, have found that the factor which controls productive effort of every working man is motive. In industry, the motives of the workmen exert a tremendous influence for or against productive effort and are thus the root of vast losses on payroll investment.

Mr. Fannon says that the next great advance in business must come from salvaging the enormous losses now arising from the 75 cent dollar in business.

At the conclusion of his talk Mr. Fannon was given a very hearty vote of appreciation by the members of the club.

President Hugh B. Campbell presided at the meeting and William G. Park was the song leader. There was a noticeable improvement in the singing under Bill's energetic leadership. Several matters of club interest were discussed and several communications relative to the Fall Conclave at Eastern Point were read. William G. Park, captain and manager of the local golf team, reported that on next Wednesday the team would engage the Hartford Rotary club team at the Norwich Golf club course. Announcement was also made of a ball game to be played at Eastern Point between Norwich and New London teams during the Fall Conclave.

The meeting adjourned with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

NEIL O'BRIEN'S MINSTRELS DELIGHT LARGE AUDIENCE

Neil O'Brien's minstrels, which opened its 13th annual season this week, delighted a capacity audience Wednesday evening at the Palace theatre, and those who availed themselves of the opportunity witnessed a first class show put on in old-time form. The minstrel this year is better than ever, because of the fine settings, costumes, singers, dancers, comedians and monologue men of the first rank. Neil O'Brien of course is the same toddling, waddling and funny minstrel man who doesn't pretend to be the whole show himself, but relies upon his excellent support to amuse his patrons.

In the first part with its ballads and songs of sentiment are such singers as Scotti McCoy, James Berardi, John Hinton, Thomas Bullock, Walter Anderson, Charles R. Wright, Herman Williams, Sherman Carr and George Bracken. All are fine singers and it would be a task to select the favorite. Many appreciated the yodeling of Scotti McCoy, who was called to the front three or four times. Most of the singers had to respond three times.

The jokes of the end men were up to the minute and thoroughly enjoyed. Neil O'Brien started another farewell appearance in "Hot Dog," and it was a scream, O'Brien taking the part of Mistah Scissors. Tex Hendricks played the part of Gertie Gedyou splendidly.

Gene Pearson, the male Galt Curci, was exceptionally good. His impersonation was so faultless that many believed he was a girl.

Jazzola Espanola, the third olio act, brought out Tex Hendrix as a Spanish dancer, who with "Sugarfoot" Gaffney presented "The Madrid Jazzola" in an amusing and entertaining way. Then followed Billy Beard (the party from the south) in a monologue that was surley one of the gems of the show. The style show was another part with amusing spots and it was interesting to see how well men took the part of women in various gowns.

Scotti and Maxine McCoy, London's famous yodlers, were given an exceptional hand. The last number on the program, "Pressing Business," was a "spooky" affair, but kept the audience in roars fo laughter.

Altogether it was a cooking good show and those theatregoers who did not attend missed one of the gems of the season. It was varied just enough so that even the most critical would have passed an evening of entertainment second to none.

FIRE WARDENS HOLD OUTING AT HAPPYLAND

Fire wardens of New London and Windham counties with their wives and families enjoyed a real day of pleasure, Wednesday, at Happyland, the outing of the fire wardens being arranged by C. H. Lathrop of North Franklin, fire warden patrol for Eastern Connecticut. The outing was the first of its kind ever held by fire wardens of eastern Connecticut and the success will likely lead to many other future gatherings and good times.

As guests of honor for the day were Austin F. Hawes, state forest fire warden and Chief Howard L. Stanton of the Norwich fire department. Mr. Hawes spoke briefly, giving an account of the work of the forestry commission in the state.

The principal address of the day was delivered by Chief Stanton. In his talk to the fire wardens he stated that forest fire fighting was out of his line, but that he would give his own personal ideas as to causes of forest fires.

In the first place, said Chief Stanton, most forest fires are started because of carelessness of an individual, the causes being, first, from allowing refuse, etc., to collect along the sides of the roadway which leads to the edge of the forest, from allowing underbrush to remain on the ground after it had been cut away; secondly, all such fires, as are city fires, generally get their start when someone carelessly throws away a cigarette, lighted match or some other article liable to cause fire. The way to combat this evil, is to educate the public to the danger and waste resulting from these bits of carelessness preferably by use of publicity.

In cities where there are fire departments many of the existing fire hazards can be remedied through such publicity. In concluding, Chief Stanton informed his audience that he was not qualified to speak on forest fire fighting, but would prefer to listen. He was warmly applauded and given a rising vote of thanks for his talk.

At noon time a delicious chowder was served beneath the trees in Happyland park after which fire fighting apparatus was shown and demonstrated. The feature event was the tree felling contest, which was entered into by a number of the wardens. Skill was displayed and the feature was enjoyed by contestants and watchers alike.

BATTERY B HANDS EAST ENDS ONLY DEFEAT OF THE TWILIGHT SEASON

Wednesday evening in a thrilling 6-inning game the Battery defeated the league champions by the score of 2 to 1. Both Gaudette and Harry Mills pitched good ball for their respective teams, but Bourne's misplays in the final inning proved the latter's undoing. The game was replete with thrills and fast plays by each team. Raille was the shining light for the Battery, making two sensational catches besides gathering two hits out of three times up, one of which was a double. For the East Ends, the battery work of Mills and Belair was excellent, while Ellsworth performed well at short, making one sensational catch in short left.

The East Ends scored their first run in the initial inning after two were out when Mills walked, stole second and scored on Bullet Pelace's two-bagger to center. The league champions scored again in the third when Joe Belair singled and stole second. Riley then walked and Mills scored Belair with a double to deep left.

In the same inning the Battery scored on Gauthier's double and Reagan's single.

Going into the last half of the final inning, the East Ends were leading 2 to 1. Chip Dugas reached first when Wals fumbled the ball and Ellsworth threw wild to first in an attempt to catch the runner, Dugas going to second. Mills then hit A. Dugas Ellsworth then ran out to short left field to make a spectacular catch of Donals' looping fly, but all chances for a double play were spoiled when Bourne failed to cover second quick enough. Raille who had hit safely the first two times up proved an easy victim for Mills' curves. Chip Dugas then scored the tying run when Bourne missed Robertson's high bounder, A. Dugas taking third on the play. L. Dugas then drove in the winning run when he singled to left field, close to the foul line.

It was the East Ends first defeat in the Twilight league, they previously having won 8 straight games, winning the pennant. Mills pitched great ball and should have been returned a victor, he having the best of Gaudette throughout the entire game. Score:

MARRIED MEN-SINGLE MEN SERIES STARTS FRIDAY NIGHT

Like the kiddies anxiously wait for Santa Claus on Christmas day, so are the people of the East Side waiting for the grand opening of the Married Men-Single Men series on Friday night. After much arguing and wrangling during the past few days, last night Louis Cook was finally elected manager of the Married Men and the rival managers got together and finally arranged for the series to start this week Friday night at 6:15.

Although last years series was really only for fun, when the two teams meet this year it should prove to be a desperate struggle as rivalr yis running high over the bridge and in many cases the best of friends have stopped speaking and only a miracle will prevent bloodshed before the series is over.

Last night the Married Men were in high spirits and predicted a clean sweep of the series. Manager Cook is basing all his hopes on his strong pitching staff which is made up of Jumbo James former Cuban Giant star and hero of last year's series, Dutch Leonard another star of the last series, and last but not least "Blah Blah" Coleman, a new addition to the Benedicts, who only recently returned from the Asiatics where he had a big season in the Hong Kong league, and according to his stories should prove a wonder. Coleman has been having a work-out nearly every night for the past few weeks and only Sunday took a trip to the big town to watch the big leaguers perform in hopes of picking up a few pointers to use against the Single Men during the series. Undoubtedly Mgr. Cook will start Coleman Friday night.

When interviewed Mgr. Coleman refused to make a statement except that the news that Coleman would face his stam in the opener sounded good to him, as he claims that Coleman might be able to baffle the Chinese but will prove easy meat for his team who play American style.

The Single men will be slightly handicapped this season as Berger Goldberg, last year's hero is now sojourning in the Herring league at Fishers Island and will be unable to be present at the opening game but shall be recalled in time for the remaining games. Colonel Fowler, another shining light of last year's games will also be amongst the missing as he is occupied with important duties, but shall also be on hand in time to participate in the later games. Although the losses of these two men may prove disastrous to the Single Men Mgr. Podace claimes that he has signed up men equally as well to take their places.

ATHLETICS PULL TIGERS OUT OF FIRST PLACE

Philadelphia, August 13. — Detroit won the first game of today's double header with Philadelphia 8 to 4 but dropped the second after getting off to a six run lead. "Lil" Stoner, who started on the mound for the Tigers in the second contest held the Athletics runless for the first five innings. Wells relieved Stoner, after six runs had crossed the plate in the sixth. Scores:

Brassco Split With Profs

Waterbury, August 13.—Waterbury and New Haven divided the "Jiggs Donahue Day" double header here today, Waterbury winning the first game 1 to 0 and New Haven the second 6 to 2. Donahue was presented with a purse of money by Ed. Maloney, veteran newspaperman. The first game was a pitchers' battle between Rush of the Brassccs and Hyman of the Profs; the latter's wildness causing him to lose the decision. Quick Relief for RHEUMATICS

Local Druggists Sell Rheuma On Money-Back Plan

If you suffer from torturing rheumatic pains, swollen, twisted joints, and suffer intensely because your system is full of uric acid, that dangerous poison that makes thousands helpless and kills thousands years before their time, then you need Rheuma, and need it now.

Start taking it today. Rheuma acts at once on kidneys, liver, stomach and blood, and you can sincerely exclaim: "Good riddance to bad rubbish."

Many people, the most skeptical of skeptics right in this city and in the country hereabouts, bless the day when Lee & Osgood Co. and other good druggists offered Rheuma to the afflicted at a small price and guaranteed money refunded if not satisfied. If you have rheumatism get a bottle Mon.—44 years ago today.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Captain, New York Giants

Eighth inning. Score 3 to 0 in favor of team at bat. Bases are full and one man is out.

Where should the team in the field play?

It all depends upon the hitter, if he is a real fast runner and not a hard hitter; it would be good baseball for the infield to play in to make a play at the plate. But if he is a slow runner, it would be better to play back and try for a double. In my own opinion, most infielders should play back in such a situation no matter who the hitter is and take a chance on making the double.

New London, Aug. 13.—The Submarine Base had a close call from defeat here this afternoon at the hands of the Newport Training Station in the second game of the series between these two teams. TWO PLAY GROUND TRACK MEETS HELD ON WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

Wednesday afternoon a small band of youthful West Side athletes was observed advancing in the direction of the Lake street stronghold. Despite information despatched to the Lake street headquarters that an invading horde was pressing the Lake street athletic army to rout, the besieged forces were incapable of repelling the persistent assaults of the enemy, and, after battling courageously for three hours, were finally forced to admit defeat in a track and field meet by the score of 91 1-2 to 56 1-2.

For Elizabeth street the names of Firklestein brothers, Burke and Kenfield figured prominently in the point winners' column of the losers. The girls of both teams displayed a fine spirit in striving to add to the total of their teams.

The meet was unusual in a way, in that it was not marred by disputs, protests, or anything that might tend to engender ill feeling between the contestants. The invaders were well received at Lake street and cannot help but admire the spirit displayed by children and instructors alike. Such conduct towards visiting opponents is a strong factor producing a real sportsmanlike spirit between the various local playgrounds.

The result of the meet winners in order:—

MARKET WAS BULLISH

New York, Aug. 13—Profit-taking sales continued to impede the upward movement of stock prices in today's market, which developed considerable irregularity. Bullish demonstrations were successfully conducted in a number of the rails, coppers, public utilities, and industrial specialties, but heaviness was apparent in most of the steel and equipment shares.

Publication of the weekly steel trade reviews showing further improvement in sales and operations apparently had little market effect. Crucible Steel broke 4 points to 49 1-4 and Republic, Gulf States and Otis Steel preferred yielded one to two points.

U. S. Steel closed 1-4 lower at 106 1-2. Weakness or crucible was attributed to unfavorable dividend rumors.

Reports that large consumers were gain in the market for copper imparted fresh strength to those shares, Kennecott and Chile advancing fractionally to new high prices for the year, while Cerro de Pasco closed a point higher at 47 1-2. Buying of these issues also was stimulated by the announcement that foreign governments were heavy purchasers of silver for coinage purposes.

Except for some good buying in New York Central, Nickel Plate and "Big Four" all of which bettered their previous peak prices, chief speculative interest in the railroad group was confined to the low priced carriers, Texas and Pacific, Frisco preferred and Missouri Pacific preferred being among the issues to establish new 1924 highs. Chesapeake and Ohio closed more than a point higher despite reports that minority stockholders were dissatisfied with the proposed terms of the Van Sweringen merger. Sharp recessions took place, however, in Canadian Pacific, Delaware and Hudson, Lackawanna and Jersey Central. Nickel Plate also cancelled its early gain and closed about 1 1-2 points lower.

National Biscuit was heavily bought just before the close, showing a net gain of nearly 6 points at 69 1-2. The Pan American issues touched new highs on the movement and then reacted on realizing.

Leather issues gave a good demonstration of group strength. American Hide and Leather common and preferred and Central Leather preferred closing 1 to 2 points higher. Further accumulation of railway steel spring was associated with reports of an impending split up of the stock.

Call money ruled unchanged at two per cent. The time money and commercial paper markets were quiet with rates unchanged.

Foreign exchanges fluctuated irregularly within narrow limits. Demand sterling ruled around $4.54 1-4 and French francs were fairly active around 5.63 cents.

BOND MARKET

New York, Aug. 13—Bond prices today resumed their upward trend under the leadership of the railroad liens which were stimulated by the quick sale of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad's $75,000,000 issue of first mortgage obligations.

The offering was heavily over-subscribed, cash subscriptions aggregated $150,000,000 with approximately one half the holders of the $75,000,000 prior lien 3 1-2s to be retired subscribing for the new issue on an exchange basis. The fact that these holders were granted preference in allotment brought active bidding for the 3 1-2s, which carried the price above par. Meanwhile the new 6 per cent. bonds, listed on the New York curb market, commanded a 1-2 point premium above the offering price of 98.

The keen demand for the Baltimore & Ohio bonds infused fresh strength into other railroad liens. Seaboard Adjustment 5s, Erie prior lien 4s and convertible 4s "D", Lake Shore 4s and Missouri Pacific 4s gained a point or so. Unusual activity developed in the Frisco issues on the announcement that directors next week would consider plans to rearrange the company's capital structure.

Foreign bonds today recovered from yesterday's profit taking despite the check to progress of the inter-allied conference by failure to reach an agreement on the Ruhr evacuation problem. French 6s moved up a point.

Public offering will be made tomorrow of $5,000,000 Rock Island 5 year 5 per cent. notes at 99. Proceeds from the sale will be used for additions and betterments.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Aug. 13—Highest prices yet this season were reached in the corn market today by all new crop deliveries. Unseasonable cool weather and too much rain, together with backwardness of growth, led to a notable broadening of demand, but the top prices failed to hold. Corn closing quotations were unsettled 3-4 to 1 3-4c, net higher, December 102 5-8 to 102 3-4. Wheat finished unsteady at 1-2 to 7-8c decline, with oats ranging from 1-4c off to 3-8 to 1-2c advance and provisions showing 7 to 32 cents gain.

Advices were at hand that to a remarkable extent the corn crop was tasseling on short stalks and that there would be large abandonment of acreage, especially on bottom lands, where cultivation had been rendered impossible by persistent rains. It was said also that in much territory the crop would only mature if frost was delayed very late.

Heavy profit-taking sales took place on the advance in the corn market, especially when the rise had gone six cents above the close on Monday. At one time, December and May sold at virtually the same price owing to the urgency of bidding for December. Oats averaged higher as a result of sympathy with corn.

Aggressive selling on the part of houses with northwest connections pulled down wheat, although the market at times proved responsive to the influence of corn strength. The wheat selling appeared to be associated with the movement of the new spring crop. Word that contrary to expectation no frost had developed in Canada last night tended also to weaken the market.

Provisions rose with corn despite a setback of hog values.

BROADWAY THEATRE

A finely arranged program of Keith Vaudeville and Pictures opens at the Broadway Theatre for three days beginning today.

Return after a two year's triumph in Europe comes that celebrated continental exponent of terpsichore Princess Radjah in her famous "Dance of Cleopatra," a pantomimic portrayal of the tragedy of the immortal queen. This offering is going to be the talk of the town for days to come. You must see it to appreciate a real offering.

Songs, dances, sure-fire-fun, can certainly be called versatility exemplified. This novelt offering is presented by Elsie Harvey and George Stone.

A musical ventriloquial novelty that stands high in the vaudeville world is presented by Hugh Emmett and Theresa Lind.

The International Artists, Roy E. Mack and Peggie Brantley present "In a Whirl of Grace." This closes a really al istar vaudeville show.

Laughter is akin to tears—in motion pictures as well as in real life. That's why the sparkling humor and the tense, human drama of "His Forgotten Wife," the Palmer Corporation's Production which is showing at the Broadway Theatre are so effective in combination. This strong, new picture plot, built into a tense drama and a touching human document by its trained author, Will Lambert, needs the occasional comedy relief touches to allow the spectator to expel his breath—which has been held during the thrilling and suspenseful situations! But in addition to this obvious use, both drama and humorous touches are strengthened by contrast with each other. The combination, so well enacted by Madge Bellamy, Warner Baxter, Maude Wayne and a splendid supporting cast, makes "His Forgotton Wife" one of the most entertaining pictures of the year.

Breed Theater

Constance Talmadge puts lots of fun and pep in her new film, The Goldfish, which Jerome Storm directed for Producer Joseph M. Schenck. In the film Constance has three husbands, and unlike most women she can't get rid of them even when she gets a divorce. There's an intriguing something about this character which just keeps a husband hanging around and where they are current—"has beens" or would-bes"—they stick around and offer advice after the manner of perfect husbands.

It's really pretty clever to be able to do it. So many men really resent being divorced—for no particular reason except that some one else offers a nicer residence for the pretty wife.

The Goldfish was adapted by C. Gardner Sullivan from Gladys Unger's stage play, in which Marjory Rambeau was featured.

The Goldfish, a First National picture heads the double feature bill at the Breed today. For the second feature Peggy Hyland will be seen in Shifting Sands, a modern story of a fiery love in the blazing sun-scorched desert. The Fox news completes this big double bill.

Lyceum Theater, New London

Sidney Toler, the well known dramatist, and Alonzo Reince, author of Somebody's Sweetheart wrote the book; while the music and lyrics were provided by Carlo and Sanders of Tangerine fame.

John E. Hazzard, lately the stellar hit of the Greenwich Village Follies, heads the distinguished cast.

Lillian Fitzgerald, lately of Ed Wynn's show, one of Broadway's favorite commediennes, Janet Velie, who originated the title role of George M. Cohan's, Mary, Mildred Keats, recent star of Mr. Dazzling Butler, Stanley Ridges, Arthur Burckly, Colin Campbell and a dozen other favorites complete the cast.

In costuming and scenic effects Bye Bye Barbara is one of the most ambitious offerings of the season.

NEW LONDON WOMAN'S SUDDEN DEATH TO BE INVESTIGATED BY CORONER

Bridget Schenesky, 35, wife of Louis Schenesky, 25 Douglass street, died suddenly at her home this evening. From symptoms connected with the woman's death it is apparent that she died from acute alcoholism. Medical Examiner Charles B. Kaufman, who caused an investigation to be made, was not satisfied with the circumstances attending Mrs. Schenesky's death, for he was unable to give a cause of her death and after conferring with Coroner Jeremiah J. Desmond, of Norwich, the latter ordered an autopsy held tomorrow morning.

The woman is known to have been a chronic drinker and for some time had become drunk once and twice a week. She had continued her drinking, according to her husband, away from her home, but where, he declared, he did not know. Last evening when Schenesky returned from work he found his wife ill, but he attributed the illness to drink. The woman complained throughout the night and continually requested water. Whenever she was supplied with the water it nauseated her, causing her to expel it. Her condition remained that way until Schenesky left for his work this forenoon. When he returned to his home this evening he found his wife dressed, but lying on the floor and in a comatose state. He endeavored to procure the services of a physician, but could not obtain medical treatment. He returned to his home and his wife was then breathing heavily in the position he had left her a short time before. When he returned again after seeking a physician, the woman had expired.

Occupants of the house and the neighborhood declared that they had not seen the woman on the street during the day, even the woman's sister declaring that so far as she knew Mrs. Schenesky had not been away from the house the entire day. Every symptom of the woman's death indicates alcoholism and that will be determined tomorrow when the autopsy takes place.

The house where Mrs. Schenesky died is the same house where William Holt, former New London printer, was found dead of alcoholism a few weeks ago.

The New Haven police this evening requested the New London police to be on the lookout for a Hupmobile, stolen from the street there early in the night. The car bears Connecticut registration, 91-544.

An automobile, a Stutz sedan, owned and driven by Louis Sharaf, 72 Faire Harbour place, occupied by Mrs. Sharaf and two children and maid, Virginia Adams, and a Ford machine, owned and driven by Cecil Bramble of Blackhall, who is employed as driver of the East Lyme bus, were wrecked this evening, in a head on collision in Waterford. None of the occupants of the cars were injured except Miss Adams, who sustained bruises and sprains. Sharaf's car had a front wheel ripped off, as were the mudguard and running board, while the Ford was nearly demolished. State Policemen Fred Caron and Fred Sunn, of the Groton barracks, who investigated the accident ordered Bramble to appear in the Waterford town court tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock charged with reckless driving.

Sharaf's car was en route to the Golden Spur and Bramble's machine with Miss Florence Getchell, Waterford, as a passenger, was bound to New London. When between Stations 11 and 12, Bramble's car overlook another machine and in attempting to pass it, Bramble's automobile pulled to the left hand side of the highway. Before the car could pass the machine ahead of it, Bramble's car bumped Sharaf's car, which was about to pass when Bramble made the attempt to proceed ahead of the car in front. The crash was terrific and could be heard a considerable distance. Residents rushed to the highway and believing that some of the occupants of the two cars had been seriously injured, a call was sent for the Lawrence hospital ambulance, but its services were not required for the wounds of Miss Adams were dressed at a house near the location of the accident.

George Stevens, Crystal avenue, was taken into custody by Sergeant Nelson Smith this afternoon charged with assault. Stevens' arrest was requested by Sergeant Clifford Gorgas of the Groton barracks. The accused was later taken in charge by State Police Officer Sunn.

Irving A. Campbell, of West Stockbridge, Mass., was ordered to appear in the police court tomorrow morning by Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy this afternoon, when the officer detected Campbell's car parked on the east side of Main street, which is restricted because of the traffic congestion on that highway.

Lycurgus M. Sistare of Franklin St., complained to Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky this evening because of an owner of an automobile using Home street as a parking place for the machine. The owners of the machine Samuel Shapiro and Louis Kenyon agreed to remove the car from the highway and in that way avoid prosecution Sistare was determined to appear against the auto owners unless the using of the street for a parking place was discontinued.

Luke Bowman, New York, formerly of New London, and Miss Margaret Crowley, 23 Howard street, daughter of the late Capt. and Mrs. Daniel Crowley, were married yesterday at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. The nuptial mass was celebrated by Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley, rector of the church. John Crowley, brother of the bride, was best man, and Miss Loretta Dorsey attended the bride. Following their wedding tour, Mr. and Mrs. Bowman will reside in New York. Mr. Bowman was at one time employed as clerk at the Hotel Mohican.

State Police Officer Bernard W. Kenerson, stationed at the Groton barracks, is absent from duty, having started on his vacation of two weeks.

The condition of Mrs. Abbie Churchill of Groton, formerly of New London, who recently underwent an operation at Lawrence hospital, is rapidly improving and it is expected that she will be able to return home within a week or ten days.

John C. Glynn of Garfield avenue is spending a week touring in New York state.

It developed today that buildings for the erection of which the council received petitions at the meeting Monday evening were already completed, or in the last stages of completion, and that the structures would be finished before any action could be taken by the council. In the case of a store front on Chappell street the council held up a decision on the petition, pending information as to whether the proposed alterations should conflict with restrictions which it is proposed to impose under the zoning law or ordinance, when such shall be enacted. Under the old order of things, when applications were presented to the council, it was frequently found that the building for which permission to erect was asked had been completed. This sort of thing was objected to, but now evidently the same practice is in vogue. As the council meets every Monday, it would seem that no delay would be occasioned if the petitioners were compelled to await action by the council.

POETRY

THE INLAND SEA.

Strange that a thing so wild, so free
As we conceive the tossing sea to be
Should thus be landlocked and imprisoned,

How these confining shores must chafe
And fret thee sore, as ceaselessly
Thy bosom heaves tumultuously.

A fettered slave, a caged bird,
Thy accents are forever heard
Bewailing thy sad fate.

Freedom to thee, as to the wind, belongs
What was thy sin, O Sea,
That thus the godsthave punished thee?
—Jean Grigsby, in North American Review.

THE INNER VISION.

Most sweet it is with uplifted eyes
To pace the ground, if path be there or none,
While a fair region round the traveler lies
Which he forbears again to look upon;
Pleased rather with some soft ideal scene,
The work of Fancy, or some happy tone
Of meditation, slipping in between
The beauty coming and the beauty gone.
—If Thought and Love desert us, from that day
Let us break off all commerce with the Muse:
With Thought and Love companions of our way—
Whate'er the senses take or may refuse—
The Mind's internal heaven shall shed her dews
Of inspiration on the humblest lay.
—William Wordsworth.

FRENCH WOMAN TELLS

HOW TO GET THIN

Without Diets, Absurd Creams, Exercises or Reducing Girdles.

I reduced my own weight 30 pounds in less than 5 weeks, and at the same time marvelously improved my general health and appearance with a new French discovery called SAN-GRI-NA. To-day I look, act and feel far younger than my real age. From the results in my own case, and those of my friends, I am absolutely convinced that any man or woman burdened with rolls of ugly, injurious, unwholesome fat, can take it off easily, quickly and safely with SAN-GRI-NA. Every day science discovers something new. SAN-GRI-NA is one of the latest French discoveries for the reduction of excess fat. It does away with weakening diets—tiresome exercises—torturing garments—and absurd and expensive so-called reducing creams. It is used extensively in Paris, where women of every age pride themselves on keeping their figures slender and graceful, and where the men detest a heavy waistline or double chin. No matter how fat you are, or what you have done in the past to reduce, you must remember that SAN-GRI-NA has never been offered before to the American public—IT IS GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS—does not contain any dangerous drugs, and cannot possibly affect your stomach or your health. By simply taking two small tablets before each meal I lost 30 pounds in two months, and I haven't regained a pound since. I eat all I want and enjoy the best of health. You can do the same. To-day go to any good drug store, ask for a package of SAN-GRI-NA. Do not accept anything else, as it is the only thing I ever found to reduce after I had tried hundreds of ...

RECALLS MAYOR THAYER'S PREDICTIONS ON CITY GAS & ELECTRIC PLANT

At the annual banquet of the Norwich Board of Trade in January, 1906, the late Charles F. Thayer, then mayor of the city, made two predictions regarding the profits that would accrue from the city's operation of the gas and electric plant. In one he said that the city would have accumulated in 1927 the sum of $777,426, which would be enough to pay off the bonds and costs of improvements on the plant and leave a balance of $90,426. In his other prediction he gave it as his view that the profits of the plant could be so handled that by 1925 they would pay off $550,000 in the city's bonded indebtedness, leaving the municipality in the happy condition of a debtless city with $5,771.20 remaining in the sinking fund.

Coupled with this was his statement that the burden to the taxpayer would be growing constantly less. At that time the city tax rate was 18 mills. For the present year it is 22 3-4 mills.

Mayor Thayer's Prediction

By request, the Bulletin republishes at this time Mayor Thayer's prediction:

The morning paper has stated that our lighting plant caused a loss to the city during its first year's operation of something like $12,000. On the other hand the first annual report of the lighting commission shows a profit of upwards of $19,000 made by the lighting department. The latter results from the operation of the plant under the commission's interpretations of the law that the words "Cost of investment in plant to the city" means amount invested or paid in by the city as purchase price for what the city bought—that is, the equity of redemption in the plant, or that part of its value as determined by the superior court over and above the mortgage on the plant.

The newspapers loss results from its interpretation that the language means not only the amount invested or paid by the city but $400,000 paid in and invested by the private gas and electric company besides.

The statute law requires the lighting commission to so fix the price of gas and electricity to consumers that the plant shall show a profit of not less than five nor more than eight per cent. on the "cost of investment in the plant by the city" after having charged off on its books another five per cent. for depreciation; the intent clearly being to protect the consumer against an overcharge made, possibly, to please the taxpayer by a reduction of taxation, and on the other hand to prevent an extreme reduction in price possibly made to catch the vote of the consumer; in other words to require that justice be done to both consumer and city. The lighting commission so fixed the prices that there was charge to depreciation the required 5 per cent. on $227,000 (the amount actually invested) and a profit earned on the same sum of upwards of five per cent. The newspaper to "figure out" a loss to the city found it necessary to charge off this ten per cent. on $627,000 or on an additional $400,000 not invested by the city and for which the city is not liable. The lighting commission in its report recommends that the profit from the plant be set aside annually to sink the bonds issued for the purchase price. The policy of the present administration is to set aside both the profit and the five per cent. depreciation annually. Let us now see how the newspaper plan of operating the plant would result and what will follow if the plan of the present administration be adopted. If we place in the sinking fund on interest at 4 per cent. compounding annually this ten per cent. on $627,000 we shall have accumulated on July 1, 1927, the date when the $400,000 mortgage bonds mature, the sum of $2,295,940.40. If then, in 1927, the city shall consider it more desirable to pay the $400,000 mortgage than to build a new plant it will have money enough accumulated to pay.

Old company's bonds		$ 400,000.00
Amount originally invested		227,000.00
Cost of improvement		60,000.00
		$ 687,000.00
And so own the plant free from all incumbrances and still have on hand		1,608,940.40
This balance will pay the entire debt of the city as per treasurer's report of May 15, 1905, of		1,065,191.31
and still leave in the sinking fund		$ 543,749.09

sufficient to build a new plant. Do you think that the consumers alone in addition to paying their proporiton of the taxes, ought to be required to pay the entire cost of the plant: the mortgage debt of the old company, the entire debt of the city and upward of a half million dollars beside? This is where the newspaper management would lead and it would of necessity lead to higher prices for gas and electricity to enable the city to do this injustice to the consumer.

On $227,000 Each Year

The present reduced rates for gas and electricity from present indications will continue to be sufficient to set aside the ten per cent on $227,000 each year until 1927. If we carry out the purpose of the present administration, setting aside 10 per cent. of $227,000 instead of on $627,700 per annum, investing as before annually, we shall have accumulated in 1927, the sum of $777,426.

From this deduct as before:

Old company's bonds, $400,000; new bonds, $227,000; cost of improvement, $60,000, total of $687,000 and we shall have a balance of $90,426, and own the plant, free from all incumbrances.

Another View

There is another method of dealing with the earnings of the lighting plant now under consideration. The city bonds fall due as follows: April 1, 1907, $160,000; the 1877 sinking fund will be sufficient to cancel these bonds at maturity. April 1, 1908, $150,000: the 1878 sinking fund will be sufficient to cancel these funds at maturity; Jan. 1, 1910, $50,000. If we pass to the gas and electric sinking fund 10 per cent. of $227,000 each year investing it at four per cent. we shall have on July 1, 1909, six months before these bonds are due $36,294.72, sufficient to cancel the bonds and still have a sinking fund of $46,294.72. Treating this balance as a new principal and adding thereto anually the 10 per cent or $22,700 and compounding same at four per cent. we shall have accumulated on July 1, 1913, $150,565.92. Three months later on October 1, 1913, bonds mature to the amount of $150,000. These cancelled we shall still have in the sinking fund $565.92. Treating this as before and continuing to lay aside the profits of the lighting plant until July 1923, and we shall have $230,217.48. Six months later, on Jan. 1, 1923, bonds fall due, amounting to $150,000. Cancel these and we shall still have on hand $80,317.48. Again treating this balance as before and continuing the investment of lighting plant profit until July 1, 1924 and we shall have in the sinking fund $133,071.20. All we need do in 1925 is to make the annual deposit to the sinking fund one month earlier than usual passing to the sinking fund on June 1, 1925, the usual $22,700 and we shall have $155,771.20. With this cancel the bonds then maturing, $150,000 and we shall still have in the sinking fund $5,771.20.

Is Municipal Ownership Profitable

Thus going in debt for $227,000 in 1904 will have enabled the city to pay all bonds issued prior to that time as they mature, or $550,000 above those for which our present sinking fund is accumulated and in 1925 we shall have reached the point in the city's history when the question, Is Municipal Ownership Profitable? may be more fairly answered than now. The fact should not be overlooked that in following this last plan our interest and fixed charges now calling for annual appropriations will be constantly diminished as follows. $10,760 in 1907; $10,200 in 1908; $2,500 in 1910; $5,000 in 1913; $5,250 in 1923 and $5,810 in 1925; the burden to the taxpayer growing constantly less rather than greater by reason of the lighting debt, because without that which the lighting debt represents these several issues of bonds could not be paid at maturity.

More Reasons for Belief

There are other reasons for believing that a city debt is not an unmixed evil. During the past five years while we have been increasing our indebtedness, it appears from the report of the committee on statistics that in 25 manufactories of the city the increase of operatives has been over 42 per cent., the increase in wages paid over 48 per cent. and the increase in gross value of product manufactured nearly 52 per cent and I have personal knowledge that certain citizens who prior to the general shakeup in 1920 could not be induced to purchase real estate in Norwich at any price have for the past four years been investing freely in city real estate with as little terror of taxes and debts as the "man in charge of city affairs today. "When an increasing debt means that the city has emerged from Sleepy Hollow and is investing the money borrowed in profitable enterprises, as does the Woonsocket tenement builder, to his profit and in satisfying "the needs peculiar to the stage of urban development thus far attained." It were better that the press should recognize the fact and endeavor to educate the people up to the social man of whom Prof. Ely speaks in the North American Review rather than attempt to educate them to the level of the partisan press for partisan advantage.

JUDGE DENIES APPLICATION FOR TEMPORARY RECEIVER.

Judge Maltbie of the superior court has denied the applicaiton for a temporary receiver for the Paty Schwartz Co., New London. The application was filed by William W. Smarck and Ida R. Sahmouk, of New London. Notice of the denial of the application was filed Wednesday with the clerk of the superior court in this city.

The hearing was held in Hartford Tuesday before Judge Maltbie:

As owner of a large share of the stock in the Schwartz Co., of which he was formerly treasurer, Schmauk had petitioned for a receivership and a decree of dissolution on the claims that although the company was solvent, the assets were in danger through illegal and improper management on the part of Paty and Joseph Schwartz. He also claimed that the company was violating the terms of its by-laws in the matter of holding meetings, rendering reports, etc.

Attorney Lubchansky, in behalf of the Schwartz Co., pointed out to Judge Maltbie that Schmauk's petition admitted the solvency of the company and offered the argument that during the past year the company has done one and one-half the business that it transacted last year. Judge Maltbie decided that the facts as submitted did not warrant favorable action by him on either of the two motions of Schmauk.

Schmauk is now at liberty on bond of $5,000, awaiting hearing in the New London police court on August 18 on charges of fraud, forgery and theft lodged against him by the Schwartzes immediately following the announcement that he had petitioned for a decree of dissolution and the appointment of a receiver for the company. He was arraigned in court a fortnight ago, at which time the case was continued until the 18th. He is charged with a number of misdeeds, involving approximately $60,000, alleged to have been committed between January, 1921, and the past January.

Schmauk is also defendant in a civil suit filed recently by Attorney Lubchansky in behalf of the Schwartzes, who seek damages of $75,000, alleging that he appropriated to his own use sums which total over $50,000.

HOT WEATHER HINTS BY STATE HEALTH DEPARTMENT

The health game is a summer as well as winter sport, says this week's issue of the bulletin published by the Connecticut State Department of Health. It requires skill at all times, but more patience is needed to master the game during the summer months when the hot weather slows up mental and physical activities.

Take the matter of food. The simple natural foods are the best—milk, fruits and green vegetables. These are the months when nature has a rich supply of such foods—and one can safely indulge in them without restriction. Pasteurized milk is the safest. This should be iced in transit and kept well covered and in the ice box after it reaches the house, as bacteria, even the few remaining after pasteurization, will multiply rapidly unless milk is properly cooled and kept at a low temperature. Milk is easily digested and is one of the best sources of nourishment. It may easily supersede meat during the summer months. Crackers, or bread and milk, berries and milk, ready to eat cereals and milk—it is a wise plan to adopt milk as the backbone of the summer diet.

Fruits with natural sugar and organic acids are real allies for health. They are refreshing and appealing as well as nourishing. If indulged in regularly, they will prove more effective as health regulators than any of the drugs which the advertisements strive to make so convincing. A liberal use of fruit is not only a health measure, but it aids the housekeeper for it is so readily available and requires so little care for its preparation. At the same time it lends variety to the diet and provides attractive flavors for teas, cold drinks, or "au naturelle." It is a wise housekeeper who takes advantage of fruits by serving them generously as the season presents them to her in their variety of forms. In the form of salads or desserts they are time savers in her busy day and health savers for her family.

Fruit should be selected carefully. Underripe fruit may lead to difficulties, best known to the little boy who ate freely of green apples! Overripe fruit is even more serious as it may result in diarrhoea or intestinal infection which may require weeks of careful treatment to correct. All fruit should be carefully and thoroughly washed before eating as the surface harbors many germs, some of which may be of pathological nature.

The fact that dairy cows look sleek, and well fed, and produce milk richer in butter fats and vitamins during the summer months, when green grass is available, is the best argument for the adoption of green vegetables in the diet. While most people are convinced of the need for these all the year, it is easier to secure them in the summer. A green vegetable once a day the year 'round, should be the rule. But in the summer season this should be increased to three times a day. Vegetables with their rich mineral and vitamin content are too valuable a health asset to be overlooked. To become a vegeterian for the summer months, would be a wise policy for all to adopt. Especially is this to be recommended for children, for growth is enhanced by the vital elements in which the green vegetables abound.

Over eating during the hot weather is to be guarded against. Excessive heat is debilitating, and overtaxing the digestive system by the too much or too rich food, detracts rather than adds to well being. It is a well known fact that a high protein diet increases bodily temperature to a perceptible degree so avoiding a rich meat diet during the hot weather is a health measure.

HAY FEVER WEEDS SHOULD BE CUT NOW

With regard to hay fever the weekly bulletin issued by the health department of health says:

"Hay fever is a disease caused for the most part by irritation from plant pollens. Three forms of hay fever—the early spring, the early summer, and the late fall types—are recognized, although the symptoms are essentially the same in each. Each type is caused by the plant pollens maturing in its respective season. An individual that is susceptible usually suffers from but one of these seasonal varieties, although some are afflicted with two or even all three. The autumn form is by far the most common.

"Pollens from a great variety of plants are known to produce hay fever occasionally but those most commonly causing the disease, at least in the eastern and northern United States are the ragweeds. Of these there are several species.

"Ragweeds frequent uncultivated areas such as roadsides, vacant lots and fence corners. They flower from about the middle of August to the middle of October unless killed earlier by frost. During the flowering season each normal plant produces billions of pollens. The individual grains are so buoyant that on windy days they easily float five miles or more in sufficient numbers to cause nasal irritation to susceptible persons.

"More than 1,000,000 persons in the United States suffer annually from hay fever. Depending on the susceptibility of the patient and the amount of pollen in the air, the attacks vary in severity from the symptoms of a mild cold to complete incapacitation.

"Since nearly all of this suffering is preventable by destroying the hay fever producing plants the eradication of the causative agents becomes a problem worthy of serious consideration by public health officials.

"What can be done in this direction? If the offender is a tree, such as an oak or a maple, its destruction would generally be entirely impractical, but if it is a grass or a weed (as is usually the case), its control is feasible, and becomes a matter of economics.

"Ragweeds may be prevented from growing by cultivation or by thick seeding with clover. Vacant lots should be planted to gardens or plowed and sown with white clover or alfalfa. Areas impractical for cultivation, such as road sides and other waste places should be moved before the plants pollinate. A second mowing may be necessary if the frosts are late. Health officers in cities should take care that the grass and weed ordinances are enforced by the police."—Hygeia Health News.

RUNAWAY DANIELSON GIRLS FOUND IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 13.—Ruth McGovern, 15, and Alice Lipke, 15, of Goodyear, near Danielson, who ran away from home yesterday afternoon and for whom a lookout was maintained last night and today by the state police of the Groton barracks and the New London police, were taken into custody here this morning. About 8.30 o'clock Traffic Officer William Graham on duty at the corner of Main street and Crystal avenue, observed two girls who answered to the description of the runaways. Questioning them the officer decided that the girls were Ruth and Alice. This they admitted at the police station. The girls were later given into the custody of the Groton state police who had them returned home.

Beekeepers throughout the county have been receiving calls from Allen Yates of Hartford, state bee inspector, who is rounding up all owners of hives to register, in accordance with the law.

COOLIDGE ADDRESS OF ACCEPTANCE TEEMS WITH SPIRIT OF WELFARE FOR HUMANITY

Republican Presidential Nominee is to Seek Election on Principles of Honesty and Economy at Home and Peace Abroad—Declares That as an Asset "Common Sense" Transcends All Other Attributes in Properly Functioning a Government—Frank M. Mondell Formally Tendered Mr. Coolidge the Nomination.

Washington, Aug. 14.—In stately Memorial Continental Hall, President Coolidge tonight formally accepted his nomination as the presidential candidate of the republican party.

The nominee definitely opened his campaign with a recital of the accomplishments of the administration and a promise of "a government of common sense."

Honesty and economy in the government at home, and peace abroad were set forth by the president to his audience of party leaders, and the general public as principles on which he will seek election.

The intense heat of the past few weeks had given way to moderate, even cool, temperature, and President Coolidge, dressed in a formal cutaway coat, was comfortable at least as he delivered his address, which was punctuated by the characteristic, short pointed sentences.

The historic hall, scene of the armamen: limitation conference in 1921, and seating about 3,000 persons, was filled with applause several times as the president emphasized the major points of his address. Outside another throng listened to the ceremonies carried out by amplifiers while radio broadcasting instruments transmitted the proceedings to an invisible audience of countless numbers throughout the country.

Frank W. Mondell, as permanent chairman of the Cleveland convention, formally tendered Mr. Coolidge the nomination, the choice resulting, he said, from a demand of the people, "freely and emphatically expressed."

"Under your leadership," Mr. Mondell declared, "we look forward to a continued opportunity for service to the honor of the republic, and the progress and prosperity of its people."

William M. Butler, chairman of the republican national committee, presided at the simple exercises, which were opened by an invocation pronounced by the Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the First Congregational church, where President Coolidge worships in Washington. With them on the platform were members of the notification committee, including one delegate from each state.

Members of the national committee, republican members of congress and governors of states occupied floor seats with the public behind them and in the galleries.

After reviewing the accomplishments of the republican national administration, Mr. Coolidge, looking to the future, proposed further tax reduction, appointment of a committee to investigate and report to congress means of aiding agriculture, and another conference to consider further limitation of armaments.

Although his address was written before the deliverance by John W. Davis, democratic candidate, of his acceptance speech, Mr. Coolidge met an issue of honesty in government, with an insistance that "the government is sound." Violators of the law will be prosecuted and are being prosecuted, the president asserted, adding that "the American government must be clean." The results of this administration do not indicate the ways of the dishonest, he said.

Declaring domestic affairs of chief concern to the nation, Mr. Coolidge proposed further tax reduction and "more tax reform" and announced his intention to appoint a committee to investigate means of aiding agriculture.

He summed up the foreign policy of the administration in a single word —peace—and promised to propose after the Dawes reparation plan gets underway another conference to consider further limitation of armaments and codification of international law.

Addressing himself to possible opposition party issues, Mr. Coolidge referred to the question of honest government and replied that "the government is sound" and would prosecute wrongdoers fearlessly. He referred to a probable "discussion of liberal thought and progressive action" in the campaign and answered that liberality in thought and progress in action is all well enough for the country, "but its greatest asset is common sense."

The address was devoted largely to a review of the accomplishments of the administration during the last four years, and contained a specific program for the future in which the president outlined his views in characteristic short, pungent sentences.

Detailing his views, the president announced he favored:

The principle of protection.

The child labor amendment.

The permanent court of international justice.

Further limitation of armaments.

Support by the government in encouraging American citizens and resources to assist in restoring Europe.

Enforcement of the prohibition laws.

Specifically he declared opposition to any general extension of government ownership and control and to aggressive war.

The nominee laid particular stress on agriculture, taxes and foreign relations.

ROOMMATE SUSPECTED OF KILLING TORRINGTON MAN

Torrington, Conn., Aug. 14.—Walter Holcomb, state's attorney for Litchfield county, issued instructions tonight for County Detective Tomanio to take charge of the inquiry into the death of Ralph Deleo. Tomanio had not been notified of the murder and knew it only from stories that he heard on the street. The case is a superior court one and Tomanio stated earlier in the day that he could not understand why he had not been informed.

Ralph Deleo, a workman employed by the Hotchkiss company here and living at the tenement of Mrs. Maria Cateno at 48 Wall street, was brutally murdered early this morning, and Lorenzo Sanna, 27, a hunchback, who roomed with him, is being held as a material witness. The murdered man had been struck twice in the head with an axe, one blow crushing the cheekbone and touching the brain. Deleo and Sanna retired to their room at an early hour last night without any evidences of other than friendly feeling. At 6 o'clock this morning Sanna came from the bedroom to Mrs. Cateno in the adjoining kitchen and informed her that Deleo was not feeling well and would not go to work. He then ate breakfast and left to take Mrs. Cateno's three small children to the Brooker-Seymour Memorial, where they would be cared for while their mother was at work at the Excelsior plant of the Torrington company. He then returned to the Wall street address instead of going on to work.

Meanwhile Mrs. Cateno had knocked at the door where supposedly Deleo was asleep and received no answer. Shethen entered and found the man lying on the floor in a pool of blood. She at once informed the police and Patrolman Emil A. Eisenchn arrested Sanna when he returned. Sanna denied that he had committed the murder, unless "in his sleep."

ALIENISTS CONTINUE IN LOEB-LEOPOLD CASE

Chicago, Aug. 14.—(By The A. P.)—Two alienists for the state admitted under cross examination today in the hearing to determine punishment for Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, Jr., for kidnapping and killing Robert Franks, that their conclusions that the youths were sane were arrived at after brief conversations under unfavorable conditions and perfunctory physical examinations.

Cross examination of the two doctors—Dr. Hugh T. Patrick and Dr. Archibald Church, Chicago psychiatrists—occupied virtually the entire day, Dr. Church's direct testimony taking only a few minutes.

The proceedings were enlivened by a heated three cornered clash between Dr. Church, Clarence S. Darrow, chief of defense counsel, and Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, curtailed only when Judge John R. Caverly ordered a five minute recess.

Mr. Darrow was questioning Dr. Church as to the guise under which he had approached the youths.

"Now isn't it a fact that you went to them only for the sake of getting evidence on which they could be hanged" Mr. Darrow shot at the witness.

Dr. Church had asserted that he had been introduced to the youths as a doctor and that the purpose of his visit was explained to them.

"You know that isn't true, Mr. Darrow," he said heatedly, shaking his finger at the defense attorney. Mr. Crowe was on his feet shouting for the doctor to continue his reply while at the same time Mr. Darrow uttered an apology and requested the question be stricken from the record as "an inadvantage." Judge Caverly added his calm voice to the uproar with an announcement of a recess, with Mr. Darrow and the prosecutor exchanging final verbal thrusts.

M'COY MAY RESORT TO A PLEA OF INSANITY

once idol of the prize ring, Beau Brummel of sporting circles, and gay Lothario of eight matrimonial ventures, tonight at the age of 51 years—which he admits—faces the prospect of attempting to cheat the hangman's noose by a plea of insanity.

Against him stands a charge of suspicion of murder, which District Attorney Asa Keys says will be changed to murder when the county grand jury hears all the known facts concerning the death some time Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning of Mrs. Theresa F. Mors, divorced wife of Albert Mors, wealthy antique dealer.

Also facing the former pugilist are accusations of robbery and attempted murder, the result of a bad orgy of shooting yesterday in two Westlake district stores, when McCay, in search of Mrs. Mors, wounded W. G. Ross, Sam Schapp and Ann Schapp, Sam's wife.

McCoy, finally "broke," a disheveled, bleary-eyed deition of his fromer dapper self, is without not friends in his present dilemma.

It already has been announced that if a murder charge is preferred against the ex-fighter, an insanity plea will be introduced.

One of these legal advisers said today that McCoy's friends had been worried about his mental condition for several weeks and had planned taking him before a lunacy commission.

Mrs. Mors, with whom McCoy had been living in an apartment house here under assumed names, was found dead yesterday morning by the house janitor, a bullet hole in her temple, a deep cut on her lip and other cuts and bruises elsewhere on her body.

WAGE EARNER INJURED BY HEAVY IMMIGRATION

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 14.—Heavy immigration in the past has placed an ponderous and unfair burden on the back of the American wage earner, according to Prof. H. P. Fairchild, of New York university, who told his institute of politics round table today that the standard of living of unskilled workers in the United States had been on the decline in the years prior to the war.

"Under the competitive conditions of modern industrial life," the speaker declared, "one with the most malevolent attitude toward the common people could hope for nothing worse for them than an increase in their numbers."

After stating that in the nineteenth century the extraordinary growth in population had been accompanied in the western nations by an equally rapid rise in the standard of living, Prof. Fairchild asserted that this advantage was now exhausted, and that from now on the nations of the world must choose between a promotion of the standard of living to the highest posible point and an addition to the total numbers.

"The maximum advantage cannot be given to both the standard of living and population at the same time," he added, "While for military reasons society may feel it necessary to promote a large population at the expense of the standard of living (and there seems little doube that some such idea is back of the efforts of France to stimulate the increase of population) it is difficult to see how any rational society should prefer mere numbers to a high standard of living for those who exist.

INQUEST ON THE DEATH OF NIGHT WATCHMAN

Middletown, Aug. 14.—"I cannot believe that his is a natural death," said Medical Examiner Dr. Charles E. Bush of Cromwell, testifying this afternoon at the inquest into the death of James O'Neil of New Britain, night watchman at the Stanley chemical plant at East Berlin, whose body was found hanging over a fence in West Cromwell last Friday. Coroner L. A. Smith, at the conclusion of Dr. Bush's testimony, adjourned the inquest until further notice to give the state police additional time to continue their investigation.

Dr. Bush, who had performed the autopsy on the body of O'Neil, was the last witness of the afternoon and expressed the opinion that death was due to foul play. He said that the two broken ribs, shown by the autopsy, could not have been caused by a fall, and it also was brought out that O'Neil had a hole in the back of the neck. The doctor said that the body was so badly decomposed that it was impossible for him to find other injuries.

Dr. Bush expressed the belief that the body had been placed in the position in which it was found on the wire fence. He did not believe that O'Neil had tripped over the fence which is a low one.

At the morning session it was brought out that O'Neil had had disputes with men he had characterized as "the tough bunch at the brick yard." Witnesses testified that these men mentioned worked near the factory where O'Neil was employed.

TWO BANDITS KILLED BY SHERIFF AND DEPUTIES

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 14.—Miss Isadora Hall, vice president of the Snoqualmie Valley bank at Tolt, was ordered to throw up her hands by three bandits at the teller's window of the bank yesterday. She obeyed. Then Sheriff Matt Starwich and six deputies arose from behind the teller's counter and ordered the bandits to surrender. In the ensuing revolver fight two of the bandits, B. C. Malone and Ted Lashe, were killed.

The sheriff had been advised by a criminal several days ago of the impending attempt to rob the bank. Deputy Sheriff Virgil Murphy, former University of Washington crew star, was the only other man injured. He suffered a slight leg wound.

Conference Awaits Word From Berlin

London, Aug. 14 (By the A. P.)—Chancellor Marx is awaiting instructions from Berlin before he can proceed further with the negotiations looking to a compromise of the Ruhr evacuation. The reparations conference is at present deadlocked on this question. The German delegation has been advised that President Ebert has called a cabinet meeting for tonight, but no decision is expected before tomorrow.

Up to midnight the French had received no intimation of the chancellor's reply to the French contention that the evacuation extend over the period of a year, to which the Germans are opposed. It was planned to send Dr. Luther to Berlin by airplane tomorrow for consultation with the German president, but later it was decided not to take this step.

The situation is decidedly easier tonight, as the French have agreed to many modifications of their original demands. While M. Herriot insists upon a flat understanding that the military evacuation of the Ruhr need not take place until one year after the actual date on which the French and Germans reach an agreement, he offers immediate evacuation of many important railway and industrial centers. Mannheim, Dortmund and many other so-called bottle-neck points which control the Rhineland railways would be released immediately and the troops withdrawn from the eastern boundary of the Ruhr occupied district.

Also there have been intimations to the Germans that complete military evacuation might be accomplished in much less than a year if the terms of the Dawes plan were faithfully met. In fact, the impression has been created that practically all the French and Belgian troops would be out of the territory not held under the Versailles treaty by Jan. 10, when the British evacuate Cologne, if the Germans show good faith.

The negotiations today between M Herriot, Chancellor Marx and Foreign Minister Stresemann were of a decidedly informal character.

Five protocols embodying the results of the inetr-allied and international negotiations have already been printed, with a blank space left for final decisions on the Ruhr, deliveries in kind and allied railway employes on the German lines. These protocols cannot be signed immediately upon an agreement being reached between the Gremans and the French, but must be submitted to the French parliament for approval. Later, if all goes well, they will be signed by the ambassadors of the various countries in London.

KEEP DANCING PARTNER DISTANT THREE INCHES

New York, Aug. 14.—"Keep your distance—three inches—and don't whisper," was the slogan for dancers adopted today by the International Association of Masters of Dancing.

"The proper position for the tripping the fantastic toe in public is for partners to stay far enough apart so that when they converse they must raise their voices above a whisper," said a resolution adopted.

"The left arm of the leader and the right arm of his partner should be gracefully extended and the former's right hand should be placed in the small of his partner's back, ever so lightly—but firmly."

W. F. Kavanaugh of New Bedford, Mass., who has been teaching dancing for about half a century, said: "If dancers will live up to these regulations there will be no further need for such ballroom signs as 'Improper Dancing Not Permitted!' or 'Strangle Holds and Half-Neisons Barred,' or 'Your Feet—Move Them Too.'"

BAPTIST CHURCH IN NIAGARA FALLS DAMAGED BY BOMB

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Aug. 14.—The First Baptist church, of which the Rev. A. B. Mercer, a voice crusader, is the pastor, was damaged by a bomb explosion early today. Many nearby buildings were damaged also. A police guard had been kept on the minister's house next door, for some time but the guard this morning heard nothing until the bomb went off. The council of churches of which the Rev. Mr. Mercer is chairman, has called a mass meeting of protest for Sunuday evening. The city council will offer a reward of $5,000 next week, on the first day of which such action can legally be taken.

The police say the bomb was of dynamite and was placed in an area near the main entrance to the church and the explosion shattered all the windows and ripped off a cornice of the church.

Mercer is a government witness in several dry law prosecutions. With other ministers he has been vice crusading in this city.

Legion in Support Of Nat'l Defense Test

Entire Machinery of the Organization Directed to Cooperate With War Dep't.

Indianapolis, Aug. 14.—Whole-hearted co-operation of the American Legion with the war department and civic and patriotic organizations in the observance of National Defense Test day on Sept. 12 is pledged by National Commander John R. Quinn of the legion in a letter to Secretary Weeks, made public at the national headquarters of the legion here today.

"The American Legion stands whole-heartedly back of the test of our national defense which is to be made on National Defense Test day, Sept. 12," read the letter to Secretary Weeks. "The entire machinery of the legion will co-operate with the war department and with other civic and patriotic organizations to make a success of this trial of our plans for the defense of th nation in time of an emergency.

"The American Legion is not forgetful of the part it played in 1920 in the adoption of this defense plan. It feels that the proposed test of our national resources is a wise and necessary step, that we may know how that plan will function.

"Non-preparedness has been tried, and the horrible fruits of that lack of policy were manifested in the terrible loss of life which accompanied our slow and painful preparation to play our part in the World war. The American Legion does not want war, but it realizes that in the present world situation war may come. It believes, therefore, that the only wise policy is the prudent one of preparedness to meet such crises as may arise when they present themselves. In that policy it conceives that the defense test of Sept. 12 has a propel and essential part."

RED CROSS CALLS FOR $100,000 FLOOD SUFFERERS IN CHINA

Washington, Aug. 14.—The American Red Cross today cabled $100,000 for the relief of victims of the floods sweeping several provinces of China. Chairman John Barton Payne ordered the donation upon receipt of a report transmitted through the state department at the request of the Red Cross by Minister Schurman at Peking.

Minister Schurman estimated that ten million persons are already affected by the floods and that $10,000,000 will be needed for relief work. Emergency relief measures are being carried on by various Chinese philanthropic organizations and the famine relief commission is laying plans to meet distress which is sure to follow destruction of the crops.

Estimated funds which may be made available through the imposition of customs and transportation surtaxes, flood relief campaigns, etc., would total seven and a half million dollars, leaving two and a half million dollars otherwise to be raised if the situation is to be fully met.

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS IN THE GILPATRIC DEFALCATION

Resignation of G. Harold Gilpatric as State Treasurer Has Been Prepared by His Brother, Attorney G. Walter Gilpatric—Embezzler Unable to Help the Receiver Recover Any Considerable Part of the Diverted Funds—Liberty Bonds and Other Funds Involved Are Beyond the Reach of Federal Bank Officials—Citizens of Putnam Are Displaying Enterprise in Subscribing For Shares in the Proposed New Banking Institution—Judge Geissler Asserted There Was Reason to Believe That Every Depositor in the Defunct Bank Would Receive 100 Cents on the Dollar.

Putnam, Conn., Aug. 14—(By the A. P.)—The resignation of G. Harold Gilpatric as state treasurer has been decided upon, following the disclosures of the loss of at least $262,000 to the First National Bank of Putnam by reason of his acts as cashier of the institution, it was learned here today. At the same time Gov. Charles A. Templeton announced, according to information received here from Hartford, that he would immediately order a complete independent audit of the state accounts handled by Mr. Gilpatric as state treasurer.

The resignation of Mr. Gilpatric has been prepared by his brother, G. Walter Gilpatric, a New York attorney, who has been in the city for the past two days and in frequent consultation with the state treasurer, who lies partially blinded at the Day-Kimball hospital as a result of his attempt at suicide one week ago today. Whether the resignation was signed by Mr. Gilpatric or not could not be learned definitely today. G. Walter Gilpatrick was in conference over the telephone with Gov. Templeton and left subsequently for Hartford. Members of the family here who confirmed the fact that the resignation had been prepared and was in the possession of G. Walter Gilpatric, would not indicate whether it had been requested by the governor or was voluntary as a result of conference between the state treasurer and his relatives and advisers.

Walter Gilpatric, a brother of the cashier, returned tonight from Hartford with the word that the resignation of his brother as state treasurer had not been presented as yet. It had not been signed by the wounded man as yet, he said, because the doctors attending Mr. Gilpatric had reported that his condition was such that this was inadvisable.

The embezzlement of G. Harold Gilpatric from the First National Bank as cashier have put the liberty bonds and other funds involved beyond the reach of federal bank officials who are endeavoring to get the assets together it was learned here today. What he did with the money is still a mystery. But the fact that he is unable to help the receiver, George W. Coffin, to recover any considerable part of the diverted funds has been established.

Mr. Gilpatric, still in a semi critical condition at the hospital, with a self-inflicted bullet in his head, has held bedside conferences with National Bank Examiner Norville S. Bean and with the other examiners assigned to duty on the bank books. To them it is understood he has expressed his wish to help but has been unable actually to lend any material assistance toward recovering for the depositors or the stockholders the large sums taken from negotiable securities entrusted to his care and from the bank funds under cover of loans supported only by straw names.

The question of whether the bank itself is entirely responsible at law for the liberty bonds and other securities receipted for by the cashier in behalf of the bank, but diverted to his own purposes, was one the federal bank officials were not prepared, they said today, to decide. Such receipts they explained, stipulated that the bank would take as good care of the securities as it did of its own.

Putnam people, however, did not wait for a legal decision on this or any other point. At a largely attended mass meeting this afternoon they increased subscriptions to the capital stock and surplus of a new $150,000 bank and tonight approximately one third of this had been pledged. There was a rumor that interrupted their plans for a moment, that the old bank might be able to reopen. But J. J. Whitehead, Jr., of the committee quoted bank receiver Coffin as denying this possibility with the word that the chances of this happening are just as remote as yesterday, when Bank Examiner Bean said it was impracticable. Judge M. H. Geissler, chairman of the meeting said the national bank examiners had told him it was impracticable that the bank could ever open its doors; that it was impossible now to state the amount of liabilities because new ones were constantly coming up. Subsequently the chairman told the gathering of depositors and stockholders who included none of the directors of the bank, that there were reasons to believe that every depositor would get one hundred cents on the dollar by calling on the bank's capital, surplus and undivided profits and the cashier's bond of $40,000, possibly without calling one hundred per cent on the stockholders liabilities. He said that certificates would be issued by the receiver shortly which would show the amount of deposit and make a considerable part available for cash.

On this point Receiver Coffin later said that the date that depositors would be called upon to file proofs of claims had not been decided upon and might not be for a few days or weeks but would be done as soon as possible.

Judge Geissler, calling attention to the fact that the old bank had paid 15 per cent. in dividends in recent years said National Bank Examiner Bean had assured him that its good will would go to the new institution without charge He placed the value of this at between $30,000 and $40,000. Mr. Whitehead assured the townspeople, that the new bank, unlike the old, would have more than one or two experienced banking men in charge and that they would be sure their funds would be safeguarded.

PROMOTING NEW BANKING INSTITUTION IN PUTNAM

(Special to the Bulletin)

Putnam, August 14—The outstanding feature of Thursday is the fact that Putnam is going, as far as possible, to try and forget the immediate past and to work for the future of this city. This was the keynote of the mass meeting held in the Victory theatre, Thursday afternoon when over 100 shares were subscribed for in the proposed new banking institution. These subscriptions were for the most part in one and two share lots by people of little means but willing to give what assistance they could in reorganizing the financial institution of this city. The total shares subscribed for is now somewhat over 300. This leaves 700 shares to be sold before the new bank can become a reality.

State's Attorney Charles E. Searls, addressed the meeting by invitation and during his remarks said, that while he was wrong he believed that the First National Bank, "That grand old institution that has served this town for a half a century, is as dead as a cooked goose."

Mr. Searls, who cut short his vacation to return to Putnam from Nantucket Island, said when he first read the news in the newspapers he could not credit the terrible tragedy. He said that the citizens had now to protect themselves and their town and offered to "go far and work hard" if there was anything he could do. He said that the citizens must act. That we don't want people from outside coming in here to say they will run the bank, that they will lend the citizens money, but that the citizens want to own their own bank. He said there was only one answer to the question of do or do we not want a bank and that is, "We want a bank, a bank backed by our own capital, and run by our own citizens. Such a bank is bound to be a success."

The meeting was called to order by the chairman of the citizens' committee, Judge M. H. Geissler who reported that the committee's first move had been to get in touch with the directors of the First National Bank. The committee was informed that it would be impossible for the directors to meet with them.

Chief Examiner Bean gave the committee an interview however. Mr. Bean told the committee that it would be impossible to make an exact statement of conditions at the bank. He said that it was practically impossible for hte First National Bank to open its doors again as a bank. The liabilities of the bank could not be stated as they were coming up all the time and that no one would take over a bank whose liabilities were not known. Mr. Bean said that the only course to pursue was to form a new bank. This was unanimously voted by the committee held Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Bean further told the committee that if the people of Putnam do not get together there will be outside interests come here for there is a good banking opportunity but that Putnam people should do it.

Chairman Geissler said that he knew that outside people had already taken steps toward coming in here but that they did not want to antagonize the citizens but wanted to work with them and that if the people of Putnam organized a bank there would not be a second bank here.

He said that the good will of the old bank was worth from thirty to forty thousand dollars if a new bank could be organized promptly.

Mr. Geissler also stated, which statement brought forth applause, that while Inspector Bean had not said so in so many words he had strongly intimated that depositors would not lose anything.

John J. Whitehead, Jr., told of making a hurried canvass for subscriptions and said that the only two people called upon had shown no interest in the proposition to form a new bank.

Short remarks were made by a number of others to give encouragement to the movement. When the meeting adjourned a total of 310 shares had been subscribed for, nearly one third of the amount needed.

Thursday morning the L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation sent out the following notice to its stockholders:

"While we thought very highly of Mr. G. Harold Gilpatric he was in no way connected with the L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation; and the corporation was not at all embarrassed by the closing of the First National Bank of Putnam.

"Yours very truly,

"L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation

" By L. A. Wolf, treasurer."

Benton, he was confronted by the Buick driven by Alexander Sath of the Bond Motel, Hartford. Michaels applied his brakes but they did not take hold and he turned to the left of the road, striking the right fender on the Buick and bounding over a pile of rocks into a telephone pole where the machine came to a stop. The Overland was damaged to the extent of $25 and about $10 damage was done to the Buick. An investigation of the accident was made by State Policeman Harrison Hulburt, of Stafford Springs barracks, and he placed Michaels under arrest, on a charge of reckless driving. A hearing was held before Justice of the Peace Faulkner of the Andover court and Michaels was fined $25 and costs. The fine was remitted and the costs of $13 were paid. Grand Juror Platt prosecuted.

At 3 o'clock p. m. Thursday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Ayer of Dayville, Miss Edna Harris Ayer became the bride of Ira A. McDaniel. Rev. Walter Byron Williams, pastor of the Westfield Congregational church of Danielson, officiated.

They were married before a bank of palms, ferns and gladioli. The color scheme of the decorations in the dining room was yellow.

Preceding the ceremony music was furnished by Henry Flagg and Misses Margaret Burton and Marjorie Gaffney. For the bridal procession Miss Gaffney played the wedding march from Lohengrin. During the ceremony the trio played I Love You Truly.

The bridal procession was led by little Miss Marjorie Arnold and Harold Field Jr., who served as ribbon-bearers. Mr. and Mrs. Herman M. Coulter of Danielson were the attendants.

The bride wore a gown of bridal satin trimmed with Spanish lace. Her veil was of tulle caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses. Mrs. Coulter wore a gown of flowered georgette. She carried Ophelia roses.

Following the wedding reception, light refreshments were served by a caterer from New York.

Late in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. McDaniel left for New York. Their wedding trip will include a visit at the home of the groom's parents in Athens, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. McDaniel will be at home after October 1st at 28 Hawkins street, Danielson.

Owners of property abutting various streets in the borough are being notified by Gaston A. Maindon, acting as a member of the court of burgesses and under instruction from that body, that they must take action toward the improvement of such sidewalks along their property as requires attention.

The borough officials are very reasonable in their efforts to carry out a program for improved sidewalks. They are allowing property owners to patch depressions or holes in sidewalks if the work is done properly and are agreeing to reset curbing, where required, if property owners decide in favor of building new walks.

Failure to comply with the notice of the burgesses to either repair or rebuild sidewalks will, after a period of 30 days, result in the borough having the work done on its own account and assessing the cost against the property owner.

As a rule, the property owners concerned are taking kindly to the suggestions of the officials and, it is already indicated, the borough's sidewalks will be much improved within a few weeks. On a street in the business section work on a new sidewalk was undertaken Thursday morning, a direct result of the officials' campaign to give Danielson better sidewalks, something that has been talked of for a long time.

In view of the fact that the sidewalk matter is now in the limelight, citizens suggested Thursday that the borough might well set a good example by building a walk along the frontage of its central fire station property on Academy street. During the winter months of the year, especially during rainy and slushy periods, this frontage is usually ankle deep with rain and snow and there are times when persons cannot cross that area unless they are wearing rubber boots without getting wet feet. Academy street, with the exception of a few properties, has about as bad a set of sidewalks as any of the centrally located streets of the borough. The borough should in its worthy efforts to secure better sidewalks on this thoroughfare take care of the central fire station property. All would benefit by that.

Following services at All Hallows' church in Moosup, Thursday morning, the body of John Aly, a Moosup resident for years, was buried in St. James' cemetery here. At the church service Rev. J. E. McCarthy, the pastor, Rev. Oscar Normand, his assistant, and Rev. J. C. Mathieu of Wauregan were the officers of the solemn high requiem mass. The bearers were Thomas Kennedy, George McKenzie, Frank White, Alphonse White, Fred White and James White. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Indicative of the fact that motor bus travel is being developed on a deluxe basis and that Danielson is on a route attractive to promoters of this modern variety of comfortable transportation, is that a new line running between Providence and Hartford on an express basis has been established. A luxuriously appointed motor bus is performing the service, established this week, between the Connecticut and Rhode Island capitals. It makes a round trip each day, leaving Providence in the morning.

There were indications here Thursday that this new line is about to encounter legal obstacles as to operating in this state. Between the Connecticut-Rhode Island line at Little Rest, five miles east of here, and Willimantic, it is covering exactly the same ground as is being covered by another concern operating motor buses out of Danielson and under such arrangements as provided in the stringent motor vehicle laws of Connecticut dealing with such transportation. The motor vehicle department is already giving its attention to the new express service line, which takes no passengers hereabouts, running through direct from Providence to Hartford, and vice versa.

PUTNAM

Between seventy-five and a hundred automobiles left the common at Brooklyn, Thursday morning, for the annual Field Day trip of the Windham County Farmers' Association. Weather conditions were ideal and the trip was a success from every angle.

The first stop was made not far from the starting point, at the farm of DeForest Wells, Danielson. A dozen different kinds of vegetables bearing cards denoting their variety were seen and the new greenhouse where many of the plants were started was inspected. A ditching demonstration was especially interesting. A. E. Wilkinson, vegetable specialist, and F. W. Knipe, agricultural engineer, pointed out some of the things to be observed.

At 11.30 Birchwood Farm, Central Village, was reached. This is one of the largest poultry farms in the state, carrying about 4,000 layers and between 5,000 and 6,000 chickens on range. The capacity of the mammoth incubators inspected is 14,000. There are two poultry houses, one 120x20, the other 100x24. There are also fifty colony coops.

An interesting exhibit of cattle was found at the Wauregan farm, Wauregan. The farm, in the last few years, has built up a herd of 88 Guernseys. The latest improved sanitary dairy barn was of interest. In a field near the barn were exhibited an Ayshire cow and young bull, the property of P. J. Chabot. W. S. Brown showed Holsteins, Anthony Wellow, Jerseys, A. R. Merrill, dairy specialist talked on the animals exhibited.

At 1.30 o'clock a basket luncheon was eaten in the apple orchard. Dr. Arthur W. Gilbert, commissioner of agriculture in the state of Massachusetts gave a lecture. There was music by the Hampton band during the afternoon.

Among the other speakers were: Whitman Danielson, secretary and treasurer of the Windham County Farmers' Association, F. J. Davis, county agricultural agent, E. W. Ellis, former agent, now extension service director and Dr. Gilpert, commissioner of agriculture in Massachusetts.

At four o'clock the biggest day of the year of the association came to a successful close.

The afternoon train from New York next week Wednesday will unload 40 children from the East Side tenement districts on the platform, of Putnam railroad station. They are coming as guests of the New York Tribune's fresh air fund, made possible by the kindness and generosity of the people of northeastern Windham county. Owners of automobiles have volunteered their services in distributing the children to the homes in Putnam, Eastford, Woodstock, Thompson and Brooklyn.

The total subscription to the local fund amounts to $206. In addition to this, a number of children will be taken into homes without expense. The Tribune brings the children to Putnam, under supervision, and they return the same way.

Forty little ones will have two weeks away from the dust and dirt and noise of the tenement districts. They will have wholesome food to eat, be allowed to try to milk the cows, having learned that milk does not grow in bottles, can pick flowers to their hears' content and roll about on the grass without keeping an eye out for a "cop." It is two joyous weeks ahead for forty youngsters. A few may be homestick for a night but when they see for the first time the real country, they will not yearn for their tenement homes.

It is a great work that the women of Putnam are doing year after year carrying forward this movement to entertain these little ones but the reward is in nothing the changed conditions as they leave for home, with a healthy glow in their rounded out cheeks.

John Perry, a laborer for John P. Sabin, a local contractor, has lost the sight of his left eye through an accident that happened a few days ago. Perry was holding a stone cutting implement while another man was using a sledge. A piece of stone flew up striking Perry in the eye. The injured man was taken to an eye specialist in Danielson at once and treated. He is still being treated twice daily at the Day Kimball hospital. While Perry, himself, believes that he will never have the use of his left eye again, he has not been told this by the doctors who believe that in time the blood clot which formed from the blow may clear up. This is the second accident the man has had within a year, the first accident being an injury to his leg, from which he has recovered.

A cabin motor boat pleasure craft experienced considerable engine trouble off the bathing beach at Watch Hill Thursday afternoon when the crew appeared unable to start the engine. The sea was calm but a fast ebbing tide carried the craft backward toward the reef off Watch Hill point. When the point was reached in dangerous proximity to the rocks, the engine was started and the craft proceeded westward but a short way when the engine again went dead. The crew of the Watch Hill coast guard station stood ready to lend assistance if their services were needed, but the boat eventually proceeded on its course without the help of the coast guard crew.

Spanish Dance (Sarasate) Violin Solo / Humoresque (York Bowen) Violin Solo	Efrem Zimbalist / Efrem Zimbalist	6451	2.00

Two Tosti songs in English—the immortal "Good-Bye" and the dainty Serenade. And how Ponselle does sing them! To hear these records is to know why she is a Victor artist.

The first records of display character this sterling artist has made for some time. A bewitchingly beautiful Sarasate dance and a madly capricious Humoresque by a living English composer. Records you will want to hear and own.

Concert Songs and Instrumental

Love is Mine (Teschemacher-Carmen) / For You Alone (O'Reilly-Cook)	Richard Crooks / Richard Crooks	45422	1.00

Love-songs of intense beauty. Whether or not you have had the experience—the exaltation, the transfigurement, the pain—these tenor records will thrill you.

His own "Devotion" was the last work ever conducted for us by Victor Herbert, and this record is the last we ever can issue from his own hand. It is fitting to the occasion.

Light Vocal Selections

Hinky Dinky Parlay Voo / We Don't Get Much Money, But We Have a Lot of Fun	Billy Murray-Ed Smalle / Billy Murray-Ed Smalle	19388	.75

Comic hits—one of them filled with war-time reminiscence, and the other a play on juvenile pastimes and popular songs. Delightful records—plenty of swing and go, and full of humor.

Folk Dances

(1) Broom Dance (2) Bummel Schottische / (1) Gossiping Ulla (2) On the Bridge of Avignon	Victor Band / Victor Band	19348	.75

Records of old-world dances, issued for educational purposes. Splendid numbers for the community celebration, or the family hour.

Dance Records

Walla-Walla—Fox Trot (from "Phoebe") with vocal refrain / Dixie's Favorite Son—Fox Trot	Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra	19389	.75

Whiteman fox trots in comic style. The first has amusing echoes, for various instruments, of an amusing vocal refrain; the second is brilliant but amusing, too. No matter how many Whiteman records you have, you'll also want this one.

Pickin' 'Em Up and Layin' 'Em Down —Fox Trot / The Doodle-Um Blues—Fox Trot	The Benson Orchestra of Chicago	19386	.75

Finely melodious fox trots—splendid hot-weather numbers that will last you through the winter. Easily danced to, and lasting in appeal. Records you will want to keep handy.

Rock-a-Bye My Baby Blues—Waltz with yodeling / Tears of Happiness—Waltz	The Troubadours / The Benson Orchestra of Chicago	19387	.75

The first number is an excellent waltz in the popular manner, with a yodel refrain based on "Emmett's Lullaby"; the other has deep-toned melodies with plenty of strings. Records that adequately fulfill every wish of the dancer.

THE COOLIDGE ACCEPTANCE.

With the clarity of thought and utterance which the people have come to recognize as characteristic of him, Calvin Coolidge accepted the republican nomination for president in an address that all the people of the nation can understand. It contained no false promises. It reflected his inborn honesty and high ideals, the straightforward statement of a man who believes in the American people and their desire to do that which is right. "The government is sound," he declares. "Individuals charged with wrong doing are being prosecuted. The people of this country hate corruption. They know my position. They know the law will be enforced." Common sense and justice to all are to be his guides in the administration of the government, principles that all people can commend.

As to the past, he pointed out the unsatisfactory business conditions in 1920 and how large a part the administration has played in correcting these. Directly bearing upon this was the protective tariff which prevented the importation of cheap foreign-made goods and sustained wages at the American standard. Acknowledging his own deep sympathy with the agriculturalists, by inheritance and by training, he stated that the republican administration had passed more bills to help the farmers than any other congress ever has done in the history of the nation, and he brought forward the new suggestion in this line for the appointment of a commission to recommend to congress the legislation that will help the farmer. As further aids to the farmer he recommended cooperative marketing, control of floods, better transportation and a reorganization of the freight-rate structure.

In the matter of economy, he pledged himself to further efforts along this line in government affairs and declared that he proposed to help the individual by further efforts towards tax modification that would ease the burden upon the hundred million of small taxpayers. He pointed out the remarkable reduction of the public debt since 1921, and in the matter of labor said that the government was in favor of voluntary arbitration between employer and employe.

Peace with all nations, he declared to be the wish of America and he announced his intention when the matter of reparations has been settled of calling another conference for disarmament and codification of international law. He favors cooperation internationally, for the peace of the world but without involving the United States politically.

He accepted the nomination with an acknowledgment of the responsibilities and obligations that it imposes upon him. The estimate of him as an upright and courageous American will be strengthened by his speech of acceptance which gives new emphasis to the conviction that it will be safe to entrust to him the fortunes of next four years in which he pledges his utmost efforts to a government of common sense and justice.

THE COMMISSIONERS' REPORT.

The board of gas and electrical commissioners has made its recommendations to the common council committee that neither the proposition of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. to buy the city's electric plant nor to sell the city electricity should be accepted. It was recognized that the board, which has been conducting the city plant, would naturally be expected to make some recommendation upon the propositions that have been submitted and they have met this expectation, in conjunction with General Manager Taggart, after long and painstaking consideration of the subject. The basis of their recommendation not to sell the plant or buy power is the report of the general manager, which, it is understood, has been checked up and approved by electrical experts in New York, Providence and New London. It involves a mass of technical detail, but it is worthy of and will no doubt be given careful consideration by the common council committee and by citizens who desire to form their own opinions on the subject.

The figures of actual manufacturing cost of electricity at the city's plant and of buying the same amount of energy from the power company show that the city could buy for $139,805 what it costs the city the sum of $142,660 to manufacture, but the addition of the depreciation item of $21,240 to the city manufacturing cost, and the addition of an amortization item of $42,681, with $15,000 in two other items, to cost of power purchased, brings the cost of purchasing power to $13,486 more than it were manufactured by the city.

The board dismisses the proposition of the power company to buy the city plant with the comment that the price named is inadequate and much less than the property would bring if offered for sale in an open market.

Since the propositions of the power company has been before the board and before the public, thinking citizens have been asking themselves the question, Is the city electric plant an actual or an imaginary asset of the city? This seems a fair question. Wherein have the citizens benefitted from the municipal ownership of the plant? Will the same expectation of using its profits to pay off city debt, which Mayor Thayer used as an argument for the purchase of the plant by the city, prove an illusion in the future as it has in the past, because profits are all eaten up in the need for plant extensions and betterments? Shall we commit ourselves to the necessity of periodical drains upon the receipts of the plant or of appropriations from the city, or is this the time to realize upon its present value by selling it in such a way that we can pay off the $558,000 in bonded debt on the plant and have a balance of $700,000, or more, in cash remaining in our hands?

THE SHENANDOAH EXPERIMENT

The past week's demonstration of mooring a rigid airship to a mast set up on a ship and allowing it to ride there for a protracted period takes high rank among the notable achievements of the air section of the United States navy, which has made the initial step in the development of a mobile mooring for airships. The construction of a mother ship for a rigid airship was a unique undertaking that is significant for the future of the airship in naval operations. Because the airship needed a mast or hangar wherever it came in contact with the ground and because such facilities will presumably be available at very few places for some time to come, the usefulness of the airship has been largely problematical. To play an important role in naval strategy on a grand scale the airship should be capable of holding the air and traveling at cruising speed for ten days or more, and that now seems, thanks to the Patoka experiment, to be within the realm of possibility. The ship uses no fuel when riding at a mast, but quite aside from that fact and from the chance of being towed for considerable distances, supplies of fuel can be pumped up from the mother ship to the dirigible. The loss of gas can now be kept so small as to be almost negligible and as crews can be changed while the airship is attached to its moorings, there is nothing to prevent an almost indefinite increase in range of action of the airship that has a mother ship in attendance. It would be an easy matter to carry on such a vessel as the Patoka enough gasoline and oil to supply three dirigibles for a month of continuous cruising. No longer need the sphere of action of the airship for long distance scouting be considered as limited to home waters.

The work is not, of course, completed. The first test was made under ideal weather conditions and with the mother ship in harbor, and it remains to be seen what difficulties may arise when wind and wave have rendered the mast itself mobile, perhaps unpleasantly so. The first initial step has been taken with such success, however, that it forms a happy augury for the future and justifies confident expectation of further favorable developments. Such experiments as these, to be followed by the induction of the Shenandoah into actual service with a fleet at sea, are of infinitely more practical value than any journey over the North Pole.

A ROAD FOR TRUCKS.

First of its kind in this part of the country, the new motor truck road between Boston and Worcester will be a forerunner of a development of the future which is bound to come. The suggestion for such a road in Connecticut where the road between New York and New Haven is subject to such heavy truck travel has already been made by the state highway department. As the engineers have laid out the proposed Massachusetts road it is reported that the route will follow closely the line of the trolley between the two cities, but with detours around grades that would be hard going for trucks. The distance will be cut to the shortest possible.

Anyone who has driven on the highway that is so greatly used as the usual route between Boston and Worcester knows that traffic is often badly congested by the slow-moving vans, passing of which is made difficult by the many curves in the road. Nobody who has seen the monotonously straight roads of many of the states in the middle west would advocate treating New England's highways similarly. One of the chief charms to visiting motorists is the curves and unexpected vistas that open up. As the number of motor vehicles increases, however, travel becomes more hazardous and is delayed by the heavy trucks that are forced to move more slowly than the lighter passenger cars. Complaint has been fruitless for there was no other way for the trucks to follow. With a road of their own, however, paved with material suitable for heavy truck traffic, the path of the motorists will be smoothed immeasurably, both as to the pursuit of pleasure and as to the enduring quality of the road which his lighter car travels.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Sweeping victory predictions are now the order of the day by all campaign managers.

If the dry spell had lasted a little longer we might be using the river beds for parking places.

Science has found out what causes hay fever, but what the sufferers want to know is what will cure it.

The democrats now have a slogan —"John W. Davis, he will save us." But who will save Davis from his indiscreet managers who necessitate "interpolations."

The man on the corner says: Cavaliers at Uncle Sam's "unofficial" presence at European conferences fail to show what more might have been accomplished by official representation.

The government is offering a live buffalo to anyone who will pay the freight. This will hardly take the place of the former free distribution of garden seeds through congressmen.

Politics will undoubtedly hold its own in popular discussion despite the fascinating prominence of such subjects as the theory of evolution and the possible human habitability of Mars.

EARLY SIGNS

Sally looked at her brother pensively and sighed deeply. She parted her lips to speak, and suddenly closed them with firmness.

"What's the matter, old girl? Your morale doesn't seem to be a hundred per cent. Anything wrong in your sphere of action?"

"Everything's wrong Jack. I was about to ask you a moment ago whether all men are alike. But I realized that it was foolish question ninety-nine hundred or so. I know that they're all alike."

"Heavens, is that so?" sympathized her brother. "I see you're dying to unburden your mind, and I include sympathy and patience among my well-known virtues, so shoot, Sally, my dear."

"Well, you see Adeline Ross and I went out to the club for a round of golf. There wasn't a sign of rain here in town when we left home, but it began to sprinkle at the Wayfarers' the minute we got there. Adeline proposed that we wait on the porch until the skies cleared, and while we sat there along came Sam Halsey, and he asked us if we weren't going to play. Adeline said she saw no joy in getting wet.

"You're not real fans, if you let a little Scotch mist like this keep you off the course," said Sam. "Why at St. Andrews everybody plays in the rain.'

"'But we're not at St. Andrews,' remarked Adeline.

"'You're a better sport than that aren't you, Sally?' asked Sam, turning appealingly to me. 'Have a heart. You wouldn't let me go around alone, would you?'

"'What about it, Adeline, won't you play?' I asked.

"'No, thank you, Sally, she replied 'If you want to go out and get wet its all right with me, but I prefer to remain here.'

"Of course I went, for Sam assured me that the sun would be out in a minute or two, and he told me what a good fellow I was, and away I went with the rain coming down more steadily every moment. I was going to suggest at the tenth hole that we go in, but just then he said to me that I was mighty game to stick it out, so, of course, I said nothing. My feet were simply soaked. My skirt was bedraggled from the wet weeds where I had to play out of the rough. My once-perfect marcel was streaming down over my eyes so that I could scarcely see, and I was playing horribly."

"I'll wager that your complexion was melting away, too, wasn't it, Sally, dear?"

"Well, yes, I suppose it was some, though you know very well I don't put on much. Anyway, I was cold through and through and I'm completely miserable and I tried so hard to be gay and spritely that the strain was something awful."

"I know, Sally, it's painful to show a smiling countenance when your whole being is concentrating on one large dawn."

"After nearly three hours in the pouring rain," Sally continued, "we got back to the clubhouse and found Adeline sitting there on the porch in the very pink of perfection as far as costume, hair and poise goes. I never saw her look so pretty before. Sam cast several admiring glances in her direction, and Adeline exclaimed solicitously about my condition. She was afraid I would catch cold, and she suggested that I ask the steward for an electric heater to dry my dank hair, and she wondered whether my skirt would ever come clean again. There was nothing in my wrecked condition that she didn't call attention to in the sweetest way."

"She is a sweet girl," said Jack, "and very pretty."

"All men are alike! How do you think I felt when I came back from repairing my appearance as best I could, to see Sam, all fresh from his shower bath, dancing with Adeline? I felt like taking my midiron and smashing the phonograph."

"Girls never will learn that they can't be game sports and languishing beauties at the same time," remarked Jack.—Exchange.

Young Caused the Neighbors to Gossip

When Owen D. Young announced that he was going to college the neighbors surely did gossip. No one from the farming community around Van Hornersville, N. Y., had gone to such a place but "they had heard boys had gone wrong there."

Young was born on a farm, he attended the country school when the farm work was light, and later went to a village academy five miles away, carrying a week's food in a cheese box each Monday when he left home.

Even though the community was scandalized he prepared, when he was 15, to win a scholarship for mathematics at Cornell University—and at the last moment found that applicants were required to be at least 17.

His first ride on a train took him to little St. Lawrence University, at Canton, and he worked his way through.

He wanted to be a lawyer, but had no money. He tried to enter Harvard, but was told that it would be impossible to get through without funds. Entering Boston Law School, he earned his way by tutoring and doing odd jobs. Finishing the three-year course in two, he was graduated as 21.

After being admitted to the bar he was offered a position with a lawyer in Lawrence, Mass., went home to prepare to accept—and received word that his prospective employer had died. He entered a Boston law office and eventually became a partner in the firm. His attention was drawn to electrical and public utility problems while his reputation as a successful lawyer was growing. Then he decided he wanted to be with the General Electric Company.

When invited to become general counsel and vice president of that company he was so pleased that he did not ask the salary. He became interested in other phases of the work and last year was elected chairman of the corporation.

Young served as a member of the committee of experts chosen to investigate Germany's financial condition. He is well-to-do and successful, and whenever he has a chance he goes back to work on the old farm for a while.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Puritan blood, earnest, fervid and deeply religious, courses through the veins of Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, the famous English Congregationalist preacher who is being urged to return to America to occupy the pulpit of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church in New York city. Dr. Morgan is well known on this side. It is now nearly a quarter of a century since he first came over to take the pastorate at Northfield, Mass., left vacant by the death of Dwight L. Moody. Since then he has preached and lectured in many parts of the country. Dr. Morgan was born in Tetbury, England, in 1863, and in early life was a school teacher. He abandoned this calling for the work of the evangelist, and in 1889 accepted a call to the pastorate of a Congregational church in Stafforshire. In 1897 he went up to London, where as pastor of the New Court Congregational church he soon became famous. His pulpit eloquence is more of the persuasive than of the trenchant kind.

NICARAGUA: LIVING UP TO HER GEOGRAPHY

Nicaragua is trying to live up to the golden promise of her geography.

"Her efforts to conduct her presidential election without the disorders that marked the Honduras elections are indicative of the new era in Central American affairs," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Nicaragua is the largest of the Central American republics; many acclaim it the most beautiful. It has vast forests of precious woods, untold resources of valuable minerals and soil so fertile that it has been said, 'If you tickle the ground with a hoe it smiles back with a yam.'

"There is a darker side—no region of its size anywhere in the world has been so beset by revolutions and volcanic eruptions. After a century of almost perpetual civil war Nicaragua has settled down to comparative peace in recent years and already has begun to reap the dividends in amazing progress toward prosperity. Modern science can ameliorate the disasters from volcanoes by approximate predictions of their explosions, while it also has taught the Nicaraguans that the eruptions of the past were blessings in disguise, because they fertilized the land to a marvelous degree.

"The country is about the area of New York state and its total population is only a little larger than that of Buffalo. It has two mountain ridges which enclose the 'Great Lakes of Central America,' Lake Nicaragua and Managua.

"A glance at a Central America map tells the story of Nicaragua's backwardness in bygone years. Costa Rica, to the south, and Honduras, to the north, are accessible from the Atlantic Ocean; all of Nicaragua's important cities are on the Pacific side of her coastal mountains. To the east of the mountains lie her lakes, and she presents to the Caribbean a very unprepossessing 'back yard,' with the world's worst real estate designation, the Mosquito Coast.

"Today, with Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle to tap her markets Nicaragua's Pacific frontage is a blessing. But yesterday, when the Atlantic ports of North America and Europe were doing the world's shipping she was severely handicapped.

"Curiously, too, her Mosquito Coast was appropriately named by error. The appellation was not intended for the insect, which abounds there, but is a corruption of the name of the 6,000 Indians, the Misskits, who survive there.

"The country's northernmost Caribbean headline, Cape Gracias a Dios, is a headline of geography. Columbus explored the Central American coast on his last voyage and, cruising east from Cape Honduras, was compelled to take shelter from a storm at a point where the coast abruptly turns to the south. He named the cape 'Thanks to God' and took possession of the country for Spain.

"That was in 1502. A century before the Mayflower touched at Plymouth Rock, the Spaniards were established along the lake region in far western Nicaragua, despite the unwelcome volcanic outbursts. Especially vigorous was the explosion of Masaya, in 1522. The most sensational single eruption, however, occurred within a century from our day—when [illegible] blew off its head in 1835. For days a black pall obscured the sun, dust blanketed the fields and forests, animals died by the thousands from thirst and hunger.

"Tradition says that it was into the crater of the above mentioned Masaya that Friar Blas, of Castile, lowered a bucket in 1534 in the hope of drawing up molten gold. When it touched the lava the bucket melted and the good friar wrote home, 'One cannot behold the volcano without fear, admiration, and repentance of his sins; for it can be surpassed only by eternal fire.

"At the foot of Mount Masaya is a lake of that name, and near the lake is the little town of Masaya. Were it not so remote one might suspect the writer of a popular American song had plagiarized the cry of the women fruit vendors who drone:

"I have oranges, panayas, jocotes, Melons of water, of gold and zapotes. Will you buy?

"But Nicaragua has bananas—she exports between a million and two millian dollars' worth yearly. Only one other crop nets her more and that is coffee.

"Strangely enough a revolution in Sao Paulo, the world's chief coffee producing center, may well have the effect of increasing the value of Nicaragua's crop to a point where it will be worth Nicaragua's while to employ every means to stabilize her government."

Without Diets, Absurd Creams, Exercises or Reducing Girdles.

I reduced my own weight 30 pounds in less than 3 weeks, and at the same time, marvelously improved my general health and appearance with a new French discovery called SAN-GRI-NA. To-day I look, act and feel far younger than my real age. From the results in my own case, and those of my friends, I am absolutely convinced that any man or woman burdened with rolls of ugly, injurious, unwholesome fat, can take it off easily, quickly and safely with SAN-GRI-NA. Every day science discovers something new. SAN-GRI-NA is one of the latest French discoveries for the reduction of excess fat. It does away with weakening diets—tiresome exercises—torturing garments and absurd and expensive so-called reducing creams. It is used extensively in Paris, where women of every age pride themselves on keeping their figures slender and graceful, and where the men detest a heavy waistline or double chin. No matter how fat you are, or what you have done in the past to reduce, you must remember that SAN-GRI-NA has never been offered before to the American public—IT IS GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS—does not contain any dangerous drugs, and cannot possibly affect your stomach or your health. By simply taking two small tablets before each meal I lost 30 pounds in two months, and I haven't regained a pound since. I eat all I want and enjoy the best of health. You can do the same. To-day go to any good drug store, ask for a package of SAN-GRI-NA. Do not accept anything else, as it is the only thing I ever found to reduce after I had tried hundreds of different ways and remedies.

SAN-GRI-NA is now sold at Lee & Osgood's, McLaughlin's, or Bray's drug stores.

Stories That Recall Others

He Started Well, But—

There are no new golf stories, the seasoned player says, but among those of the last ten years, the following is frequently told.

The "dub" had come in from a wild trip around the eighteen-hole course. He looked rather tired, so a fellowplayer asked him what his luck had been.

"Well," the dub said slowly, "I don't know. I made nine on the first hole, eleven on the second, and then I just blew up and wasn't any good at all."

Why They Waited

A truck had drawn up at the curb and from it a gang of workmen were taking a big plate glass pane to be placed in the shop window.

As carefully bearing the big pane they proceeded toward the window, there gathered the usual crowd, including two small errand boys, who evinced much more interest in the proceedings than any one else.

When fifteen minutes had passed, one of the youths, growing weary of the extreme deliberation of the workmen with the glass, turned to his companion and said:

"We may as well be moving, Tom. They are not going to drop it."

SEEKING TO INSURE SAFETY OF WILD FOWL

In response to numerous petitions recommending an immediate reduction in bag limits on wild ducks and geese and requests for an expression of the views of the Department of Agriculture on the subject, Secretary Wallace announces that since the first migratory bird law became effective, March 4, 1923, the department has received many communications from nearly every section of the country indicating a very substantial increase in mogratory birds, particularly wild ducks and geese. He states, however, that some persons assert that migratory birds, especially migratory wild fowl, while having increased greatly increased in numbers for some years after the Migratory Bird Law became effective, have really decreased during the past few years and that impressions of an increase are gained because some of the birds now are concentrated in existing areas untouched by the drainage operations that have destroyed such a large portion of their former homes.

In order that Migratory Bird Treaty Act and Regulations may be efficiently administered, the department constantly seeks and is receiving information concerning migratory bird conditions, and will continue to acquire additional data on this subject. The National Outdoor Recreation Conference adopted a resolution recommending suitable reductions in bag limits where necessary and Mr. Chauncey J. Hamlin, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Conference, at the quest to carry on an investigation to determine whether waterfowl are increasing or decreasing in the United States. In compliance with this request, the Biological Survey of the department has sent out a questionnaire to conservation societies, sportsmens,state and provincial game departments, and the game wardens of men's and game protective associaup-to-date information concerning the the biological survey. It collaborators, and its scientific observers, to obtain present status of migratory birds and the condition of their breeding, feeding, and resting places. The data gathered will be given careful consideration by the department, as well as by its advisory board, and also will be available for use of the National Outdoor Recreation Conference.

by DAVID CORY

At the Fairy's House

You remember when Little Jack Rabbit woke up in the story before this he found that the big white albatross who had brought him back from Snowflake Country had flown away. I suppose the big bird was anxious to get back to Mrs. Albatross and his children.

Well, after Little Jack Rabbit had rubbed his eyes and stretched his legs, he started off flopping more upon his journey through Fairy Land. By and by he grew hungry, but there was no house in sight and he didn't know where to get his breakfast, when, all of a sudden, that dear little yellow bird, whose name I'm going to tell you some day, began to sing:

"Way over yonder on top of the hill,
Is a little white house by the side of a rill.
And in it there lives a fairy so sweet,
I'm sure she will give you something to eat."

"Who are you?" asked the startled little rabbit, looking about to find who was singing this pretty song, but he saw only a flutter of yellow wings and nothing more. So off he hopped to the little white house on the top of the hill, and when the little fairy answered his knock, he said: "I'm very hungry. Won't you give me some breakfast?"

"Come in," laughed the little fairy, who was dressed in a fuzzy pink dress and a silver spangled crown. And straightway she went to the cupboard and brought out a saucer of fairy food. All of a sudden, in came a troop of little fairies on butterflies bringing with them candy flower lollypops.

And in less than five hundred short seconds, the happy bunny boy's pockets were full and overflowing, and after that he said "Thank you!" and "Goodbye!" and went upon his way happy and contented. For a traveler who has had a good breakfast need not worry. The open country is his home and the breezes the music that keeps his feet to the tune of marching.

Well, by and by, after many a mile and many a song and many a smile, for Little Jack Rabbit could whistle as well as Bobbie Redvest from his nest in the dell. Goodness me! There goes my typewriter again making up poetry! But never mind for Little Jack Rabbit is hurrying along and will meet with another adventure if we don't look out.

All of a sudden, a great big tremendous dragon, with a long scaley tail, crept out of a cave and opened his big mouth. And, Oh, dear me! His breath was as hot as the steam from a bursting boiler pipe and his tongue as red as fiery flame. "What are you doing here?" asked that dreadful dragon with a hiss and a snort. For just a moment Little Jack Rabbit was frightened and if he hadn't hopped nimbly to one side he would have been scorched. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

CHEAPER FOR CITY TO BUY POWER THAN GENERATE IT WITH STEAM

In a letter to Mayor Milo R. Waters General Manager H. D. Larrabee of the Eastern Connecticut Power company states that if the city had purchased power instead of generating it by steam the profits of the city's electrical plant for the last five years would have been greater than they were by something over $240,000. The letter was prompted by a pamphlet sent out over Mayor Waters' signature for the special committee on gas and electric matters, several weeks ago. The pamplet contains, in addition to statistics relating to the gas and electrical department, seven questions with answers, giving additional information concerning the department. Some of these answers, Mr. Larrabee's letter says, are incorrect or incomplete, which might make them misleading. Mr. Larrabee's letter to Mayor Waters follows:

Honorable Milo R. Waters,
Mayor of the City of Norwich,
Norwich, Connecticut.

Dear Sir:-

A pamphlet was sent out over your signature, about July 20th, 1924, for the special committee on gas and electric matters. This is entitled "Facts concerning the Gas and Electrical Department" and it contains figures showing operations of the city's gas and electric property. These figures were published in the Norwich Evening Record of June 28th, 1924, and are discussed at some length in the booklet of The Eastern Connecticut Power Company which was presented to members of the Special Committee at a meeting held July 8th, 1924.

The pamphlet of July 30th contains, in addition to the figures, seven questions with answers, giving additional information concerning the gas and electrical department. Some of these answers are incorrect or incomplete, which might make them misleading, and we make the following comments to bring out the facts more clearly:

Question 1: "What is the Gas and Electric Department?" The answer that it is a public utility "operated under the laws of Connecticut governing public utilities" is not correct. Chapter 191 of the statutes on public service corporations includes railroad, street railway, electric, gas, telephone, telegraph and water companies, "but shall not include towns, cities, boroughs or any municipal corporation or department thereof, whether separately incorporated or not." The Gas and Electrical Department is, therefore, specifically excluded. A different set of laws apply to the establishment of a municipal plant, but they do not have any governing or regulatory provisions beyond the Board of Gas and Electrical Commissioners.

Under the Gas and Electrical Department	Under Company Operation
The board fixes the rates and there is no appeal.	You may appeal to the public utilities commission and the courts.
The obligation to serve is determined by the board and there is no appeal.	The obligation to serve may be determined by the public Utilities commission.
Service standards are set by the Board.	Service standards of the public utilities commission must be met.
Construction standards are not in any way set or required.	Construction must be up to the safety and other standards set by the public utilities commission.
Meter accuracy is not in any way required.	Meters must be kept accurate in the limits set by the public utilities commission.
No requirement as to adequacy of plant and equipment is made.	Plant equipment must be adequate as determined by the public utilities commission.

The question of the property is solely under the jurisdiction of the board of gas and electrical commissioners. It is separate from the city's activities and control as much as if owned and operated by a private corporation in some distant place. In fact the control of the city or customer is less than under private ownership and operation in the matters which really affect the character and cost of service, such as rates, service, standards of construction, adequacy of plant and accuracy of meters. The city owns the property but it is separately operated by the board—so separately in fact that there appears to be no legal way by which the city can secure the profit earned. The city's credit has been pledged in acquiring the business to the extent that $958,000.00 of the total city debt of $2,100,000.00 lies in the gas and electric property, and yet the city is denied any profit from its operation.

Question 2, "What is its value?" The answer complains about 5 per cent. depreciation as being too much. A man's house and land might, under certain conditions, increase in value, but, when it comes to "other property" how about his automobile or lawn mower? In a gas and electric property the amount invested in land and buildings, which might not depreciate is a small part of the total investment. The items covering boilers, turbines, gas equipment, gas mains, electric lines, meters and transformers constitute the bulk of the investment and some of these depreciate rapidly, especially where the capacities are relatively small. Turbines are costly and become obsolete in a few years. Their replacement means also new boilers because higher steam pressures are required. The telephone companies set 15 years as the ultimate life of a pole, and while much of the city's electric lines are now in need of rebuilding, probably very few of the poles are that old.

Question 3, "Did the city pay $1,286,764 for the business?" The answer compares this figure with "the whole amount" as being $527,000.00. As a matter of fact $331,000 in other bonds are outstanding so that the amount referred to should be $958,000.00.

Questions 4 and 5, have clear and complete answers. The answer to question 5 points out that the obtaining of "an appropriation" at the annual city meeting is merely formal.

Question 6 and 7 as to how the department spends the money, and as to whether the business is profitable have answers which naturally run to the same subject. The answers show clearly that the profits are all absorbed in betterments, as we have already shown in our booklet.

The difference of $323,764 between the value shown for the property and the $958,000 of indebtedness has come from the profits of operation, but these profits come from the charges for gas and electricity—in other words this difference has been contributed by the user of the service. The profits have, therefore, not been available to the customer any more than they have to the city. They are still in the property and can be realized upon only by the sale of that property. These profits could be used for reductions in rates, but they have not been so used during the 20 years of the city's ownership and operation. Had power been purchased instead of generated by steam the profits for the last five years would have been greater than money was something over $240,000.

These comments are made with the thought in mind that this matter should be perfectly clear, if possible, and in line with your express desire that all the facts be fairly set forth.

Yours very truly,
The Eastern Connecticut Power Co.
H. D. LARRABEE
General Manager

MANAGER TAGGART COMMENTS ON PROPOSED CONTRACT

Incorporated in the report of the board of gas and electrical commissioners to the special committee of the court of common council appointed to take under consideration the offer of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., to buy the city's gas and electric plant is the following comment by General Manager Charles W. Taggart of the gas and electric department on the various sections of the proposed contract.

1. Line and Equipment:

The city is to provide the Power Company with a right of way for poles and wires through the City streets, together with land for erecting a substation. The ownership of the poles, sub-station, etc., is to remain with the Power Company. Nothing is said about the streets, etc., being occupied for the duration of the contract exclusively, nor is there any provision for the removal of the poles, etc., at the termination of the contract. Legal opinion on this subject might construe this as being an entering wedge for the Power Company to permanently occupy the streets of the City of Norwich, with the possibility of its trying to take over a portion of the City's electric business, similar to the negotiations they had in 1920 for furnishing power for the Ironsides Board Corporation and similar to the contract they secured in 1920 from the Ponemah Company.

The contract provides that the city is to pay the Power Company an annual charge of 11 per cent. on the total cost of the poles, lines and substation equipment just referred to. No fixed amount is named as to what that cost would not exceed.

2. Delivery and Metering:

Energy is to be delivered at the low tension side of the transformers of the sub-station above referred to, but is to be metered and paid for on the high tension side, in other words, the city must stand the expense of the iron and copper losses in the transformers, which in this instance would be a considerable item.

3. Standard of Service:

The wording of the voltage regulation in this clause is indefinite. Mention is made of provision of automatic feeder regulators of a standard type but nothing is said about the size or capacity of such regulators. It would be possible under this clause, as worded, for the Power Company to give a service which is very inferior to that which the citizens of Norwich, as well as the power consumers, have been receiving for a considerable period.

The Eastern Connecticut Power Company has failed to include a guarantee clause specifically providing that the voltage variation shall not exceed a certain amount above or below the normal, and also failed to include a guarantee for the continual supply of energy to the city. The following clause which it does stipulate is in my judgment, inadequate:

"It is, nevertheless, agreed that the Eastern Company shall do all it reasonably can to maintain such standard of service as will enable the Board to render good service to its various classes of customers."

4. Extent of Service:

The contract provides for lines and equipment of a maximum demand up to 4000 K. W. of two phase energy, or 6000 K. W. of three phase energy, and that when the city's requirements grow to be in excess of that amount, additional apparatus will be provided. The city will then be required to make an additional annual payment of 11 per cent. of the cost of such additional apparatus.

5. Term:

This clause provides for the contract to be in force for a period of ten (10) years unless terminated at an earlier date by "mutual consent." I consider any cancellation clause as objectionable, for, the city after abandoning its power station would be virtually without one and would consequently be at the mercy of the Power Company unless the contract were absolutely rigid in this respect.

6. Rate and Payment:

The proposed contract stipulates an entirely different method of charging the city for electricity than the method under which the city sells energy for both power and lighting. The city buys energy from the Uncas Power company at a specified rate per K. W. H., and all the energy which the city sells to its customers for either lighting or power is also sold at flat rates per K. W. H., varying according to the character of the service and the amount consumed.

The rate proposed by the Eastern Connecticut Power company is a double affair, first an energy charge of a specific amount for each Kilowatt of energy consumed, plus a coal surcharge for coal in excess of $4.00 per gross ton unloaded, and second, in addition a demand charge of $1.35 per month per Kilowatt of the maximum demanded, and it is this demand charge which would prove to be burdensome.

Demand Charge:

The peak load readings at the city's power station, together with a table applying the $1.35 per K. W. demand charge were as follows:

		Peak Load K.W.	Demand Charge @ $1.35 per K.W.
1923	May	2300	$ 3,015
	June	3100	4,185
	July	3000	4,050
	August	3200	4,320
	September	3400	4,590
	October	3600	4,860
	November	3600	4,050
	December	3200	4,320
1924	January *	3300	4,455
	February	3200	4,320
	March	3000	4,050
	April	2500 (x)	3,645

(x) 75 per cent. of 3600 K. W.-2,700 K. W., consequently city would have had to pay for 2700 K. W. demand.

The above readings were of the indicating watt meters at the city's power station, taken each hour, on the hour, during the month and were for the general information of the management. A power contract having a demand charge would necessitate the installation of a curve drawing instrument giving an accurate record of the Kilowatt load for each minute during the month, and a thirty minute maximum reading from the chart of such an instrument would likely give a much lighter demand reading than the method now employed by the city. This increase might easily be 10 per cent. or 15 per cent. In order to be conservative in obtaining a comparison of the cost of the purchase of energy, we are assuming an increase of 5 per cent.

5 per cent. of $50,760 equals $2,538.

The proposed contract under the leading "demand charge" contains the following:

"Said demand shall be taken as ——not less than 75 per cent. of the demand established during any of the next previous eleven months."

As an illustration of how this portion of the demand clause would penalize the city, take the peak loads given above. It will be observed that in October 1923, the peak load was 3600 K. W. and in April 1924 the peak load was 2500 K. W. 75 per cent. of 3600 K. W. is 2700 K. W. Consequently for April, 1924, the city would have had to pay for a demand of 2700 K. W. which is 200 K. W. more than actually occurred amounting to an extra charge of $270 for that month. This $270 is not a large amount. The city, however, would have been severely penalized by this clause for the eleven months following the shut down of the Winchester and Norwich Woolen Mills.

In all of the contracts which the City has with its power consumers, none are penalized for shutting down and this liberality and flexibility are generally recognized.

This demand charge clause also contains the following:

"Excess demands which may be caused by failure in emergencies of the Uncas Power Company to deliver energy to the board shall not be considered in the billing of demand charges by the Eastern Company.

Regarding this portion of the demand clause, I interpret "failure in emergencies" of the Uncas Power Company to mean a breakdown in the transmission line accident to machinery or similar emergencies, but not to cover a shortage of water, and that frequently during the periods of low water when the Uncas Power Company delivers but a small amount of energy to Norwich, all of the remaining energy would of necessity have to be purchased from the Eastern Connecticut Power Company with a corresponding increase in the demand from that company, and if Uncas should be totally shut down or nearly shut down due to low water, for a period of one hour, or even for a period of thirty minutes, a higher peake demand would naturally result, and the city would be compelled to pay not only $1.35 for each K. W. of the extra demand for the month in question, but would also be compelled to pay for the eleven consecutive months, not less than 75 per cent. of that excessive peak demand, and this extra charge of demand could very readily run into several thousands of dollars a year against the city.

Peak Demand

This matter of peak demand would be a serious one and is one which would largely be in the hands of the Uncas Power Company, the Eastern Connecticut Power Company and the city's power consumers who provide the load. In other words, it is a matter over which the city would have very little control but the city would be obligated to pay the bill.

In connection with the excessive peak demand just mentioned, it should be borne in mind, that the Eastern Connecticut Power Company now controls the Uncas Power Company, by

DELIGHTFUL SOCIAL HELD AT CAMP HAPPINESS

A delightfully pretty and enjoyable affair was the outcome of a private social and dance held Tuesday night at Camp Happiness on the Shetucket, an educational and recreational summer camp for girls, two miles beyond Baltic.

The Ideal orchestra of Taftville played for the dancing and their reputation is indeed an enviable one. They played continuously and most willingly, by special request, the newest numbers of the season, I Ain't Gonna Rain No More being one of the most popular and appropriate numbers of the evening. It having stopped raining but two hours previous to the dance.

Both square and round dances were enjoyed, the Paul Jones and tag fox trots being in great demand throughout the evening. Mr. Tinkham of Hanover was the prompter. One of the novelties was a balloon dance during which 100 balloons were scattered and a great deal of sport was enjoyed by the dancers whose determination to burst them was evident when they started.

Miss Helene Crandall of Norwich delighted the guests with a solo dance in which she exhibited extreme grace. She was accompanied by Mrs. Thomas Bamford of Hanover at the piano. The girl campers also entertained by singing a number of songs.

During intermission Miss Myrtle Buteau, hostess for the evening, was assisted in serving refreshments consisting of sandwiches, ice cream and punch by the Misses Lillian Sheridan of New London, swimming instructor and assistant director at the camp, Eleanor Crawford, Viola Watson and Virginia Winslow.

The entirely screened in hall was particularly attractive, huge bouquets and baskets of flowers consisting of dahlias, gladioli, golden rod and ferns being scattered throughout the room, the effect of which was most pleasing against the mellow lights of various lanterns.

There were about one hundred guests from Norwich, New London, Jewett City, Hanover and Baltic. The affair will in all probability be repeated when Miss Buteau returns from her vacation.

NORWICH AUTO PARTY PINNED UNDER AUTO

Three persons narrowly escaped serious injury and possible death Wednesday afternoon about a mile and one half from Gales Ferry when two cars, one owned and operated by Ernest J. Fakourey, of New London and the other by J. Nelson Weymouth of Norwich and carrying two women, collided on a curve.

Mr. Fakourey stated Thursday that he was bound for Norwich and was rounding a curve on the highway about a mile and one-half from Gales Ferry, when the Weymouth car, a Nash touring, came around the curve. The lafter car, he stated seemed to be headed straight for him and he swerved quickly to the right, but not quick enough. The car hit the rear of the Fakourey machine, smashing the hub cap and throwing the whole rear end out of position.

The Weymouth machine turned completely over and landed against a telephone pole at the left of the road, the occupants landing beneath the car. They crawled from under the machine apparently being only slightly bruised and later went in another machine to Red Top, where they originally were bound to attend a picnic. The Nash car suffered damage to the bumper and spring rods but was not damaged as seriously as was Faqourey's car, which was a Bay State.

HARD SURFACE ROAD SOON REPAYS ITS COST

As a result of a survey of traffic made on the Boston Post road in Connecticut, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has issued a bulletin showing how a good, hard-surface road soon repays its cost. The bureau of public roads produces figures to support its statement.

The Connecticut survey brought out the information that the average weight of vehicles and commodities passing over the road each day was more than 1,500 gross tons. Using figures on the cost of haulage that were worked out by economists at the Iowa experiment station, it is shown that the cost of moving this traffic over a dirt road would be $26.44 an almost impossible job, while it cost only $11.70 a day to move the same tonnage over a paved road.

This alone was a daily saving of $14.74, and on the basis of 300 days a year the actual saving in fuel for moving the tonnage would be $4,422. If the paved highway costs $40,000 per mile which is the general average, the saving above interest charges, would pay for the road in less than twelve years, the government statisticians show. They point out further that these figures do not take into account other savings in the cost of operating commercial vehicles or the value of the heavy movement of passenger cars.

In less developed rural sections the value of the gasoline saved is reduced in proportion to the lighter travel, but the cost of the roads is correspondingly reduced.

SUMATRA WINS RICH RAINY DAY STAKE AT NORTH RANDALL TRACK

North Randall, Cleveland, O., August 14.—(By the A. P.)—After going into a break in the first heat and finishing sixth, Sumatra, the Belwinian filly, owned by H. J. Schlesinger, Milwaukee, Wis., and driven by Ben White, Lexington, Ky., won the next two heats and the rainy day sweepstakes for two-year old trotters, with a value of $10,500, feature of the Grand Circuit program here today. The event was the first of a series of $10,000 stakes for two year olds to be raced in the Grand Circuit this year. Stablemate, went into a break soon after leaving the wire in the first heat.

Sumatra and Miss McElwyn, her white laid off the pace, which was set by Lightning Flash to the turn where Sam Williams, second all the way, moved up and took the mile. Miss McElwyn was distanced.

In the second mile, Sumatra in an outside position, went into the lead and maintained it the entire distance, winning easily. Lightning Flash was in front from the quarter pole to the three quarters where Sumatra came on again in the third heat and also won it comfortably. Sam Williams was through after the first mile.

Thomas W. Murphy, the Syracuse reinsman, narrowly escaped injury in the first heat of the three year old pace, when Romana Direct stumbled and tipped the sulky right after the start. The sulky of Bootsie passed over Murphy's body, but outside of a shaking up, he was not injured and drove his horses the rest of the day.

The three year old pace was won by Theodore Guy, undefeated this year.

Pavonia, despite a stiff wind down the back stretch, trotted the fastest mile of the year when he stepped around the oval in 2:01 4-5 in his successful effort to break his record of 2:02 1-4.

SUB BASE STARTED IN ON FOOTBALL PRACTICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, August 14—The boom of the pigskin was sounded at the Submarine Base, where the initial practice of the season was held under the able direction of Lieutenant Arnold. Twenty nine men, mostly seasoned veterans of last year's team answered the first call sounded for football. Of this number, nine remain from last seasons first team and it is expected that they will not be fixtures on the eleven this year for a number of new men have arrived who are expected to press the veterans of last year hard for their positions.

This afternoon's practice was of the preliminary nature only, and those who are members of the baseball nine were given 1st consideration in going through the preliminary steps that are necessary to round out a first class team. Failing, on the pig skin and a short calisthetic drill that lasted about half an hour took up the majority of the afternoon of the initial workout. The Base has a squad of coaches this season, all former stars of Annapolis, and they bid fair to give the Base one of the best years on the gridiron.

Of the twenty nine candidates who answered the first call to don the mole skins Baldy Locke at the full back position, Kelley, quarterback; Bailey, center; Crompton and Murphy, ends; Anderlot and Low, tackles; May and High, guards; are all veterans from last year. In addition to this number, Wichard and Donovan of the championship Newport Training Station eleven of last year and who were but recently transferred to the Submarine Base, are also out for positions on the team. It is understood that the Base team will be made up of the above named players, and the vacancies which will not be filled by players of last seasons team will be filled by men who were transferred from other stations, after the football season last year came to a close.

The entire football schedule is not drawn up at present, such college teams as Holy Cross, Springfield College and Providence College will be included in the schedule. If the above named teams are but a sample of the elevens that will be met by the gobs this coming fall, there is no doubt that football will reach its height of success this coming season. The prospects of the personnel of the eleven also points toward a most successful season.

With a new sport always taking the undivided attention of the sailors stationed at the Base, a way to do away with the confliction of players who are expected to play on the football team who are at present a member of the baseball nine, has been found. The baseball schedule which was so arranged so as to come to an end September sixth with the Fort Trumbull stars of this city, will end on August 31 instead. This game was moved up by both parties concerned and it will help the football coaches at the Base to get all afternoon from those now on the baseball nine, instead of a part afternoon which they will receive until the termination of the baseball season.

With both the Riverview and Sub Base teams eager to oppose each other on the diamond once more to settle the tie that now exists, a date has been set for the playing off of this tie and the date selected by both parties is August 27th. The field this game will be played on has not been selected as yet, but a conference between Lieutenant Arnold representing the Sub Base and Manager Donovan representing the State Hospital, will be held Friday for the setting of the place where the game will be played.

Meanwhile the Mase team is finishing up its schedule, the Base field is a busy place these days. Both the diamond players and the gridiron players are busy going through their paces, with the latter players having the harder time of the two. The sailors slogan is a big year this season in all sports and football will be first of all activities.

TIGER PITCHERS UNABLE TO HOLD ATHLETICS

Philadelphia, Aug. 14.—Four Detroit pitchers were unable to stem the fusillade of hits that rung off the Athletics' bats today and the Tigers lost an opportunity to take first place from the Yankees by losing 11 to 5. Philadelphia thrice came from behind to tie the count and in the sixth inning took the lead and were never headed. Stoner, who pitched the eighth inning, was found for six hits, which, with two walks, gave the locals five runs.

Firpo a Student of English

New York, Aug 14.—Luis Angel Firpo, business man and boxer, is now a student of English.

The burly Argentine has purchased a dictionary and studies it assiduously so that he may be better equipped to carry on his various activities here.

Last year Firpo found himself frequently at a disadvantage, conversationally, when conducting negotiations in this country. Now he speaks comparative fluent English.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch

The score is a tie and the bases are full with either one out or none out.

What would be a good play to break up a rally?

When the bases are full, the runners very seldom look for a throw from the catcher to second base with either the shortstop or second baseman taking the throw. In consequence the majority of runners under these conditions always take a big lead off second and they are always moving towards third when the pitcher starts to pitch. So it's a good thing for the catcher to signal a put-out to the pitcher and then have him peg the ball down to second. It helps the pitcher out of a tight hole to catch a man off second in this way and now and then you can do it.

FIRPO SIGNS FORMAL PAPERS FOR BOUT WITH WILLS

New York, Aug. 14.—Luis Angel Firpo forsook his training camp at Saratoga today to visit Tex Rickard and sign formal contracts with the promoter for his battle with Harry Wills at Boyle's Thirty Acres Sept. 11. At the same time the Argentine disposed of his share of the motion picture rights to Rickard for an amount understood to have been $10,000.

Rickard and Firpo previously had agreed on all essentials of their contract, but final details were cleared up today during a conference of several hours in Madison Square Garden, where the presence of the big South American attracted a crowd of several hundred persons. No details of the contract were disclosed by Rickard, but it was understood Firpo's and calls for 37 1-2 per cent. of the "gate," while Wills is to receive 27 1-2.

Declaring himself better equipped both mentally and physically for his fight with Wills than he was a year ago for his title match with Jack Dempsey, the "wild bull's" appearance bore out his statement. He tipped the scales at 225 pounds, but said he expected to weigh about 218 when he enters the ring against the negro. He weighed about 214 for his fights with Willard and Dempsey last [illegible].

Firpo is not only confident of victory over Wills, but believes he will end the bout by a knockout not later, he asserts, than the seventh or eighth round. Nevertheless, the Argentine's training program for the next month indicates he is not underestimating his dusky opponent.

Firpo discussed sparring partners with Frank Flournoy, Rickard's match-maker, and as a result several will be added in the near future, including Bartley Madden, Irish "shock-absorber," who went 15 rounds with Wills last spring and recently stayed the limit with Jack Renault, although badly beaten both times. Joe Stoessel, former amateur champion; Jack Thompson and John Lester Johnson, negro boxers, also were likely to be added to the Firpo camp.

Hardigs Vs. Eagles Tonight

The Hardigs and Eagles will engage in the second game of their series this Friday evening at the Fairgrounds. The Hardigs also have a game scheduled for Saturday afternoon at the Fairgrounds.

At Last

George Madden's Nuggets team in the Twilight league won its first and last game Thursday night. The West Ends, the team that was scheduled to play the Nuggets, failed to put in an appearance and Manager Madden claimed the game by a forfeit.

FIRST GAME OF SERIES BETWEEN MARRIED AND SINGLE MEN TONIGHT

Tonight at 6 p. m. the gates of the Duwell Park will be thrown open, the Married Men will put away their crutches, their wives will drag out the old liniment bottle, the rival managers will bring out their favorite hustlers, Matt Delaney the pride of the force will cry "play ball" and the big East Side Married Men and Single Men's series of 1924 will be on.

On the eve of the big series the whole of the East Side was keyed up to a high pitch everyone laying money on their favorite team with the Married Men ruling a slight favorite as a result of last year's victory and the strong pitching staff that Mgr. Cook has signed up for the coming games. Tonight the grounds will be packed with rooters for the single men and the wives of the less fortunate, the newlyweds to cheer their darling "heroes" to victory, while the older and wiser wives will watch their "old fools" perform, as one of the married women was heard to say last night, "Whatever the outcome of tonight's game it will put the winning team in a good position to cop the series." The married men, well used to hard battles, are confident of making a clean sweep of the series and according to stories coming from their better halves had better succeed or else they will be suffering from ailments other than stiff muscles.

Mgr. Cook gave his benedicts their last workout last night, which lasted for two hours and then sent them home with orders to retire early. Cook has great confidence in "Blah Blah" Coleman, the Chinese wonder, and will send him into the box in hopes of copping the first game.

Although Mgr. Pedace still refuses to make a statement it is rumored that he spent the evening at the clubhouse giving his lads skull practice, which, according to their past performances, should do them a world of good.

When the married men take the field it will be in the following order: "Whacko" Riley, considered the best catcher that ever donned a gold band, will be Coleman's battery mate; "Joe" Belair, Duwell star who only only recently marched down the aisle for "better or worse" will be on first; "Jumbo" James, rotound and robust colored star, at second; Mgr. Cook at short, and Dutch Leonard, the well known token-taker, at third; in outfield will be Bill Shanley, "Pills" Randall, "Birt" Lamphire and Charlie Dickerman, with Farmer Sway, "Doc" Campbell, Bill Disco, Jr., and many other old timers in reserve.

Mgr. Pedace has collected many new recruits and will present an entirely different team from the one that was the cause of his riding the goat last year. Although he refused to publish a lineup it is known that two of his new recruits are Kirk Wilcox, fresh from the sticks of Preston, and "Wild Bill" Dearing, former wrestler and all around athlete.

TWO FOREIGN STARS SHARE HONORS WITH CALIFORNIANS

Casino, Newport, R. I., Aug. 14.—(By the A. P.)—Norman E. Brookes, the master of Australian lawn tennis, and Brian I. C. Norton, former South African Davis cup star, shared the honors with the two Californians in winning places in the semi final round of the Casino cup singles on the turf courts here today. Brookes, the 47 year old master of the raquet, in easy stroke defeated John F. Whitbeck, Bronxville, N. Y. 6-4, 6-0.

Norton fought his way through two rounds. In somewhat uneven form he began by defeating William J. Clothier, Philadelphia, national champion of 1906, 7-5, 2-6, 6-4. To gain the semi final he outplayed Lewis N. White of the University of Texas, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4. The battle against Clothier was a duel at deep court driving.

William M. Johnston, San Francisco, and Harvey Snodgrass, Los Angeles, gained the other bracket. "Little Bill" of the Davis cup defense was forced to the limit of his game to defeat Dr. George King, New York, 6-2, 5-7, 8-6

Snodgrass, playing with cyclonic speed at drive volley, simply overwhelmed Clarence J. Griffin, San Francisco. The tally was 6-0, 6-3.

All vestage of an international contest was eliminated from the doubles. The best match as the field narrowed to an all-American affair was that in which Lewis N. White and Louis L. Thalheimer, University of Texas national intecollegiate champions conquered Norman E. Brookes and R. E. Schlesinger, Australia, 4-6, 8-6, 6-2.

DUWELLS TO PLAY AT RIVERVIEW ON SATURDAY

Final arrangements were completed on Thursday evening between Manager Jimmy Pedace of the Duwell A. C. and William Donovan of the Riverview club for a series between the Riverview club and the Duwells, the first game to be played on Saturday pital diamond. This game his been the afternoon at the Norwich State Hostalk of the local fans since the announcement was made earlier in the week that negotiations were under way for such a series.

Both teams have been followed closely by local fans and though they have played against the same teams during not met on the diamond this year both the season and both have met with practically the same results. If there is any edge to be given it would go to the Duwells but it is so slight that it can be safely said that the teams are on an equal basis.

The Duwells will use Tillie Daniels in the box with Coyle or Bill Liberte as a battery mate. Manager Donovan is undecided as to whom he will use against the Duwells.

Lott Retains Title

Chicago, Aug. 14.—George Lott, Jr., Chicago, successfully defended his national junior tennis title by defeating Cranston Holman, Pacific coast junior champion, from San Francisco, in four sets, on the turf courts of the south Side Tennis club here this afternoon 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.

In the finals of the boys' doubles, C. Alphonse Smith and Robert Cooper of Annapolis, won the title by defeating Walter Thomas of Elmora, N. J. and H. H. Bancroft, of San Diego, in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4. After a slow start Smith and Cooper came from behind taking the first set, after which they were in no danger.

Lake St. Bows to Elizabeth St.

There is sorrow in the Lake Street camp this evening. Coach Corcoran's warriors went down to defeat at the hands of the Elizabeth street baseball club. Profiting by the better experience of previous defeat from the Lakers, the home team completely redeemed themselves by triumphing over their ancient rivals, 10 to 5, Thursday evening.

The victors have nothing but praise for the conduct of the Lake Streeters throughout the game. Good sportsmanship was displayed in equal measure by conqueror and conquered.

For the visitors, the work of Mingo behind the bat and Shea atop the mound were the outstanding features of the game. Eight times the willow wept, as five home batsmen failing to connect with Shea's slippery ones, continued to cut huge paths through the ozone for eight strikeouts. Mingo ably backed up the visitors ace.

Elizabeth tonight will sing the praise of George Haddad, Tombari and Millins.

Mullins' work in the central garden plot as well as his excellent work with the stick and on the bases was probably the most sensational of the whole game.

Haddad contributed his ample share to victory by his consistent catching. Tombari dispatched eight visiting batsmen by the strikeout rout; besides being a first-class hurler, his average as a hitter is very high.

Elizabeth street will meet Greeneville tonight at the Academy in a scheduled game. Game to be called at 6:30 p. m. The score:

MISS WILLS DEFEATS MRS. JESSUP IN STRAIGHT SETS

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 14—Miss Helen Wills, of Berkeley, Calif., advanced another step toward the successful defense of her national singles title today when she vanquished Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup of Wilmington, Del., 6-2, 6-3 in the National women's tennis championships at the West Side club and entered the semi-finals.

Tomorrow Miss Wills will meet in the semi-finals a Veteran California rival, Miss Mary K. Browne, of Los Angeles, who held the national title from 1912 to 1914. Miss Browne was forced to three sets today to eliminate Miss Mayme Macdonald, of New York, national clay court champion, 6-3, 8-7, 6-4.

The other singles semi-finalists are Miss Eleanor Goss and Mrs. Molla B. Mallory, seven times champion, both of New York. Miss Goss disposed of Miss Martha Bayard of Short Hills, N. J., today, 8-6, 6-4, while Mrs. Mallory defeated Mrs. F. V. Roesar of Brooklyn, 6-1, 8-1.

Miss Wills figured in a triple victory during the day for the second time in the tournament. Paired with Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman of Boston, the champion won two doubles matches and advanced to the round before the semi-finals where she and her partner tomorrow will oppose Mrs. Roesar and Mrs. Samuel H. Waring of New York.

Two teams reached the semi-finals of the doubles. They were the combinations of Miss Goss and Mrs. Jessup who conquered two Boston players, Mrs. F. H. Godfrey and Mrs. B. E. Cole, and Miss Leslie Bancroft and Miss Edith Sigourney of Boston, who defeated Mrs. Mallory and Miss Eleanora Sears of Boston.

BIG TRACK MEET AT STADIUM IS CANCELLED

New York, Aug. 14.—The International track and field meet planned by the Millrose A. A. at the Yankee stadium September 13 has been cancelled because of the withdrawal of several foreign stars, including Paavo Nurmi, phenomenal finnish distance runner who won four Olympic races and his countryman Albin Stenroos, Olympic Marathon champion.

These stars have promised Millrose officials, however, they will take part in the organizations annual indoor meet next January against the pick of American performers.

Ugo Frigerio of Italy, Olympic walking champion, also is expected to enter the winter meet.

BERNSTEIN GETS DECISION OVER CHILEAN FIGHTER

New York, August 14—Jack Bernstein of Yonkers, N. Y., former junior lightweight champion, upset the championship aspirations of Luis Vicentini, sensational Chilean scrapper tonight when he defeated the South American on points in a 12 round battle in Brooklyn tonight.

Bernstein won the judges' decision with a clean margin on points after he had been knocked down for a count of eight in the second round and had been on the verge of a knockout in both this and the third round under Vicentini's terrific right hand attack.

The Yonkers battler, however, came back with a sensational finish, beating Vicentini to cover with a shifty, jabbing attack that piled

DECLARES FOR GOVERNMENT WITH COMMON SENSE AS ITS GUIDE

President Coolidge Pledges Government Dedicated To Honesty and Economy at Home and Peace Abroad — Favors Principle of Protection, Child Labor Amendment, and Permanent Court of International Justice—Places Emphasis on Agriculture, Tax Modification and Foreign Relations—Favors Further Limitation of Armaments — For Enforcement of Prohibition Law.

Washington, Aug. 14.—The following is the text of the address of President Calvin Coolidge here tonight in accepting the nomination as the candidate of the republican party for president at the election in November.

Mr. Chairman, Members of the Committee, Ladies and Gentlemen:

You bring formal notice, Mr. Chairman, of a nomination for president of the United States. Our system of nominations is not the outcome of chance. It is the product of experience. Very early in their search for a sound method of self-government the American people discovered that the only practical way to secure responsible political action was by the formation of parties, which they adopted because reason pronounced it the most promising, and continued because practice found it the most successful.

Underneath and upholding political parties was, and is, the enduring principle that a true citizen of a real republic can not exist as a segregated, unattached fragment of selfishness, but must live as a constituent part of the whole society, in which he can secure his own welfare only as he secures the welfare of his fellow men.

Party means political cooperation, not as an end in itself, but a means, an instrument of government. If founded upon a great moral principle and directed with scrupulous regard for its interests, it can not fail to press onward and upward, advancing always steadily and surely, a mighty constructive force, a glorious bearer of progress.

That is what the republican party always has been and is today. In full faith that such it will continue to be deeply conscious of the high honor it offers and the responsibility it imposes I accept its nomination for president of the United States.

In the history of our country is recorded the public services rendered by our party for more than threescore years. That is secure. I pass on to the recent past and the present.

Administration Problems

It is easy to forget, but the impression which the condition of our country in March, 1921, made upon the people was so deep, so vivid, so alarming, that it will not soon pass away. Over two years after the armistice we were still technically in a state of war. We had no diplomatic relations with Turkey, Greece, Russia, Columbia, or Mexico, and the Far East was causing grave apprehensions. In raising and expending for war a vast amount of money a reckless extravagance had come to characterize the administration of public affairs and was all too prevalent in private life. An enormous debt had been contracted, then standing at about $24,000,000,000, of which more than $7,000,000,000 was in short-time obligations without any provision for payment. Government bonds were far below par. The high war-time rates still burdened the people.

Demobilization and liquidation remained to be completed. Huge accounts with the railroads were still unsettled. Transportation was crippled. Over $11,000,000,000 of unliquidated debts were due to us from foreign countries. The whole people were suffering from a tremendous deflation. Our banks were filled with frozen assets, and everywhere acute financial distress existed. Interest was high. Capital was scarce. No adequate provision had been made for the relief of disabled veterans and their dependents. There was an avalanche of war-worn peoples and suddenly cheapened merchandise impending upon us from foreign lands. The great powers were still engaged in burdening their people by building competitive armaments.

Administration Accomplishments

This staggering array indicates some of the major problems of this administration. Perhaps in no peace-time period have there been more remarkable and constructive accomplishments than since March, 1921. We have ratified separate treaties of world wide importance with Germany, Austria, Hungary, Colombia, and Mexico. Forty-two other treaties have been approved by the senate, and six treaties are now awaiting its action. Friendly intercourse has been resumed with Turkey and Greece, and we have established our rights and insured peace in the Far East and the Pacific ocean. Our foreign relations have been handled with a technical skill and a broad statesmanship which has seldom, if ever, been surpassed.

Reduced Public Debt

In the domain of finance a budget system was promptly enacted and put into operation, resulting in tremendous savings. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, our expenditures were $6,358,000,000, and our surplus was $66,000,000. For the year just closed our expenditures were $3,687,000,000, and our surplus exceeded $500,000,000. This was a reduction in the annual cost of government of $3,041,000,000. The public debt now stands at about $20,250,000,000, which is a reduction in three years of about $2,750,000,000 and means an annual saving in interest of more than $120,000,000. The $7,000,000,000 of short-time obligations have all been quietly refunded or paid. The internal revenue taxes have been reduced twice, and many of them repealed, so that during the present fiscal year the tax receipts will show a saving to the people of approximately $1,000,000 a day compared with 1921. One government bond has sold well over 105.

More than 40 per cent of the amount of debts due us from foreign countries has been liquidated, and will provide funds for the retirement of about $13,000,000,000 of the principal of our national debt in the course of 62 years. These settlements are not only stupendous financial transactions, but demonstrations of the most profound nature of international good faith and the dominion over international relations of moral power. The finances of this nation have been managed with a genius and a success unmatched since the days of Hamilton.

Revival of Industry

The Army and Navy have been reduced to a low peace time basis, and surplus materials and supplies converted into cash. Hundreds of millions of accounts have been settled with the railroads, which have been financed without any public expense so that they could adequately serve the greatest peace-time commerce ever moved without a shortage of cars. A great revival of industry took place, which is now spreading to agriculture. Complaint of unemployment has ceased, wages have increased. Capital has become plentiful at a low rate of interest and the banks of our country, as a whole, show a high percentage of liquid assets.

Most generous laws for the relief of disabled veterans have been enacted, and the Veterans' Bureau established. More than 71,000 men and women have been rehabilitated, of whom over 38,000 are earning more than they earned before the war. Compensation is being paid to nearly half a million at the rate of about $100,000,000 a year, which will be increased about $20,000,000 under legislation recently passed. Forty million dollars have been provided for hospital facilities, and under a new law hospitals have been opened to all the veterans of all wars, regardless of the time or cause of their disability. No government ever provided so generously for those disabled by service in time of war.

Immigration Restricted

To preserve American standards for all our inhabitants, whether they were the descendants of former generations residing here or the most recent arrivals, restrictive immigration laws were passed. I should have preferred to continue the policy of Japanese exclusion by some method less likely to offend the sensibilities of the Japanese people. I did what I could to minimize any harm that might arise. But the law has been passed and approved, and the incident is closed. We must seek by some means besides immigration to demonstrate the friendship and respect which we feel for the Japanese nation.

Restricted immigration is not offensive but a purely defensive action. It is not adopted in criticism of others in the slightest degree, but solely for the purpose of protecting ourselves. We can no aspersions on any race or creed, but we must remember that every object of our institutions of society and government will fail unless America be kept American.

Benefits of Tariff

By means of a protective tariff we have saved American agriculture, labor, and industry from the menace of having their great home market destroyed through the dumping upon it of a flood of foreign products. Under this wise policy we saw an economic revival and our people as a whole, in marked distinction from sufferers from the financial distress and depression of other lands, have come into an era of prosperity and plenty. As a source of revenue the tariff has surpassed all expectations in producing an annual return of the unprecedented sum of about $550,000,000. A fiscal policy which places a large and much needed revenue in the public treasury, while stimulating business to a condition of abounding prosperity, defends itself against any criticism. Its merits are demonstrated by its results. We have protected our own inhabitants from the economic disaster of an invasion of too many foreign people or too much foreign merchandise.

Washington Conference

The people have never come to a full realization of the importance of the Washington Conference. It produced the one effective agreement among the great powers in all the history of civilization for relieving the people of the earth from the enormous burden of maintaining competitive naval armaments. I do not believe any conference ever did more to promote the peace of the world. I am perfectly sure that none ever did so much to reduce the cost of government. By removing causes of irritation, in which lay the seeds of war in the Far East, our own country received incalculable benefits. Only when that was done could disarmament follow. What had always before failed, then became a success. A policy was adopted which was more than revolutionary. It was sublime. It demonstrated at last that peace and good will are not vain illusions, but actual realities. The credit for the inception of this epoch-making policy, and for its practical conclusion, is due to the initiative of American statesmanship.

These are some of the larger aspects, though very incompletely depicted, of what this administration has been doing to promote the welfare of the American people. A survey of the economic condition of our country, the industrial peace which prevails, the mighty influence which our moral power exerts throughout the world all testify that it has not been without success.

Government is Sound

There are those who would disregard all this for an undertaking to convince themselves and others that the chief issue of this campaign is honest government. In all my studies of political history I can not recall an administration which was desirous of a dishonest and corrupt government that, for the purpose of checking extravagance, ever undertook to introduce a budget system, to cut down taxes, to purge the pay rolls, to make enormous reductions in the public debt, and to lay firmer foundations for the peace of the world. That is not the way of dishonesty. The government is sound. But individuals charged with wrongdoing are being prosecuted. The people of this country hate corruption. They know my position. They know the law will be enforced.

Wherever there have been suspicions of guilt, involving members of any party, I have caused them to be investigated and, presentation made to the grand jury. If the evidence warranted, those suspected of crime have been indicted; and without favor, but without malice, they will be tried on the charges returned against them. Wherever it has appeared that the property of the government has been illegally transferred and held, action has been brought for its recovery and will be pursued to a final judgment. No government was ever able to prevent altogether the commission of crime, but this government, under my direction, is doing the best it can to detect and punish any and all wrongdoing. The laws of the land are being, and will continue to be, enforced. I propose to use every possible effort to resist corruption in office. The American government must be clean.

Many principles exist which I have tried to represent and propose to support. I believe in the American constitution. I favor the American system of individual enterprise, and I am opposed to any general extension of government ownership and control. I believe not only in advocating economy in public expenditure, but in its practicle application and actual accomplishment. I believe in a reduction and reform of taxation, and shall continue my efforts in that direction. I am in favor of protection. I favor the permanent court and further limitation of armaments. I am opposed to aggressive war. I shall avoid involving ourselves in the political controversies of Europe, but I shall avoid involving ourselves in the political controversies of Europe, but I shall do what I can to encourage American citizens and resources to assist in restoring Europe, with the sympathetic support of our government. I want agriculture and industry on a sound basis of prosperity and equality. I shall continue to strive for the economic, moral, and spiritual welfare of my country. American citizens will decide in the coming election whether these accomplishments and these principles have their approval and support.

Domestic Affairs

The domestic affairs of our country appear to me to be by far the chief concern. From that source comes our strength. The home market consumes nearly all of our production. Within our own boundaries will be determined to a very large degree the economic welfare and the moral worth of the American people. These are plain facts, but there are others equally plain.

America, under Providence, has come to be a nation of great responsibility. It exists as one of the family of nations. We can not be isolated. Other peoples exist all about us. Their actions affect us, and our actions affect them, whether we will or no. Their financial condition is not and can not be entirely separated from our financial condition. But the final determination of our relationship to other countries rises into a higher realm. We believe in the brotherhood of man, because we believe in the fatherhood of God. These is our justification for freedom and equality. We believe in the law of service, which teaches us that we can improve ourselves only by helping others. We know that these principles are applicable alike to our domestic and our foreign relations. We can not live unto ourselves alone.

America for Peace

The foreign policy of America can best be described by one word—peace. Our actions have always proclaimed our peaceful desires, but never more evidently than now. We covet no territory; we support no threatening military army; we harbor no hostile intent. We have pursued, are pursuing, and shall continue to pursue with untiring devotion the cause of peace. These ideals we have put into practical application. We have sought to promote peace not only by word, but by appropriate action. We have been unwilling to surrender our independence. We have refused to ratify the covenant of the League of Nations. But we have cooperated with it to suppress the narcotic trade and promote public health. We have every desire to help, but the time, the place, and the method must be left to our own determination. Under our constitution we can not foreclose the right of the president or the congress to determine future problems when they arise. We must necessarily proceed upon the principle of present cooperation without future entanglements.

As peace means fundamentally a reign of law, we propose to become a member of the Parmapent Court of International Justice. Such action would do much to indicate our determination to restrain the rule of force and solidify and sustain the rule of reason among nations.

We have observed with sympathy the continuing difficulties of Europe. We have desired to assist whenever we could do so effectively. Late in December, 1922, the secretary of state announced the American plan, which was finally adopted. Under it the Reparations Commission appointed a committee of experts of which three were Americans, one of whom, Charles G. Dawes, was chosen chairman. A report has been made which received world wide approbation and has been accepted in principle by the governments interested. At a conference of Prime Ministers held to work out the details of putting this plan into operation, I directed the attendance of Ambassador Kellogg, assisted by Colonel Logan, to represent our government. Throughout all this course of events we helped in the only way we could help.

I believe the substance of the plan ought to be adopted. By that test will be revealed whether Europe really desires our cooperation. If Europe should agree to this proposal, then a private loan should be made by our citizens to Germany for the financial support of this undertaking. The governments interested should make necessary concessions for the security of such a loan. In my opinion such action, by stabilizing Europe, would result in improving our own economic condition. But beyond that it is the duty of our people who have the resources to use them for the relief of war-stricken nations and the improvement of world conditions.

As this is written, reports indicate that the plan of General Dawes will be adopted, and that the effort of America has made a tremendous contribution to the welfare, security, and peace of the world. But I await the event.

Further Armament Limitation

When the reparations plan is in operation, I shall deem it an appropriate time to approach the great powers with a proposal for another conference for a further limitation of armaments and for devising plans for a codification of international law. I personally should favor entering into covenants for the purpose of outlawing aggressive war by any practical means. Our country has always been against aggressive war and for permanent peace. Those who are working out detailed plans to present such a policy for consideration have my entire sympathy. I trust that never again will the women of this nation be called on to sacrifice their loved ones to the terrible scourge of war.

We have constantly striven to come to more complete understandings and improve our relations with Latin America. At their request we have undertaken to compose their difficulties. We helped the government of Mexico protect itself against domestic violence. There is little doubt that in extending this assistance and the moral support which it indicated we helped save the people of Mexico from the terrors of another revolution. We also indicated the adoption of a policy of making it worth while for a government so to conduct itself as to merit our recognition. We have secured a written agreement with Mexico to negotiate a treaty of amity and commerce to replace one which was canceled as long ago as 1881, and joint commissions will shortly meet to adjust all American claims against that country.

The federal government ought to be, and is, solicitous for the welfare of every one of its inhabitants, every one of its business activities, whether they be small or great. This is one country; we are one people united by common interests. There should be no favorites and no outcasts; no race or religious prejudices in government. America opposes special privilege for anybody, and favors equal opportunity for everybody. It has adopted these principles because they are the logical conclusions of our ideals of freedom. Moreover, we believe they contribute to our material welfare. We oppose the artificial supports of privilege and monopoly because they are both unjust and uneconomic. They are not right. They do not work. No sound and enduring government or prosperity can rest upon anything but the sure foundations of equal opportunity and justice for all.

Protection for American Standards

It is in accordance with these principles that our government seeks by the financial welfare of all the different groups that form our great economic structure. The republican party supports the policy of protection as a broad principle, good alike for producer and consumer, because it knows that no other means to prevent the lowering of the standards of pay and living for the American wage earner toward the misery scale that prevails abroad has ever been devised. Were such protection removed, the result would be felt at every fireside in the land. Our industry would languish, factories would close, commerce and transportation would be stagnant, agriculture would become paralyzed, financial distress and economic depression would reach over the whole country. Before we are carried away with any visionary expectation of promoting the public welfare by a general avalanche of cheap goods from foreign sources, imported under a system which, whatever it may be called, is in reality free trade, it will be well first to count the cost and realize just what such a proposal really means.

I am for protection because it maintains American standards of living and of business, for agriculture, industry, and labor. I am in favor of the elastic provisions of our tariff law. I propose to administer them, not politically, but judicially. As the business of the world becomes stabilized, without throwing all our economic system into confusion, we can raise or lower specific schedules to meet the requirements of a scientific adjustment.

Welfare of Agriculture

I confess that my inheritance and personal experience have bred in me a keen interest in the welfare of agriculture. Perhaps the very hardships that those who have been engaged in it have encountered have caused it to be the chief source of that independence and stalwart citizenship which has contributed so lavishly to the glory of American life. It constitutes an element in our nation of such importance as to be worthy of the utmost solicitude and concern. One of our first thoughts in 1921 was for its relief and revival. As many as 15 laws have been passed to assist and support this fundamental industry. Through the War Finance Corporation it has been extended credits of between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000. In addition to this, government activity provided about $50,000,000 from private sources for the relief of the cattle industry, and in the early spring of this year a $100,000,000 corporation was formed, which it was estimated could furnish $100,000,000 for diversification and financial relief in the northwest. The Intermediate Credit banks have loaned over $55,000,000 to individuals and cooperative marketing associations, which assisted directly and indirectly over 500,000 farmers.

Notwithstanding all this, agriculture was subjected to an era of most serious depression. Several of its great staples like cotton, cattle, hogs, corn, and wheat, suffered from low prices, due to overproduction, unbalanced conditions between costs and sale prices in agriculture, industry, and labor, and the disorganization of the markets of the world. But for the enormous buying power which the high wages of industry put behind the market for American food products, especially meat, the agricultural regions would have experienced even a far more severe financial crisis.

Due to a change in the world supply, prices of products have begun to improve, even so far as to increase land values. The government rendered a great deal of assistance and private enterprise cooperated, but the fundamental remedy was provided, as it always must be provided, not so much through the enactment of legislative laws as through the working out of economic laws. Because the farmers have thoroughly realized this, they have on the whole opposed price fixing by legislation. While maintaining that sound position, they have seen a partial relief come in a natural way, as it was bound to come.

We now need in agriculture more organization, cooperation, and diversification. The farmer should have the benefit of legislation providing for flood control and development of inland waterways, better navigation east and south from the Great Lakes, reclamation, and especially relief for those who can not meet their payments on irrigation projects. But the main problem is marketing. Cooperative effort, reorganization of the freight rate structure, good business, and good wages in manufacturing, and the settlement of European affairs will all help to provide better market conditions.

The republican platform recognizes that agriculture should be on a basis of economic equality with other industries. This is easy to say, but the farmers themselves and the advisers have never been able to agree on a plan to provide it by law. Now that nature and economic law have given some temporary relief, I propose, therefore, to appoint a committee to investigate and report measures to the congress in December that may help secure this result which we all desire. I want profitable agriculture established permanently. I want to see the dollar of the farmer always purchase as much as any other dollar.

A wise, skilled, and unselfish leadership can do more than anything else to rescue agriculture. The farmer needs leaders who will stay with him, who have the tact and the courage necessary for management, and who have the fidelity to refuse political preferment and business opportunity. There are such leaders. In the sacrifices they make to serve the farmer lies the greatest hope for his salvation.

The Wage Earner

Those who toil have always profited from republican control of government. Under the policy of protection and restrictive immigration no deflation of wages has occurred. While the cost of living has gone down wages have advanced. The 12-hour day and the 7-day week have practically been abolished. The uninterrupted operation of public utilities with mutually satisfactory and legally established methods of adjusting labor questions have been sought. Collective bargaining and voluntary arbitration have been encouraged. Republican rule has raised the wage earner to a higher standard than he ever occupied before anywhere in the world.

The war left us with many evils. One result was the tremendous wastage of wealth. The people of this country were required to re-create very nearly one-fifth of our national resources. All of this stupendous sum has to be earned. When so large a part of the work of 300 years is swept away, it is not easily recovered. It takes all the tremendous energy of men, of enterprise, of the vast properties represented by invested capital, and of material, working through years, to repair the damage and replace the values destroyed by war.

Resist Extravagance

The only method by which we can make up this loss is by saving a part of what we produce each day. It will make little difference how much we raise on the farm, or how much we turn out in the mill, if it is all used up or all the proceeds are expended. We can only be relieved of our present private and public burdens by refraining from private and public extravagance. We must resist private and public outlays for which there is no commensurate return. This is economy. Whatever anybody may claim or say, there is no other method by which the people can rid themselves of their tremendous financial burdens.

It is for that reason that the present administration has made every possible effort to cut down the expenses of government. The country needs every ounce of its energy to restore itself. The costs of the government are all assessed on the people. This means that the farmer is doomed to provide a certain amount of money out of the sale of his produce, no matter how low the price, to pay his taxes. The manufacturer, the professional man, and the clerk must do the same from their income. The wage earner, often at a higher rate when compared with his earnings, makes his contribution, perhaps not directly, but indirectly, in the advanced cost of everything he buys. The expenses of the government reach everybody. Taxes take from everyone a certain part of his time for the government.

Cut Down Public Expense

When we come to realize that the yearly expenses of all the governments in this country have reached the stupendous sum of about $7,500,000,000, we get some idea of what this means. Of this amount about $3,500,000,000 is needed by the national government, and the remainder by local governments. Such a sum is difficult to comprehend. It represents all the pay of 5,000,000 wage earners receiving $5 a day, working 300 days in the year. If the government should add on $100,000,000 of expense, it would represent four days more of these wage earners. These are some of the reasons why I want to cut down public expense.

I want the people of America to be able to work less for the government and more for themselves. I want them to have the rewards of their own industry. That is the chief meaning of freedom. Until we can reestablish a condition under which the earnings of the people can be kept by the people, we are bound to suffer a very distinct curtailment of our liberty.

These results are not fanciful, they are not imaginary; they are grimly actual and real, reaching into every household in the land. They take from each home annually an average of over $300. And taxes must be paid. They are not a voluntary contribution to be met out of surplus earnings. They are a stern necessity. They come first. It is only out of what is left after they are paid that the necessities of food, clothing, and shelter can be provided, the comforts of home secured, or the yearnings of the soul for a broader and more abundant life gratified. When the government effects a new economy, it grants every body a life pension with which to raise the standard of existence. It increases the value of everybody's property and raises the scale of everybody's wages. One of the greatest favors that can be bestowed upon the American people is economy in government.

Economy to Reduce Taxes

Because of my belief in these principles, I favor economy that the taxes of everybody may be reduced. Much has already been done. The bill which I signed will save the people about $1,000,000 each day. I want further tax reduction and more tax reform. The raising of the revenue required to conduct our government is intimately connected with our economic welfare. If it is done by wise and just laws, the burden will be the most easily borne. But if the method of taxation is not sound, disaster will follow, reaching even to financial panic. Our first thought should be to maintain unimpaired the activity of agriculture and industry. That tax is theoretically best which interferes least with business.

Every student knows that excessively high rates defeat their own purpose. They dry up that source of revenue and leave those paying lower rates to furnish all the taxes. High rates tend to paralyze business. For these reasons I am opposed to excess-profits taxes and high surtaxes. When the revenue bill of 1921 was passed, abolishing excess profits and greatly reducing high surtaxes, it was immediately followed by a revival in business and an increase in the number of large incomes, so that the government received nearly $100,000,000 more in taxes from those having incomes of over $100,000 than under the higher rates of the previous year. But rates were still too high, and all kinds of business began to pause; agriculture especially felt their indirect adverse effects. A new tax bill was passed this spring carrying still further reductions, and under its apparent influence there seems to be the beginnings of another increase of prosperity. Good business is worth more to the small income taxpayer than a considerable percentage of tax reduction.

Only about 3,500,000 people pay direct income taxes. The remainder pay, but pay indirectly, in the cost of all purchases, from a pair of shoes to a railroad ticket. This country has at least 107,000,000 of these indirect taxpayers. I am not disturbed about the effect on a few thousand people with large incomes because they have to pay high surtaxes. They can take care of themselves, whatever happens, as the rich always can. What concerns me is the indirect effect of high surtaxes on all the rest of the people. Let us always remember the poor. Whatever cry the demagogue may make about his ability to tax the rich, at the end of the year it will always be found that the people as a whole have paid the taxes. We should, therefore, have a system of taxation under which the people as a whole are most likely to be prosperous. Our country will be better off if, disregarding those who appeal to jealousy and envy, it follows in taxation and all else the straight path of justice.

Economy should be practiced scrupulously in the conduct of a national campaign. I know it is difficult to distinguish between real service to the people and mere wastefulness. Costs have increased by doubling of the electorate, rendering close calculation impossible.

Nevertheless, I can perceive no reason why the budget system should not be beneficial in a campaign, as it has proved to be in government. It is to be tested by our committee.

Keep Election Clean

There should be no relaxing of resolute endeavors to keep our elections clean, honest, and free from taint of any kind. Only the closest scrutiny of both the sources of contributions and the character of expenditures can accomplish this laudable purpose. For the first time, this has been provided for the coming campaign through the appointment of a competent senate committee vested with ample authority. The republican national chairman has already volunteered to file sworn reports of both income and outgo, in full detail, at such regular intervals as the committee may deem serviceable and practicable.

The statutes provide for publication of names of contributors and of amounts contributed. But a deficit at the end of a campaign in part defeats this. The budget will cure that defect. So far as the republican party is concerned, I have made an absolute requirement that our committee shall live within its means. I hope it will have a surplus on election day, but it must not have a deficit.

I would make clearly and definitely one other requirement, that no individual, or group of individuals may expect any governmental favors in return for party assistance. Whatever anyone gives must be given for the common good, or not at all. Contributions can be received on no other basis.

Welcomes Women's Vote

For the first time, after having opportunity fully to organize, the women of the nation are bringing the new force which they represent directly to bear on our political affairs. I know that the influence of womanhood will guard the home, which is the citadel of the nation. I know it will be a protector of childhood. I know it will be on the side of humanity. I welcome it as a great instrument of mercy and a mighty agency of peace. I want every woman to vote.

While we are discussing some of the problems of the day, some of the dangers we propose to meet temporary conditions as it is also well to remember that it is equally necessary to support our fundamental institutions. We believe in our method of constitutional government and the integrity of the legislature judicial and executive departments. We believe that our liberties and our rights are best preserved not through political, but through judicial action. The constitution is the sole source and guaranty of national freedom. We believe that our liberties and our rights are best preserved not through political, but through judicial action. The constitution is the sole source and guaranty of national freedom. We believe that the safest place to declare and interpret the constitution which the people have made is in the Supreme Court of the United States.

We believe the people of the nation should continue to own the property and transact the business of the nation. We harbor no delusions about securing perfection. We know that mankind is finite, and will continue to be under any system. But that system is best which gives the individual the largest freedom of action, and the largest opportunity for honorable accomplishment. Such a system does not tend to the concentration of wealth but to the diffusion of wealth. Under our institutions there is no limitation on the aspirations a mother may have for her children. That system I pray to continue. This country would not be a land of opportunity. America would not be America, if the people were shackled with government monopolies.

Justice for Everybody

Under our institutions success is the rule and failure is the exception. We have no better example of this than the enormous progress which is being made by the Negro race. To some of its individuals it may seem slow, toilsome, and unsatisfactory, but viewed as a whole it has been a demonstration of their patriotism and their worth. They are doing a great work in the land, and are entitled to the protection of the constitution and the law. It is a satisfaction to observe that the crime of lynching, of which they have been so often the victims, has been greatly diminished, and I trust that any further continuation of this national shame may be prevented by law. As a plain matter of expediency the white man can not be protected, and as a plain matter of right law is law and justice for everybody.

Our country has adopted prohibition and provided by legislation for its enforcement. It is the duty of the citizen to observe the law, and the duty of the Executive to enforce, I propose to do my duty as best I can.

Child Labor

Our different states have had different standards, or no standards at all, for child labor. The congress should have authority to provide a uniform law applicable to the whole nation which will protect childhood. Our country can not afford to let anyone live off the earnings of its youth of tender years. Their places are not in the factory, but in the school, that the men and women of tomorrow may reach a higher state of existence and the nation a higher standard of citizenship.

I am in favor of national defense, not merely as an abstract state of mind, but as a concrete mode of action. I favor not merely talking about it, but doing something about it. I do not want the safety of my country to be imperiled in its domestic or foreign relations by any failure to be ready to preserve order or repel attack. But I propose to work for voluntary observance of law and mutual covenants of peace.

The government of the United States represents the public. It is its business to protect and advance the general welfare. It wants everyone treated fairly, and expects everyone to do his duty. It must be impartial, but it ought to be humane. It wants to establish justice, equity, and mercy. It desires to see adequate returns both for capital invested and for work done. It believes in protecting health and in cherishing education. It is opposed to the domination of either wealth or organized minorities and is committed to the free rule of all the people.

Common Sense

We are likely to hear a great deal of discussion about liberal thought and progressive action. It is well for the country to have liberality in thought and progress in action, but its greatest asset is common sense. In the commonplace things of life lies the strength of the nation. It is not in brilliant conception ad strokes of genius that we shall find the chief reliance of our country, but in the home, in the school, and in religion. America will continue to defend these shrines. Every evil force that seeks to desecrate or destroy them will find that a higher power has endowed the people with an inherent spirit of resistance. The people know the difference between pretense and reality. They want to be told the truth. They want a chance to work out their own material and spiritual salvation. The people want a government of common sense.

These, Mr. Chairman, are some of the beliefs which I hold, some of the principles which I propose to support. Because I am convinced that they are true, because I am satisfied that they are sound, I submit them with abiding faith to the judgment of the American people.

AMERICAN PHYSICIANS ENDORSE FRENCH SCIENTIST DISCOVERY FOR REDUCING FAT

DR. J. J. RUDOLPH, Former Health Commissioner Considers "SAN-GRI-NA" a Remarkable and Safe Help for FAT PEOPLE.

Up to now, reducing had been an almost unsolvable problem. It was either a question of losing a few pounds and ruin your health with dangerous drugs or remain fat. To-day a French physician of unquestionable reputation has to his credit a discovery called "SAN-GRI-NA," which quickly does away with most obstinate cases of obesity and at the same time improves the health and appearance and rejuvenates the entire system. "I consider 'SAN-GRI-NA' not only a remarkable fat reducer," says Dr. Rudolph, former health commissioner, but I advise it as a general tonic and health-builder for fat people." Physicians have used "SAN-GRI-NA" themselves, and have prescribed it to their immediate family and patients, thus proving that it is absolutely harmless and effective. "SAN-GRI-NA" is a small tablet which should be taken three times a day. It does not contain any dangerous drugs, and has been used by the discoverer in his own practice with most remarkable success. It is now recommended and sold in America, by reliable druggists only, with guarantee of satisfaction or money refunded. "SAN-GRI-NA" does not reduce fat people over night. There is no miracle about it. It is a safe, gradual loss of flesh which varies from 4 to 6 pounds a week, leaving the patient stronger and healthier with every pound of fat lost. No flabby tissues or wrinkles will follow the use of "SAN-GRI-NA."

NOTE—Since "SAN-GRI-NA" has been introduced in America, it has created such a sensation that imitations cannot be avoided. If you want results, make sure that YOU ASK AND GET "SAN-GRI-NA." On sale at

HOLDING THE MIRROR TO THE FARMER

(Written Specially for the Bulletin.)

"The fault, my Brutus, is not in our stars
But in ourselves, that we are underlings."

We farmers have got the reputation of being everlasting and universal kickers.

It is generally believed that we spend most of our time finding fault, either with our government or our neighbors,—or our luck.

There is certainly basis for this popular impression. Once in a while in your travels you come on an eastern farmer who looks rosy and seems fairly contented. But did you ever see or hear of a western farmer who wasn't perpetually grumbling,—unless, indeed, he was visiting his eastern cousins and felt loyalty compelled to take them down by bragging about his enormous crops? Follow him back to his prairie and the minute he gets his foot once more on it, he will begin by denouncing and demanding. He will denounce Wall Street and the legislature, and congress and the courts, and the railroads and the telephones, and the Chicago wheat pit and the local weather. He will demand about fifteen different things varying, according to his particular desire, from free government loans to free transportation for his wheat and corn.

It's no great wonder that non-farmers come to look on his unending complaints much as they regard the buzzing of mosquitoes, as things admittedly unpleasant in themselves but unavoidable. It's no great wonder that non-farmers come, in course of time, to pay small regard to farm grumblings. It's no great wonder that many eventually reach the point of disregarding them utterly, stopping their ears to them, and declining to consider them.

Some even go so far as to make fun of us, ridicule us under at us. Then we—some of us—get mad and go off on rampages political, social, racial. Because these satirists laugh at our squirmings in the frying pan, we jump into the fire "to show 'em." "Show 'em" what? We don't know ourselves, but we're mad enough to think even such a crazy gesture may make them sit up and take notice.

That's the real explanation for such things as Shipstead and Magnus Johnson and Brookhart and La Follette and the rest of that gang which is leading on rural western discontent for his own gain, glory or emolument.

Now, leaving the shallow popular judgment wholly out of consideration, are actual farmers know that the balance is not true between our productions and those of self-styled "labor." We work as hard and for longer hours, but for less wages. We produce as efficiently and as abundantly, but get smaller pay for our products.

Disregarding entirely the cheap [illegible] of both demagogues and [illegible] bystanders, we know that [illegible] is true. We are constantly being [illegible] out of the little end of the [illegible]

Why?

It occurs to me that, perhaps, we are ourselves not wholly without blame for this condition. When King David was virtuously condemned a certain hypothetical offender, Prophet Nathan looked him square in the eyes and said, "Thou art the man." When republican Rome was slumping squishily into the arms of Caesarism, Cassius put the real facts concisely and effectively in the quotation with which I have introduced this Talk. While it may not always be the case, it is rather frequently true that our misfortunes are the fruits of our own fault, rather than the impositions of others.

Let's consider the farm situation a few minutes from that angle.—It's a vast deal harder to say "Lord, be merciful to me, a sinner," than it is to dash wildly down the road yelling, "Stop thief" at some other fellow. But, sometimes, he demands of justice are more likely to be met by the former prayer than the latter outburst.

Have you ever noticed how scarce blacksmith shops are becoming? The roads are lined with garages. But an old fashioned blacksmith shop, where they shoe horses, set tires, weld broken tools, etc., is a rarity in a day's long automobile trip. There are various reasons for this. One is that there is a somewhat greater demand for auto repairs than for horse-shoeing. But that isn't the only reason. There are still lots of horses to be shod. Yet farriers are so scarce that in many places shodless horses are loaded on auto trucks and driven twenty or thirty miles to find one. In one part of New York state that very thing is reported to be happening almost every day. The lone smith is simply overwhelmed with the calls made on him by horse-owners from incredibly long distances away. Nor can he find helpers able and willing to assist him — caring for the rush of business.

You'll see at once that it isn't lack of horses but a lack of horse-shoers which explains this situation.

And the reason why horse-shoers are growing rare is simply because it is easier to be a "mechanic" and tinker with a car than to be a blacksmith and shoe a horse. Also it offers more intervals of idleness. Also it pays more in fees and "tips."

Why do I talk about blacksmithing? Simply because the same reason which is seducing expert smiths from their shops and preventing sturdy youths from learning the trade,—i. e. the craze for "easy snaps" and "easy money,"—is operative on the farms, just as widely, just as deplorably and just as dangerously as in the smithies.

The farmer who sees some not overly industrious neighbor move to the city and get a shop job at comparatively high wages for comparatively short hours, cannot help a certain sense of envy. He works longer hours, he gets less money for his labor and his output. Why should not he, too, quit the farm and go where work seems easier and better paid? In too many cases he yields and follows the line of least resistance. If he doesn't his sons and daughters do.

In one big shop in a neighboring city are no less than twenty former residents of this rapidly dwindling community, personally known to me, who have done this very thing. They used to be farm-workers. At least four of them were farm-owners. Yet they have sold or abandoned their farm homes and given up their farm jobs in exchange for easier work and bigger pay.

"Do I blame them?" This is not an attempt to assess blame, but an endeavor to find out causes and motives. It needs no long and deep reflection to see that the lure of easy work and big wages is responsible for at least some part of the decadence of farming, as it is for the scarcity of seamstresses.

The younger generation, as a whole, on the farms as well as elsewhere, isn't moved by ambition to do good work or lasting work or uplifting work, but by a hankering after easy work and a soft snap.

Don't overlook this unpromising fact when you are drawing up your indictment of the times.

Another thing: We who stick to the farms are not making the few acres we can still handle do their fair work. European statistics since 1910 are missing. But those of the four years preceding were collected with care and published, like those of the United States. And the contrast is one to be regarded with shame by every working farmer of this country. Between 1906 and 1910 the average yield of wheat, per acre, in Germany, was 31 bushels, a gain of 48 per cent. in the last twenty years. The average yield of wheat in the U. S. for those same years was less than 15 bushels per acre, a gain in twenty years of only 15 per cent.

For the same period the yield of potatoes, per acre, in Germany was 210 bushels, a gain of 31 per cent. in twenty years. The average yield in the U. S. for the same period was 97 bushels, a gain of only 32 per cent. in twenty years. Other crops showed much the same proportional figures.

Recall, if you please, that German soil has been worked for more than 2,000 years. If any in the world can be "worn out" it should be that. Yet, by intensive and forward-looking farm methods, the German farmers in those four years not only produced vastly larger crops, per acre, but showed an immensely greater progressive gain over the preceding period.

We American farmers brag a little too much about our progressiveness and our energy and our intelligence. When German peasants, on older and poorer soil, with a less benevolent climate, "wipe our eyes" for us, after the fashion recorded, it seems as if we had better do a little less boasting and a good deal more reflection.

We simply cannot dodge responsibility for such a demonstration of productive inferiority. We can't pass it along to government or Wall Street. It is ours, and ours only, for us to carry ourselves,—until we wake up enough to shake it off our shoulders.

In 1920 the assessors of Kansas, loudly heralded as a "banner" farming state reported 165,286 farms. On 54,152 of these there wasn't a cow; on 48,000 farms there wasn't a hog; on 41,000 farms there wasn't any attempt made at a garden; on 28,000 farms there wasn't a hen or chicken. They put all their eggs in the wheat basket, and then split the welkin with howls of despair and rage when something spilled the basket and smashed the eggs.

Yet the most fundamental rule of good farming implies such a diversification of crops that no single accident shall bankrupt the farmer. The Kansas farmers, and those of the other "wheat belt" and "corn belt" states, can't lay the blame for a disaster which wipes out their only crop upon any heads but their own.

Please don't go off half-cocked, now, and accuse me of lack of sympathy with farmer. How can I help sympathizing with myself? Or with those whose hardships I see and share, daily?

I have, over and over again, voiced my indignation at the way in which the profiteers of business and so called "labor" have gouged the farmer at every opportunity. I take back nothing of it all. But reminiscing are, after all, poor substitutes for amendment and improvement. It won't hurt us, for once, to withdraw our eyes from the faults of others, and consider a little our own failings.

Perhaps a humble and teachable attitude towards the latter may eventually get us farther forward than a whole eruption of obiurgation aimed at some one else.

It was once declared to be judicious policy to remove the beam from one's own eye before undertaking to extract the mote from the other fellow's.

BELIEF THAT NEW LONDON WOMAN DIED FROM POISON SELF-ADMINISTRATED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 14.—The death of Mrs. Bridget Schensky, 35, last night, suddenly, at her home, 35 Douglass street, is now believed to have resulted from poison, self-administered, and not from alcoholism. This was the statement made this afternoon by Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman, who performed an autopsy at a local undertaking establishment this forenoon. The autopsy revealed a poisonous substance in the woman's stomach, but its nature could not be determined. This afternoon Sergeant Frank Howard conveyed a sample of the poisoned organs to the state laboratory at Hartford, where an analysis will be made to ascertain the cause of the woman's death.

The woman, who is known to have been intoxicated twice within a week and who, her husband declared, drank heavily, although deathly ill Tuesday night, was not out of her home yesterday, so far as the authorities could learn and it is believed that she swallowed the poison some time late Tuesday afternoon, or early Tuesday evening. Throughout Tuesday night and early Wednesday morning the woman was nauseated and unable to retain anything in her stomach, gradually becoming worse until she expired while her husband was seeking the services of a physician.

An automobile accident occurred this afternoon about 4 o'clock on Washington street that put Charles Smith, known as "Comstock" into Lawrence hospital with his throat badly cut. Three other men on the truck were cut and bruised and were taken in to the Elks' club home, that they might receive treatment for their injuries. The companions of Smith were David Devine, William Keegan and John Cooper, the last named more seriously injured than the others. He was cut on both cheekbones, the skin being scraped off and his face was bruised. Keegan was cut on the bridge of the nose, as was Devine. Dr. Savage, the nearest physician, took stitches in the wounds and applied bandages.

Smith was the driver and received the force of the collision of the truck with a telephone pole which stood opposite the Elks' home. A great piece was gouged out of the pole. The windshield of the truck was smashed, pieces of the heavy glass imbedding itself in the throat of Smith near the right jaw. He got up as soon as possible and, realizing his injury to be serious he clapped his hand over the wound to stop the flow of blood and started for the yard of the coal company. He was met by Charles Ailing and by him was hurried to Lawrence hospital for treatment by surgeons. Smith was badly cut but the wound will not prove fatal.

The truck made a long sweep as it came out of Coit street into Washington and thus came into collision with the pole. It was denied by those who saw the collision that the truck was going at a reckless speed.

Keegan was the first to receive the attention of the doctor at the Elks' club, and while he was under treatment the other men were bathed to check the flow of blood.

Irving Campbell, of Oxford, was in this city yesterday, drove up on the east side of Main street and parked his car, though there were signs forbidding parking on that side of the highway. He was in the police court today and was fined $5.

Gunner Fragness, a local chauffeur, was fined a similar amount for parking on the west side of Union street.

Elizabeth Umansky parked a car on Bank street while she attended the theatre and was fined $5 for so doing. She comes from Hartford and is staying at the beach. There were signs of prohibition (of parking, not drinking) all along Bank street, but Mrs. Umansky failed to heed them.

Job Hednam, employed at the Mansfield school, was charged with a violation of the parking ordinance, but he was on the way to Block Island and stopped to trade at a store for "just a minute" he said. Judgment was suspended in his case.

Mr. and Mrs. William Keane returned to their home in New York this afternoon, having spent a week with Mrs. Keane's mother, Mrs. Hannah Leary.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sullivan, and children, of New Britain, are spending a few days with relatives in this city.

Miss May Dondero, of Brewer street, Arthur Beaney, Waterford, Mrs. Charles Elliott, Blackhall street, Miss Hilda Levy, Ocean Beach, and Robert Gavitt, Westerly, patients at Lawrence hospital, were able to return to their respective homes today.

Lena B. Chester has sold a house and lot, corner of Jefferson avenue and Chester streets, to Oscar F. St. Germain.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Stoeckel today caused the operators' licenses of Francis J. McManus, 19 Winthrop street, and B. Bottinelli, 32 Reed street, to be suspended. McManus and Bottinelli were recently involved in automobile accidents where, it is alleged, the law was violated.

Samuel Berkowitz, of 55 Connecticut avenue, was complained of early this morning, by Mrs. George Buffington, a neighbor, who alleged that parties take place nightly at the Berkowitz residence, that the merrymaking continues until 2 o'clock in the morning, causing residents in that section to be deprived of their slumber. Patrolman Jeremiah Murphy was assigned to investigate and found considerable noise emanating from the place so the order was given to stop the racket disturbing the neighborhood.

Earl Bramble of Blackhall was ordered to appear in the Waterford town court last night by State Police Officer Fred J. Caron and Fred Sunn. The Ford automobile that Bramble was driving and with Florence Getchell, Waterford, as a passenger, crashed head-on into a Stutz sedan owned and driven by Louis Sharaf, 72 Fair Harbor place, and in which Mrs. Sharaf and two children and a maid, Virginia Adams, were riding. Bramble was given a hearing this evening at 7 o'clock before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton. The complaint was amended from reckless driving to passing an intersecting highway without reducing the speed of his machine or sounding his horn. Bramble pleaded guilty and was fined $10, which he paid. In imposing the fine Justice Morton took it into consideration that Bramble had never been arrested before for violation of the automobile law and is employed as a driver of one of the East Lyme 'buses. He is also the sole support of his aged father.

The wrecked cars were towed to a garage during the night. Sharaf's car damage being estimated at several hundreds of dollars, while Bramble's car was damaged almost beyond repair.

Miss Adams suffered no ill effects from her injuries today other than she experienced last night. The severe bruise the young woman sustained on the head and the sprained neck, the latter caused by being hurled suddenly forward when the crash came, did not prevent her from attending to her customary duties.

State Police Officer Bernard W. Kemerson has resumed his duties at the Groton barracks after his annual vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Sisson, 17 Cole street, are absent from the city, having started for two weeks' stay with relatives in New Hampshire and Montreal.

Another automobile was stolen from the street at New Haven this evening and the New London authorities were requested to keep a watch for the stolen car. The machine bears Connecticut registration A-9175 and is a Ford.

Merchants are beginning to get ready for receiving those attending the session of the State American Legion which will take place here Saturday, already the buildings on State, Main and Bank streets are being decorated with flags and bunting. The feature of the session will be a mammoth street parade late in the afternoon. It is estimated that close to 1,000 veterans of the World war will be in line.

A persistent report was in circulation this evening that the Ku Klux Klan membership hereabouts would conduct another ceremonial tomorrow evening in the vicinity of Niantic and that possibly the session would take place in a hall instead of in the open as has been the case with the other meetings to take place hereabouts.

The police this evening were called upon to reprimand a Pearl street youth who has been making a practice of taking money from children who are sent to stores to make small purchases. This afternoon the youth took by force $1 from a child, but returned it when the mother of the latter youngster made known the act to the police.

Mrs. Frederick E. Fengar, 14 Cleveland street, and Miss Annie Thomas have gone to the Catskills for a week or two.

Misses Teresa Fitzgerald and Mary Barry have returned to Hartford after having visited friends in this city the past week.

Youths are again robbing automobiles parked on side streets while the owners go to restaurants or attend to shopping. Last night youths visited a series of machines parked on Golden street, near Green street, and but for the appearance of a pedestrian articles undoubtedly would have been taken from the car. Two of the boys remained near the machine while the third entered it. But with the approach of the pedestrian, he and his companion ran away.

Mrs. James Clarkin, Hartford, is spending a few days in town.

John Andrews, Pequot avenue, is at Crystal Lake, where he will remain indefinitely.

Mrs. Sheffield, Mystic, has purchased a house and lot 49 Elderkin avenue, Groton, of Harold E. Vincent.

Frank A. Epps, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Epps, 611 Broad street, and Miss Viola Ross, daughter of Mrs. Benjamin Hill of Middletown, were married yesterday afternoon at the parsonage of the Second Congregational church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee. John Epps, brother of the groom, was best man, and Mrs. Mary K. Bates, sister of the groom, was matron of honor.

MGR. TAGGART COMMENTS ON PROPOSED CONTRACT

stock ownership, and therefore the operation of the Uncas plant and the use of the stream flow of the river are entirely in the hands of the Eastern Connecticut Power Company and they can therefore operate the Uncas plant at will. It would be a difficult and an involved matter to prove that a high demand charge billed to the City by the Eastern Connecticut Power Company is due to that company operating the Uncas plant in its own interest rather than in the interest of the city.

Energy Charge

The energy charge of 7 1-2 mills per K. W. H. for the first million K. W. H. per month is based upon coal costing $4.00 per gross ton unloaded at the Power Company's plant at Montville, with an increase or decrease at the rate of one mill per K. W. H. per dollar variation per ton in said fuel cost.

The coal clause in power contracts is usually based upon the price of coal f. o. b. cars or barges. The cost of labor of unloading and handling of the coal is usually assumed by a Power Company the same as it assumes the labor in the boiler room and in the engine room. The cost of fuel f. o. b. cars or barges is readily checked up from the invoices of the coal company and of the transportation company but the charge for unloading would be liable to lead to a controversy as to just where the items making up this charge should end.

I understand the average cost of coal to the Power Company during the year 1923 was $8.16 per ton, unloaded at Montville.

Actual cost per ton	$8.16
	4.00
Excess per ton	$4.16

equals 4.16 mills, coal surcharge per K. W. H.

7.5 mills per K. W. H.

equals 1.166 cents per K. W. H. actual energy charge.

The last paragraph of the clause contains the stipulation that the above demand and energy charges may be modified at the request of either party, and if necessary, referred to arbitration and that any modification made in them shall be such as will cover the Eastern Connecticut Power Company's cost of the service rendered and give an adequate net return upon its investment. Such a clause is particularly onerous for it would practically mean that the demand and energy charges would be subject to revision after the first three years and then after each two year period succeeding. The coal clause above referred to takes care of any variation in the price of coal.

The management of the affairs of the power company and the direction of its policy are largely in its own hands and if in the future, the methods of the power company should be arbitrary, or, the service rendered should be unsatisfactory and inadequate, resulting in its losing some of its large power customers, such as Westerly and the New England Power company, the resulting cost of operating its system, per K. W. of demand and per K. W. H. of energy generated, would be materially increased and by the provisions of this clause the burden of this increase would be passed right on to the City of Norwich and to other customers having contracts similar to the one proposed for Norwich, which would compel them to continue to purchase the Power Company's service.

7. Power Factor:
No comments.

8. Suspension of Service:
This clause does not rigidly protect and insure a continuous supply of energy to the city. There is no clause regarding the Power Company's liability, nor under the clause would it be possible for the city to collect for damages which its own customers would suffer and might sue the City by reason of interruption to service on the city's mains caused by the interruption in the service of the Power Company.

9. Territory:
The proposed contract carefully protects the Eastern Connecticut Power Company against the City of Norwich selling energy outside of its authorized territory but it omits a similar clause protecting the city against the Power Company's selling energy within the City's territory.

10.—Uncas Power Company:
The proposed contract provides for the supply of energy which the department now generates in its own steam station and does not include the energy which the Department now purchases from the Uncas Power Company.

11. Arbitration:
This appears to be the usual arbitration clause and I am making no comments upon the same.

12. Successors and Assigns:
No comments.

General Comments.

If at the termination of the proposed contract the power company should demand a high rate for renewal, the city would then be in the position where it would either be obliged to pay the rate demanded or else the commissioners would be obliged to go before a city meeting and ask for an appropriation to build a new power station, the expense of which would, of course, depend upon the then existing load demand, but would likely not be less than $1,000,000. In other words, the Eastern Power company would be in a position by which it could very nearly dictate its own terms.

On pages one and two of this report, comparing the cost of the city's generating its own energy with the purchase of energy from the power company, we have taken the value of the city's electric power plant equipment as $426,807, which is the value on the department's books as of April 30th, 1924. We have purposely omitted the value of the real estate and the buildings.

If the city continues to operate its [illegible] and generate electric [illegible] energy therein, the useful life of the plant will extend over a period of years, and the amortization is taken care of by the statute covering the operation of municipally owned public utility plants. If, on the other hand, the city should enter into a ten year contract for the purchase of all of its electric energy other than that furnished by the Uncas Power company, there would be no further use for the steam and electric generating plant of the city and it would be abandoned. The city's above named investment of $426,807 would in that event have to be amortized over the life of the contract under discussion, which is for a term of ten years. This annual amortization must be included in the total cost of the city for purchasing power from the Eastern Connecticut Power company. If the power should be purchased, and the city's power plant abandoned, there is no other way in which the city's equity in this plant could be protected.

Similarly, it will be observed I have charged in the actual cost of generating energy by the city the rate of depreciation fixed by statute on the electric power station equipment.

It will be observed that in the comparison on pages one and two I have omitted in each instance the value of the real estate and the value of the electric power station buildings. This for the reason that a certain portion, but not all, of the real estate and buildings would be occupied if the city shut down its steam plant and purchased electric energy, and the omission of the real estate and buildings in the above named calculation is two to one in favor of the purchase of energy.

The results given on pages one and two demonstrate clearly that there is a saving, although not a large one, in the city's continuing to operate its own generating plant. The text following these pages, however, clearly shows that the actual saving would be considerably in excess of the amount named. I have particularly stressed the matter of the demand charge and how this charge to the city could readily be materially increased. This entire matter is obviously of a technical nature and I would be glad to go further into any item about which you desire additional information.

In conclusion, I consider it for the best interests of the city of Norwich that it rejects the present proposed power contract.

Respectfully submitted,
CHAS. W. TAGGART,
General Manager.

TEXT OF CONTRACT SUBMITTED BY POWER CO.

The text of the proposed contract submitted by the Eastern Connecticut Power company is as follows:

This agreement made this day of A. D. 1924, by and between the Eastern Connecticut Power company, incorporated under the laws of the state of Connecticut, with its principal office in the city of Norwich, in said Connecticut, and hereinafter called "The Eastern company," and the board of gas and electrical commissioners of said city of Norwich hereunto duly authorized and hereinafter called "The Board":

Witnesseth—that

Whereas The Eastern company is engaged in the generation of electrical energy at its power plant on the Thames river in the town of Montville, Connecticut, and elsewhere, and in the transmission of said energy over electric lines now or hereafter owned, leased or controlled by it to various locations in the state of Connecticut; and

Whereas, the Board is engaged in the distribution of electrical energy in and for the city of Norwich in the state of Connecticut; and

Whereas, The Eastern company desires to sell and deliver and the Board desires to purchase and receive electrical energy for the use of said the Board:

Now, Therefore, the parties hereto, in consideration of the premises and of the sum of one dollar ($1.00) and other good and valuable considerations each to the other paid, receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, and of mutual covenants and agreements herein contained, do hereby covenant and agree with each other as follows:

1. Line and Equipment: Energy shall be delivered from the transmission system of the Eastern company to a substation at or near the present steam plant of Board or to such other or additional points as may be agreed upon by the parties hereto. Said substation or substations together with the line or lines necessary to connect it or them with said transmission system shall be furnished by and at the expense of the Eastern company, but the Board shall provide such land and space, with access thereto at all times, as may be necessary for the substation or substations.

Said substation and line equipment shall include all rights of way, wire, poles and fixtures, insulators, transformers, substation structures and switching and protective equipment necessary to make the installation complete for delivery of energy at the low tension terminals of the transformers. Ownership of said complete installation shall be and remain with the Eastern company.

The Board shall pay to the Eastern company each month an amount equal to one-twelfth (1-12th) of eleven (11) per cent. of the total cost of said complete installation of line and substation equipment.

Such meters and metering equipment as are used for indicating or recording the data necessary for determining the charges under this agreement shall be furnished by the Eastern company at its own expense and for the purpose of this agreement the cost of said meters and metering equipment shall not be considered as a part of the cost of the complete installation hereinabove referred to.

2. Delivery and Metering: Energy shall be delivered at the low tension side of the transformers above referred to, and shall be metered on the high tension side of said transformers. All connections, supports and meters shall be accessible at all reasonable times to both parties for the purpose of inspection and reading, but meter seals shall in no case be broken except in the presence of a duly authorized representative of each party, unless the party not represented shall have consented. The readings and records from the meters and metering equipment shall determine the energy to be billed under this agreement.

When upon being tested the meter or meters are found to have an error of not more than two (2) per cent. above or below correct indication or registration from 5 per cent. to 100 per cent. of full load rating, the readings and records shall be considered as correct and accurate. When upon being tested the meter or meters are found to have such error in excess of two (2) per cent., the consumption recorded by such meter since the last previous test, but for a period not exceeding thirty days, shall be corrected:

a. By one-half (1-2) the percentage of error, if said error is less than ten (10) per cent.

b. By estimate as agreed upon by both parties, if said error is in excess of ten (10) per cent.

In either case bills shall be adjusted

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

The role of Indian Mail Runner in The Love Bandit, a Charles E. Blaney production now showing at the Palace theater, is ably portrayed by Walter Jones. Mr. Jones is the ideal type for an American Indian and through years of study is able to express the emotions and observe the customs of aborigines. In this production he appears as a half breed and made up so skillfully that a party of tourists mistook him for a guide and tried to engage his services. Added attractions, latest two reel Tuxedo comedy One Night it Rained, Pathe Review and Palace supreme orchestra.

Starting Sunday, four days Darling Love director R. G. Edwards selected an unusually strong supporting cast in this Albert Payson Terhune novel contained roles which made such demands upon those who portrayed them that only outstanding artists of the types could be depended upon to get campaign is impossible, at present at the utmost value out of each part.

This Week's New Records.

We haven't heard Zimbalist for some time, but his records this week make up for the hiatus. The first is bewitchingly beautiful, a Spanish dance of Sarasate, calling for every resource of the artist. Equally exacting as a display number is a Humoresque by York Bowen, a madly capricious piece composed for such skill as Zimbalist's to interpret.

You have heard Toselli's Good-Bye. Now hear Rosa Ponselle sing it on a new record. It is sung with Ponselle's lyric smoothness and tragic power. On the other side she sings the same composer's lilting, cheery serenade, accompanied solely by the harp.

Victor Herbert himself conducted his orchestra for the recording of his Devotion, and selections from Sweethearts. It is his last, but wholly apart from its sentimental interest makes a record well worth hearing and re-hearing.

There may be some to whom Richard Crooks' records of love songs mean nothing, but our secret guess after hearing his latest, is that the world is still safe for Cupid. Love is Mine and For You Alone are not, however, of the lighter moods of love's estate, but seem to encompass the full range of experience. They are melodious, generously harmonized, and splendidly sung.

It's hard to take life seriously with Billy Murray and Ed Smalle around. This week they sap dull care with a pair of records that are boisterous to say the least. Hinky Dinky Parley Voo is reminiscent of domestic and foreign imbroglios, while We Don't Get Much Money, But We Have a Lot of Fun speaks for itself.

We never grow tired of the fox trot, but we hope our interests are broad enough to enjoy other dance music when we hear it. This week the Victor band makes a pleasant record of some old-world dances—Broom Dance, Bummel Schottische, Gossipping Ulls and On the Bridge of Avignon that recall our dancing school days.

It should make an interesting subject of speculation as to exactly what human emotions first inspired music. Certainly the impulse to dance was among the first. This week's dance list maintains this ancient urge satisfactorily with two waltzes and four fox trots with blues fringes.

The Whitemans are never too serious. But this week their records are really comic in style. Walla Walla and Dixie's Favorite Son are excellent specimens of jazz-funnies.

The Troubadours seem particularly well chosen for the first waltz offering. It is Rock-a-Bye My Baby Blues which uncovers a yodelled refrain suggestive of Emmett's Lullaby. Tears of Happiness is a fluent number by the Benson orchestra of Chicago, with deep-toned melodies and plenty of strings.

The Bensons double up on the next record with the two fox trots, Pickin' 'Em Up and Layin' 'Em Down and The Doodle-um Blues are hot weather pick-me-ups, no matter what the mercury may register.

Broadway Theatre.

Once again the Broadway theatre presented an excellent program of vaudeville and pictures to a most pleased and enthusiastic audience yesterday. The same show will continue today and Saturday.

Princess Radjah garnered fresh laurels in Norwich with her famous Dance of Cleopatra. This celebrated continental exponent of terpsichore has just returned from a two years' triumph in Europe.

The international roller skating artists, Mack and Brantley, offered a Whirl of Grace which is a high class novelty.

A musical novelty that went over with a bang was presented by Hugh Emmett and Theresa Lind, who offered a musical ventriloqual novelty.

Elsie Harvey and George Stone have some sure fire fun in store for you. They also sing and play, which made them very popular.

His Forgotten Wife, a Palmer Photoplay corporation production showing at the Broadway theatre today, offers one of the biggest entertainment values the screen has ever given. In addition to mere entertainment—the sort that will transport tired business folk away from care in spite of themselves—it contains pathos—as well as laughter, and heart throbs as well as thrilling, amusing and fast-moving adventure. And it has all the virility and novelty one has come to expect in Palmer productions, having been written directly for the screen by a trained photoplaywright, Will Lamb[illegible]

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS ACTIVE.

New York, Aug. 14.—Speculative interest in today's stock market switched from the railroad shares to the industrials on indications that the recent wave of profit taking had run its course. Twenty-six stocks established new peak prices for the year with the net gains in active issues ranging from large fractions to three points. Pools were again active, particularly in stocks of companies which give promise of substantially increased earnings.

Copper shares gave one of the best demonstrations of group strength, buying being influenced by the rising trend of metal prices and the heavy European consumption of silver for coinage purposes. American Smelting, Kennecott, Chile, Inspiration and Federal Mining & Smelting Preferred all broke through their previous high prices. National Lead continued its rapid advance, closing 3 1-2 points higher at 164 1-2.

Baldwin assumed the leadership of the standard industrials, showing a gain of more than two points at 122 1-2. U. S. Steel common closed a point higher at 107 1-2 and American Can climbed 1 5-8 to 125 1-2.

Railroad shares showed mixed changes, largely of a fractional nature, although Prince Preferred, Rutland referred, Ontario & Western, Canada Preferred and New York and Harlem sold at new maximum prices. While little credence was given in responsible quarters to rumors of an increased dividend on Southern Pacific, the declaration of the regular dividend apparently caused some disappointment in speculative quarters as the stock dropped one point to 96.

Steady accumulation of Western Union, Public Service of New Jersey Railway &Steel Spring, Loose-Wiles Biscuit, Liggett & Myers and Allis Chalmers Preferred sent all these to new maximum quotations. Good buying again developed in General Electric, which advanced more than four points, and in Mack Trucks which closed 3 5-8 higher at 97 1-8. Oil stocks were quiet but there was a marked absence of the recent heavy selling pressure. Atlantic Refining rallied more than 3 1-2 points on short covering.

National Biscuit dropped nearly three points on profit taking and losses of a point or more were recorded by Davison Chemical, United Drug, Daniel Boone Woolen Mills and Eastman Kodak.

Call money rates held steady at 2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges marked time as the deadlock of the interallied conference over the time limit for military evacuation of the Ruhr remained unbroken. Sterling moved up about 3-4 of a cent to $4.54 and French francs were about 10 points higher at 5.65 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Aug. 14.—Bond prices hesitated today, although a number of independent strong spots were scattered throughout the list. European obligations, following the trend of the foreign exchanges, marked time awaiting solution of the latest problem confronting the inter-allied conference on a time limit for military evacuation of the Ruhr.

Buying interest developed in a number of railroad liens but this group as a whole failed to make headway. Wheeling and Lake Erie issues were under accumulation on reports that the road might be acquired by either the New York Central or the Van Sweringen interests for their new Nickel Plate system. Frisco bonds were active despite official denials that formal action would be taken on recapitalization plans next week.

With allotments of the new Baltimore and Ohio issue reduced to 15 per cent of subscriptions, the prior lien 5 1-2s, which may be exchanged for the 5 per cent bonds were eagerly sought above par, the new bonds also sold at a premium in trading on the New York curb market. Offering of $5,000,000 Rock Island 5 per cent. Notes today met with a quick response, the entire issue being sold early in the day.

Moderate improvement was registered by industrial liens. Dery 7s, after declining two points in the early dealings rebounded 4, closing with a net gain of two points. Pierce Arrow 8s scored a similar gain and Wickwire Spencer 7s were a point higher.

METAL MARKET.

New York, Aug. 14.—Copper steady. Electrolytic spot and future, 13 3-4. Tin firm. Spot and future 52.75. Iron steady and unchanged. Lead firm. Spot 7.75-8.25. Zinc firm. East St. Louis spot 6.20; future 6.20-6.25. Antimony, spot 9.25.

COTTON.

New York, Aug. 14.—Cotton spot steady; middling 30.20.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—Abnormally cool weather for mid-August, accompanied by light frosts in Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan lifted all deliveries of corn today to the topmost prices yet this season. Heavy profit-taking sales ensued, however, and the corn market closed unsettled at 1 1-8 to 2c net gain, December 1.19 1-2 to 1.19 5-8. Wheat finished firm, unchanged to 3-8c off, September 1.27 7-8 to 1.28 and December 1.31 5-8 to 1.31 3-4, with oats unchanged to 3-8 @1-8 up, and provisions showing 7 to 12 cents advance.

With the corn crop as a whole unusually late and with the need of high temperatures thus greatly emphasized, an additional day of chilly weather was taken by many traders as pointing to increased likelihood of a much curtailed yield.

Difficulty of accumulating a stock of corn here was made apparent by reports that other cities were outbidding Chicago in territory that as a rule sends all shipments to this market. The oats market meanwhile was governed mostly by the action of corn.

Chances of frost in Canada tonight, together with the notable strength of corn, helped to rally the wheat market from declines due more or less to lower quotations at Liverpool and to something of a pause in export demand.

Provisions were up with corn and hogs.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Aug. 14.—Under the leadership of the copper mining shares, stock prices registered moderate improvement on the New York curb market today. Following establishment of new high records by copper issues on the New York Stock Exchange, broadening inquiry developed for various curb stocks, including Hecla, United Verde extension and some of the low priced shares.

Announcement of another increase in weekly crude oil production influenced some liquidation of the oil stocks. Considerable resistance, however, was offered to selling pressure, the tendency. Lago Petroleum led the Standard Oil group with a gain of two points, with Standard Oil of Kansas moving up a point.

Industrial issues showed an upward trend with principal activity centered in the coal stocks. Lehigh Valley coal certificates advanced a point to above 41 and other shares in this group also improved. Dubilier, Foundation Company preferred, National Tea and New Jersey Zinc moved up 1 to 3 1-2 points.

TEXT OF POWER COMPANY'S CONTRACT

and payments or credits made accordingly.

Meters shall be tested at least every twelve months. The cost of all regular tests shall be borne by the Eastern company. The cost of making special tests shall be borne by the party requesting same, unless the meter is found to be inaccurate by more than two (2) per cent. adversely to such party, in which case the other party shall bear the expense of such test.

3. Standard of Service: Energy delivered hereunder shall be alternating current at nominal frequency of 60 cycles per second. At the high tension side of the transformers said energy shall be three phase at a nominal potential of 33,000 volts or such other nominal potential as shall be adapted to that of the Eastern company's transmission system. At the low tension side of the transformers said energy shall be

Two phase at nominal potential of 2,300 volts; or three phase at a nominal potential of either 2,300 or 4,600 volts; whichever may be selected by the Board.

Except under abnormal or unusual conditions the frequency shall not vary more than one cycle above or below 60 cycles, and the voltage shall not vary to a greater degree than can be properly cared for by automatic feeder regulators of a type standard at the time of this agreement. It is nevertheless, agreed that the Eastern company shall do all it reasonably can to maintain such standard of service as will enable the Board to render good service to its various classes of customers.

4. Extent of Service. The Eastern Company agrees to sell and deliver to the Board such energy as the Board may from time to time require or request up to a maximum demand of four thousand (4000) K. W. two phase, or six thousand (6000) K. W. three phase with the line and equipment contemplated for the initial installation. Upon written request the Eastern Company will as soon as possible provide additional capacity for the purpose of meeting the Board's increased energy requirements, and the total cost of the complete installation as desired in Article 1 hereof shall thereupon be increased by the cost of line and equipment necessary to provide such additional capacity.

5 Term: This agreement, unless sooner terminated by mutual consent, shall be and remain in full force and effect until July 31st, 1934, and may be terminated upon that date by either party by notice in writing given to the other party not later than July 31st, 1933. Unless so terminated this agreement shall continue in full force and effect but may after July 31st, 1934, be terminated by either party upon any date by giving to the other party at least one year's prior written notice specifying the date of termination.

6. Rates and Payment: The service rendered and energy delivered hereunder shall be billed monthly by the Eastern Company and paid for by the board as follows:

a. Demand Charge: For each K. W. of 30 minute maximum demand in each month $1.35. Said demand shall be taken as not less than one-half the active transformer capacity at 100 per cent. power factor, nor less than 75 per cent. of the demand established during any of the next previous eleven months. Excess demands which may be caused by failure in emergencies of the Uncas Power Company to deliver energy to the board shall not be considered in the billing of demand charges by the Eastern company.

Energy charges: For each K. W. H. as metered during the month up to 1,000,000 K. W. H. 2 1-2 mills. For each K. W. H. in excess of 1,000,000 in the month 7 mills.

Said energy charge is based upon coal, or its equivalent in fuel costing $4.00 per gross ton as unloaded from cars or barges at the Eastern company's plant at Montville. For a fuel cost other than said $4.00 the energy charge shall be increased or decreased at the rate of one mill per K. W. H. per dollar variations in said fuel cost above or below said $4.00. Said fuel cost shall be the average cost obtained each month by dividing the total cost of fuel on hand at the beginning of the month, plus the total cost of fuel received during the month, by the total number of tons or equivalent units on hand and received.

Bills covering the above demand and energy charges and the installation charges defined in Article 1 for each month shall be rendered on or about the tenth day of the following month and shall be paid within fifteen days after date of rendering.

On and after July 31st, 1927, either party may make written request of the other that the above demand and energy charges be modified as of a date specified in such request, which date shall be the first day of a calendar month not less than three months, nor more than six months after the date of delivery of the request, and not less than two years subsequent to the effective date of the next preceding request. The parties hereto shall give due consideration to the matter an if possible come to an agreement; but should the parties within two months after date of delivery of the request fail to come to such an agreement, the matter shall be referred to arbitration as hereinafter provided. In either event the modification, if any, made upon such request, shall take effect as of the effective date specified in the request. Any modification made under the provisions of this article shall be such as will cover The Eastern Company's cost of the service rendered and give an adequate net return upon its investment.

7. Power Factor. It is contemplated that the power factor of load shall be 90 per cent or more. Should the power factor be consistently less than 75 per cent. then the Eastern Company may use as the demand charge 80 per cent. of the maximum 30 minute K. V. A.

The Board shall maintain such balance of its load that there shall be not more than 10 per cent. difference in current values between any two phases of the three phase high tension supply circuit at the point of metering.

8. Suspension of Service: If at any time during the term of this agreement by reason of strikes, accident, fire, act of God, or by reason of any cause or condition beyond the reasonable control of The Eastern Company affecting its plants, lines equipment, or supply of fuel, or by reason of any action of the civil, legal or military authorities, The Eastern Company is wholly or practically unable to deliver the energy herein referred to, the obligation to deliver such energy shall be suspended during and to the extent of such interruption, but the obligations of the parties shall revive and become operative as soon as the cause of such interruption is removed and the effects thereof remedied.

In the case of any failure of The Eastern Company lasting for more than ten consecutive minutes due to reasons other than those above mentioned, to deliver the energy herein referred to, The Eastern Company shall compensate the Board for such failure by a reduction in the demand charge for the month in which such failure occurs. Said reductions shall be such portions as the duration of the interruption in hours is of the total number of hours in the month.

The Eastern Company shall exercise of all reasonable care and diligence to prevent interruptions from any cause and to restore service after all interruptions, but The Eastern Company does not guarantee uninterrupted service, nor shall it be liable to the Board, or otherwise, for any loss, cost or damage resulting directly or indirectly from interruptions to service.

9. Territory: The energy delivered to the Board here-under shall be for use only to the territory within which the Board is authorized to distribute and sell electricity.

10 The Uncas Power Company: Nothing herein shall be so constructed as to in any way affect the contract between the Board and the Uncas Power Company so long as said contract shall be in force.

11. Arbitration: In case any dispute arises between the parties hereto as to the interpretation of this agreement, or any portion thereof, or as to the adjustment of any claim or settlement in connection herewith, the question shall be submitted to arbitration. In such case the party aggrieved or moving in the matter shall give to the other party written notice of its intention to have an arbitration, stating generally its grievance or the question to be decided and naming an arbitrator. The other party shall within thirty days of the receipt of said notice name an arbitrator, and in case of failure to do so, the moving party shall name a second arbitrator. The two arbitrators thus in either manner appoint a third arbitrator within ten days after the appointment of the second arbitrator, and in case of failure so to do the moving party shall request the judge of any court which would have jurisdiction over a suit concerning the matter in dispute to name the third arbitrator. The three arbitrators however named shall forthwith hear the parties and determine by majority action the matter in dispute. Such decision, including the disposition of the cost of the arbitration, shall be binding upon both parties.

12. Successors and Assigns: This agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the parties hereto and their respective successors and assigns.

WORK

Work is that thing which youth seems most to dread,
Mid-age but translates into daily bread,
And, when the snows of winter wrap the crest,
The fading senses first forget in rest.
So seldom will the human mind confess
That what doth most to try doth most to bless.

Yet, in the varying notes of Earth's refrain,
Work holdeth truest to the Heavenly strain;
And, soon or late, when jangling discords cease,
Must bring to earth the harmony of peace.
The Master of all Singers labored long
That we, who follow, may perfect the Song.

— ROBERT DORMAN.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"What did you say your age was?" he remarked, between dances.

"Well, I didn't say," returned the girl, smartly, "but I've just reached twenty-one."

"Is that so?" he returned, consolingly. "What detained you?"—Ottawa Gazette.

She: "Are they putting that poor man out for laughing?"

He: "No. The manager sent for him to find out what he was laughing at."—Boston Transcript.

Tommy—My sister sings "Il Trovatore" in five sharps.

Jack—Mine sang it in six flats, but they made her move out of every one of them.—Chicago News.

He: "When I drive a car I rely on my own intelligence. Now, it's quite different when I ride a horse."

She: "Yes, I suppose a horse is really safer."—Kansas City Times.

"Now that your son is through college what's he going to be?"

"Can't tell for a couple of years. You see, he went to a co-ed institution, and he's booked up for two years solid to act as usher at weddings."—Milwaukee Citizen.

Wife: Just think of it! A couple got married a few days ago after a courtship which lasted 50 years.

Hub—I suppose the poor old man was too feeble to hold out any longer. —Epworth Herald.

"My flowers seem kind o' droopy," said the green young woman with her first garden. "Well, miss," returned the jolly old gardener, "I notice the beds are rather hard and maybe they don't sleep very well."—Boston Post.

VITAL FACTS FOR WOMEN.

Sooner or later almost every woman is brought face to face with the fact that she is a victim of some weakness or ailment peculiar to her sex. It may be the young woman suffering from pain or irregularities, a mother who has brought on some weakness or displacement from overwork, or the middle aged woman passing through the most critical period of her life. For each of these trying periods Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved the greatest boon ever given to women, and there are women living in every town and city in the country who testify to its value.

AMERICAN LEGION POSTS TO HOLD COUNTY PARADE SATURDAY

Final plans have been completed to make the New London County Voiture Promenade, to be held in New London, Saturday of this week, one of the biggest and best ever held in Connecticut.

Col. H. S. Dorsey, grand marshal of the parade has announced the following order of march:

Marshal and Aides
Platoon of Police
30th C. A. C. Band, Fort Wright, N. Y.
U. S. Coast Guard Cadets
Hdqtrs Co., C. N. G., New London.
Battery B., C. N. G., Norwich
1st Bn. Hdqts. & Combat Train
Norwich
192nd Regiment Band, New London
Wrecking Crew and Paraphernalia
You'll Be Surprised
One Lung Machine
Estebrook and Cadi-auto
American Legion and F. G.'s
Fire Chief
Squad Wagons Nos. 1 and 6
Fire Companies Nos. 2-5-7

The parade will start from the New London armory at 3 o'clock p. m., sharp, daylight time, line being formed on Washington street. The line of march will be through Colt street to Truman, to Bank; up Bank street to State Street and the monument; up State street to Huntington; down Huntington to Washington and dismissed.

Brig. Gen. Morris B. Payne, Col. Joseph J. Gainey and Capt. Edward Cruise will serve as aides to Marshal Dorsey.

The "wrecking crew" will be on hand from state headquarters to dispose of the P. G.'s, prisoners of war, or prisoners de guerre in Voiture parlance.

The citizens of New London, from the mayor down, are contributing heartily to the success of this big Legion event which will bring the Voyageurs Militaire from all parts of the state to enjoy the New London Promenade.

State Commander E. P. Armstrong has sent a bulletin to all posts inviting all Legionaries to attend and the Legion posts of the county have extended an invitation to everyone to see the parade which will be a part of the biggest celebration in eastern Connecticut since the armistice.

Buddy-in-the-Barrel and numerous other veterans of many a hard fought campaign will provide amusement for both participants and spectators. The box car, manned by forty-hommes, will prove a very interesting feature. It will pass through Norwich Friday, en route to New London from Stafford Springs where a promenade was recently held.

A supper for all participants in the parade, Legion members and guests, will be served from 5.30 until 7.30 p. m. and there will be plenty for everyone.

The Legion posts actively participating in the promenade are Norwich, New London, Baltic, Mystic, Stonington, Lyme, Jewett City and Colchester.

A large attendance is expected at the New London County District meeting scheduled for 5 p. m. in the armory on Saturday. Officers are to be elected for the entire year and plans laid for the state convention in Torrington, Aug. 28-30th. All Legionaries going into the Voiture at New London are eligible for the Voiture state promenade at Torrington.

The Voiture is the playground of the Legion and has rapidly gained fame among Legion members who wish to keep in touch with old pals for an occasional evening of frolic. The distinctive 40-8 lapel attachment worn with the Legion button is seen more and more as time goes by. The sky-blue, two peaked chapeau, with the medal showing the Box Car with its mixed cargo of men and horses reminds many overseas men of the days in France, not all of which were taken up with fighting.

Their paraphernalia is contained in the French box car and engine which is a promenade veteran, having served in over 15 encounters with the P. G.'s. While it is not publicly known just what the deadly contents of the box car consist of, the P. G.'s will feel the effects of its action in the armory after the parade.

The many grotesque costumes to be worn by the paraders will furnish much laughter for spectators and the section in the rear of the "wrecking crew" is bound to be the most humorous ever seen.

It is rumored that about fifty prisoners have already been captured by the military police and are being held in the dungeon beneath the armory. Their fate will not be known until after Saturday night.

ATTENDANCE OF OVER 32,000 AT PLAYGROUNDS

The Norwich playgrounds have had a total attendance of over 32,000 this season. These figures are double the attendance figures of last year which were 15,540 for the first five weeks. This year's record is considered very good especially when we consider that Elizabeth street playground was closed for one week. This record attendance lacks about 1,000 of equalling the grand total for last year, which was 33,359.

Attendance table follows:

1st two days	1359
1st week	3679	5153
2nd week	2991	6721

Hobart Avenue		2371
East Side		2250
Falls		2188

The regular weekly meeting of the playground instructors was held in the superintendent's office Wednesday morning. Arrangements were made for the remaining plays to be given at Mohegan Park on Friday evening, Aug. 15. The plays will be given by the children from the Greeneville, Elizabeth Street and East Side playgrounds. Plays will be given that same night at the Falls and at Laurel Hill.

Assignments were made of the episodes in the pageant to be given as a final demonstration of the recreation commission. Miss Dodd was appointed chairman of the pageant committee with Miss Farrell and Miss Blackledge as assistants. Each playground is to be represented in the pageant and work will start at once on the costumes which the children are to make themselves.

OFFICER JACK M'INTYRE GOING TO EUROPE

Policeman Jack McIntyre, formerly of this city, stationed at Cunard line pier No. 54, foot of 14th street, New York, for the last ten years, has stepped on a magic rug.

As the guest of William B. Leeds, Jr., son of the late tin-plate magnate, he will spend his vacation abroad. He will visit Paris, London and Wembley, where the British Empire Exposition now is being held. With Mrs. Jack he plans to sail Sept. 17 on the Berengaria, returning the latter part of October.

Officer McIntyre—he's "Handsome Jack" to hundreds of world travelers, most of whom would not think their voyage successfully ended without his hearty welcoming handclasp—first met young Leeds several years ago. The millionaire was en route to his mother's side in Switzerland. They formed a mutual liking, according to the officer, and the invitation was extended when Leeds and his bride, the former Princess Xenia, arrived recently from abroad.

The lucky officer is 40, but looks 35. He has been on the New York force 15 years.

Mr. McIntyre is well known in Norwich, being a Greeneville boy.

Paul Nejime Not Injured.

Through an error it was stated in The Bulletin, Thursday morning, that Paul Nejime of this city was injured in an automobile accident at the Occum flats, Tuesday afternoon. The name should have been Paul Namey, of Norwich, manager of the Baltic theatre.

Mr. Nejime received a number of calls during the day Thursday and his many friends were pleased to learn that he was not the man injured.

A man's nickname will be remembered long after he is dead.

NORWICH MAN PLAINTIFF IN DAMAGE ACTION

Willis L. Buck and Olive Buck, his wife, of Huntington street, New London, are defendants in a damage suit brought by Herman S. Sears of Norwich, which is returnable to the superior court for this county on the first Tuesday of next month. The suit against the couple arises out of mortgages given by Buck to Sears last May.

According to the complaint of the plaintiff on May 6, Buck owed him $2,000, and that to secure this amount Buck gave him mortgages on a Paige automobile; and on a Mason and Hamlin piano. Deputy Sheriff William H. Casey served an attachment on the automobile which John Palozolli now claims to own, which alleged ownership accrued after the plaintiff's mortgage.

Following the placing of the attachment Mr. Palozolli sought to recover the automobile, and writ of replevin was served by Constable Charles W. Connors. The suit of Palozolli to recover possession of the car is also returnable next month.

The facts, as claimed, are that last June, Buck accepted a position as a salesman for the Used Car Exchange in Mystic. He is alleged to have approached Palozolli and induced him to purchase the automobile which was represented as being owned by him, and for which he displayed a bill of sale. A bargain was made and Buck sold the car for $500 in cash and took a note for $500. The claim will be made that under the Connecticut law a chattel mortgage on an automobile without a delivery is invalid as against purchasers in good faith.

HARTFORD MAN GIVES TALK ON WIRING

Mayor Milo R. Waters, several city officials and members of the contracting trade in Norwich, interested in electrical contracting, attended a meeting held at the office of Chief Howard L. Stanton, at the central fire station Thursday night and heard a fine talk on proper installation and what an electrical inspector runs into in the line of poor installation, given by Thomas Day of Hartford, a well known electrical inspector, who is working in this city in conjunction with the investigation being made by the New England Insurance Exchange.

Mr. Day, in commenting upon local conditions, said that during his inspections of local mercantile houses, he had found some very bad and some good conditions.

His investigation is in line with another investigation of local conditions that has been under way for several weeks for the purpose of re-rating the city under the Dean system of rating. Only mercantile establishments have been visited, house conditions not being investigated. When the work is completed, property owners will be notified by the insurance exchange and the poor conditions must be remedied to hold the rates at a minimum. It is also understood that if the work is not done before another investigation is made, the owners are to be informed that the conditions must be remedied and steps will be taken to see that the work is done.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

Played by a notable cast of screen performers, most of whom won enviable reputations on the stage, the William Fox screen version of The Plunderer, from the story by Roy Norton, promises to be unique among film spectacles. The picture comes to the Breed theater today and Saturday.

Frank Mayo has the principal role with Evelyn Brent, Tom Santschi, James Mason, Percy Shaw, Edward Phillips and Dan Mason.

The story deals with romance of the old mining days and is replete with incidents of intrigue and fast action. A flooded mine, realistic fights and similar action are said to combine to make every foot of the film twelve inches of celluloid excitement.

The Plunderer was directed by George Archainbaud, who recently completed the Fox production The Shadow of the East.

William Duncan in the first chapter of The Fast Express, the Pathe news and a Sunshine comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Patrick Sullivan, 44 years of age, an engineer for the Bell Manufacturing Company in Worcester, had his head blown off and his right leg fractured with an injection pump used in blowing five steam in the process of dyeing.

A triple tragedy was enacted on a remote farm nine miles south of Lindsay when Mrs. George Fanning, 38, strangled her two daughters, Bernice and Lois, aged 7 and 9 years, on an improvised pillows and then attempted to end her life by cutting her throat.

Woolen and silk goods valued at $3000 were stolen from the American Coat and Skirt Company in Boston.

The mixed commission investigating the massacre of nineteen Bulgarians in Macedonia recently is said semi-officially at the foreign office to have confirmed the Bulgarian version given by the survivors to the effect that the Bulgarians were bound and then shot down by Greek troops.

GILPATRIC EMBEZZLEMENTS MAY TOTAL HALF A MILLION

Declaration is Made That Gilpatric Himself Does Not Know How Much He Has Taken—The Estimate of Losses at Approximately $500,000 is Based on New Disclosures—The Properties of the Defaulter Were Held With Thin Equities—Embezzlements Probably Extended Over a Period of Seven Years.

Putnam, Conn., Aug. 15—(By the A. P.)—A half million dollars may be involved in the embezzlements of G. Harold Gilpatric, state treasurer and cashier of the First National Bank of Putnam, it was indicated today by those who are trying to straighten out the tangle in which his attempt at suicide left his accounts. Gilpatric himself, it was learned, does not know how much he has taken.

In a statement of his assets, made as a part of the letter to his wife which was written before he fired the shot that will blind him, in part at least, for life, he listed such of his belongings as he could remember, but could say of his obligations only that he was "hopelessly involved." The existence of this list of assets became known only today, as did other facts in connection with the attempted suicide by which Gilpatric sought to close probably seven years of embezzlement.

The list is one of uncertainties. It includes an interest in a machine project at Worcester which Gilpatric has said was worth $200,000, but which is now found to be worth less than 10 per cent. of that amount. It includes a note for approximatery $100,000 given by a man of some prominence that probably can be realized upon only for a small part of that sum, it was said. It includes an interest in an oil-burning project at New London, Conn., estimated to involve about $36,000 in investment, but worth little or nothing now. It includes properties at Hartford and elsewhere listed at $157,000, that are found to be heavily mortgaged, with thin equities remaining, if any.

Although those familiar with the list left by him said it bore every indication of an earnest effort to help his wife unravel the tangle and make the best settlement possible of his affairs, it included no mention of several mortgages that he holds. As assets these are worth more probably than some of the items listed.

The likelihood that the losses will approximate $500,000 is based on accumulating instances of apparent embezzlement of negotiable bonds left with Gilpatric at the bank; the obtaining of money by means of straw notes, or notes with weak endorsements, and the indications that mortgages, and mortgage notes obtained by Gilpatric as investments for estates in his charge will prove to be without standing. The $262,000 losses discovered at the bank by the examiners up to Aug. 13, which covered bonds stolen and loose loans obtained has been increased by new instances of each; mortgage losses are still problematical, but the amount involved is at least $60,000 if the mortgages are found to be forgeries. As yet the receiver, George W. Coffin, has not called for proof of claim and today with the bank doors reopened for everything but withdrawals, was in receipt of a number of inquiries from persons who entrusted Gilpatric with their funds, and obtained no receipt.

Those who are trying to straighten out Gilpatric's affairs have found they were those of a man overburdened with work, who had taken on more than he could possibly attend to, yet boasted that "he left business behind" when he ended his day at the bank. He would allow none to help him, made out his own income tax statements, was his own lawyer, accountant and advisor.

The directors of the bank were admittedly figureheads, and the discoveries are confirming this each day, it was said.

Mrs. Gilpatric, in the light of events of the past week, has told friends that there was nothing in her husband's life that was abnormal in any respect. The income available at home was only that which was to be expected from his position; his personal expenditures were inkeeping with the moderate successes that he reported in business ventures. He was concerned over the future education of his children, yet set aside no sums of any size for that purpose. Except for the evidence of large business losses, the family has no information as to what became of the money, or when abstractions began, it is stated.

It has been learned that the shot that Gilpatric fired into his head at his home last Thursday was the second act in his decision to kill himself, which followed the re-appearance of federal bank examiners in town. At 10 o'clock Wednesday night, Aug. 6, Gilpatric went down to the Mystic river and left his automobile; but found apparently that the stream was too low for drowning. This has been reported by a garage keeper who saw him.

Although he is conscious; his condition is critical, and his resignation as state treasurer, prepared for signature several days, has not been signed. As yet, Gilpatric has not been told that the bank is closed.

NOTES HELD BY MERCHANTS NATIONAL BANK OF BOSTON

Boston, Aug. 15.—W. Irving Bullard, vice president of the Merchants National bank, which was Boston correspondent of the wrecked First National Bank of Putnam, Conn., stated tonight that the indebtedness involving the Connecticut bank and its cashier amounted to $36,000.

The Merchants bank is the holder of a note for $25,000 which the First National bank of Putnam rediscounted, he said. "The note was issued by a manufacturing corporation which is sound financially."

"The Merchants is also the holder of a note of Gilpatric, endorsed by his wife, on which $11,000 is still due. The note was made out for $25,000 some time ago."

EX-PUGILIST "KID M'COY" REMAINS IN PRISON CELL

Los Angeles, Aug. 15.—A dejected Kid McCoy, greatly different from the loquacious prize ring idol of other times, sat in his cell here today, while a few blocks away a coroner sought to fix responsibility for the death of Mrs. Theresa W. Mors, divorced wife of Albert Mors, wealthy antique dealer. McCoy is held on suspicion of murder in connection with the affair.

McCoy contends the woman, with whom he had been living, under an assumed name, committed suicide. Police investigators declare that the ex-pugilist shot her to death in a fit of jealousy or rage.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict stating that she came to her death from a gunshot wound inflicted by a person or persons unknown. The verdict did not state whether the jury believed the woman's death was a case of suicide or homicide.

McCoy today received some support for his suicide story from the lips of a county autopsy surgeon. Dr. H. A. Wagner, who on the witness stand at the inquest, declared that his investigations led him to believe the gun used on Mrs. Mors had been fired "when close or against" the woman's head.

The doctor explained the absence of powder burns by saying that undoubtedly the cartridge had been charged with smokeless powder.

F. M. Andreani, attorney for Mors, testified that on Tuesday, the night of which day Mrs. Mors died, she had met Mors in his office for a business discussion and that she had displayed considerable friendliness for her divorced husband.

District Attorney Asa Keyes, watching the inquest proceedings, reiterated his previous statement that, despite Dr. Wagner's testimony, he expected the county grand jury to indict McCoy for the murder of Mrs. Mors.

ARRESTED FOLLOWING AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

New Haven, Aug. 15.—Stanley G. Page, 401 Howard avenue, was arrested tonight following an automobile accident at Lighthouse and South Bend roads this afternoon in which two small children were injured. Page's car collided with a telegraph pole and was badly wrecked. A young girl was cut on the head and a four-year-old boy, George Tarlisle, was cut about the face and body. Page disappeared after the accident, according to the police, and was not found until this evening. He was charged with operating a motor vehicle while his license was under suspension and with reckless driving. Page was arrested May 19 charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor and was fined $100 and his license was suspended.

HELD IN CONNECTION WITH TORRINGTON MURDER

Torrington, Aug. 15.—Lorenzo Sanna, held as a material witness in the murder of Ralph Deleo at their rooming house, 48 Wall street, was taken to Litchfield county jail tonight by County Detective Antonio Tomanio.

Sanna still maintains his innocence of the crime.

Deleo was murdered in his room early yesterday morning, having been hacked through the head and body with an axe. Sanna, his roommate, was taken into custody shortly after the body was found. It is alleged that Sanna informed his landlady, Mrs. Maria Catena that Deleo was ill and would be unable to go to work.

He then took the woman's three children to the Brooker Memorial where they were kept all day while their mother worked in a local factory.

While he was gone, Mrs. Catena became solicitous of Deleo's welfare and entered his room. She found him lying on the floor. The police were notified and Sanna was arrested. He denied all knowledge of the crime.

DR. WIEDFELT DESIRES TO REJOIN THE KRUPPS

Berlin, Aug. 15 (By the A. P.).—Dr. Otto Wiedfelt, German ambassador to the United States, is expected to reach Berlin for an indefinite holiday at the end of September, and although the foreign office denies that his resignation from the Washington post is definite, his friends and associates in the Krupp directorate are convinced he will not return to America.

Dr. Wiedfelt is said to have requested the government to relieve him at an earlier date than originally contemplated, as he desires to rejoin the Krupps as soon as possible in view of the complexity of the problems facing German industrial interests in connection with the execution of the Dawes report.

The foreign office has been conducting an informal survey of available candidates for the Washington post, but it is stated that no selection has yet been agreed upon.

CORONER'S FINDING ON DEATH OF MRS. MORS

Los Angeles, Aug. 15—The coroners' jury investigating the death of Mrs. Theresa W. Mors, found shot in her apartment Tuesday night and in connection with which Kid McCoy, expugilist, is being held, late today found the woman came to her death from a gunshot wound inflicted by a person or persons unknown.

The verdict made no mention of whether the woman's death was a case of suicide or homicide.

The party left Washington early in the afternoon and Mr. Coolidge spent the afternoon and evening reading and resting.

Mrs. Coolidge and John Coolidge, their son, were the only other occupants of the president's car—"Ideal." Mr. Coolidge has expressed a desire to confine hi visit at Plymouth to one of quiet and relaxation for himself and family and has made arrangements to keep in touch with the White House only by taking care of urgent busines.

C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to the president; Dr. J. F. Coupal, the president's physician, and Mr. Coolidge's stenographer are the only other White House attaches with the party.

Traveling over the same route they went a month ago with the body of their younger son, Calvin, Jr., and still in mourning because of his death, the president and Mrs. Coolidge left their car but once during the trip up the eastern coastline. At Philadelphia, the president, posed for newspaper photographers on the observation platform. Brief stops were made in the larger cities and groups of trainmen, aware of the schedule of the train carrying the party, comprised the gathering about the car at these stops.

Mr. Slemp said tonight the response to Mr. Coolidge's speech of acceptance delivered last night in Washington had been of the "most enthusiastic" order. He reported messages had been received from every section of the country east of the Rocky Mountains from persons who had heard the address by radio.

The president's car will be left at Ludlow, Vt., early tomorrow morning and later the party will motor to Plymouth, twelve miles distant. In the modest little home there of John Coolidge, the president's father, the family will live for the next two weeks. Mr. Coolidge has come to this home each summer for his vacation for several years and it was here he was administered the oath of office by his father a year ago upon the death of President Harding.

The proclamation addressed "To the Citizens of Nebraska," says in part:

FRENCH AND GERMANS ARE NEARING AN AGREEMENT

German Delegation Issued a Statement Last Night That "Positive Results" Might be Expected Today—General Feeling Prevails That the Crisis in the Negotiations in London Has Been Passed—British Prime Minister is Making Vigorous Efforts to Speed Up Decision on Evacuation of the Ruhr.

London, August 15—(By the A. P.)—Germany and France tonight at 11 o'clock had reached no positive agreement with regard to the terms of the Ruhr evacuation, but the delegations representing both countries issued hopeful statements.

These statements announced that the negotiations for a settlement of the issue would be resumed tomorrow, with a promise of success, and there was a general feeling in conference circles tonight that the crisis in the negotiations had been passed and that the Germany chancellor, Dr. Marx, and M. Herriot, the French premier, would come to terms tomorrow and make it possible for the Dawes plan to be put into effect, providing the German Reichstag and the French parliament give their approval.

The German delegation tonight issued a communication saying that the negotiations would be continued tomorrow and that "positive" results might be expected. The Frenchmen also issued a communique of a favorable nature.

"This evening," said the French announcement, "from 8 o'clock to 10 o'clock a conversation took place between M. Herriot, General Nollet, M. Clementel and M. Peytral, representing the French government, and Dr. Marx and Dr. Stresseman, representing the German government. This conversation gives hope of a favorable result."

Ramsay Macdonald, the British prime minister, this afternoon made vigorous efforts to speed up the German and French negotiations.

Chancellor Marx and his associates were in telegraphic communication by direct wire throughout the day with Berlin, but it was not until 5 o'clock this afternoon that they had received a reply to the French proposals in definite shape to communicate it to Premier Macdonald, whom they visited in Downing street. During this visit they had a long conversation with Mr. Macdonald, who renewed his urgent suggestion that the Germans accept French occupation of the Ruhr for another year, with the immediate evacuation of Ruhrport and other points, which M. Herriot has said the French were willing to leave at once.

For two hours the conversation continued, the Germans treating Mr. Macdonald as the intermediary before whom they desired to lay their case. At 7.45 they went to the Hyde Park hotel for a conference with M. Herriot and his associates and remained about two hours. Then they visited M. Theunis, the Belgian premier and his associates at the Carlton Hotel, where they remained forty-five minutes. The Germans returned to their headquarters at the Ritz at about 11 o'clock tonight, not having had dinner and worn out by thirty six hours of strain since they put their case up to President Hbert and the Berlin cabinet.

Chancellor Marx and his associates have been much annoyed by rumors that unusual pressure has been made to bear upon them by the allied delegates, as they fear the effect such reports will have on the German public, and especially upon the political parties which oppose the Dawes plan.

It is clear the Germans expected Premier Macdonald to be far less positive in his support of the French in their insistence that they must be permitted to remain a year longer in the Ruhr if they see fit to do so. The Germans also have been displeased with the attitude of Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer, toward them, and they resent the support of the American representatives to the solid front of the allies in support of the French contention. However, the assurances given by the great powers among the allies that they will do everything possible to effect the immediate negotiation of a $40,000,000 loan for Germany has, in a large measure, offset the resentment the German delegates feel.

The American representatives had no active part in today's negotiations. Frank B. Kellogg, the American ambassador, and James A. Logan, Jr., called at Premier Macdonald's official residence in Downing street to inquire about the progress of the negotiations, but they did not go into the hall where Mr. Macdonald and the Germans were conferring.

TO GROUP SALT'S TEXTILE PLANTS IN BRIDGEPORT

Bridgeport, Aug. 15—Stockholders of the Salt's Textile Manufacturing Company here today voted unanimously to approve the plans of officers to sell the plants of the firm in Lyons, France, in which the company has made velvets for the foreign trade for a number of years. The investment placed in the French plant is over a million dollars, according to Frederick Rhodes, treasurer of the concern.

Future business activity will be centralized in Bridgeport, it being understood that eventually other plants in this country will be disposed of. An offer for the French property has been received from the foreign interests by Salt's Company officers and will in all probability be accepted. The firm will not attempt to export its product, it was said.

SEC'Y HUGHES FOUND ACCUMULATION OF WORK

Washington, Aug. 15—Secretary Hughes found numerous matters awaiting his attention when he returned today to his desk in the state department after an absence of more than a month on his European trip.

Among pending matters of interest are the questions of selecting men to fill a number of vacant diplomatic posts, including the embassies in Tokio and Mexico City.

It has been doubted in government circles that the Tokio embassy, at least, was likely to be offered before the election as it would be difficult to find a man of proper qualifications who would care to fill it for the brief time that he could expect with certainty to remain in the Japanese capital.

STATE EXPERTS DISAGREED WITH DEFENSE ALIENISTS

Chicago, August 15—(By the A. P.)—The prosecution today produced two experts who testified in diametric opposition to conclusions set forth by four alienists for the defense that Richard Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., were "mentally sick" when they kidnapped and murdered Robert Franks last May 21.

Dr. Rollin T. Woodyatt, of Chicago, who qualified as an expert on endocrinealogy challenged the report of findings of functional disorders of the endocrine system of Leopold and Loeb, and Dr. H. Douglas Singer, a mental pathologist, testified that the phantasies are normal and that he had remarked displays of normal emotions on the parts or the two youthful defendants.

Thus, the three points of the defense's plea for imprisonment rather than execution for the youths were attacked, it being the defense's hope to swerve Judge John R. Caverly toward mitigation by showing that diseased endocrines, childish phantasies swaying the mature years, and stunted emotional growths, has resulted in "mental sickness" in both Loeb and Leopold.

Dr. Woodyatt refused to be moved on cross examination from his statements in favor of the prosecution. The defense got no pprtunity to attempt to prove error in Dr. Singer's conclusions that both youths were sane as the hearing was adjourned upon conclusion of his direct examination. He will undergo cross examination by Clarense S. Darrow, chief of defense counsel, at the two hour holiday session tomorrow.

SHENANDOAH HEADS OUT TO SEA FOR MANEUVERS

Lakehurst, N. J., Aug. 15.—The dirigible Shenandoah, after spending the afternoon off the New Jersey coast, late today headed out to sea on her trip to the scene of the maneuvers of the Atlantic flight squadron of the United States navy fleet off New England Saturday and Sunday. Leaving her mooring mast at 11.35 a. m. the cruiser sailed over Atlantic City and at 5 p. m., when sending the message that she was putting out to sea, was over Barnegat Bay.

The airship carried a crew of 37 men on this trip, and is in charge of Commander Lansdowne. Her orders are to spy out an imaginary enemy from 500 to 600 miles from land and 100 miles beyond the line of ships. Air officials said the dirigible is expected to return to her hangar Sunday night.

An exact replica of the famous 40-8, consisting of a French locomotive of the World war style and freight car, attracted attention as it pulled into this city about 4 o'clock Friday afternoon for a breathing spell, while en route to New London. The 40-8 stands for 40 horses and eight men and is a phrase which brings back vivid memories to the boys who served in the A. E. F. over there. The locomotive which is the old fashioned type with funnel shape smoker is set over a motor truck engine and chassis and the freight car is mounted on a trailer. E. P. Armstrong, of New Haven, state commander of the American Legion, is conductor and Ora Carney of Bridgeport is stoker. The outfit is known throughout the state as the Grand Voiture of La Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux. The Chef Gare, as the conductor is also called, carries with it all the paraphernalia commonly seen in such outfits in France. The American Legion sign appeared on the front of the car. Members of the crew said that the 40-8 was in constant demand for parades and carnivals, not only in Connecticut, but all through New England. The interesting duplicate will appear in the parade at New London tonight (Saturday). The society also has a fake tank which always attracts much attention and this is due to pass through this city this (Saturday) morning on its way to New London.

Albert Crittenden of New Haven, a minor and member of one of the families passing the summer at Columbia Lake, was presented in the Columbia town court Thursday evening on a technical charge of operating his power boat on the lake without being properly muffled. It is said that his father is a police court judge. The arrest was made by State Policeman Hardisty, of Stafford Springs, who made an investigation after receiving information from lakeside residents. It was also found that the boat had not been registered. The defense explained that when the boat was loaded, the exhaust pipe was under water and no loud reports could be heard, but that when the cargo was light the pipe was above the water line. A fine of $5 and costs, with the fine remitted, was imposed by Justice of the Peace Hubert F. Collins. Grand Juror Joseph N. Clarke prosecuted. Crittenden agreed to make arrangements to muffle the muffler on his boat, which is acknowledged to be the best on the lake.

A touring car owned by Mrs. Emma Brache of East Hartford, a summer resident at Crystal Lake, was struck by another touring car owned by Walter Kowal, of Rockville, on the Crystal Lake road Wednesday night. The cars were coming from opposite directions. Mrs. Brache's husband was driving and when he saw the approaching machine he pulled to one side of the road and dimmed his headlights. Kowal was coming at a rate of speed said to be 15 miles per hour when he accidentally stepped on the gas pedal instead of the brake. The Rockville machine was equipped with balloon tires and as the front tire struck the fender of the Brache machine the Kowal car mounted the running board and after tearing that off, crushed the back fender. The enameled body of the car was badly scratched. State Policemen Hardisty and Hulbert, of Stafford Springs, investigated the accident and notified Kowal to appear in court.

A Ford coupe bearing the New York registration numbers 999-998 struck the end of a stretch of state fence a short distance west of Abington on the Putnam-Willimantic road, Friday morning. Local people who saw the machine against the fence, some time after the accident, failed to learn the cause of the mishap, or the condition of the passengers, as there was no one about the premises or vicinity. The manner in which the windshield was broken would tend to show that an occupant of the machine had been thrown through the glass. The steering rod on the car was bent V-shape and nearly touched the ground. The front end of the machine was stove in.

Willimantic business men have expressed much sympathy for the plight of the sister town of Putnam. Although conditions here were not of the best for some time, they never reached a critical stage and a decided uplift has been apparent in local conditions within the past ten days. With the manufacturing department of the American Thread company mills running one additional day a week, making a total of four, and the rumor that the Quidnick-Windham Manufacturing company would resume operations under a more consistent schedule, things look considerably brighter. Willimantic has had experience enough, however, to be able to appreciate and express sorrow at the dire situation which Putnam faces.

Use Goldstein, 14, of Pleasant Valley was slightly bruised about the body and very much frightened, about 10 o'clock Friday morning, when she ran pell mell into the rear right fender of the Dodge sedan owned by the American Thread company and driven by George Sypher. The little girl had been playing in front of the Chasen store, on Union street, when she ran out into the road and struck the moving automobile. She was examined at St. Joseph's hospital and then allowed to return home. Chief of Police MacArthur of the police department investigated the matter and absolved Mr. Sypher of all blame.

A call for a special meeting of the board of aldermen to be held next Monday evening at the council chamber has been issued by Acting Mayor George W. Hickey. The meeting is to take action on a petition for holding a special city meeting, in reference to an additional appropriation to carry on the building of new sidewalks and to appropriate for urgently needed repairs at Bank street engine house. The annual appropriation made for the building of sidewalks is nearly consumed and the petition for additional money comes from the fact that there are ten more weeks of good weather left and many applications for new walks are on hand. An explanation of the need for repairs at the engine house will be made at the special city meeting, in the event that one is called.

At the call of D. D. PLAINFIELD

Some State Troopers were quite indignant about the statement in Thursday's Bulletin regarding some troopers' ignorance of the state laws. In a statement regarding the state police, the last word Tuesday should be omitted.

The state troopers of this section are supposed to be well acquainted with the statutes, as their duty is to maintain order. For the past year some members of the force have disregarded certain laws entirely. The conclusion drawn was that they were ignorant of the law or they would not have infringed on it. If they did knowingly they are not doing their duty and should be discharged.

Reports have been circulating continually that troopers often ride their motorcycles with no hands on the handle bars. Others park their cycles on the sidewalk, obstructing pedestrians, while others open their mufflers. If the offenders are not ignorant of the laws, what other reason can be given for doing these things? Certainly they do not wilfully break the law. Many other cases could be cited such as urging drivers to race and break the speed laws and then putting the drivers under arrest. Can this be found in the statutes? residents here are asking.

PALACE THEATER

Last showing today Doris Kenyon and Victor Sutherland in The Love Bandit. The greatest lumberjack story ever filmed, a sensation. Also latest tuxedo comedy Pathe review and Palace orchestra.

Starting Sunday four days Elaine Hammerstein, the winsome star who has recently scored such a big success with her own independent productions will be seen at the Palace theater in the third picture from her own studio, Daring Love and adaptation of Albert Pape on Terhune's novel Driftwood. This production was directed by R. G. Edwards and is being released by Truart Film Corporation.

Daring Love is a drama of regeneration—powerful in theme with climaxes which grip with their intensity. It is the story of the reclamation of "human driftwood" through the all-pervading power of love. Elaine Hammerstein has the role of an entertainer in a tawdry cafe where she is known only as Bobe. Into this life of hers comes one day a man who professes to be a writer looking for atmosphere for his stories and she is beguiled into permitting him to come to her home. While he is there, her home is broken into by detectives and because of the man's presence the necessary evidence is furnished for his divorce. This the man had all planned and Bobo, thus tricked drives him away in scorn. Before he can leave the man collapses from the effects of the drink he has taken continuously and, in sympathy, Bobo keeps him in her home to nurse him back to health.

One of this develops a romance as strange, as stirring as any which has ever before appeared on the screen. "Red" Bishop, owner of the cafe in which Bobe entertains, is the conflicting force throughout the play.

Miss Hammerstein, more charming than ever, in a role of a type she has never been seen in before, heads a cast of distinguished merit. Playing opposite her, as the male lead, is Huntley Gordon, who is well-known to picture-goers everywhere. Walter Long, famous for his portrayals of "heavy" characters plays the part of "Red Bishop. Other prominent members of the cast are Johnny Arthur Gertrude Astor, Clay Fitzgerald and Morgan Wallace.

Added attractions. Our Gang's latest comedy The Cobbler, Pathe news Aesop Fables, Hodge Podge, and famous Palace orchestra.

Bred Theater

Richard Barthelmess will again prove that he is one of the most versatile motion picture actors in The Enchanted Cottage, his latest production, which will be the First National attraction at the Bred theater Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Although the public has learned to believe that most motion picture stars prefer to depend upon their own good looks for appeal, Barthelmess has sacrificed his genial smile, his dark eyes and his youthful appearance to fit the part of Oliver Bashforth, the war veteran of the photoplay.

Incidentally, May McAvoy, who plays opposite Barthelmess for the first time in The Enchanted Cottage, used nose putty and false teeth so that no trace of her own natural beauty would be revealed on the screen. However, you needn't worry that Dick and May will look unattractive in The Enchanted Cottage, for in parts of the picture they appear as their own charming selves.

The Enchanted Cottage was directed by John S. Robertson and adapted from the play by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero.

Other pictures on the bill include Topics of the Day and a Sunshine comedy.

Today's bill consists of the Plunderer the first chapter of The Fast Express, the Pathe news and a Sunshine comedy. Continous show today 1:30 to 10:30.

BROADWAY THEATRE

Alan Crosland makes his debut as a Paramount producer with the release of Unguarded Women, which begins a four days run at the Broadway theater Sunday. Advance reports have it that the director of Enemies of Women, Under the Red Robe and Three has surpassed all of his previous efforts. We may therefore look for the ultimate in screen plays when this production is flashed on the local silver sheet.

China, with its age-old civilization, is the interesting background of this gripping photoplay which James Creelman adapted from the Saturday Evening Post story Face by Lucy Stone Terrill. The unusual theme of the photodrama is bound to create a spirited discussion. Those who know something of the story will recall that it concerns a man who sacrifices himself to save the widow of his friend whose death he inadvertently caused on the battlefield during the war. There have been many post-war stories but none as dramatic and soul-stirring as this.

We can think of no one who is better fitted for the part of the gay and reckless widow than vivacious Bebe Daniels; handsome, virile Richard Dix is the ideal type of "the man of honor"; and Mary Astor, with her winsome beauty is perfectly cast in the appealing role of the "true-blue" fiancee. All three have featured roles. The others in the strong supporting cast include Walter McGrail, Frank Losee, Harry Mestayer and Joe King.

Our advice is not to miss seeing Unguarded Women, for it is one of the season's best.

Jack Dempsey will be seen in a new one of the famous Fight and Win pictures entitled So This is Paris.

A Kinograms will complete the program. Monday matinee, ladies ten cents.

Palace Theater

George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber, long famous individually for their literary accomplishments, have jointly written the new comedy, Old Man Minick, which Winthrop Ames will present at the Palace theatre for two nights beginning Friday evening August 22nd, matinee Saturday. The collaboration of these two noted authors is an event upon her novels and short stories. (Old Man Minick, by the way, is based upon one of the latter,) although she is also known dramatically by Our Mrs. McChesney, in which Ethel Barrymore starred several seasons ago.

The cast is a particularly noteworthy one, for in addition to Haggie, Mr. Ames has assembled many other popular players including Phyllis Povah, who will play Minick's daughter, Antoinette Perry, Frederick Burt, Sydney Booth, Mildred Southwick, Ann Winslow, Mary Hubbard, Jessie Graham, Beatrice Moreland, Lavinia Shannon, Ralph Bunker, Charles R. Burrows, Alfred Hyde, John Clements and Emma Wise.

DANIELSON

Before Justice Frank M. Bedard, on the West Side, six persons were presented to answer, on Friday, to charges that they had violated the statutes relative to properly registering and tagging dogs owned by them. The prosecutions were the result of activities in this territory by Special Deputies Elliott and Genung of the commission on domestic animals. They have been making a periodical clean-up this week of towns in this section of the county and have prosecuted a score of persons.

The deputies point out that there is little or no excuse for persons harboring an unlicensed dog. The requirements of the law in this respect are long established. Yet from year to year violations continue.

It may not be out of place to point that all the offenders against the dog laws are not resident in Plainfield and Brooklyn. Killingly has its quota of them, and so has other towns in this territory. This being the case, owners of unlicensed dogs, or dogs that are running about without tags, will have no cause for complaint if they, too, are presented in court and made to pay a fine and costs. Those who have had this experience find that it is much cheaper to register the dogs—or be rid of them.

The boys in khaki will march away again next Wednesday evening. But it will not be under such a strain, neither for them nor their relatives and friends, that marks their going when the dogs of war have been unleashed. Next week, though they will be equipped with all the accoutrements for war, they will be merely entraining for an annual tour of duty at Camp Eustis, Va.

It will not be a novel trip for the majority of the members of the Service battery, one of the very best outfits in the 102d artillery. They have been to Eustis before and are fully aware of the hard work that awaits them during the day that they will be training there.

Officers of the battery will be in New London Sunday for conference with the regimental adjutant relative to final details of the trip south. The command will be absent from Danielson, beginning next Wednesday, for a period of 13 days. It will leave here with the full enlisted strength allowed in peace time—three officrs and 65 enlisted men.

The Brooklyn Center Fire district, the organization of which has made possible some civic improvements in Brooklyn village, has its annual meeting scheduled for the coming week.

W. IRVING BULLARD NOT IN GILPATRIC TANGLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Aug. 15.—W. Irving Bullard characterized as false in every particular a published statement that he had "disappeared," following the attmept of Cashier G. Harold Gilpatric of Putnam to commit suicide by shooting, Thursday of last week. Such a thing was intimated in a story that appeared in a Hartford paper and it has aroused Mr. Bullard's ire. His viewpoint of it on Friday was that it originated in some source having an intent to injure him.

Mr. Bullard, with members of his family, has been away on a week's motoring trip through the Adirondacks, a trip planned long prior to Cashier Gilpatric's attempt at suicide. Misses Annie and Amelia Hutching of this place left here Thursday of last weke, prior to Mr. Gilpatric's attempt at suicide, to remain at the Bullard home at Edgartown, Mass., during the absence of the Bullard family on the motoring trip.

Mr. Bullard was in Danielson last Thursday afternoon, making one of his regular visits here. Being a banker, he was one of the first to learn of Cashier Gilpatric's plight and hastened to Putnam. He did not, however, remain closeted with bank officials at Putnam until 2 o'clock the following morning, as has been stated, but left Putnam for Boston at 3 p. m. At that time the true state of the Putnam First National's affairs had not been ascertained.

Mr. Bullard authorizes the statement that he is not a stockholder in or an official of any company or organization in which Mr. Gilpatric is interested. Mr. Bullard says he knew nothing about Mr. Gilpatric's business or personal affairs and saw him only three or four times a year. They were on friendelly terms, but had no important relations of any kind. Mr. Bullard states that he revelations of Mr. Gilpatric's operations were as amazing t ohim as to any other person.

PROVIDENCE-HARTFORD 'BUS HELD UP BY STATE DEPT.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Aug. 15.—Acting under instructions from the state motor vehicle department headquarters at Hartford, John E. Collette, operator of the new giant motor omnibus now in express service between Providence and Hartford, was ordered into court here Friday afternoon for operating a public service car in Connecticut in violation of certain provisions of the motor vehicle law.

Mr. Collette explained to Prosecuting Attorney Arthur G. Bills that he has made application for the required registration and for the special operator's license that he must possess in Connecticut as driver of a public service car. Mr. Collette's 'bus is at present carrying Rhode Island registration only, as it hails from Providence. He said that when he appeared at the registration office in Hartford no one was on duty there excepting a young woman clerk, and he claims that he was informed by her that, having made his application, he would be allowed to continue to operate for a period not to exceed 15 days, if a period as lengthy as that were required to complete his registration requirements. This provision does not hold, however, in the case of public service cars.

In view of these facts, the case was continued until Monday, Mr. Collette posting a cash bond of 150 for his appearance.

The 'bus, Hartford-bound, Friday morning, carried a considerable number of passengers. On the return trip, when the 'bus was held up here, there wer fewer passengers, but some of these, being anxious to get a boat out of Providence for New York, left the 'bus and employed a local public service eman to run them into Providence, that they might sail as planned.

If a man would put only his own property in his wife's name it wouldn't be so bad, but some men aren't satisfied to let it go at that.

The registrars of voters report a list of voters to be made this year that will pass the 150 mark. Names to be registered on caucus lists are also being filed rapidly. To date 72 men have asked to have their names placed on the republican caucus list and also 58 women, a total of 130. Twenty-eight men and twenty-nine women have asked to have their names placed on the democratic caucus list. The list of voters to be made in October shows a considerable more women than men. The large number this year can be attributed to the fact that it is election year and that the women's republican club and a similar democratic organization are making strong efforts to get every vote possible.

Members and guests of the Putnam Women's Coolidge club formed a good sized audience in Odd Fellows' hall on Thursday evening and listened to President Coolidge's speech of acceptance of the nomination for president of the republican party. Mrs. Thurber was born in Rhode Island but had lived in Putnam since she was nine years old. She is survived by five children: Mrs. Warren S. Ames, Mrs. Fred R. Willis and Mrs. Leslie Heath, of Putnam; Mrs. George Letender of Norwich and Frank C. Thurber of New London.

STOCKHOLDERS BRING ACTION AGAINST THOS. J. CORCORAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Aug. 15.—There is interest in this city in the filing of a bill in equity in the Worcester county superior court, by John J. Fanning, Henry P. Dumas, Floribert Fincince and Elphage Fincince, against the Monson, Mass., Worsted company and Thomas J. Corcoran, its president and treasurer. The petition asks that the petitioners be allowed to examine certain conies, books and records of the concern.

Corcoran was formerly agent of the French River Textile company, Mechanicsville, and lived in this city. He maintained a beautiful home on Center street. Mrs. Corcoran a short time ago obtained a divorce from her husband with a judgment for $14,000 alimony. Shortly thereafter the home was broken up and the house sold.

The petitioners allege that they believe the affairs of the company to be in a state of confusion and allege mismanagement and neglect on the part of the officers and that they have, as stockholders, asked to be allowed to see the books of the corporation which request has been denied them.

Fanning and Dumas were former Putnam men. Fanning is an overseer and Dumas was for years Corcoran's chauffeur. The concern manufactures worsteds.

MASS MEETING TODAY TO HELP FORM NEW BANK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Aug. 15.—Putnam, which awakened to the greatest tragedy in its history a week ago Friday, and has since been in an abnormal state of unrest, uneasiness and depression, has now come from under its great cloud and is working and planning for the future. The rush for the latest newspapers has greatly subsided, evidencing a surfeit of reading the "latest disclosures" in the situation of the ruined First National Bank. Apparently, citizens of Putnam believe they have learned the worst phases of a bad situation and have determined to go about their every-day affairs to build for the future.

The bank's doors were again open today and more people than the day before were in the lobby doing all possible toward straightening out their affairs, in an attempt to find out just where they stand and to get statements of their checking accounts.

Most industries in the city have made temporary banking arrangements elsewhere to provide for their weekly payrolls. Two Danielson banks are represented in Putnam daily to give any assistance desired.

The directors of the Day-Kimball hospital held a meeting Friday. While nothing was given out after the meeting adjourned, it is assumed that they talked over financial matters concerning the institution.

While the resignation of Gilpatric as state treasurer has been prepared for his signature it had not been signed, as far as could be lerned, Friday evening.

Gilpatric's condition is said to be slightly improved and it is understood he has asked to be allowed to smoke his pipe.

The warrant of arrest has not been served by the U. S. deputy marshal and it is not anticipated that it will be while Gilpatric's condition is still critical.

Subscriptions for shares in the proposed new bank have continued to come to hand, until the grand total has reached $74,300. Nearly one-half of the $150,000 required before organization can be perfected.

The Putnam Savings bank has offered the citizens' committee the use of its community room for any purpose whatsoever. The room may be used for meeting purposes or for temporary headquarters.

In an attempt to interest more people in the formation of a new bank a mass meeting has been planned to be held in the Bradley theatre this (Saturday) afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. Mayor Victor Chapdelaine will preside and the principal address will be made by State Bank Commissioner John B. Byrne, who has been in Putnam almost continuously since last week Friday.

George M. Cohn, receiver, stated Friday that it is impossible to set any date as the time when the affairs of the bank will be wound up. It is a long process, but one which he promises will be accomplished as quickly as possible.

It was stated Friday that a note for $35,000 had been found, payable to Gilpatric as trustee of the Cutler estate. The signer of this note is not Gilpatric. The name of the maker has not been disclosed, but it is not Gilpatric. If any mortgage has been given to secure this loan it has not as yet come to light.

WESTERLY

Westerly may take its place as an oil distributing center, with Pawcatuck as a "port of entry", if the Standard Oil Co., of New York, under which name the company does business in this section, carries out plans said to be under consideration. It is certain that contemplated changes and improvements near the Standard Oil plant on Mechanic street point this way. When the new cement highway was laid on Lower Mechanic street sufficient pipe lines were placed under the highway to more than care for the present demand. It has been rumored that larger tanks are to be erected with a far greater capacity than the ones now in position.

The Engineering Department of the United States army, which has in charge all operations of constructive nature in tide water served formal notice Wednesday on abutting property owners of its intention to widen and deepen the river channel at this point. With the recent excavations by the Bay State Dredging Company of Boston, under contract with the Federal government the Pawcatuck river channel has been greatly improved from Westerly to Stonington harbor. At the point opposite the Standard Oil plant it would not be necessary to remove any exceptional amount of material to form a basin alongside a wharf, which could be constructed at this place. Here light draft oil tankers could tie up and discharge their cargoes without interfering with commerce in the Pawcatuck river.

With improved and hard surfaced highways, tank trucks could easily distribuite oil and gas to the many smaller towns about Westerly which are demanding more and more of the oil company's products. There would be a more economical distribution under the system than to send tank railroad cars about, as is followed under present arrangements. Then, too, the delivery could be speeded up and dealers would be better satisfid. It is not idle conjecture to picture tank line ships entering and leaving the Pawcatuck river.

For continuous membership for twenty-five years, Hope Council, No. 6, Junior Order United American Mechanics, in a regular meeting Wednesday night presented four of its members handsome gold badges. Rowland C. Gavitt, of Providence, formerly of Westerly; Charles B. Greene, Edward J. Burdick and Henry W. Sutcliffe, all of Westerly. A most interesting meeting was held. The council is flourishing both numerically and financially.

Miss Mabel Cooke of Providence, formerly of Westerly, is the guest of friends in town.

Mrs. Rowland C. Gavitt of Providence is visiting Westerly relaitves and friends.

Today (Saturday) Battery E 243rd Coast Artillery of Westerly lacks but three men of bringing its minimum recruited strength up to the point where the command can leave the state armory on Dixon street for the fifteen day tour of duty at Fort Wright. At noon time today the welcome news will be heard that the enlistment campaign has "gone over the top."

Friday morning the ambulance and hospital corps connected with the R. I. Coast Artillery passed through Westerly with their motor trucks for Fort Wright. The corps is under command of Major F. L. Blair of Providence, who has an office in Westerly.

One hundred and five members of Westerly Masonic club and Masonic friends had a clam bake at Barnes' Point, Bright man's pond, Thursday A clam chowder was provided at noon and a baseball game between teams representing Franklin Lodge, No. 20, of Westerly and Pawcatuck Lodge, No. 90, F. and A. M. of Pawcatuck, resulted in a score of 18 to 17 in favor of Franklin lodge. A circus feature of the game was the base sliding of Harry (O-Land-O) Williams, of the Franklin team.

Judge and Mrs. John W. Sweeney, of Providence, formerly of Westerly are making a vacation visit at the Narragansett, Watch Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Austin of Brooklyn, N. Y., are visiting friends in Westerly.

Mrs. Edward W. Pitcher and daughters, Lillian and Pauline have left Westerly for visit with relatives and friends at Stamford and Glenbrook.

Rev. Horace A. Walton, rector of the church of the Good Samaritan, and Miss Walton of Paoli, Pa., well known to Westerly and Norwich people, after passing a short vacation at Watch Hill, have proceeded on an automobile trip through Maine to Eastport. They plan to return to Westerly next week.

A sewer manhole cover on Main St. below the Opera house became broken early Thursday morning and the end tipped up, a condition which might have proved a menace to vehicular traffic had its discovery not been made at an early hour.

David Beaver of Tolono, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Nelson are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mitchell, in Wequetequock.

NORWICH DRIVER SPEEDED— IS FINED $40 AND COSTS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Westerly, R. I., August 15—The district court came in at 9.30 o'clock Friday morning at Westerly court house with Judge Michael J. Turano on the bench. In the absence of Clerk M. Walter Flynn, Jr., on vacation, Judge Turano called the following docket:

Civil—Edgar R. Sweet vs. Daniel Jackson. An action on book account. Continued one week.

Gustave Dick, 35, of Norwich charged with operating an automobile on Elm Street on Aug. 8th at a speed greater than 15 miles per hour. He pleaded guilty. Town Solicitor Ferguson stated to the court that the defendant while driving at about 8.30 o'clock was followed by the traffic officer from Clark to Cross street and with the traffic quite heavy passed cars in both directions and at a continuous speed of 35 miles per hour, at the lowest. The defendant told the court that he was operating a Chevrolet truck. Judge Turano fined him $40 and costs, which he paid.

Arthur P. Scott, 20, appeared in court for driving an automobile on Railroad avenue on Aug. 8th at a speed greater than 15 miles per hour. On his plea of guilty Solicitor Ferguson told the court that the officer followed the driver on Dixon and from Dixon to Canal street on Railroad avenue, passing two cars in oppisite direction, at a speed of 20 miles per hour. The defendant said that he had operated a car for two years and was driving a Buick 6 at the time saying, "I was not thinking, that's ah." He was fined $25 and costs. He paid and discharged.

Charles W. Smith, 44, Willimantic, was before the court for operating an automobile on the Post road, Aug. 10th at a speed greater than 25 miles per hour. He entered a plea of guilty. Attorney Ferguson informed the court that the man was followed from the Whipple farm to Bensfinelli's and three cars were passed in the same direction with the traffic extremely heavy in the opposite direction, the speed being 45 miles. A fine of $40 and costs was imposed and paid.

Attorney Herbert W. Rathbun for Eugene D. Ide of Southbridge, Mass., asked permission to change a plea of not guilty to a plea of nolo and it was allowed by Judge Turano.

Town Solicitor Ferguson said that in this case the defendant was charged with escaping from the location of a collision with a Watch Hill electric car, just south of the switch when the trolley car was coming toward Westerly and the automobile being driven toward Watch Hill. The defendant's car struck the front part of the electric car and the hand rail of the car was broken. Mr. Lanphear, an employe, had his fingers injured. The running board of the car was broken. Following defendant's apprehension at Avondale by an officer who followed, he stated that he did not realize an accident had occurred, but knew he passed close to the car, as his hat was blown off. A friend in an automobile following picked up the hat and returned it to him. The town solicitor said in the complaint it was not charged that knowing an injury had been done to some one an attempt was made to get away. It seemed difficult to understand that a stop was not made at the time for the rear auto fender was bent considerably, the top of the automobile scraped and a bow bent and scraped, with passengers on car knowing of the collision, for there was a considerable impact and sound at the time. A claim was made that if the collision was known, the driver who had driven for 20 years would not have gone away.

For the defendant, Attorney Rathbun said that Mr. Ide had not knowingly left the site of an accident, it being different from criminal contempt with no specific intent of woeful, deliberate and intentional violation of the law. A citizen of Southbridge without previous court record was returning from a tour of New York state to Watch Hill and came to a stop later and proceeded without knowing that a man had been injured he would make provision for his care.

When he stopped he asked his wife, who sat on that side, if there had been an accident and was informed that she knew of none, in which anyone had been injured. He inteded on arrivig at Watch Hill to report that his automobile had come in contact with an electric car.

Judge Turano said that he was not much in sympathy with a defendant who knew that there was an accident and he should have stopped immediately without deliverately leaving the scene. "It does not meet with my approval. Fine $100 and costs."

Attorney Charles H. Kiernan of Providence asked permission, in the case of Elmer C. Smith vs. Walter Cekala, a liquor case, for the defendant to withdraw his plea of not guilty. He wished to make a motion to dismiss the case, on the ground that it appeared that the search warrant was charged without authority of the court; that the affidavit made was not sufficient in law; that the complaint made by Elmer C. Smith as Elmer C. Smith, police constable, had no right to make such an affidavit for under the Volstead act complaint should come from deputy sheriff, chief of police and legal voters; that the liquors were not said to have been kept in violation of the law; that the liquors had not been analyzed; that there was a difference between liquors kept in dwelling houses and in places and business and finally that the "pretended" liquors should be returned, if so requested. Attorney Kiernan said that the original warrant dated July 30th and executed August 2 was changed from John to Walter Cekala.

Judge Turano denied the motion to dismiss.

Attorney Ferguson placed Elmer C. Smith on the stand. The latter testified that on the 3rd day of July of searching the dwelling and store of Walter Cekala on Mechanic street, in Hopkinton and finding thirty bottles, taking twenty-eight of Polish wine. Admission was made by the attorneys that there were 16 1-3 per cent alcohol, as per a red stamp on the label. But the attorneys could no tagree that the contents were fit for beverage purposes, as Lawyer Kiernan said that he was informed if a bottle was taken, diarrhoea would set in and one would not be able to walk for a week. Lawyer Ferguson said that admission must be made that the contents were fit for beverage purposes, or he would ask for a continuance of the case. Judge Turano said the label stated that the contents of the bottle of which he was familiar was a "medicinal tonic" but the defendant's attorney would only admit that it was "something that is taken internally." Ferguson asked that the case be continued to Mr. Kiernan's convenience and it was accordingly set down for trial in two weeks.

Harry Simons, picked up by Officer George Champlin from the New Haven railroad section gang on a capias, was presented on complaint of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown that he had failed to pay the balance of a fine and costs imposed June 6th, when he was caught shooting craps, and was charged with revelry. At that time he had produced a bank book and had paid $30, and was released on his promise to pay the balance. The defendant said that he had worked two weeks and was contributing $12 a week to help his sister, who was a patient at Backus hospital, Norwich. Next Wednesday was to be pay day and when he found that Chief Brown "could not be at the pay car" he said he knew where the chief lived and "I'll pay him allright."

Court adjourned.

KEEPING HANDS OFF.

President Coolidge has administered a well deserved rebuke to a citizen of New York who wrote him an amazing letter protesting against the candidacy of a negro for a seat in congress and suggesting that intervention from the White House might check "encroachments" upon alleged political prerogatives of states. He pertinently cites the vigorous affirmation of Theodore Roosevelt that the door of opportunity ought not to be shut in the face of any man on the ground of race or color. A contrary doctrine is un-American. It would be peculiarly inappropriate that the republican party should deny political rights to the negro, when it was the great republican president who issued the proclamation that emancipated the race and thus led the way to ultimate enfranchisement. The president's reply directs attention to constitutional guaranties of equal rights as well as to the privilege of each constituency to nominate and elect its representatives in legislative assemblies. The president makes it perfectly clear that he will pursue a policy of hands off when nominations are to be made and he is "amazed" that the writer of the letter has not seen the "manifest impropriety of the president intruding himself in a local contest for renomination."

The president having thus spoken it is idle for anybody to assume to speak for him in any local contest. He may properly desire the election of a republican senate and congress in order that republican principles and policies may find full expression and it is thoroughly consistent that he should make this desire known. But beyond this, to undertake to pick and choose candidates is a perversion of the executive function which he would never commit. To represent the president as conferring his favor upon some one candidate places him in a false position and is unjust to the supposed beneficiary of his patronage. The "manifest impropriety" of his intruding needs no great argument to sustain it.

PERSHING RETIRES.

General Pershing has arrived at the age at which congress has decreed that a soldier's brain and physical nature are in decline and he must cease to be chief of staff because he has reached the age limit. It does not matter that men over his age pass annually upon army appropriations. Perhaps the reason why there is no age limit to senators and congressmen can be found in the realization that politicians don't need brains and therefore age does not count.

As a matter of fact, this application of an age limit in a case like this seems but a foolish fiction after all. A general officer does not need to pass the rigid physical test required of the commander of a platoon. Under our rules von Hindenburg could never have commanded the American armies. He fought the whole war over the age limit, and yet there are some stubborn persons who would suggest that the deviser of the Hindenburg line was a military genius in his full prime, regardless of his years.

It is no disparagement of Major General Hines, who will succeed to the post of chief of staff, to say that Pershing's great service as commander of the greatest American army that ever took the field should not be dispensed with merely to conform to a rule created on the theory that physical competency is the supreme test of a staff officer. General Hines had a distinguished career during the war and is one of the few general officers wearing the distinguished service cross, won for service in the Soissons drive. With Major General Harbord out of the army he is the logical choice as General Pershing's successor.

CANDIDATE AND CORPORATIONS

Two opinions are being expressed regarding Senator Walsh's references in the notification speech at Clarksburg Monday to the corporation connections of Mr. Davis. One is that the Montana senator erred in judgment in thus calling attention pointedly to the democratic candidate's affiliations with big interests. The other is that he disarmed criticism by meeting this question promptly and squarely.

However this is, it is certainly not customary for a speech in which a candidate is notified of his nomination to deal in apologies for that nomination. The address of Senator Walsh at the Davis ceremonies came perilously near being such an apology. He referred to the Davis association with "gigantic business interests whose policy and conduct have aroused quite general indignation, have repeatedly been the subject of the severest censures of the press, of investigation by the courts and congress as well as state legislatures, and have given occasion to no little legislation deemed necessary to protect the people from their exactions."

This was startling enough, but the Montana senator went on in an attempt at absolution that sounded even worse when he said: "Such misgivings as have been felt, such doubts as have been ventured touching your nomination, bear no relation to anything done or to anything left undone in your active and highly serviceable political and official career."

Evidently then these "misgivings" and "doubts" have been "felt" and "ventured" concerning the professional career of John W. Davis. Senator Walsh has ineptly dragged the "Wall street lawyer" issue back into the campaign. He seems to be more concerned about his Montana senatorial toga than about the success of the party that has greatly honored him.

EASY-CHAIR CHURCHGOING.

The extent of church attendance by radio is not known, but from the letters received at one New York broadcasting station, a considerable number of people depend upon the radio for their Sunday devotions. Many of them are unable, on account of their infirmities or afflictions, to have their homes, and to them the radio service is a source of great spiritual profit. Some services are broadcast directly from churches, where equipment is provided for the choir and preacher. Other services, given in the afternoon, are especially planned for radio congregations and sent out from established stations, where the best sending results can be obtained.

A survey of church attendance records in and about New York before church service broadcasting was begun, and now, reveals that in the city itself there has been little change in the number of persons attending church. It seems to be agreed that while some persons may prefer the radio service at home, others have been stimulated by radio services to a new interest in church going. But in smaller communities it has been found that a considerable number of churchgoers have fallen into the habit of staying at home to listen by radio to the services in large city churches.

Those unable to attend church because of physical incapacity are a class apart in considering radio church services. Outside of this class it is doubtful if anyone can defend radio devotions as against the duty of all church members to assemble at designated times for the purpose of making their devotions as ordered in the scriptures. There is no substitute for church attendance, and to attempt to create one, even as a concession to radio, is to retreat again from the church's high purpose. The practice makes for sloth, for irreverence, for an undisciplined, and hence an ineffective church.

WAR BLAME HAS BEEN FIXED.

The announced refusal of the London conference to listen to any plea attempting to fix the blame for the world war would appear to reasonable persons to be fully justified. Civilization has long since fixed the responsibility for the war and nothing that can be said now will alter the conclusion long since reached and later confirmed by the publication of the memoirs of the kaiser himself and the memoirs of the German junkers.

That it is a necessary decision in August, 1924, only goes to show that Germany is determined never to open her eyes to what really happened in August, 1914. At every conference where reparations have been discussed the Germans have attempted to revive the discussion of blame for the war. They have signed agreement after agreement, under protest, brazenly attempting to convince the world that they are being made to pay for a war they strove to avoid. It devolves upon the allies to debar debate upon this useless topic and proceed with the real work of reconstruction, all of which is based upon reparations.

In the last analysis, the case before Europe today is not who caused the war, but what is to be done now that it is over. Germany does her own cause no good in barking back to the days of 1914, when her statesmen spoke a different language than they do now.

By this time the Ruhr should impress France as being a rather difficult piece of real estate to handle.

Long ago Germany was regarded as likely to pay for delay. She did so, but realizes she has had enough.

Rural communities are coming into the limelight. Plymouth, Vermont, is to share the honors with Clarksburg, West Virginia.

After so many investigations it may be difficult to decide so early in August whether the voting population is apathetic or stunned.

Gov. Charles Bryan is justified in proceeding on his political career with the confidence of a man who knows he can have the voice of experience at his side whenever he needs coaching.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

One must be unusually stupid not to be impressed with the shortness of both time and space between extremes. On July 30 we were sweltering in the heat, the mercury being up in the nineties. A gentle rain comes in the late afternoon, and by midnight the mercury has fallen nearly 30 degrees. To put it mildly: extremes have come into close proximity, if they have not exactly met. The lilies grow right up to the edge of the glaciers; birds of paradise sing where desert sands begin. Many a man has lain down to rest at night to find himself penniless in the morning. Along an entirely different line Bishop Heber has said: "This day the noise of battle, the next, the victor's song." And thus it is throughout the entire journey of life in one way or another, extremes meet. It is joy one moment, and before the smiles have passed, something happens that starts the tears.

Are there not some close points of analogy between an ordinary passenger train on our railroads and the railway train of life? When you and I board that train, we find other passengers there. Some of them are destined for a long journey, and some unfortunately (perhaps) will get off at the next station, and the name of that next station is Babyhood. When the porter calls out the name of that station someone's precious little child will leave the train. The majority will stay on longer. But when the next station, Childhood, is called out, from some part of this long train, some boy or girl will get off. At Early Manhood there will not be any exodus but it will mean a call to somebody. There will be some one who will remain to the end of the journey when the train reaches its terminus at the station called Old Age.

Don't be afraid of modern thought, what we need to fear is not modern thought but modern thoughtlessness, so spoke Rev. J. Stuart Holden of London at a recent conference at Northfield. These words contain an idea that is well worth considering. There would be very few problems incapable of solution if the people of any nation would take the trouble of thinking them through. When people will only think, honestly and with a fair degree of intelligence on any problem, the very act of thinking will suggest some line of solution. Along political lines does not great danger lie in the fact that there are masses of people who allow scheming politicians to dictate their political creed for them? They simply do what the slaveholders tell them. In spite of this indisputable fact we still talk about a "government of the people and by the people." It is bad enough to have thoughtlessness dominate politics, but it is vastly worse to have the other fellow do your religious thinking.

Can anything be more restful and soothing in the summer vacation period than an old, typical New England village of the better sort? Were I to describe accurately Wethersfield or Enfield here in Connecticut, or Longmeadow or Northfield, Massachusetts, I should merely say things that would apply just as well to hundreds of other places with which we are all familiar. Of course you have driven through this typical village many times. Its one street is broad and long and straight; tall massive, graceful elms stand as silent sentinals on either side. Most of the houses are of the spacious, dignified colonial type. The Pittsfield house was true to form as Longfellow says:

"Somewhat back from the village street
Stands an oldfashioned country seat:
Across its antique portico
Tall poplar trees their shadows throw."

Why do so many public speakers and writers, especially ministers, completely misrepresent the theory of evolution, as it is held by all scientists today? Of all men we would naturally expect ministers to be the most careful and not misstate facts, but it seems to be quite the reverse. The probable explanation is that the intensity of their desire and belief runs away with their knowledge and judgment. Many of them do not seem to realize that the old crudities of the 19th century hypothesis are no longer held by the leading experts. When we consider evolution as a process explaining the development of life, not attempting to account for its beginning nor attempting to forecast its ending, we have at least a rational working theory. The great weakness of the old theory of evolution was its utter failure to explain the fact of retrogression. Dawson in his Twentieth Century Evolution and After explains this thoroughly.

One of the greatest visible signs of the wide area of the human personality is seen in the wide differences of opinion which people hold (and express) on every conceivable subject. The writer noticed this after a noted preacher had spoken in an auditorium containing more than a thousand people. He belonged to a group of ultra conservatives, better known as Fundamentalists. He very greatly deplored what is commonly known as "modern thought." He had no use whatever for what is called "progressive thinking." He referred to the sad havoc made by evolution in these days, although the evolution he referred to has been discarded for more than a third of a century. If you could have heard the comments as people left the building, you would have raised the doubt of Pilate when he asked Jesus: "What is truth?" After all it is a sign that people are doing their own thinking.

"Grand aspirations for something nobler in life than yet attained are seen in every heathen land" was one of the striking utterances of the Northfield Conference whose two week's sessions will end tomorrow. The remark is valuable both for what it says and for what it suggests. It is no surprise to those acquainted with the under-current of feeling in pagan lands to learn that the dead stolidity of the heathen is passing, and a true sign of the passing is extreme dissatisfaction with their pagan condition. Christianity has brought these nations face to face with a civilization which brings out the vast inferiority of paganism. After a man has seen the advantages of a fine house he is no longer satisfied with a mud hut. Who of us with the advantages of the electric light would care to go back to the days of the tallow candle? Progress and heathenism can never live together on the same continent.

What place is there in this world for the weakling? How merciless is nature to all that is sub-normal! Take the little spindling shrub. How it is literally crowded out of existence by the strong and vigorous! The whole world of animal life lower than man crowds the weak to the wall. Let one of a pack of wolves get wounded, then the rest pounce upon it and devour it without the least mercy. "Big fish swallow little fish" is so true that we sometimes apply it to the animal species. Before the Man of Nazareth came the human weakling had no show whatever. The blind, the deaf, the dumb, the palsied, and the insane lived by beggary. Cold philosophy had no help for the weak. Jesus was the only man who "did not break the bruised reed, nor quench the smoking flax." Hospitals, infirmaries, insane retreats and reformatories were born when Love became incarnate.

Supports Defense Day.

Mr. Editor: I am suffering and seem to see an opportunity for relief by writing you. I have read in the magazines and press of the day very many protests against "Defence Day," or "Mobilization Day," by people that ought to have better judgment. They evidently forget that other nations are not all entirely civilized, nor Christianized; and some of the people within our own borders could be more enlightened. They forget that certain persons were insane enough to imagine that they, and their followers could subdue the entire world, and compel them to acknowledge their superiority. They forget that this nation lost much treasure, and the lives of people, and many hearts were made sad, many homes desolate, many parents derived of support, and children of homes, and education, all because we as a nation were not prepared. They can not deny our losses in blood and treasure and broken hearts would have been small, if our army and navy had been ready and turned upon the foe the very first moment we were needed. This last World war would have been shortened. There is danger to our institutions now, from within, and our army is really too small to police our own territory, if it should happen that it was needed in several places some little distance from (say San Francisco and Baltimore and Chicago) at the same time. If these same opponents of "Defence Day" were called on as the writer has been to do volunteer police duty, would they come willingly and quickly? Can they be more opposed to war than the writer who lost in wars of these U. S. on land and sea many relatives (and lost in one battle a whole family of relatives, a father and three sons). I have lived long enough to know what war means; I am afraid they have not, only have forgotten. I notice these U. S. have judges and courts and jails, and some things worse, too, and yet I fail to observe thievery, murder, and other crimes going "out of fashion." We will not outlaw lawlessness by doing without police, no more outlaw war by failing to be prepared for defence against invasion of our territory by outsiders, and mob violince by misguided residents of our own land.

When other nations can be depended on to keep their word, and not "to regard a treaty as a scrap of paper," then and not till then, can we rest in peace without any defence. I apologize to you for going on at such a length, but I want to add my voice to your own, in your editorial, in defence of our president and secretary of war in their plans for guidance of this nation.

I thank you.

Yours truly,
T. H. BACHELER.

A SMUGGLER

"And look at the length of that ivy—away up over the window!" Cousin Martha exclaimed, after she had admired everything else in the honeymoon apartment.

"Sure, look at it hard!" "That's Bunny's Oxford ivy."

"Oxford! You didn't bring an ivy—" Martha's words dissolved in awe.

"But we did, Marty," Mrs. Dave put in. The nicest old Dichensy gardener was trimming vines in Christ church quadrangle the day we were there and he gave me a strip of ivy. When we got back to the hotel I rooted it like a garden hose and put it in the rubber pocket of my toilet case and——"

"You see, Marty," Dave parenthesized, "being just married, I didn't like to object, but we were about starting on a long trip through Europe."

"It was perfectly simple," the bride went sweetly on. "Every time we reached a hotel, first thing I did was to put the ivy in Dave's drinking glass. He had such a deep one—just right for it. I let him use a little collapsible cup I had—"

"Collapsible is right," said Dave. "Oh, it leaked a tiny bit—but then. And in two weeks little roots had begun to grow. But by the time we took the boat at Naples, after three months of traveling, Dave was keen about it himself. He used to bring people down to our cabin to show off the ivy."

"That's what I did," Dave took up the thread, "all went like wedding bells until, about two days out from New York, they gave us the blanks to make out our declaration. Poor little Bunny had just been taking a high moral stand with two ladies who were wabbling about declaring their Italian shawls and earrings and things. Says Bunny: 'No, as soon as I can find out what the law requires me to do I intend to obey it to the letter.' And right then I broke in. 'Say good-by to your ivy then. The paper says you're absolutely forbidden to bring in seeds or cuttings of any kind.'"

"But why?" Cousin Martha demanded.

"Oh, plant diseases and bugs. Boll weevil was imported, you know. Well, for a minute Bunny sat and stared at me in stony silence. At last she swallowed hard, and said, 'That ivy stays right in my toilet sace. It will never in this world be found.'"

"And Dave shouted right out! And so did the others. They all said every woman had her price, which didn't apply at all. That little bit of healthy green ivy—from Oxford! So history — and hadn't cost me a cent!

"And I don't care, I'm not a bit ashamed—I suffered for that ivy! When the big inspectator on the New York dock told me to open my bag my knees shook as if they had diamond necklaces wrapped around them. But at last it was over, and I had my Oxford ivy safe in a New York hotel!"

"Hurrah!" cried Martha.

"But oh dear—Wait! When we came in next afternoon that ivy was gone and no one knew where. They said the woman who comes mornings to do bathrooms must have thrown it out. We were leaving for Chicago that evening, so Dave stirred things up and they began searching a trash heap somewhere down below. Every little while a boy would rust in triumphantly with an old Chinese lily bulb or the root of a discarded fern or something like that, and each time Dave would describe English ivy to him and send him back to the hunt.

"Of course, if he hadn't kept handing out money I should have suspected right away that Dave had hidden it——"

"There"! from Cousin Martha. "I knew it was going to end that way, Dave, you sinner! But, do you know? —I thought the minute I saw it there was something different. It isn't just like our ivies."

"Marty! You sweet innocent! You aren't thinking this is that ivy! Heavens and earth, dear, how long do you think it takes English ivy to grow? Dave calls it the Oxford ivy, but we never got ours back. This is the one we bought on 22d street to comfort me. And it doesn't!"—Chicago News.

Rosa Bonheur, The Turbulent.

Marie Rosa Bonheur was one of those girls who seem to be unable to get along anywhere with anyone.

Born in Bordeaux, France, the eldest of four children, she early had to help in the home. Her father was a struggling artist and gave drawing lessons, her mother was a music teacher and the wolf of poverty frequently was near.

Rosa was seven when her mother died and the grief-stricken father took the children to Paris. Left with a friend, they were sent to the school of the Sisters Shaillot, but Rosa so frequently played truant to visit the wooded Bois de Boutogne that her father took her from classes and apprenticed her to a seamstress.

Soon the monotony of the work affected the girl's health so greatly that her father placed her in a young ladies' school but she played so many pranks and was so distressed by the snobbish remarks of her well-dressed schoolmates that her father in desperation, took her home.

In his studio she threw herself into the allurements of art, drawing and painting during the day, and modeling at night. Her father instructed her and she copied works of great masters at the Louvre. Living in the sixth story of an apartment, far from fields, she went to the abattoir to study animals.

At 19 she exhibited her first paintings, "Goats and Sheep," and "Two Rabbits," in the Paris Salon exhibition. Other paintings followed and, at 23, she sold her "Cantal Cattle" to England. France that year awarded her a medal of the first class for her work as an artist.

Then came many demands for her paintings and wealth flowed in. After 18 months work she exhibited the "Horse Fair," sold it for $20,000 and now it is in the Metropolitan Museum in New York.

Of striking personality and wearing masculine attire while at work, she attracted great attention. She exhibited other paintings and was pronounced the greatest delineator of animal life in action in the world. And she spent her declining years in teaching girls who aspired to be artists.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

THE KEY NOTE.

More than conquerors, Romans VIII 37. The key note of these words is victory. It is the characteristic of all God's works, that what ever He does, He does abundantly. There is always some thing in excess; a David's cup that mantles over, or a Joseph's bough which runneth over the wall.

Every miracle was done overflowingly. The lame man not only walked but leapt. When the daughter of Jarius was raised to life Jesus commands that "something be given her to eat." Christ came into this world "that we might have life, more abundantly." The life in union with Him is a true and a greater life than any of us realize.

Christ was more "than conqueror in His death. A prayer for His enemies. A provision of filial tenderness for His mother. A free pardon to a sinner. In His rising He was "more than conqueror." In His ascension He was "more than conqueror." He does not leave His followers to weep for He is more with them than before. The believer is "more than conqueror." In the contest with Satan God sees that His people shall not be overcome by Satan unless they will to.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Paul Wayland Bartlett, who has been elevated by the French government to the dignity of a commander of the Legion of Honor, has long been one of America's leading sculptors, although he has lived much of his life in France. His notable works include the equestrian statue of Lafayette, which stands in the square of the Louvre, Paris, and which was presented to France by American school children; the statue of Lafayette at Metz, presented by the Knights of Columbus; six statues outside the New York Public Library, the pediment over the house wing at the capitol at Washington, and several statues in the Library of Congress. Mr. Bartlett was born at New Haven, Conn., in 1865 and studied chiefly in France. He is a member not only of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, but also of the Institute of France and the Royal Academy of Belgium.

THE ORKNEYS

"It is appropriate that American airmen in their round-the-world flight will make their first stop in the Orkney Islands after leaving the British mainland," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Though it is having its first contact with American airplanes, this island group is familiar enough with American ships of the sea, for it was headquarters during the World war for important work by the United States naval units.

"The Orkneys barely escape being a part of the Scottish mainland. A channel only six and one-half miles wide, Pentland Firth, separates 'John O'Groat's'—the northeasternmost tip of Great Britain—from the southernmost Orkney; and the other islands lie close beyond. In this channel lies a whirlpool little less sinister than the Maelstom itself. This patch of seething waters is known as the Swelkie, and was poetically described in old Norse Sages as 'the milk ever grindimg the salt of the ocean.' The Pentland waves dash so high on the little island of Stroma in the Orkneys' midst that at times a sizable 'creek' of salt water runs through the islet from the top of its northern cliffs.

"Kirkwall, the chief other city of the Orkneys, where the airmen will stop, is primarily a fishing port, and in summer is often crowded with trawlers. When the World war got under way this rather sleepy, far northern town had a great boom, for in its vicinity was established England's greatest home naval base. There has been some confusion as between Kirkwall harbor and the famous Scapa Flow whence the Grand fleet made its sorties and where, after the war, the interned German fleet was sunk by its sailors. The two harbors are not identical but both are adjuncts of Kirkwall. Kirkwall's harbor lies in front of the town to the east, while Scapa is barely a mile to the southwest, across a narrow isthmus. Scapa Flow is a huge, island-encircled, deep-water anchorage that could easily shelter all the fleets of the world. The American flyers are officially scheduled to alight at Kirkwall, but local considerations may cause them to bring their pontoon-fitted planes down on the waters of the city's historic 'back-door harbor.'

"Though the Orkneys saw numerous naval vessels during the progress of the World war, they were especially associated with the gigantic task of the removal of the great North Sea mine fields by American mine sweepers. During this dangerous work in 1918 scores of ships of the United States made their headquarters in Kirkwall harbor.

"The Orkneys have been British territory only since 1468 when they were a wedding gift to the King of Scotland and his Danish bride. Norwegian adventurers had taken them over in the 10th century after their early Pictish inhabitants had mysteriously disappeared. They became a part of Norway in 1008 and remained a Scandinavian possession until they passed to Scotland. The people are of mixed Scandinavian and Scotch blood.

"The Orkneys make up a country of Scotland and in combination with the Shetlands sent a member to the British House of Commons. Their combined area is about 375 square miles. The population, above 30,000 a generation ago, has dwindled to less than 35,000."

Stories That Recall Others

Anybody's Game.

Mah jongg is a game that more than one can play. For instance, if a wif ecan buy an expensive mah jongg set and keep her curious husband from learning what she actually paid for it, she need not feel surprised if she should fail to learn how much her husband might lose in a friendly game of cards in which "jacks or better" constitute a staying hand.

At Christmas time a certain woman bought an expensive mah jongg set from skvings that did not come out of her husband's purse. For feminine reasons she decided to keep the matter of price secret. Try as he did, the husband failed to learn what she paid for the set.

Recently, the husband accepted an invitation to take part in a card party, this over the protest of his wife. "Well, how much did you lose?" the wife asked the next morning.

"Mah jongg," the husband responded meaningly.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

THE WATER SPRITES

Well, we had to leave off in the last story at the most exciting point, just when the dreadful dragon was trying to scorch Little Jack Rabbit with his fiery breath. But wasn't it lucky? The bunny boy at once waved his magic gold feather and when the Dreadful Dragon saw the wall of fire between them, he crawled back into his dark and dismal cave. Then away hopped the little rabbit to meet somebody more pleasant, and by and by he came to a beautiful waterfall, where little water sprites were coasting down on the backs of silver fishes. And the song they sang went something like this, only maybe it was prettier:

Tinkle, tinkle, waters bright
Like the starbeams in the night,
Hear the music rise and swell
Like the tinkling of a bell.

Hither and thither the little fishes raced in the quiet pool, just out of reach of the splashing waterfall while the water sprites threw bubbles at one another. Little Jack Rabbit stopped to watch them from the bank and as he sat there a little Bluebell flower whispered in his ear:

I ring the curfew bell each night
When Happy Sun blows out his light
And then from every cottage chink
The little candles blink and wink
And when is dimmed their tiny light
The little children sleep and dream.

And would you believe it, when she had finished her song, the weary little rabbit boy was fast asleep. At once the Queen of the Fairies commanded her subjects to watch over him to see that no harm came near, so all night long a little fairy perched herself on the toe of his boot and another stood at his head and when the merry round sun got up in the morning and poked his fingers through the treetops, the three little fairies flew away, and Little Jack Rabbit awoke none the wiser. He just thought he had slept there all by himself, but I am told that the fairies watch over good little children every night, two at the head and two at the foot of the bed.

Pretty soon the bunny boy started off once more and by and by, not so very far, he met three little old men sitting by the roadside. Now one little man had a great sack in his lap, and the second little man had a big ax in his hand, and the third had a long whistle. Up they all jumped scowling fiercely as if Little Jack Rabbit were a robber or some one to be feared.

"I am Little Jack Rabbit traveling through Fairy Land," explained the bunny after waiting for maybe five hundred short seconds. At this the little old man with the whistle blew a shrill blast upon it, and what happened after that you must wait to hear in the next story.

NORWICH GRANGE WORKS DEGREES AT SALEM

Salem grange, No. 166, Patrons of Husbandry, had a meeting of unusual interest Thursday night, when a class of twenty in the third and fourth degrees had the work exemplified for them by Norwich grange, No. 172, which sent 47 members to the Salem meeting, including the degree and the drill teams and th tableaux cast. One of the candidates was Mrs. Bingham, wife of the lieutenant governor, himself a granger of longer standing. The lieutenant governor was present and gave a brief but inspiring address following the degree work, in which the tableaux in charge of Mrs. Walter Pendleton were especially impressive. A rising vote of thanks for the Norwich grange was passed by the meeting at the conclusion of the work and the social spirit of the Salem grangers made the occasion a delightful fraternal gathering. The evening concluded with a delicious salad supper served by the Salem grange.

Those in attendance during the evening included 58 Salem members, one visitor from Colchester and four from Preston, besides the Norwich grange members.

TAFTVILLE EX-SERVICE MEN TO FORM AMERICAN LEGION POST

At a meeting of American Legion members from various sections of eastern Connecticut, held at the Army and Navy club in Taftville, Friday night, a number of Taftville ex-service men signed an application for a charter for a post in Taftville and complete arrangements for the establishment of a post in the village will be made at a meeting to be held in Taftville on Wednesday evening of next week.

Thomas M. Sears of Taftville was appointed chairman of the Legion membership committee in the village, to be assisted by nine other Legionaires, all to report at the meeting next week when the new post will be organized. Members of the Norwich, Baltic and Danielson posts will probably be at the meeting to assist in organization.

Taftville has a strength of about 200 ex-service men to draw from and it is expected that the post will soon be a strong one, able to assist in handling the Legion problems in that section of the town. It is expected that the charter membership will be over 25 by Wednesday evening of next week, with additional members to be secured from other posts by transfer, of the Legionaries who desire to be transferred.

The address of the evening was given by State Commander E. P. Armstrong, who explained the duties of the Legion to individuals, to the community and to the nation.

Any man, said Commander Armstrong, who served in the World war and has not become a Legion member, is not being fair to the buddies left in France, to those physically wrecked by the war, or to themselves. They cannot realize what it means to pass up this service organization. In 1919 in this country there were 90,000 service men wrecked by the war. There were also 150,000 casuals not able to earn a living for themselves. The Legion fought for these men and is still fighting for them. Over $10,000,000 has been spent for these men whether they belong to the organization or not.

In 1921 there were one million ex-service men out of employment. The Legion found work for 750,000 of them and is still carrying on this work. Over 600,000 cases of ex-service men have been handled by the Legion and 90 per cent. of these are not Legion members. The job of the Legion is not for itself, it is for all ex-service men.

This work for the disabled, for all service men and the community, is being carried on by over 700,000 Legionaries in this country, he said, but we need to increase our strength to do a greater work. We want the 4,000,000 ex-service men and women, eligible for membership, to join and help do this work, for the work of the Legion is service.

Once there were several bureaus which handled service men's needs. Now there is the Veterans' Bureau, not all that it should be, we admit, but something that is a great improvement, something that will be even better in the future. Take the Reed-Johnson bill mentioning tuberculosis only. It was estimated that before this bill was pased there were 50,000 ex-service men suffering from tuberculosis or mental trouble, traceable to service. Under the old ruling these men could get no aid because they had not applied for treatment during the three years after the war. They now have until January 1, 1925 to make application for aid. In Connecticut alone there are over 3,000 of these cases.

Another feature of this bill is hospitalization or treatment at U. S. government hospitals for all ex-service men, plus transportation, the same treatment afforded Civil war and Spanish war veterans. Widows' compensation is also more liberal.

This bill is the broadest and finest bill for service men ever passed in this country, and much of the credit for its passage is due to the 700,000 Legion members who said, "It must be passed."

Many people said that we are not strong enough. After the Civil war it took sixteen years before they had any influence and the peak was not reached for 24 years. We, in five years have reached a membership of 700,000 and have passed more veteran legislation than any other organization. The best comradeship is that of service men and we need definite purposes to sell the Legion to eligible men and women and then to the community.

In this state not long ago a service man had tuberculosis and he, with his wife, went to live in a shack in the mountains. A Legion post heard of this. They fought with the government for the man, got state aid, provided a nurse, gave bedding and clothing, and, when the man finally went "West" buried him in the Legion lot. The flowers at his funeral were the most beautiful ever seen in that city.

Twenty-five cents of your money for dues goes into the fund that fights for needy ex-service men; 75 cents buys your weekly; 80 cents goes to the state department to carry on its good work. No other organization gives you so much for $3. Time and time again people have come to me and said, "God bless the American Legion, I don't know what would have happened to me and my children if it had not been for you men."

Let me say right now I don't believe in a state bonus, for two reasons: First, the government sent you to war, not your state. Second, and most important, the state fund in Connecticut is the just due of thhe service man. We have a fund of $2,500,000 which gives us an income of about $2000 weekly. Last winter we were spending over $4000 a week and right now are spending $2500. All this is for needy cases and saves disabled service men, their wives and kiddies, from charity. This fund is far better than a bonus from the state and every Legion man gladly gives up his bonus to allow this fund to remain and do its great work.

The Legion has been growing fast in eastern Connecticut, Norwich, New London, Colchester, Baltic, Mystic and other places have more than doubled their membership. The Legion recognizes no rank, creed or distinction. All the Legion wants is for the ex-service men to get behind and see that those needing it get a square deal. Let me tell you, they never would have got a square deal if it had not been for the Legion, which fought the battle for every ex-service man.

Another thing. In this country we have 5,000 orphans and in ten years time there will be 25,00 of them, orphans of ex-service men. Our job is to bring up our buddies' children to be like their daddies and mothers. In Michigan the Legion has a reservation and there is our Orphans' Home. It is not like other institutions, for instead of big buildings, we have built small homes. In these homes are a service man, a Legionaire, and his wife. Each couple has four or five children to bring up and give them real care, as near that of their parents as possible. Soon there will be another home established in Kansas City and later one in New England or New York. This is our job. These kiddies belong to us and we are going to bring them up and give them the happy life they deserve as children of buddies who have gone on beyond.

Following the state commander's address a number of ex-service men met at the front of the hall and started the work that will lead to the establishment of a Legion post in Taftville next Wednesday. County Commander William E. Anderson and other Norwich Legion members are to go to Taftville next week and with the Baltic Legionaires, start Taftville off with a bang.

By organizing next week Taftville will be in the Legion in time to send two delegates to the state convention to be held in Torrington this month and they will have the distinction of being the youngest post in the state represented at the state convention for 1924.

HELD FOR RECKLESS DRIVING AFTER MACHINE OVERTURNED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 15.—An automobile owned by Charles H. Humphrey and driven by Louis Montague, 216 Pequot avenue, and with Hurh McPartland and Edward Quinn as passengers, sideswiped an automobile owned by Waldo Miner of Pleasure Beach, and in which Mrs. Miner and Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Chapin of 43 Perry street, were riding at Station 11, Waterford, tonight, the car collided with overturned, all the passengers being thrown out, but none were seriously injured. Both cars were wrecked. Montague was arrested by State Police Officers Henry J. Albright, Groton barracks, charged with reckless driving. He will be arraigned in the Waterford town court at 10.30 o'clock tomorrow morning. The automobile driven by Montague, a Dupont roadster, was bound from Oswegatchie to New London. At Station 11 the car rode a pile of sand and gravel that was on the west side of the highway, having been used for construction work and had a light on it to denote danger. The machine after hitting the pile of stone and dirt plunged to the opposite side of the road and sideswiped the car occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Miner and Mr. and Mrs. Chapin. The impact of the collision caused the latter car, a Dodge, to overturn, pinning the passengers beneath it. The crash was heard a considerable distance and attracted neighbors to the scene. Before they reached the overturned car its occupants had managed to crawl from beneath it. All sustained injuries no more serious than scratches and bruises. Mr. Chapin is teller in the employ of the Winthrop Trust company.

FOUND TWO CASES OF WHISKEY ON AUTO SEAT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 15.—After having but recently obtained his freedom as a result of violation of the liquor law in having received the most severe sentence imposed since the crusade in New London county to enforce the prohibition law, Nostralio Facchini, of Goshen street, was taken into custody tonight on a charge of transporting liquor. He is being held in bonds of $750 for appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. N. Benvenuti became surety on the bond. Facchini was recently liberated from the New London county jail after having served a sentence of one year and paid a fine of $1,000 as a result of a conviction in the superior court on a charge of transporting liquor. Facchini tonight was driving a Maxwell coupe through Truman street. As the car passed across Bank street into Shore street Motorcycle Officer William Babcock observed that the machine did not display a tail light. Following the automobile through Shore street to Division and to Howard street the officer overtook the car at the latter street. Facchini was ordered to stop and he as he did so the nature of the contents of the car was revealed. Two cases of whiskey were on the seat and three cases in the rear. The whiskey consisted of two cases of William Penn rye, two cases of Sandy Macdonald and one case of Peter Lawson.

LOST CHILD ROAMED CITY IN BATHING SUIT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 15.—Mrs. Blanche Spurgas, 239 North Main street, Norwich, wife fo Joseph Spurgas, a marketman, had four hours of anxiety here this afternoon and evening when her little son, Joseph, 4 1-2 years, strayed away. The youngster was at Ocean Beach with his mother and was attired in a bathing suit to play in the sand. While the mother's attention was attracted elsewhere, Joseph wandered away and walked three and a half miles to the business section of the city. While a search was being made at the shore fro the boy, he was roaming about State street. About 7 o'clock, when Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy was preparing to go off duty from his post on State street, he observed the boy, attired in a bright red bathing suit, and carrying a sand pail, passing the postoffice. The officer took charge of the lost child and carried him to the police station, where he was returned to his mother an hour later.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 16.—Daniel DeLong, married, residing on Moore court, was arrested early this morning, charged with sodomy. CHILDREN PRESENT PLAYS AT MOHEGAN PARK

Every one will concede that the essential purpose in the maintenance of playgrounds is the physical development of the children said Earl E. Brigham, supervisor of the Norwich Playgrounds, Friday night.

Friday evening at the entrance of Mohegan Park was witnessed the realization of the finished product of some of the work that the individual instructors have been doing in this regard. Under the guidance and instruction of their supervisor, the lady instructors have labored incessantly throughout the summer in their earnest endeavor to further the intellectual growth of their little charges. The form that served as an outlet for this worthy idea continually pervading the minds, of the instructors is the production of little playlets, in which the children displaying the greatest promise depicts the character.

The little knoll sloping gently towards Rockwell street was the scene of the second production of the summer of playlets. Previously Lake St and Hobart avenue had publicly displayed the result of their season's effort. Both were acclaimed to be most successful by the vast majority of spectators who thronged the park. Friday evening, it must be remarked in fairness, that the efforts of the Elizabeth Street instructor Miss Shugrue, of the two efficient Greeneville instructors, Miss Blackledge and Miss Bowen, and of Miss Walz of the East Side playground, were no less successful from a dramatic standpoint than were the efforts of their predecessors. All three playlets were received with the highest commendation. Not a solitary spectator could be discovered who would not admit that the evening's entertainment had met with his hearty approval.

The initial performance was given by the children of Greeneville. The title of their dainty offering was "Fairy Changling." As may be surmised, excellent judgment was displayed in selection such a playlet to harmonize with the location. Jennie Gromko as Little Jo appears to possess qualities which if properly developed may make her a finished dramatist. The crowd encircling her was no distraction. She spoke distinctly and appeared to be perfectly at home even amidst such a multitude. The trio of little tots that emerged from a clump of bushes and danced about on the green lawn furnished a very enjoyable spectable. The playlet was quite lengthy, and being such, additional credit is due the children who carried off their respective assignments without forfeiture. All made a neat appearance in their dresses of crepe paper fashioned by Miss Blackledge and Miss Bowen.

Again the setting was entirely harmonious with the playlet of the evening, entitled "Tom's Back Yard" given by the West Side children. Under the direction of Miss Shugrue they plainly showed their intensive training in dramatic work had not gone for naught. Grace LaRochelle, as the mother, and Sarah Mintz as Tom, who picked the green weeds in his garden, gave a very excellent rendition of these leading parts. Considerable amusement was offered when Tom attempted to uproot the third weed in his garden. This part was portrayed by Bessie Shorker. Bessie required a hoe to uproot her. This was a case of the actress fitting the part to a "t".

The final playlet, entitled "The Lost Trousers," was easily the most amusing of all, his plot was one that occurs in every family in which there is a growing boy, and naturally appealed to all present, but especially to the mothers. Miss Hedwig Strenkowski was exceptionally good in her portrayal of the difficult character of the mother. Howard Dickerman proved to be a real ordinary American boy in his rendition of the part of Johnny.

Toward eight o'clock when dusk was stealing upon the little knoll the final lines were spoken. Every one departed for home well satisfied with the evening's entertainment. The children left for their homes under the guidance of their instructors. The boys profited in an odd way in witnessing "The Lost Trousers." They have learned that nothing is to be gained by throwing one's trousers on to the sidewalk.

FRENCH BOX CAR WILL PASS THROUGH CITY TODAY

All roads will lead to New London this (Saturday) evening when the promenade of the '40 and 8' will take place, by far the biggest ex-service men's time planned for this section of the state since the armistice.

Everything is in readiness for the big time to be held under the auspices of the New London County Legion organization. Shortly after noon the sound of the tank, French box car and engine will be heard on New London streets, fore runners of what is to follow in rapid order during the remaining hours of the day and night.

State Commander Armstrong arrived in Norwich Friday night and following the meeting at Taftville, accompanied by Percy Chapman, left for Stafford Springs to get the French box car and engine and start them rolling over the roads fo rthe seaport city. By getting away from Stafford Springs early in the morning the outfit will pass through Norwich about 11 o'clock this (Saturday) morning, coming in by way of Broadway, passing over Main street to Thames St., and will arrive in New London shortly after noon. Lieutenant Voyageurs Militaire will leave that city before the birds woke up and will pilot the big Legion tank to New London. Ammunition will also be brought along for use in the ceremonial late in the evening.

Legionaires from all eastern Connecticut cities and towns and members of the "40 and 8" from all sections of the state will begin to arrive in New London during the afternoon. The county meeting takes place at 5 o'clock at the state armory, when officers for the ensuing year will be elected and committees appointed.

At 6 o'clock the New London people will be hosts to the Legionaires and their guests at a fine supper, to be served at the Elks home, next to the armory, it being expected that 900 members and friends will be fed in real camp style.

New London has extended a welcome to eastern Connecticut for the day. Stores and residences have been decorated with the national colors and the city is in real holiday attire. Malcolm M. COLEMAN PITCHES BRILLIANT GAME BUT SUPPORT WAS WEAK AT TIMES

Coleman, who has kept his light hidden under a bushel since his return from China, blazed forth Friday evening and burned his name in flaming letters all over the East Side Hall of Fame, when he held the hard-hitting Single Men to 4 hits in five innings and the Married Men broke even with the Singleites 9 to 9. Chas. Coleman, who is naturally of a retiring nature, never intimated to a soul that he was a pitcher and it was only by fortunate chance that Manager Cook of the Married Men discovered him. Coleman was pitching to batters in practice before a recent game when Manger Cook chanced to see him putting some mean hooks on the ball and immediately signed him up for the Married Men. Manager Cook recognized ability when he saw it and Coleman proved that Manager Cook's judgement was good. It seems too bad that one of the Twilight league teams passed up this chance to secure a pitcher, especially the Nuggets, who were extremely weak in the pitching department.

Coleman pitched brilliant ball against the Single Men and should have easily won the game had his support been on the same excellent par with his hurling. He was a trifle wild at the start but after the first inning he was invincible, allowing only two hits in the remaining inning. In the first inning the Married Men started off with a rush and aided by a couple of wild heaves by Jimmy Pedace, the only left-handed catcher in the state, scored three runs. The force of the Benedicts were jubilant but their joy was short lived.

Coleman, after throwing off the heavy blue sweater which protected his star right arm from the chilly atmosphere, went into the box to take up the pitching burden. He was a bit wild at first and his support was very, very ragged, and at times was in shreds. Jimmy Pedace hit a two bagger, the only redeeming feature of his playing. Woodmanse, the next man up was unable to get away from one of Coleman's mean hooks and was hit. Kirk Wilcox, behemoth of swat, came to the plate swinging his bat as Ed. Harris swings a golf club. Determination was written all over Kirk, from his kinky thatch to his shoeless feet, brown overalls and all. Coleman faced a tough situation but he was equal to it. After getting two strikes on Kirk he forced up to pop an infield fly which Coleman gobbled. Errors were made on easy hit balls and Charley Walz and Bugs Boyens were safe, two runs having having scored in the meantime. Twinkle Risley planted his No. 12s close to the ground as he came to bat and left them there with the result that a fast breaking curve nestled under his floating ribs. This filled the bases but a play gave Dearing his base and one run was scored and then with the sacks still occupied Razzo Pedace connected for two bases scoring two more runs. Manager Cook fell asleep at this point and before he realized what was happening had pulled a dumb play and the bases were full again. A couple of more errors brought the total to seven runs.

The sunshine of the Married Men had turned to inky black and some were wont to lay the blame at the door of Coleman. But although he was a bit wild at the first it was the wretched support that gave the Single Men their lead, not an earned run being scored during the inning. Dame Fortune smiled on the Married Men, probably thinking that the Single Men were not entitled to all the luck. Two misplayed errors by Jimmy Pedace let in runs in the first of the second and the sunshine shone through a rift in the clouds.

Encouraged by this Coleman, discarded his tan sweater, and went into the box. It was easily seen that he had perfect control of himself for he fanned two men and the third was easily out. As before the Married Men aided by Lady Luck, who played strange pranks with the Singleites pitching especially on Sunny Jim the catcher, got two men on by errors. Then Coleman came to the bat and with a sharp single from his bat that tied the score. Coleman stole second and third easily showing a speed that was exceptional for a pitcher.

With the score tied Coleman, discarded his red sweaetr, and went into the box. This time he did not fare so well, although no fault of his own, two runs were scored. These came on hits which should have been fielded and a couple of errors.

Gloom once more settled on the Benedicts camp and continued to rest there for there was no scoring in the fifth inning. The Single Men displayed their first real flash of baseball in this frame especially Bugs Boyens who covered the short field like a mad grasshopper.

Two runs behind, Coleman discarded his green sweater and went into the box. Two strike-out victims were his spoils and he came through without being nicked. The Married Men in their half of the first tied up the score on hits by Belair, Dickerman and Coleman, and would have won the game had not slow base running by Charlie Dickerman spoiled the chances.

With the score tied Coleman went into the box. His masterly pitching was never more in evidence, and the Single Men were as mere lats in his skilful hands. Thus ended the game.

Bob Woodmansee pitched for the Single Men. Tommy Simcox, umpired the game to the best of his ability, considering his failing eyesight which robbed Coleman of several strikeouts. The score:

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch

Manager New York Giants

Any inning. No one out. Runners on first and second. Batter fails to bunt on first pitch.

What should the infield look for?

When the batter fails to bunt on the first strike, with men on first and second and none out, the infield should look for him to try to cross them on the next pitch. Most batters will play back to prevent a hit getting through the infield.

Philadelphia, Aug. 15.—Detroit gained a half game on the Yankees by taking the final contest of the series from Philadelphia today by a 4 to 3 margin.

Base to Play Hudson A. C.

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Aug. 15.—Another team of unknown quality will oppose the Submarine Base nine at the Base pasture this (Saturday) afternoon. The team, the fourth claiming from New Haven goes under the name of the Hudson A. C. Like its predecessors, the Hudson nine will go back to the Elm City another badly defeated outfit. This statement is of course based on the performances of the past teams, who claiming to have won this and that championship in their territory, have proved to be a fizzle.

MISS WILLS MEETS MOLLA MALLORY IN FINALS FOR NATIONAL TITLE

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 15.—(By the A. P.)—For the second year in succession, Miss Helen Wills of Berkeley, Calif., national and Olympic tennis champion, will battle Mrs. Molly Bjurstedt Mallory, of New York, for the women's singles crown tomorrow at the West Side club's stadium.

Both triumphed in the semi-finals this afternoon, but while Mrs. Mallory gained a decisive victory over Miss Eleanor Goss, of New York, 6-3, 6-3, Miss Wills was forced to a sensational three-set struggle to overcome Miss Mary K. Browne of Los Angeles, champion of 1912, to 1914.

Miss Wills also advanced to the semi-finals in the doubles. Paired with Mrs. George W. Wightman, of Boston, with whom she won the Olympic title, Miss Wills tomorrow will play Miss Browne and Mrs. T. Horace Dudley of Los Angeles, to determine which combination shall oppose Miss Goss and Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup of Wilmington, Del., in the finals.

The Wills-Browne match, a battle of Californians that lasted over an hour, witnessed the most stirring play of the tournament and saw the triumph of the youthful champion over her western rival only after the hardest fight she has had on an American court since she gained the title a year ago. In the end, the power and versatility of Miss Wills' game plus her vigorous stamina, prevailed but Miss Browne came close to scoring a spectacular upset with her aggressive dash, puzzling change of pace and brilliant generalship.

Finding her stiffest backhand and forehand drives returned with almost equal pace, displaying a tendency to overshoot the lines and flater in her usually dominent service, Miss Wills was extended to the limit to hold her own in the first two sets. Through a sensational backcourt duel, that sparkled with prolonged rallies, she found her severest attack handed with consummate skill by the titleholder of a decade and more ago.

But with her title hanging in the balance, Miss Wills showed that her courage and resourcefulness were equal to the emergency. While her opponent gradually wilted under the furious pace, Miss Wills put all she had into her strokes and swept through the deciding set to victory, though Miss Browne fought brilliantly to the finish and forced four of the games to deuce.

FALLS VICTORIOUS IN FIELD AND TRACK MEET

Thursday afternoon the Academy campus was the scene of a closely contested track and field meet between the Falls and Hobart avenue playground teams. Both delegations were small in numbers but quite potent in athletic ability. It was only after a bitter struggle that Miss O'Neil's charges emerged the victors by the score of 66 to 47.

The Hobart Avenue aspirants to athletic fame arrived at the field of battle at an early hour. Each representative was wrapped in a flannlined blanket to protect his muscles from the vigors of a somewhat piercing wind which swept down upon the campus from the woods nearby. Due to a misunderstanding the Falls athletes carried at their playground for a considerable portion of the afternoon, until Benjamin Bruckner Jr., with his trusty wheel despatched a message to the delinquents advising them that their presence on the campus was imperative. The response to the call to arms was prompt. While awaiting the arrival of the athletes hailing from the district rendered famous by the thrilling leap of Uncas, the Hobart Avenue team enjoyed soothing repose beneath the shade furnished by the swaying hemlocks.

Results of the meet, winners in order:

40-yard dash (boy midgets): First, D. Weiner, Falls; second S. Jashut, Falls; third, S. Peullius, Hobart Avenue.

Silkmen are Swamped

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Aug. 15.—Scoring five runs in the first inning, the Knights of Columbus nine added the Corticelli Silk to its already long list of defeated teams. After the initial frame the silk men were never in it, although they worked hard to cut the large lead of the Knights. A medley of errors and hits in the first frame was to much for the losers, and the Knights walked away with a 10 to 3 decision.

Greeneville Wins From Elizabeth St.

The purple and white drank deep of the dregs of defeat this afternoon. Elizabeth street experienced its second defeat of the season at the hands of its bitter foe, Greeneville. The wearers of the green and gold decisively displayed their superiority by their 4-0 win.

Inability to hit safely when hits were essential to bring in tying runs resulted in the defeat of the Streeters.

The visitors' hurler, Tombari, pitched a fine game considering the strenuous work he has been subjected to the last two nights. Mulling and Haggerty, the Streeters' star fielders, covered their territory well. Haggerty collecting two hits. Eddie Bush would make a first class shortstop if he would only take his work more seriously. Baseball in general appears to be a colossal joke to our friend, the shortstop.

Greeneville, the wonder shortstop, played his usual brilliant game. Smith was here, there, everywhere, stopping treacherous grounders, spearing impossible flies. Nelsen's grandstand catch of a line drive, and Carroll's heavy hitting were large factors contributing to Greeneville's triumph.

In the future, playground games in the evening will be called at a definite prearranged time.

The score by innings:

BERLENBACH KNOCKS OUT "HAMBONE" KELLY IN FOURTH

Boston, Aug. 15.—Paul Berlenbach, of New York, knocked out Joe (Hambone) Kelly of Boston in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round bout at Braves field here tonight. The referee, after counting up 7, waved Berlenbach to his corner, giving the New Yorker the victory. Kelly had to be carried to his corner.

Berlenbach led all through the fight, scoring a knockdown for a count of two in the second round. It was a slugging match all the way, and the heavy blows of the visitor, wearing down Kelly, who was groggy at the opening of the fourth round. Berlenbach weighed 188 1-2 and Kelly 147 3-4.

DUWELL-RIVERVIEW SERIES OPENS AT HOSPITAL TODAY

The Riverview-Duwell series will start this afternoon on the hospital grounds. The game will start at 2:45 p. m., daylight time, with Moran officiating.

There is great rivalry existing between these two local clubs and the fans will be treated to some real baseball. Manager Bill Donovan will depend upon his regular lineup this afternoon with a possible last minute change in the pitching assignment. Posick will probably start, with Mills, Zemke and Roy ready to step into the breach.

The Riverview club will go to the plate in the following order: Couillard 1b, Noell cf, Mills ss, Frechette 2b, Burns 3b, Allard rf, Lafley cf, Belair c, and Posick p.

Manager Pedace has no doubt strengthened his outfit for this game as he has come to the conclusion that his loyal East Side rooters headed by Cheer Leader Jumbo James cannot alone win this game.

Baltic at Mechanicsville Sunday.

The Baltic A. A. baseball team will play in Mechanicsville this Sunday and are going up with a strong lineup. Papineau and Murphy will be the battery with Charron on first, Ridgeway second, Shaw third, and Peloquin at short. This infield is pulling off some great work with two and three double plays a game and are slugging the ball. In the outfield Andrews will play left field with the following players to be placed when the game starts, Sullivan, Detremb, Brisf, Provencher and Recave. Recave, who has been pitching good ball, will be ready to take his turn in the box.

Bankers Beat N. L. Lions.

New London, Aug. 15.—Tieing ten knots in the Lion's tail, the Bankers baseball team won easily from the ferocious looking outfit at Calkins park last evening. The final count was 10 and 6 and the Bankers were up ane ready for some more when the final bell rang, halting the festivities.

The collision of Matteson and Hope, in the outfield at the beginning of the eighth inning had something to do with the sudden termination of the contest. Both of whom are Bankers, and with no substitutes to replace them, the game had to be called in the eighth. Matteson was knocked unconscious for a short time and did not come to, for a period of ten minutes.

Thrilling Game Expected Sunday

Last Sunday at Pitchville, Matteson, South Windham's twirler ace, lost a spectacular and intensely interesting ten inning pitching duel to Gil. Jones, Fitchville's star right-hander. A large crowd witnessed the hectic contest. Not satisfied that his fighters lost to a better club, Porter, the South Windham pilot, offered the manager of the winners a satisfactory guarantee to play a return game at Recreation Park, Willimantic, this coming Sunday, August 17.

The stage is all set for the settling of the argument as to which is the better pitcher and club. Every road will lead to Willimantic when the supporters of these two excellent teams wend their excited selves to the playground of the American Thread Makers.

All real baseball fans in eastern Connecticut are assured of a treat at Recreation Park Sunday at 2:30 o'clock, standard time, when the arbiter-in-chief makes the welcome announcement "Play Ball".

THE SOCIAL CORNER

NOT TO RUST OUT BUT TO WEAR OUT

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY ALL ALONE

When in the woods I wander all alone,
The woods that are my solace and delight,
Which I more covet than a prince's throne,
My tent by day and canopy by night:
(Light heart, light foot, light and slumber light.
These lights shall light us to old age's gate.
While monarch, whom rebellious dreams affright,
Heavy with fear, death's fearful summons wait:)
While here I wander, pleased to be alone,
Weighing in thought the world's nehappiness,
I can not choose but wonder at its moan,
Since so plain joys the woody life can bless:
Then live who may where honied words prevail,
I with the deer, and with the nightingale!

—Edward Hovell-Thurlow

IF WE'D ONLY BOOST

If you and I together would praise New England's woods,
And sing about its waters and shout about its goods,
If we would buy New England cloth and wear New England shoes,
There'd really be no reason for sad New England news.

If all of us united boost New England's coast,
To praise our clams and lobsters, and even sometimes boast
About New England apples, we soon would get the rep
Of being full of action, and loaded up with pep.

If we would praise our products and boost 'em everywhere,
And choke New England knockers and grab 'em by the hair,
And duck 'em in the ocean to wash their knocks away,
Right soon we would uncover a new New England Day!

If we would praise New England, her sons, her daughters fair,
And talk about her colleges, her schools, and churches, where
She leads the minds of millions, the World would shout hoorays,
And celebrate New England in verses, songs and lays!

So let us boost each other, and buy each other's wares,
And fill our lives with sunshine and smiles instead of glares:
And let us pull together, and all united seek
To put across a whooping, great big New England Week.

WRITES VACATION LETTER

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Social Corner: Through Sister Glenwood, who is a really truly sister, I learned that after several years of silence I had now been forgiven in the Social Corner that brought pleasure in the days gone by. Being human, I was pleased, and resolved to improve the opportunity offered by the vacation period, to get in touch with the Social Corner once more. I wonder if Sister Dreamer is still in the capitol city. If so we might be able to get better acquainted. Was sorry to hear that Aunty No. 1 had such a misfortune as to fall and that her husband too is ailing. Hope they will soon be around as usual. With other members of the family including the bride and groom we are spending our vacation in one of the bungalows on the state reservation at Hammanasett beach. We are about a mile from the public beach so find it an ideal spot for rest and to enjoy the salt water bathing. Last year we three (two sons and myself,) spent our vacation motoring to Ohio and visiting with mother who is known in the Corner as Mother Roena. It was an ideal vacation. You see the children I used to write about are quite grown. One is married. Will reside near home. The baby of the family is with the U. S. Army in Honolulu, Hawaii. If any of the sisters happen to be in Hartford I would be pleased to have them call Elizabeth 3416—4 during the evening or on Sundays as during the day I am still busy, being employed in a down town office. Best wishes to all from

THE OLD SCHOOL DAYS

Dear Social Corner Friends: As the years pass few memories of the days gone by are dearer or more vivid than those that cluster around the old schoolhouse. I was but five years old when I entered school and for some time before that I had been a little torment to my mother, teasing every morning to go to school with big brother and ending the teasing with cart. So, at last, when I was five, mother said, I might go one day to visit and that, no doubt, would satisfy me for some time. Well, I trudged away with big brother one morning and you can guess, of course, that I got correct in her prophecy that one day would be enough. I can see the school house now in my mind—a two story frame structure, with the older pupils in the room below and the younger ones above. The school room on the second floor was much smaller than the one below and back of it was a good sized room called the conference room, a rather high sounding appellation and one which did not convey its real significance to us then but it soon came to mean a great deal to me as well as to my playmates especially when the weather was very cold or stormy for here was an ideal place for indoor games, puss in the corner, drop the handkerchief, round the carpet, here we stand, etc. etc. In those days we all brought our lunches and came early to school in the morning so we had plenty of playtime. We were not graded then as children are now but I am sure we learned just as much, at least of the essentials, and quite as thoroughly as present day children do. How we "toed the mark" and repeated the multiplication tables forward and backwards and as to spelling, what fun we had leaving off at the head. I pity any child who lacks ambition! The spelling matches were already on the wane in my day. When far enough advanced we were promoted to the big room below presided over by a man. I was only eight when my promotion took place and I was much frightened for it looked upon the man teacher as a superior being. I shall never forget the courage it required on my part to walk up to this mighty personage and say, "Please, sir, I want to study grammar" (We said grammar in those days, not language) "Do you know what a noun is?" he replied. "No, sir," I faintly answered and I felt that in not knowing this I had committed the unpardonable sin. I was soon finding out all about nouns in Greene's grammar. Some of the older pupils were almost grown up and I looked upon them with considerable awe. The Friday afternoon exercises were events to look forward to. What compositions were read then and recitations given that to me were wonderful. When Mary N. held forth with "Curfew shall not ring tonight!" and Constant T. with, "I long to see those icebergs vast" and I tell you they made the welkin ring. I have not yet forgotten how my knees shook when I ascended the platform and did my best with "Bobolink, bobolink, spink, spank, spink!" The saddest thing for me was that I could not sing a tune. There was song in my heart and go at noontime after the lunches were eaten and the girls joined in singing I did my best and didn't realize how poor that was until the fatal day when Emmeline G announced in no uncertain tones, "Anne, if you were as far from home as you are from that tune you'd never get there!" Emmeline with her clear soprano voice had hit the nail on the head but she never realized what a crushing blow she had dealt me. Soon after this when I was just ten the school house burned one night and I was among earth's saddest ones next day when I surveyed the ruins. No other school house was ever quite so dear to me as this one. Some day when I am in a reminiscent mood again I'll tell you what happened next. Am glad to see the Corner page so well filled. With best wishes to you all.

VISIT TO MASSACHUSETTS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: If I don't answer the roll call soon I shall be cast out. I was reminded at Twice Twenty's picnic that I had not responded but I am glad to say present. We all had a delightful time at that picnic. I met some old friends and made some new acquaintances and everything was lovely, fine day, fine dinner and fine people and now I want to tell you of my little vacation which I took last week. I visited the home of my childhood and as I neared Wachusett mountains I was inpressed more than ever by the grand view. I am a descendent of the third family that settled in Princeton on the side of the mountain. I often think of the trials which our ancestors endured and the mothers of those early days, with their large families. After a fine dinner at one of the public houses I went on to Westminster, my native town, noted as being the birthplace of Gen. Nelson Miles. I believed he is the last of his family and returned a few years ago and purchased his birthplace. I can never do that for we sold our home to the state of Massachusetts for a part of Colony for the insane poor. I saw perhaps one hundred inmates sitting and walking around where I roamed as a child.

Then we went on toward Boston and Henry Ford's domain where he purchased Wayside Inn and 1400 acres around there. He is contemplating many improvements and spending much money which will help so many people and in time it will be the big show place of the state.

ANSWERS THE ROLL CALL

Dear Social Corner Members: Just a few lines in answer to the roll call as I sit knitting and look outdoors I am enjoying a good rainy day which we have needed for some time.

Melba: Did you get home from the park with out getting wet?

Narragansette: How we did enjoy the visit. Come again.

Elizabeth: Has part of the company gone? I have been looking for a call from them.

Diamond: How is the place the 'dodge' kicked? Too bad to have a mishap to mar your vacation.

Merry Widow: I wonder if I went to school with your daughter E. Didn't you live just pass us last summer on the Westerly road?

What a sad accident to our sister Thank You. I think a shower of cards to her at the present time would be greatly enjoyed as it will be some time before she can stand on her feet.

If cards of letters addressed to:

Miss Hazel Swift, St. Joseph's Hospital, Willimantic, Conn. She will get them all right.

The chorus are waiting waiting so must say good bye to all.

PAPA'S BOY.

ENTERTAINED CALIFORNIA RELATIVE

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: It is very interesting to read the accounts of the trips which many are fortunate enought to enjoy at this summer season. It does us good to see new faces and different surroundings, for monotony at home becomes tiresome. To alternate the subject it was quite recently, a great pleasure to me to receive and entertain a lady relative, who came unexpectedly from California. Although she was born and spent her younger days in New England states, owning to circumstances, I had never seen her. She went west about 17 years ago, then a young woman. About 10 years ago, I had a brief correspondence with her, concerning family affairs. The space from coast to coast had seemed to wide for me to even dare to hope of meeting my distant and unseen relative. But after all, the day of surprise and the unexpected visit came to me. In response to the ring of my door bell I confronted a strange lady, but, who, after introducing herself, received my hearty welcome. She and her husband were making a tour from the Pacific to the Atlantic shore, in their up-to-date Studebaker car. They left California the 1st of May and had enjoyed a wonderful trip east. I was very glad to have the opportunity of entertaining them for a few days. Like many other people whom we meet, this lady relative had been deprived of only little knowledge concerning her mother's family.

To inform her, and to show her old style types of likenesses of those of our blood that seemed to be the mission and pleasure, privileged, to me. Also, I went with her, about 20 miles distant to show her the old homestead which was the birthplace of our grandmothers, (who were sisters.)

The property now owned and occupied remote from ancestral connections. However, through kindness of those that now call it home, we were invited to go through the rooms of the house. Oh! how much it meant to us both, to her, for the first time to cross the threshold, but to me, memories of childhood days, when I used to go there with my dear mother.

As we stood together in the spacious room, called the north parlor, I was reminded of the many scenes that had been related to me, that had taken place within those four walls. The bridal days of our grandparents and the many sad scenes, when life had ended, and the parting hour was there, when the casket was closed. We represent the fourth generation in family ties to be interested in the old homestead. We were glad to see every thing in and about the house, well kept up, which means so much to an ancestral home. After our brief visit here, we drove about three miles to the cemetery and there I showed her, the row of marble slabs, on which are inscribed the names, in memory of those, who once lived and enjoyed life, sharing each others sorrows, within that home from which we had just passed through its doors. My relative friend had her camera and took several pictures which I hope may be pleasing reminders of Connecticut to her, when she reaches her home again in the far distant state of California.

Best wishes to all.

JENNIE.

WRITES AFTER MANY YEARS

Dear Social Corner Friends: Saw my name among those called on August ninth, so will answer present. It is years since I have written and not many times anyway, never the less I enjoy the Corner page very much and have had many good helps from the letters sent in.

I was born and lived in Connecticut for a number of years, now live in another state and through reading the town news letters of the Norwich Bulletin, I am able to keep a line on a few friends and acquaintances.

We are getting our much needed rain and it does seem so good, already the lawns look better and the gardens may be saved by it.

I wonder if any of the writers use milk when making pie crust. I always do, and two house keeping friends seemed much surprised and it may be in the nature of a discovery to some others.

Use your own recipe only substitute milk for water and I'm sure you will like it. My family think it very nice.

During the very warm days we had, I was making pie crust and found my milk had soured. I stirred some baking soda in it and the crust was just as good. I am sending a short poem, that I keep over my work table in the kitchen, where I read it often during the day. It is a help to me.

"Let me be a little kinder, let me be a little blinder,
To the faults of those about me; let me praise a little more.
Let me be, when I am weary, just a little bit more cheery;
Let me serve a little better those that
I am striving for.
Let me be a little braver, when temptation bids me waver;
Let me strive a little harder to be all that I should be Let me be a little meeker with the brother that is weaker.
Let me think more of my neighbor and a little less of me."

Best wishes to all.

ENJOYED THE PICNIC

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: Saw my name in the roll call, am glad to answer present. I think it is very nice to have the roll call. I certainly enjoy reading the Social Corner letters as I have met quite a number of the sisters. I attended the gathering at Ocean Beach last week and sure had a fine time.

True Blue: I was glad to know you are one of the sisters?

Marigold: Was more than surprised to see you. What a jolly time we did have talking of old times and so many of the loved ones have been called home since last we met.

Cora: Was very glad to see you.

Foxglove: Was glad to meet you, and hope we will meet again soon.

Lucy Acorn: Did you get home all right?

Cavilla: Hope to meet you again soon.

Nellie Bly: I wonder if little Johnnie found his mother?

Theoda and Brave: Was glad to meet with you again. Best wishes to all the Social Corner sisters.

BREAD PUDDING RECIPE

Dear Members of the Corner: I thought I would write a few more lines as I noticed the page was rather dropping off. First I wanted to say that I was much surprised to see Twice Twenty's name signed to my letter telling about my vacation it reminded me of Rural Delivery's letter getting mixed with mine, of course no harm done I was rather disappointed about them both but perhaps they will get straightened out after awhile. No one can say but we have had some summer this year but I suppose we will get enough of cold next winter to make up for it. We are in the height of huckleberrying at present am canning some, will send a recipe for bread pudding.

Bread Pudding: 2 quarts milk, 2 eggs, 1-2 cup raisins, a little salt, 1 cup sugar, nutmeg and about 3 cups of bread crumbs. This makes a very good way to use up dry bread.

Will close with good luck to the Corner.

RURAL AUNTY.

NEW MEMBER WRITES

Dear Social Corner Friends: I attended your gathering at Ocean Beach Aug. 6, and had a very pleasant time and I met so many nice people and such a jolly lot of folks I would very much like to join your happy circle.

True Blue: Did you get home all right?

Noank Brownie: Did you miss my week end visit this week?

Marigold: Was very glad to renew old acquaintance.

Will take as my pen name.

TOOTSIE.

ANTICIPATES ROLL CALL

In anticipation of roll call will answer present and also say present for Fating who has been very ill since March but is now on road to recovery if nothing new sets in. I enjoy reading of the picnics and gatherings. Think that the roll call is splendid idea as then we may know how many we have. Thanks to the editor.

Best wishes to the Corner.

RICKETY ANN.

WRITES BREEZY LETTER

Dear Editor and Social Cornerites: Thought while cake and pie were baking I would do my bit for the Corner. What a delightful time we had at the picnic at Ocean Beach, although Foxglove, Foxglove's Mother and myself drove through the rain. We had a fine trip home as the rain ceased as soon as we reached the beach. Was more than sorry we had to miss the picnic at Twice Twenty's but it just could not be helped. The picnic at Elizabeth Park was not as largely attended as it should have been. Shame on you Norwich folk, you are no sports, there were some from Willimantic, South Coventry, Hartford and Southington, but the Norwich bunch were missing, nevertheless we had a fine time. Am in hopes to be able to attend the one at Sis Hopkins if I know when it is in time.

Twice Twenty: Am glad you had a good day, good crowd and a good time at your picnic. Was sorry to have missed it but things did not work right that day. See you had a vacation and went travelling, glad you got spunk enough to go.

Cretia: See you are home again, hope you had a good time. Thank you for the little gift.

Balsam Fir: I presume you are at home again working like a good fellow, I am real peeved to think I could not have seen you when you were here in Connecticut. Would not have known you were visiting here but for the paper. Will write you soon. I have so many letters to write think I will take a day off for that purpose.

E. M. R. C.: I also owe you a letter, will write soon, glad to hear you have turned poet along with your other accomplishments.

Diana and Airy: Expect a letter soon, good things come slow you know. That is a rhyme.

Theoda: We did have a good time at Ocean beach and Elizabeth park didn't we.

Windham Blue Bell: So sorry you fell and hurt your shoulder, hope it is all well now and we will see you at the next picnic.

Monty Dooley: I agree with you about the care of the piano, got moths in mine but think I have them all out now, I keep camphor gum in the inside of it all the time. Pianos are a great many times neglected.

Elmer: Foxglove, Mr. Whirlwind and myself expect to be down your way soon to go crabbing, has Grace any crab nets, I wonder, or did they get burned also.

Guess: Hope to see you soon as we expect to attend the Indian fair, also to go crabbing. All right, eh.

And last but not least I want to tell Aunty No. 1 I am awfully sorry to hear you had a fall and that Hubby is ill. Wish I lived near you I would run in and help you and perhaps tell you fairy stories.

Now I have rested up will close with best wishes for the Corner now and all time.

WHIRLWIND.

VALUE OF VACATIONS

Dear Social Corner Friends: It has been a long time since I wrote to the Corner but now will answer to my name. The roll call is surely a good thing for delinquents.

First, I want to thank all who sent me birthday cards. There are several whom I would like to remember with a card but failed to make a note of the date of their birthday, consequently, could not. Everyone likes to be remembered and a card is just to remind us that we are thought of.

What a blessing the recent rain has been to gardens and all vegetation after such a long, dry, hot period.

I read where many of the sisters have taken trips for the day, but not many have taken a real vacation. It is a diversion to go an a picnic which includes all the family, but when the extra work of the morning is done, lunch prepared, etc., it is not a real rest. I believe every house keeper should go away for a few days at least, each year. Just to eat food prepared by other hands, and have done for them, what they do for others all the year.

A woman is worth more to her home and herself for this change. However desirable and pleasant the home, she is better fitted to appreciate it, and also more appreciated.

I once heard of a man who said he did not know why his wife became insane, for she had not been away from home for thirty years, and there was nothing to have caused it.

Poor deluded man!

If we have not already done so let us give our bodies a rest, refresh our minds and acquire enthusiasm for the days to come.

Esmeralda: Why not tell us about your new surroundings and how you like it. Have not seen you since you left P.

Kitty Lou: I enjoy your letters so much. What a gift to be able to interest and help others with new ideas.

I trust we shall all be ready to answer when the next roll is called. Best wishes to the Corner.

NAOMI.

HOW TO MOVE

So many people wish to know about packing goods, vandall ought to mean, etymologically, even if it doesn't, one who works on a van. I sometimes think the helpers begin their career as expressmen for they handle pictures and all kind of bric a brac as if they were trunks.

And then again you will find nine times out of ten the carelessness of people the people who are being moved is added to the ruthlessness of those who do the actual moving, the result is recklessness, confusion and ruin. I am some what experienced by watching ruthless van crews plying their fiendish trade, that inspired me to write this letter, as I believe in taking a tender care our household goods on the sad days of immigration.

Moving is seldom done scientifically. Anyone who has witnessed the ordeal that people and furniture go through in a persecrination from one home to another knows that.

I know of a party who did not make an attempt to get ready to move until within about ten to twelve hours at most, of that critical moment, and things were gotten together and packed as if swept by a Titan's broom. The punishment usually comes in having two or three weeks in getting settled in a new apartement. Unnecessary hours that might be more profitably spent are given up hunting for things that have been buried deep in some hopeless and indescribable bundle.

The first time I changed homes the process cost fifteen dollars for the cartage and twenty two dollars for breakage. The lesson saddened me, but I remembered and profited by it. At the time of our second hegira, I gave the undertaking the same thought and planning almost that I would for building a house. Right at the start I introduced a new item of expense that seemed to me at first to be extravagant and unwarranted but that had its justification later in the saving it effected. The out lay was five dollars for packing cases and boxes. I spent three of the five dollars for boxes alone. Those consisted of five boxes. The largest of which measured four by four by five feet. The others were graduates each one a little smaller than the other.

One of the boxes were filled with books, every one of which was wrapped separately in a paper. This took a great deal of time but each book was uninjured.

Before packing number all your boxes (we did) with large and conspicous numbers.

Into our boxes we put a great many things which are thrown loosely into a van, my rugs, laborets and small chairs, pictures, all mine was cuddled in the nest of boxes the corners of the frames were reinforced. Stout twine was then tied around the pictures. Pillows and sofa cushions will come in handy. Under this system you know any article that is moved. Not only the contents of the packing boxes but every other piece of furniture. Every last bit of the household equipment and every stitch of clothing is made sure of the day before moving. I took a cleaning woman to the new apartment with me. She was with me and helped pack, and with the help of the inventory she could tell where everything was to be found.

KITTY LOU.

DISCLAIMS CREDIT FOR LETTER

Dear Editor and Corner Folks: Some one made a bad mix up in the Corner page of Aug. 2. The letters describing the nice vacation trip and when my name signed to it was not written by me at all, or sent in by me. Now if a mistake not that letter belongs to Rural Auntie and I am sorry I could not get a letter in last Saturday's Bulletin telling you all that it did not belong to me, but East Killingly Old Home Day and company did not leave me much time for writing.

It sure was a fine trip and in 1901 we had the great pleasure of going over some of the same country, by attending the Knights Templar conclave in Louisville, Kentucky, going from there to the Worlds Fair at Buffalo, N. Y., from there to Niagara Falls, crossing to the Canadian side and taking the trolley car ride on that side down to Lewiston, N. Y., where we stayed all night, taking the trolley car ride in the morning over the George route, back to the Falls and Buffalo. That trolley line is not in existence now, but it was quite a thrilling ride at that time and one I did not thoroughly enjoy. On the Canadian side followed the bank of the river and was hundreds of feet above it, while on the American side it was near the water all the way up, it gives one a fine view of the river all the way. We wanted very much to take a steamer ride on Lake Ontario but did not have the time for that. We went from Buffalo to Albany then down the Hudson to N. Y. and from there to Fall River by boat.

L. H. K.: You have me guessing, but just the same will be glad to welcome you to Club 4, and hope you will make yourself known to some of us soon. And I wonder if Zany is not some one who would like to be counted in our Club too? Hope so.

Was pleased to read the letter from Mater, also those of others who have not written for several years. The roll call is bringing many back into the fold again and a good way for us to show our appreciation of the extra work of the editor is doing for us in to respond to the call. He is putting more time into it than it takes to say, Present. I am with you yet, so get out your pencil and paper and let us know you are living.

Whirlwind and Foxglove: Was sorry you could not get to the picnic but hope you can get here later on. I have the names of forty six who were at our picnic and another sister has forty eight, will have to compare notes when the time comes right.

I want to second the request of 1492 for the recipe of those soft molasses cookies which some one brought.

Rural Delivery: That certainly is a grand old oak to have right in the front yard, we are proud of it and long may it live is the wish of

REGRETS MISSING PICNICS

Dear Editor and Social Corner sisters: I am writing to say present to my name in the roll call. What fine letters we had in the Corner last week. I have just been reading Foxglove's letter and she said just what I want to say in regard to announcing the date of the meetings. She said she would have been "peeved" if she had not known of the picnic at Elizabeth park until it was over. Well I got my paper about 9 o'clock that morning. I tried to get ready to go but could not prepare a lunch to take. Nevertheless I though I would walk up to the park and see if I knew any of the sisters.

I looked everywhere for a yellow bow but did not see one. I thought there would be a banner or streamer of some kind so one would know where the Corner was located but could not tell as there were several parties eating lunch. Just as I was coming away I met Mary France and Marigold. I would not have known them but Mary France had her name on a ribbon. I would like to ask the sisters, is that the shade of yellow the Corner wears? I had on a yellow bow but it was a brighter yellow. I was quite disappointed as it was I, that suggested the Elizabeth Park picnic in the first place. Peggy Anne wanted to go too, Lucy Acorn says she gets her paper just at dinner time. I think we all take the Courier and so do not get the news until Wednesday. Last week I was visiting in New Haven, when I got my paper Wednesday the first thing I saw was that there would be a S. C. picnic at Ocean Beach that day. I could have gone just as well as not if I had known it in time. Glenwood, I too am proud of Connecticut, I have seen some fine scenery in the past month. There are so many pretty places to visit if one has an auto. Winnie's youngest, you have my sympathy.

Will close with best wishes for the Corner.

WHEN CUTTING FLOWERS

If you pay any attention to a few suggestions when you are gathering flowers in the garden blossoms will be much longer than usual. Peonies should be gathered just before they open and put into water at once. They will then be a much better color and will last longer than if allowed to expand out of doors. Peony buds for special occasions may be kept in a cool dark cellar for a week of two if their stalks are in water.

Gladioli should be cut late in the afternoon, care taken to select a stalk where one or two have opened. Florists allow Gladioli to remain in the sun for fifteen minutes after gathering, a process which is known as softening. After this they will last especially well in water. Dahlias as a rule do not keep well in water. But they will do so if their stems are stripped bare at the bottom and then placed in hot water ten minutes afterwards, keep in the dark for twelve hours before arranging in vases.

Sweet peas should always be cut with the dew on them. In this way they last longer and keep their color better. Very much the same is true of Iris flower, which should be cut before they are actually open. Morning glories may be cut very early in the morning, choosing the buds which are well developed. These if put away in water will open at the breakfast table and provide an interesting spectacle. Many people say poppies will not keep in water, provided they are treated the right way. As each bloom is gathered hold the end of the stalk in a candle flame until it is quite charred. Then place in water in the ordinary way and the flowers will last a very long time indeed.

Roses are best gathered quite early in the morning taking care to choose well developed buds which are on the point of opening. It is rather a good plan not to put roses in water but leave them for a half hour in a cool place before putting them in a vase.

Violets fade very quickly after gathering for reasons which never could be explained. In such cases they may be completely restored by wrapping them in tissue paper which has been soaked in water. After an hour or so the violets will be as fresh as if they were on the plants and then they will last a long while.

JEZIN' THE PICTERS.

Dear Sisters: Ever since school let out I had bin promisin' Thomas Jeffersons' seven year old boy, that as soon as a movin' picter suitable for a little boy to look at kum to town grandma would take him to see it. So when I see by the paper that freckles faced Wesley Barry wus to be shown in a picter called 'The Country Kid,' sez I, never mind if it is a her that title means showin' a country boy right in with the farm animals that T. J. Jr., will enjoy. So we went. I don't think there wus more than a dozen grown ups in the building. The seats wus all filled and runnin' over with mostly boys from 10 to 12 years old.

The picter started well with Wesley as the oldest of three little orphan boys, on a farm their folks had left them. And Wesley lookin' perhaps 14 yr old wus plowin' with the little brothers ridin' on the back of the old horse.

The next picter showed the old uncle of the ortuns (who had got appinted garnep) comin' to offer Wesley quarter what the place wus worth for their home. Which of course Wesley refuses.

Then them pickters led on to the old Uncle gettin' an order from the Judge to put the little boys in the County Home. And the Uncle comin' after the little ones, when he and Wesley begin a knockdown fight. (I forgot to state that bein' as it wus vacation and a matinay the theater management jest lets the boys yell all they want to) so when Wesley and his Uncle got to fightin like wild critters them ten yr olds all around me begun to scream "kill him, kill him." "There he kills him."

And I begun to draw little T. J. Jr., close to me wonderin' if ye wus shut in a room full of little murderers. Then later after Wesley manages to steal his brothers out of the County Home and they sailen off on the old horse, with the Uncle chasin' them in an auto. As they kum near a R. R station them boys, (I was beginin' to think of them as little friends) began yellin' agin, "I hope the cars run over him," "I hope it grinds him all up" etc. Why the hole air seeme charged with friendliness. I got up and led T. J Jr. out. As near as I could figger I wus leavin' between 3 & 4 hundred boys is that not room to steep in them murderous ideas for another hour.

And on the way home I wus thinkin'. Our town has the name of havin' sum of the best schools anywhere round. To say nothin' of the child welfare society, boy scout's and all. But some how there kept crowdin' in to my mind, "There ought ye to have done and not to leave the other undone." And I can't seem to figger out how "the other" should be done. But you will all agree that done it must be unless we want to raise an army of murderers equal to the Chicago ones the papers are tellin' so much about.

Suggestions air in order.

SAMANTHA.

CURING FOOT TROUBLES

Dear Sisters of the Corner: Have you ever noticed how you can nearly always tell the country woman from the city woman merely by her walk? It is really pitiful to see some of our sisters hobbling along apart from their work—either in the city or country. Their gait is such as they have acquired from habit in getting about the house and fields. Sort of gives one the thought "anyway will do so long as I can get this mountain of work out of the way and the children's wants satisfied. I often wonder how the girls behind the counters can stand it and yet keep pleasant.

My mother's kitchen floor was of soft pine and when we took it up ten years ago to lay a new one of hardwood, there was a path worn by her feet in and out among the knots from the pantry to the stove and sink. Because we live in the country we think any old thing will do so long as it gives our feet relief and that is where we get our falling arches and other complaints.

My greatest trouble as soon as warm days begin is corns on the balls of the feet that try my temper exceedingly, making me feel I could scream sometimes only I know it wouldn't do any good. This summer I began to complain as usual and bobbled about in my husband's slippers, old things of my own and sometimes in my stocking feet. I soaked and rubbed and tried the usual sure cures but in a day or so I complained again and oftentimes nothing but keeping off my feet would do so and that of courses is out of the question here. Finally a friend told me to get some rubber soled shoes and I did. I found some for $1.29 with air cushion heels in either black or brown. I used Jung's arch supports till I got my insteps back in place and have worn out one pair of the rubber soled shoes and am wearing my second pair and have another pair ordered. I have forgotten I ever had sore feet! Such a relief to the family not to hear me complain and oh how my temper has improved!

Winnie's Youngest: I am more than sorry to read about your mother. I looked for her letters and hoped one day to know her. Please accept my kindest sympathy.

PROMISES SOME RECIPES

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: No, I have not forgotten the Corner and will now say present. In absorption with other matters it had entirely slipped my mind, am glad the picnics were so enjovable. have not attended any this summer. It is always pleasant to see the different ones, but it is so beautiful right here in my home, do not have to wander about in quest of any diversion. Will endeavor to write again later and send some of my long promised recipe's which true will be a help to the S. C. S.

With "Charity for all malice towards none"

Provially yours,

JOYFUL STAR

GREETINGS TO SISTERS

With best wishes to all the old members and the new comers I will say, Adieu.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Norwich and vicinity was swept by a rain just a half century ago that sent the waters in the rivers far above the banks and roads in Yantic, Fitchville and North Stonington were completely submerged. The rainfall began about 11 o'clock Friday night and continued until Sunday afternoon, coming down in torrents, making street travel practically impossible. Gauges in Norwich and New London were fairly close in measuring the rainfall, Norwich getting about 12 inches, with several losses due to the gauges ever flowing, while New London reported a fall of 14.71 inches during forty hours. It was the hardest storm in Norwich for many years, old timers claiming that nothing like it had been seen since 1842.

Other items of interest, taken from the files of the Bulletin of 1874 are in part as follows.

Monday, August 10, 1874—The publication of the Norwich Weekly Aurora will be continued irrespective of the suspension of the Advertiser, and A. Walt Pearson, by a vote of the directors of the Norwich Printing company has been tendered and has accepted its editorial management. Mr. Pearson has conducted the city editorship of the Advertiser for about a year in a most capable manner and his friends wish him success in his office.

A West Side man got off the cars at the wrong side of the train at Depot curve Saturday night and immediately afterwards was bathing in the Thames river. He was rescued by a train crew but was firmly convinced that the place was a mighty poor place to bring a train to a stop to discharge passengers.

The bridge at Poquetanuck was carried away during the storm Saturday and the mill belonging to Mr. Lucas, somewhat damaged. The loss is about $1500.

The storm of Saturday was the most severe seen in these regions for many a day but fortunately the damage resulting was not as great as it might have been. The Shetucket river happened to be very low and this helped keep the waters back from the city. The Yantic river, which on Friday was not flowing over the stone dam at the Falls was soon swelled far above the banks and before Saturday night there was a torrent of over six feet boiling down over the dam, a power it seemed no dam could stand any length of time. The water pouring down through the rocky chasm made a roaring that could be heard for more than a mile, and the water backed up for miles overflowing meadows. At Yantic the road was four feet under water and below Fitchville the road for a half mile was under water and the water was flowing over the bridges unimpeded.

According to H. B. Winship, superintendent of the Water Works, on Saturday at 5 o'clock 2.13 inches had fallen; at 7 p. m. 4.30. On Sunday at 5 a. m. 9.35 with the gauges full. At 1 p. m. there was an addition of 1.66 and at 6 p. m. .33 more, making a total fall of 11.34 and probably more as the gauges were found full on several visits so it is likely that over 14 inches of water fell during the period of 40 hours, the most remarkable rainfall within memory.

Tuesday, August 11, 1874—The depth of rainfall in New London during the forty hours previous to five o'clock Sunday afternoon was 14 and 71 hundredths. Such record was probably never before made in New London. The quantity of rain that fell during this less than one and three-quarter days was more than one third as much as the average for the entire year of two years previous.

Two gentlemen from Norwich who tried to drive to this city on their return from Watch Hill reports trying experiences. They said that the roads were practically rivers and they were compelled to ford streams in many places across lowlands. The roadbeds were terribly cutup and the fences and haystacks were submerged by the torrent of water.

The Arctics played a picked nine on Williams park yesterday giving them twenty-seven out in the eighth inning and winning the game 34 to 5. The Arctics did some fine hitting in the last inning, getting 14 two base hits and three three base-hits.

It is said that the governmental survey of the Thames river, now being made, will furnish the desired information as to the suitability of the river for a possible inter-collegiate rowing course.

Wednesday, August 12, 1874—There was a meeting yesterday of the officers of the County Agricultural society to talk to about the coming fair. Secretary Lucius Brown presented the premium list which offers fine prizes for exhibits. As it has been a good year for farmers the exhibits should be large, tending to make the fair a most successful one.

About 11 o'clock Monday night as the City of Boston was running through the sound, she ran into a sunk stone laden schooner bound from Camden to Southport. Following the accident she hove to and rescued the crew of the sunken craft, then proceeded on her way. It is stated that the schooner was showing no lights at the time of the accident.

The Central school district is to meet this week to consider the proposition of tearing down the Laurel Hill school and building a new one on the site of the old building.

At North Stonington following the storm, water ran through the principal streets making them unsafe for travel. The damage is heavy there and it will be some time before the dirt carried into the streets can be removed and the town get back to its normal appearance.

Thursday, August 13, 1874—In evacuating the old Bolles' tavern on Little Water street one of the workmen found an old fashioned Irish doubloon. There have also been unearthed a number of relics that show old age.

C. H. Talcott of this city has rejected a call to his former position as principal of the Preston Bridge district schools, to accept a similar position in the Wauregan schools.

J. G. Cooley proposes to convert his home and Middle Hill farm of 250 acres at North Franklin, into a home for indigent and disabled printers. He is to give preference to those who have completed an apprenticeship and expect them to do whatever work they can about the farm. He has a very pleasant place for the home and the house contains one of the best libraries in this part of the state. The home can accomodate about 50 persons. Mr. Cooley is an old printer and was formerly proprietor of the Norwich Courier, which doubtless accounts for his present interest in the craft.

Friday, August 14, 1874—A rough entered the Yorkshire and Lancashire house on Bath street yesterday and proceeded to knock down Mrs. Hartley, wife of the proprietor then proceed to kick her. Mr. Lee, the bartender entered and the stranger seized him and knocked him down, then jumped on his prostrate form. Mr. Hartley then came upon the scene and an [illegible] followed.

Saturday, August 15, 1874—The Murphy brothers have made a match with J. P. Worthington and Thomas Comstock to be rowed on September 5th for $250. This is likely to be a close race and interest is running high. The Murphies are considered a strong crew but their challengers are fast men and should give them a run for their money.

The county committee met at New London yesterday to consider the subject of a $20,000 appropriation for enlarging the jail at New London. The matter was finally voted down 16 to 11 and a motion to appropriate $1000 for fire escapes at the jail met a similar fate.

The Twenty-Sixth and their friends are to meet at Thames Grove, Monday, for a day of gypsying. A fine time is assured everyone and it is expected that the gathering will be the largest in several years.

AMERICAN PHYSICIANS ENDORSE FRENCH SCIENTIST DISCOVERY FOR REDUCING FAT

DR. J. J. RUDOLPH, Former Health Commissioner Considers "SAN-GRI-NA" a Remarkable and Safe Help for FAT PEOPLE.

Up to now, reducing had been an almost insolvable problem. It was either a question of losing a few pounds and ruin your health with dangerous drugs or remain fat. To-day a French physician of unquestionable reputation has to his credit a discovery called "SAN-GRI-NA," which quickly does away with most obstinate cases of obesity and at the same time improves the health and appearance and rejuvenates the entire system. "I consider 'SAN-GRI-NA' not only a remarkable fat reducer," says Dr. Rudolph, former health commissioner, but I advise it as a general tonic and health-builder for fat people." Physicians have used "SAN-GRI-NA" themselves, and have prescribed it to their immediate family and patients, thus proving that it is absolutely harmless and effective. "SAN-GRI-NA" is a small tablet which should be taken three times a day. It does not contain any dangerous drugs, and has been used by the discoverer in his own practice with most remarkable success. It is now recommended and sold in America, by reliable druggists only, with guarantee of satisfaction or money refunded. "SAN-GRI-NA" does not reduce fat people over night. There is no miracle about it. It is a safe, gradual loss of flesh which varies from 4 to 6 pounds a week, leaving the patient stronger and healthier with every pound of fat lost. No flabby tissues or wrinkles will follow the use of "SAN-GRI-NA."

NOTE—Since "SAN-GRI-NA" has been introduced in America, it has created such a sensation that imitations cannot be avoided. If you want results, make sure that YOU ASK AND GET "SAN-GRI-NA." On sale at

SAN-GRI-NA is now sold at Lee & Osgood's, McLaughlin's, ro Bray's drug

CITY OF NEW LONDON IS ALL SET FOR AMERICAN LEGION PARADE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 16.—Arrangements for the demonstration of the American Legion of New London county are all perfected. The city is decorated in flags and bunting and when the men who took up arms against the kaiser's hordes in 1913 pass along the business streets of the city tomorrow evening they will march through a lane of color on State and Bank streets, while on the other thoroughfares they will see a most liberal display of flags. The line is to form on Washington street at the armory and be ready to move at 8 o'clock, the line proceeding to the junction of Bank and Truman streets, then marching north on Bank street to State street, about the monument and back to the armory. Posts from Norwich, Jewett City, Baltic, Mystic, Stonington and Colchester will be in the procession, with four bands to furnish music. The prospect is for good weather and a great demonstration. A platoon of police will head the column and automobiles will bring up the rear.

The Rotary club will have as guests about 30 boys at Gardner Lake Saturday. The boys will be from the Scouts of New London.

A committee meeting was held at the Shaw mansion late today to arrange for the observance of the centenary of the visit of General Lafayette to New London on the 22d of August, 1824. Arrangements have been made for a tea party which will commemorate the event, and prominent citizens will represent the characters of that time. An ancient coach is to be brought into the panorama and in is General Lafayette will arrive and be received with all the ceremony attending the visit of the illustrious Frenchman and sincere friend of Washington. Among those present will be a direct descendant of George Washington, and the holder of a pew in the church at Mount Vernon where Washington worshipped. This descendant is Col. William F. Mason-McCarthy, who has been in the city several months projecting a business enterprise. Col. McCarthy is over 86, but is active and recalls many of the incidents connected with the life of Washington and the time immediately following his death. A pageant will be enacted on the lawn of the Shaw mansion, now the home of the New London County Historical society. The scenes may be witnessed from the street. They will be participated in by representatives of the army and the navy.

Groton is to observe the anniversary of the battle of Fort Griswold with a pageant on the 6th of September, arrangements for which are being perfected.

It is now said that the Hollander-sky or former Rodewald building, which was damaged by fire some months ago, will be replaced by a handsome structure that will be devoted entirely to business purposes. The city council declined to permit the remodeling of the building, on the ground that the structure was damaged to the extent of more than 50 per cent., by fire and by decay, and that to allow the structure to be rebuilt would be increasing the fire hazard in that section. The building is located opposite the custom house and since the fire has been used as a billboard for the display of show posters that are most unsightly.

The school children realize that only three weeks of their summer vacation remain. There will be few changes among the teachers of this city when the fall term opens, early in September.

The opening of Green street through to Tilley street is again being considered by business men now that Tilley street has been widened and improved and affords a relief to Bank street. The extension of Green street would give an outlet from State street to Bank and relieve much of the present congestion.

Next Monday evening, the city council will decide whether the Standard Oil company shall erect tanks for their gasoline and other volatile and inflammable fluids, according to the rules that have been laid down for such tanks, or whether there shall be changes made. Representatives of the company and the Gulf company are to be at the meeting and it is probable that a representative of the federal government and someone to speak for the insurance underwriters will also appear before the council to participate in the discussion is anticipated. Under the new fire code of this city the most stringent conditions have been laid down for the storage of inflammable fluids, so that there may be as little fire hazard as possible from the storage of gasoline. The Standard company, also the Gulf company, alleges that the rules are unnecessarily stringent and that they subject the companies to an expense that is unwarranted for guarding against fire. The tanks are surrounded by walls of cement, making a receptacle that would hold the entire quantity of fluids in the tanks in the event of a leak.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Holt, 17 Gorton street, and Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Williams, 68 Montauk avenue, have returned after a two weeks' automobile trip to the Berkshires and White mountains.

When the annual city election is held next month there will be but six candidates seeking office as members of the city council, for Maurice E. Sherman in failing to accept the nomination automatically disqualifies himself from running, a course Mr. Sherman intended to pursue, for he had no idea of accepting the nomination; and Mrs. Emily C. Spiers has filed her declination with City Clerk Julian D. Moran. Mr. Sherman, who served as an alderman, does not care to be identified further with the affairs of the city, and Mrs. Spiers declares that as she is already a member of the city planning board, she does not care to serve in any other capacity. The eligible candidates now are Mayor Malcolm M. Scott; Councilor Thomas Gragan, Edward L. Street and Mrs. Annie C. S. Fenner (both defeated a year ago), John F. Murray and Albert C. Woodruff.

Mrs. Joseph O'Brien is in New Haven, where she will attend the funeral of her brother, John Fletcher, whose death occurred Wednesday.

Ma. and Mrs. Jean Guyer and daughter, Miss Natalie, from Allentown, Pa., are spending a few days in this city. Mr. Guyer was at one time employed by the Brainerd & Armstrong Silk company.

There is no material change today in the condition of Charles B. Jennings, former superintendent of schools, who suffered a shock at his home, 57 Vauxhall street, early in the week. Mr. Jennings' condition is still considered critical.

Misses Sally, Catherine and Margaret Coyle of Center street are at Block Island for a fortnight.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin McGarry are entertaining Mrs. Mary Taylor and daughter Catherine of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Richard C. Morris is critically ill at his home, 164 Hempstead street, and it is believed that he cannot survive long. Mr. Morris' health has been declining for several months and yesterday he suffered a relapse, finally passing into a state of coma. This evening there was no improvement noted in his condition. Mr. Morris is a former city sheriff and deputy United States marshal.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sherry and children of Boston, formerly of New London, are spending a fortnight with relatives here.

James Halloran of Hamilton street, John Bezaillon, Danielson, Fred Wilcox, Westerly, Miss Mary MacLean, Mott Avenue, Ocean Beach, and Mrs. Frank Risley, Springfield, Mass., patients at Lawrence hospital, returned to their homes today.

The funeral of Edwin K. Chapman of Baker's Cove, Groton, was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at his residence, the services being conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church. Members of Fairview lodge, I. O. O. F., were bearers. Burial was in Starr cemetery, Groton.

Funeral services for Edward R. Gorman, former superintendent of the Groton Water & Lighting company, who died at his home, 45 Latham St., Groton, early Thursday morning, were held this afternoon at 5 o'clock at the family home. Rev. Henry W. Hulbert, pastor of Groton Congregational church, officiated. The body was forwarded to Mr. Gorman's former home in Lancaster, Pa., where burial will take place Sunday.

Mrs. Blumenthal, of 45 Mott avenue, complained to the police this afternoon that some one, probably one or more boys, caused her considerable annoyance of late, shrubbery and flowers in the yard being destroyed.

Another defective hatchway, located in front of the Salvation Army building, Main street, was discovered to be in a dangerous condition today. The matter was referred to the highway department.

An automobile owned and operated by Frederick Frazier, rear of 233 Ocean avenue, struck and slightly injured a boy, 16, employed by the Western Union Telegraph company, on Hamilton street last night. The youth was knocked from his wheel and sustained bruises.

Walter J. O'Neil, alias Thomas Brady, who has been serving a jail sentence at Boston for theft and larceny and who is wanted by the New London police for larceny, will not come to trial in the New London police court for some time. O'Neill was liberated at the Boston jail yesterday and was at once re-arrested and delivered to a Bayonne, N. J., officer who had a warrant for the arrest of the prisoner on a theft charge. O'Neil was taken to Bayonne, where he will have to stand trial. Upon his case being disposed of there, O'Neill will be brought back to New London for trial. O'Neill is wanted here for passing a worthless check on Isadore Glater, 84 Bank street, March 9, 1923. The check was for $56.16.

A number that the city council intends to order the planking at the municipal pier covered with cement to add to its permanency was dissipated today when Manager Holt denied that there was any such notion entertained. He said the best the city could do was to keep the pier in repair. It would be very nice if the city could afford a cement pier on the water front for the use of steamers and other craft that might make use of it and a condition produced that has been established at Atlantic City and Coney Island, but New London is not yet in the cement pier class.

It is declared today that so low a temperature as prevailed morning and night has rarely been known on the 15th of August. Perhaps the low temperature will have a soothing effect on hay fever, a malady that is prevalent at this season every year.

Love is blind to most of the danger signals.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS STRONG.

New York, Aug. 16.—A brisk upturn in prices took place in today's market with buying orders well distributed throughout the list. Pool operations resumed on the theory that the recent so-called "corrective selling" had been completed, furnished the main stimulus for the advance, but brokers also reported an increased public demand for the high grade industrial and railroad issues.

Industrials continued to set the pace. American Can led the so-called pivotal shares with a net gain of 3 3-4 at 129 91-4. Baldwin closed nearly two points higher at 124 1-4. U. S. Steel common showed a net gain of 1 1-4 at 108 3-4 after having stouched 109 and Studebaker moved up one point to 38 1-2.

High commodity prices and a substantial increase in car loadings for the week ended August 2 over the previous week helped to create bullish sentiment. Private cables holding out hope for a satisfactory conclusion of the London reparations conference also influenced some buying.

Speculative interest in the rail group was confined to a few issues. Heavy accumulation of Southern Railway, said to be for the account of important banking interests, sent that stock up nearly 3 points to 67 1-4, a new high for the year. New York and Harlem jumped 17 points to 162 on a few odd lot transactions. Rutland preferred and Frisco preferred also attained new peak prices, the net gains being 5 3-8 and 2 3-4 points, respectively.

Copper shares continued to give an impressive demonstration of group strength, the rising trend of metal prices being an important factor in the buying. American Smelting, a large silver producer, climbed 2 points to a new high at 72 5-8 while Kennecott crossed 49 on rumors of a possible increase in the dividend.

Revival of speculative interest in the automobile issues followed the publication of the July motor production statistics showing a gain of 5 per cent over June, the first increase since April. Mack Trucks was the outstanding individual feature, closing nearly 6 points higher at its record price of 103.

Exceptionally good buying was noted in a number of specialities, net gains of 2 1-2 to 4 points being recorded by General Electric, National Lead, Endicott-Johnson, Associated Dry Goods, Brown Shoe, International Telephone, International Business Machine, United Fruit and Union Tank Car.

Call money held steady at 3 per cent offerings of funds in the time money market were scarcer, but there was no material increase in the demand and rates were unchanged. Commercial Paper rates ranged from 3 to 3 1-2 per cent with business quiet.

Foreign exchanges held firm with trading restricted pending the outcome of the London conference. Canadian dollars duplicated their high point for the year at 99.87 cents. Sterling sold around $4.54 and French francs ruled around 5 5-8.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Aug. 15.—Although active demand expanded in an assortment of railroad and industrial issues, bond prices today failed to make much headway. Fresh buying of several second grade railroad liens was offset by profit taking in others and foreign obligations continued to mark time pending definite settlement of the Ruhr evacuation problem confronting the London conference.

Demand for the railroad issues centered chiefly in the St. Paul convertibles and refunding 4 1-2s and the 4s of 1925, Seaboard 6s and Adjustment 5s, Frisco Income and Adjustment 6s, "Katy" Adjustment 5s and Philippine Railway 4s, which advanced from about 1 to 3 points. "Katy" 4s and New Haven franc 7s, on the other hand, lost ground.

Rising prices for copper and sugar were reflected in an improved demand for bonds of these companies. Chile Copper 8s and Mazma 7s scored moderate gains and Eastern Cuba Sugar 7 1-2s were active at higher prices. Advances of more than a point were registered by Republic Steel 5 1-2s, International Mercantile Marine 6s and Virginia-Carolina 7s.

A local bank from the syndicate was awarded $12,000,000 Illinois state bonds and will probably make an offer from the next week of the two issues—$9,000,000 4 per cent road bonds and $3,000,000 4 1-4 per cent soldier bonus obligations.

Investment bankers today predicted that the forthcoming German loan would yield investors better than 6 per cent, asserting that if the coupon rate were fixed at 7 1-2 per cent the offering price probably would be around 93.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Aug. 15.—Stock prices moved irregularly higher in today's curb market with the oils displaying a firmer tone on the restoration of confidence resulting from the declarations of the regular dividends by the Standard Oil companies of New Jersey and Ohio. Standard Oils of Indiana, Kansas and Kentucky, Vacuum and Mutual, the most active issues, also improved fractionally but Prairie Oil & Gas and Imperial of Canada lost ground on a small turnover. Redbank was run up more than 2 points and then cancelled nearly all its gain.

Revival of speculative interest in the radio shares was the feature of the industrial list. Rova and Thompson advanced to new peak prices while Dubilier moved up 1 1-2 points to 46 3-4. Lehigh Valley Coal certificates again led in point of activity, climbing 5-8 to 42 1-4. Commonwealth Power moved up nearly 4 points to a record high of 99 3-4 while American Power & Light rose 7 points on a few sales.

Centrifugal Pipe corporation, which will take over the assets of the Centrifugal Cast Iron Pipe company was admitted to trading but there were no sales.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—In a runaway buying market today corn jumped up as much as six cents a bushel, and brought about an exciting flurry too in oats and in wheat. New high price records for the season resulted in all three of the grain markets. Corn closed buoyant at 3 1-2 to 5 7-8 cents net advance, December 115 1-4 to 115 1-2. Wheat finished unsettled, 3 1-4 to 4 1-4 cents upon September 131 1-4 to 131 1-2, and December 135 5-8 to 135 7-8, with oats showing 2 7-8 to 3 1-2 cent gain, and provisions varying from seven cents off to a rise of 17 cents.

Leadership in the grain markets went quickly to the corn trade soon after business began. The fact became suddenly apparent that owing to extraordinary continuance of widespread cool weather and excessive moisture, many previous sellers of corn had concluded to reverse their position, and either cancel their outstanding risks or actively espouse the buying side. Meanwhile recent large purchasers were adding to their holdings whereas offerings were becoming scarcer and scarcer. Minneapolis reports that it was probable a small percentage only of the growing corn in the north would mature ahead of killing frost seemed to act as a special stimulus to buyers.

On the subsequent upward sweep of the corn market, heavy profit taking sales took place, but they failed to stop the advance. Forecasts of general showers and of cooler weather in all the corn belt states made the trade increasingly anxious, and so too did assertions that purchasers of Argentina corn to be brought to the United States had emphasized in a striking manner the shortage of the domestic supply and the uncertainty of the crop outlook. Liberal buying of oats as a substitute for corn lifted the value of oats and made the oats market more active than for a long time past. In this connection talk was current that heavy curtailment of the Canadian oats crop had gone far to offset the large yield of oats in the United States, and that the domestic yield was being seriously diminished by continued rains at harvest.

Wheat derived much of its strength from corn, but was also affected by estimates that 1,000,000 bushels of wheat had been bought at Omaha for export by way of the Gulf of Mexico. Besides, there were renewed predictions of frost danger tonight in Canada and more or less buying too in anticipation of a quick settlement with Germany.

Provisions averaged higher, responsive to the action of grain values and of hogs.

In Sad But Loving Memory of

Sad are the hours of that unhappy day,
When God called our dear wife and mother away.
A loving mother, so good and kind,
No friend on earth like her will we find.
For all of us she did her best;
May God grant her eternal rest.

PARADES AND FIREWORKS WILL FEATURE ITALIAN CELEBRATION

Several street parades, a band concert at the Franklin street park and a fireworks display on Hinckley Hill will feature the celebration of the Assumption to be held Monday by the Italian residents of Norwich. The executive committee in charge of the celebration held an important meeting Friday evening, at which time the plans were completed. After the meeting it was announced that the day's program will begin in the morning with a solemn high mass at St. Patrick's church. The Italian-American band will form at Steiner hall at 8.30 o'clock and parade from the hall to the church.

After the mass the band will parade down Otis street to Franklin street and to Franklin square, through Main street to Roath street, countermarch through Main street to West Main street and Thames square and through Thames street as far as the foundry on that street. The band will then march back to the hall.

In the afternoon, about 5 o'clock, there will be a street parade through the center of the city, with the Italian-American band leading. Again in the evening, at 7.30, there will be a parade from Steiner hall to the Franklin street park, where a band concert will be given. The concert will come to a close at 9.30 o'clock and will be followed by a display of fireworks on Hinckley Hill. The Franklin street park will be brightly illuminated during the evening.

The committee in charge of the celebration comprises Rocco Barbette, chairman; Michele Santacroce, secretary; Ralph Divito, treasurer; G. Cristina, L. Rinella, A. Donvito, D. Ciarleglie, A. Gentile, S. Vasington, G. Di Sera, O. Amideo, C. Cedrone, G. Trementozzi.

LEGHORNS MAKING GOOD RECORD IN STORRS CONTEST

Leghorns from many sections of the country including Connecticut, New Jersey, Long Island, Missouri and Michigan and one lone pen of Rhode Island Reds from Massachusetts, comprise the outstanding pens in the forty-first week of the Storrs laying contest. C. T. Darby's pen from North Branch, N. J., finished first with a score of 53 eggs. Andrew L. Ohr, of Wallingford, Conn., and Meadowedge Farm at Cedarhurst, L. I., tied for second place with 51 eggs each. Leghorns owned by Hilltop Farm at Suffield, Conn., Eigerauch & DeWinter at Red Bank, N. J., and St. John's Poultry Farm at Oronogo, Me., and Pinecrest Orchards' pen of Rhode Island Reds from Groton, Mass., all tied for third place with 50 eggs each. Small's Poultry Farm at Mt. Carmel, Conn., and George B. Ferris of Grand Rapids, Mich., both Leghorn breeders, tied for fourth pace with 49 eggs each. The total production for all pens was 3472 eggs or a yield of nearly 50 per cent. This is 14 eggs more than for the previous week, 53 eggs more than for the corresponding period last year and is exactly the average production for this period for the past eight years.

Recent inquiries addressed to the college have prompted the management of the contest to announce that the feed formulas in the egg laying contest have not been changed. This does not mean that the formulas may not possibly be susceptible to improvement. On the other hand it has not seemed wise in the laying trial to change rations too often. The management does not like to swap horses in the middle of the stream. Such changes as seem desirable from time to time are usually made at the beginning of the contest year. The mash formula consists of equal parts by weight of corn meal, wheat bran, standard middlings, ground oats, gluten and meat scraps that are not less than fifty per cent. protein. The grain ration consists of two parts by weight of cracked corn, one of wheat and one of heavy oats.

The four leading pens in each of the principal breeds are as follows:

The life guards at Ocean Beach have been busy the past few days bringing in people from the water in an exhausted condition. Thursday evening Capt. Thomas H. Shipman brought in a woman who had been diving and had hit the water in such a manner as to take her breath away. She declined to give her name. She cried out for help and the life guard went to her assistance and got her ashore.

About noon Friday the automobile equipment of the medical unit of the New Hampshire National guard passed through Norwich, bound for Fort Terry, where it will be in camp for two weeks. The automobiles were transported from New London to Fort Terry during the afternoon on a government boat.

Myles P. Galvin, who required the assistance of Rev. Rocco J. Guggriero in giving holy communion.

NEW ENGLAND WEEK COMING NEXT WEEK

John S. Lawrence, chairman of the All New England Week committee, has issued a statement in which he urges that individuals, business firms and organizations generally throughout New England take the initiative, so far as possible, in making plans for New England Week, rather than to wait to be told just how to proceed.

New England Week will be held all over New England from the fifteenth to the twentieth of September. The ducts will be to display the products on which the prosperity of New England depends, to illustrate to New England's own people the beauty and utility of the products the industries of New England, and to demonstrate to the world beyond our borders how vast and various are the activities that have earned for New England her fame.

Labor, management, and capital will unite to make New England Week a definite success. New England Products will be featured in retail and wholesale houses, in our sales rooms, in all the usual channels of trade. How This Woman Got Strength

Put Up 300 Quarts Fruit, 500 Glasses Jelly and Took Care of Four Children

Norwalk, Ia.—"I have been meaning for some time to write and tell you how much good your medicine has done me. When I started to take it I was almost bed fast and would have been in bed all the time if I had had any one to care for my children. There was so much swelling and pain that I could hardly take a step. I took seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, and found that so healing. I am not entirely well yet for I was in bad shape when I started your medicine, but I am so much better that I am not afraid to recommend it, and I think if I keep on taking it, it will cure me. I have done my work all alone this summer, caring for four children, and I canned 300 quarts of fruit and made 500 glasses of jelly, so you see I must be better. I feel pretty good all the time and I am glad to tell others about the medicine."—Mrs. C. J. WENNEMARK, Box 141, Norwalk, Iowa.

Women can depend upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

THREE NEW MEMBERSHIPS FOR COMMERCE CHAMBER

At a meeting of the directors of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce held Friday noon three new memberships were received, Barney Rubenstein and the Norwich Gas and Electric department which took out two memberships. The July financial statement was approved.

The meeting discussed plans for a celebration of the opening of the White Way, when it is completed. The contract for the installation of the white way has been let and it is expected the work will be started in the near future.

There was some discussion of the Thames river development. In the hope of finally convincing the Board of Army Engineers that the claims of Norwich are justifiable, the directors authorized a special committee to appear before the engineers in Washington sometime during next October. Attention has been called to the importance of transportation for Norwich. Communities having far lesser advantages do everything possible to increase their transportation facilities. The freight service to Norwich, water and rail, is exceptionally good. The rates are beneficial to shippers. The condition maintains because of the competition of three transportation companies. Remove the water transportation facility and it is realized only two well what will happen. Therefore the chamber purposes to leave no stone unturned to secure the necessary deepening of the Thames river channel from Allyn's Point to Norwich. Hence the reason for the request for a second hearing in Washington, and which has been granted. The first hearing proved successful in that a detailed survey was ordered to determine the cost. It is confidently expected that the second hearing will be as successful as the first.

The meeting discussed the need for zoning the city.

Zoning means the prohibition of any building or business that will affect the decreased valuation of the neighboring property. Today there are hundreds of cities that have zoning ordinances, such as New York, Cleveland, Chicago and others while the only city of note that has opposed zoning is Detroit. Cities are curbing, by ordinance, the unscrupulous building owner who pays no attention to the decreased valuation of neighboring properties because of his personal greed. This subject will undoubtedly be discussed at one of the membership meetings in the near future.

The directors approved the recommendations made to the mayor and the city council regarding parking regulations. These recommendations were also approved by the Retail Merchants association.

The Rotary and Lions clubs have cooperated with the chamber for the erection of six metal artistic road signs to be placed at the entrances to Norwich. It is expected that these signs will prove more permanent than the wooden ones now erected, some of them dilapidated, all of them needing repainting.

The manufacturers and merchants are cooperating with the chamber for the display of Norwich made products in local store windows during the week of Sept. 15 the next. Norwich will fall into line with other New England communities for the celebration of New England week.

Suggestions were made for the next membership meeting in September of the chamber. The arrangements will be planned by the committee having these meetings in charge of which E. O. Rogier is chairman.

OVER 600 OPERATORS CALLED UP ON CARPET

More than 600 motor vehicle operators were called up "on the carpet" in the state motor vehicle department for infractions of the motor vehicle law during the first six months of this year. All but sixty-eight of them were given hearings to offer reasons why licenses which had been revoked should be returned to them. The others were in the nature of conferences at which the department called drivers attention to the fact that their records, as kept on file in the department, were unfavorable, and, in some cases, that further complaints against them would result in suspensions.

It is fact that the department reckless driving on the highways from private citizens as from police authorities. Hundreds of drivers who feel that they have been able to speed without molestation by the police are the subjects of complaints pouring into the department by mail every week. The mere fact that complaint has been registered against an operator is not sufficient to cause a black mark on his record, as the department satisfies itself by careful investigation whether the complaints are justified. This is to obviate injustice to operators through mistakes by the complainants in writing down registration numbers or through personal spite of enemies. In cases where the department is convinced that "probable cause" exists, in cases where the operator involved is either notified by mail or summoned for a conference at the department to explain. Such conferences are largely informal, and often result in warnings to the operators.

At the hearings given to operators seeking return of suspended licenses, which are held at the rate of at least five a day, those who testify are required to do so under oath rendering them liable to charges of perjury if they are discovered departing from the truth.

Norwich grange, No. 172, had a good number attending its regular meeting in Steiner Hall Wednesday evening, with Worthy Master Arthur W. Avery presiding. The resignation of Mrs. Carl W. Brown as chaplain and as chairman of the degree team was presented and accepted with regret that a serious injury made it impossible for her to attend to the duties of these offices now. John E. Fanning was elected chaplain and was installed by Worthy Master Avery, assisted by Louis Aldrich, assistant steward. Worthy Master Avery became chairman of the degree team for the balance of the year.

Plans for the grange fair in September were discussed and several of the committees were named.

The lecturer's hour in charge of Mrs. Ida Richardson was an interesting part of the evening with a programme of games, readings by Mrs. Fred Manning and by Mrs. Ivy Peckham, followed by refreshments of ice cream and fancy wafers served by the feast committee.

POETRY

THE WILLOW.

O willow, why forever weep,
As one who mourns an endless wrong
What hidden woe can lie so deep?
What utter grief can last so long?

The Spring makes haste with step elate
Your life and beauty to renew;
She even bids the roses wait
And gives her first sweet care to you

The welcome redbreast folds his wing,
To pour for you his freshest strain;
To you the earliest blue birds sing,
Till all your light stems thrill again.

The sunshine drapes your limbs with light,
The rain braids diamonds in your hair,
The breeze makes love to you at night,
But still you droop, and still despair.

Beneath your boughs, at fall of dew,
By lovers' lips is aiftly told
The tale that, all the ages through,
Has kept the world from growing old

But still, though April's buds unfold,
Or Summer sets the earth aleaf,
Or Autumn pranks your robes with gold
You sway and sigh in graceful grief.

Mourn on forever, unconsoled,
And keep your secret, faithful tree:
No heart in all the world can hold
A sweeter grace than constancy.

—Elisabeth Akers.

THE REVELATION.

An idle poet, here and there,
Looks round him, but for all the rest
The world, unfathomably fair,
Is duller than a witling's jest.

Love wakes men, once a lifetime each:
They lift their heavy heads and look;
And lo, what lone sweet page can teach
They read with joy, then shut the book.

And some give thanks, and some blaspheme,
And most forget; but, either way,
That, and the Child's unheeded dream,
Is all the light of all their day.

—The North China Herald.

HOW FRENCH PREMIER VIEWS DAWES PLAN AS AGREED UPON

M. Herriot, French Premier, States That Germany Now Is Responsible to the Whole World—Says That the United States Has Agreed to Co-operate in the Control to be Exercised Over Germany—Declares the Method Adapted Will be Longer Than Under the Former System.

London, Aug. 17—(By the A. P.)—M. Herriot, the French premier, made a long statement to the press representatives in London tonight with a view, as he explained it, to clarifying the conclusions of the conference to his countrymen. He thought that after a month of complex technical discussions and incidents calculated to hide essentials unbiased French men in the interest of their country would welcome such an explanation.

The statement covered the whole recent history of the reparation problem leading to the initiation of the Dawes plan, and is clearly intended to intended to influence the coming debates in the French chamber. He emphasized that the Dawes scheme does not eliminate sanctions in case of bad faith. Quite the contrary, he asserted, but it leaves the governments the care of determining their procedure should sanctions become necessary.

"We have reestablished the interallied front in London in the event of Germany failing to keep her engagements," he declared.

M. Herriot then outlined all the provisions of the Dawes plan having to do with guarantees to the allies, and therefore to France, the foremost being supervision of the German bank which will receive reparations payments by a general council, half the members of which will be foreigners, including one Frenchman. That was the first guarantee. Other guarantees were taxes, railways and industrial bonds.

With regard to taxes he said it would be inadmissible and contrary to the treaty, for a German taxpayer to pay less than a French taxpayer. The railways he regarded as one of the most important parts of the scheme where the work of the experts had been bolder still. He pointed out that the railway commissioner who will control the entire railway operations will be in all probability a Frenchman. All these he considered important guarantees for France.

"Germany," continued the premier, "is subjected to the whole system of control, and without doubt for problems of this importance there is no solution which can escape criticism and avoid all uncertainty. But what progress has been made over the former system, the illusory nature of which has been shown by experience!

"The United States has agreed to cooperate in the control to be exercised over Germany. German is not required to undergo this control passively, but to accept it freely. The method is longer and more difficult to apply, but henceforward Germany cannot say she is yielding to force alone. She has entered into engagements with the whole world, with the United States as with France. Should she fail to meet the engagements thus contracted, the honor of all the nations who entered into these engagements with her would compel them to rise against her."

The adoption of the principle of arbitration when difficulties arise in carrying out the scheme, France, according to M. Herriot, considers a fruitful novelty for the future, and the premier believes this innovation will receive veer wider application.

M. Herriot said his advsers estmated that under the new scheme of transfers and deliveries in kind France would be able to inscribe a first annuity of about nine hundred million francs. That would be something new.

"Further," the premier went on, "we are insured coal and coke for a number of years. These are realities.

The French people have had enough of following chimeras. The solution we have begun at London brings us at once substantial realities and peace. Whether one favored the occupation of the Ruhr or not, one must agree that the Dawes scheme more extensive and productive than it furnishes us with pledges infinitely the former pledges."

COOLIDGE INFORMED OF SUCCESS OF CONFERENCE

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 17.—President Coolidge was informed today in a cable from Ambassador Kellogg at London that the international conference had reached an agreement on the Dawes reparation plan.

The agreement, Mr. Kellogg cabled, assures that the Dawes plan "will be put into execution at an early date."

Mr. Coolidge sent the ambassador a cable expressing his satisfaction and congratulations.

"Message received with great satisfaction" the president said in his reply. "I congratulate you on your skill and success. You have greatly contributed to the welfare of the world."

Definite word of the successful completion of the conference was received by Mr. Coolidge at his father's home here where he has just started his vacation and to C. Bascom Slemp, his secretary, the president this afternoon expressed the opinion the conference result represented the most important accomplishment since the armistice, with the possible exception of the Washington arms conference.

Mr. Coolidge was represented as believing there would be little difficulty in securing from private sources in this country the financial support necessary to put the scheme into operation.

In his message to the president, Ambassador Kellogg said:

"The international conference has reported an agreement assuring that the Dawes plan will be put into execution at an early date it has been arrived at in fact on many difficulties and was possible only by reason of the patriotic attitude and firm determination of all the allied and German delegates. I believe it presages a period of tranquility and increased prosperity in European countries, the beneficial influence of which will be reflected throughout the world.

"The support you have given to the report of the experts committee under the chairmanship of G. F. Dawes, the encouragement to the laborers of the conference contained in your public utterances and the suggestions you and the secretary of state have made have contributed definitely to the successful outcome of the deliberations of the conference. You will readily have appreciated the cordiality which has been manifested toward the United States, and I believe that this country will welcome the warmer relationship with the nations of Europe, which, while avoiding the field of political commitments or the taking of sides in issues which do not concern us, will provide a better basis for common economic effort and insure happiness and propriety for the men and women of all countries."

COAST GUARD UNABLE TO LOCATE "FLOATING CAFE"

New York, Aug. 17.—Although the coast guard cutter Seneca patrolled the waters in the vicinity of Fire Island today, no trace of a reported "floating cafe" was found, according to Captain Camden of the coast guard, New York district. He added that had the Seneca located the vessel he would have proceeded immediately to the alleged floating cafe to see if she was violating the liquor treaty between Great Britain and the United States.

Capt. James Blaikie, master of the Anchor liner California, which arrived from Glasgow today, asserted that he had not only failed to note any vessel equal to the 17,000-ton liner which was reported to be anchored off Fire Island, but had also had the unique experience of sailing through Rum Row without noting a single rum schooner. He was unable to advance any theories as to the absence of the vessels and recalled that last fall his attention was called to a large freighter as his vessel was passing about thirty miles off Boston.

He said the freighter was openly unloading case after case of what appeared to be whiskey onto two ocean going lighters and that the lighters were later towed to some seaport by tugs. He added that the freighter was the largest vessel he had ever seen on Rum Row.

"Our vessel passed Fire Island just before dawn this morning," the captain said. "The weather was very fine and visibility was high, which enabled us to observe the surrounding water for a great distance. We could have quite easily observed any steamer which was anchored or drifting about. However, we did not sight a single rum-runner, which was certainly most unusual. The water was exceedingly calm."

The captain ventured the opinion that the cost of upkeeping of a 17,000-ton vessel, including the salaries of the crew of about 200 men, together with fuel and supplies, would average at least $2,000 daily. He said this did not take into consideration the initial capital expended for such a ship and that therefore he believed the floating cafe to be a myth, from a practical point of view.

NATIONAL WOMEN'S PARTY, CONCLUDE THEIR CONVENTION

Westport, N. Y., Aug. 17.—A pageant "Forward Into Light," and a church service at Lewis, near here, both in memory of Miss Inez Milholland, leader in women's activities, today brought to a close the annual convention of the natiaonal women's party.

The pageant was held this evening on the estate of Miss Milholland's father, John E. Milholland, of New York, at Meadow Mount. More than 1,000 women and girls participated and more than 10,000 persons witnessed the eight episodes.

An unexpected feature was added to the service at the grave when Mr. Milholland, at a time in the programme when no speaking was scheduled, protested the action of the leader of the national women's party in what he termed "drawing the color line" and refusing to permit negro women who were his guests to pay tribute to his daughter.

Mr. Milholland said he had requested that Miss Lucy D. Slowe dean of women at Howard university, Washington, and Mrs. A. W. Hunton, New York, representatives of the national association for advancevent of colored people, who with Dr. Emmett J. Scott, of Washington, secretary and treasurer of Howard university, are guests in his home, be permitted to voice their tribute to Miss Milholland at the memorial service in the church. Party leaders had told him, he said, that it "would mar the programme to have them appear and pay tribute to her memory."

This, he declared, was directly opposed to the ideas of his late daughter, who, at the time of the suffrage parade in Washington some years ago, "demanded that colored people be allowed to take part in it."

Miss Alice Paul and other party leaders later protested that no discrimination had been made against Mr. Milholland's guests, but admitted they felt prominence given representatives of the negro race in any affair connected with the party campaign might work against chances of electing women nominated for congress from the southern states.

A suggestion that citizens' committees in charge of local work in connection with defense test matters September 12, might well give war mothers organizations "the position of honor" in the ceremonies of the day is made by Secretary Weeks in reply to a letter from Mrs. H. H. McCluer, national war mother.

LOEB-LEOPOLD CASE ENTERS THE FIFTH WEEK TODAY

Chicago, Aug. 17.—With the last witness but one of those expected to testify taking the stand again tomorrow, the hearing before Judge John R. Caverly to determine the punishment of Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, kidnappers and murderers of Robert Franks, will enter its fifth and, perhaps, its final week.

Dr. Harold D. Singer, alienist for the state, who Saturday introduced the term "Schizophrenic," to denote a split personality, and which Clarence S. Darrow, chief of defense counsel, immediately appropriated in alluding to the mental status of Loeb and Leopold, will take the witness stand again for a resumption of cross examination. Following him, State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe has said, will be Dr. William O. Krohn, "ace" for the state in half a dozen criminal trials and who is co-author with Dr. Singer of the book, "Insanity and Law," from which Schizophrenic" was lifted.

After Dr. Krohn is dismissed closing arguments will be in order.

Just before the short Saturday session was adjourned Dr. Singer admitted a statement in his book, that split personalities who develop phychosis often commit acts of violence "apparently without motive," and later are "devoid of remorse." He decelared, however, that this had no reference to the Franks murder, which had been planned six months, and he insisted that this "plan went with a motive," and was largely the motive.

This question will be taken up again tomorrow whe the hearing is resumed.

ARRESTED FOR PERMITTING SUNDAY DANCING IN HALL

Milford, Aug. 17.—Attorney John J. Bennett, clerk of the Ansonia city court, president of the Oak Grove Amusement corporation, and proprietor of a dance hall at Myrtle beach, was arrested tonight by Sergeant Clark S. Douglass, of the Milford police department after he refused to stop dancing in his dance hall when told he was violating the Sunday laws. Bennett was released without bail for appearance in Milford court next Thursday morning. He made official complaint to Milford authorities, as he was being "booked" at headquarters, against Sunday dancing in the Seven Gables inn and the Blue Boy inn in Woodmont.

After Bennett had been taken to police headquarters, Sergeant Douglass went back to the dance hall. Fifty couples were dancing when he entered. The orchestra kept on playing at his appearance and he shouted the warning that all those who persisted in keeping on dancing would be placed under arrest. Sergeant Douglass says there following cries, catcalls and boos from the dancers and several hundred spectators. All on the floor, he says, disobeyed his orders and when the tumult of derision aimed at him kept up, he sent for police reserves.

Before the arrival of reserves, Bennett returned to the hall. He stopped [redacted] and told the crowd to leave. No admission charge was made tonight. But "those who so desired" could purchase for fifty cents a soda check which entitled the mto "all the soft drinks they could drink."

Bennett told the police tonight he intended to make a test case of his arrest and, if necessary, bring injunctions to stop ancing on Sunday in places other than his hall. He charges personal discrimination.

COOPERATIVE ACTION BY STATE POULTRY PRODUCERS

Harftord, Aug. 17—Although lacking 14,000 of the 100,000 birds required for the cooperative marketing contract of the proposed Connecticut Poultry Producers, Inc., the sponsors of the organization have decided to go through with the formation of the cooperative.

The contract contains a clause which calls for a minimum of 100,000 hens by the middle of August. Several weeks of campaigning for members have thus far brought together for the proposed marketing association 86,000 birds. A number of contracts are still in the hands of producers in different counties, and the total of birds may be brought to 100,000 when these are heard from.

The members of the organization committee, of which L. A. Grouten, of Farmington, is chairman, and which represents one fifth of the birds already secured, have unanimously voted to waive the 100,000 minimum clause. The committee will send a letter to the producers who have already signed contracts explaining the situation to them and requesting them to sign a waiver of the clause which will accompany the letter. Many of these producers at the outset of the campaign indicated that they would waive the clause in the event the organization was 10,000 or so short of the required total of hens by the middle of August.

The committee has been empowered to advertise for a manager of the enterprise, and it will submit the names of applicants at a meeting of the member producers in Meriden on September 2. At this meeting the directors will be elected who in turn will elect the association's officers.

HAVE GIVEN UP FLIGHT TO THE EAST COAST OF GREENLAND

Reykjavik, Iceland, Aug. 17 (By the A. P.)—Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, commander of the American army round-the-world flight has decided to give up the proposed flight from Reykjavik to Angmagealik, on the east coast of Greenland, and with Lieutenant Erik Nelson will fly instead to Fredericksdal, on the southwestern point of Greenland, a short distance from Cape Farewell.

The correspondent of the Associated Press this morning found Smith and Nelson studying large maps of Greenland, making measurements of distance and deviation. The jump from Reskjavik to Fredericksdal will be the longest of all they have attempted in their world flight, about 825 miles. It is estimated that without stopping the airmen will be forced to fly about 12 hours.

Both Lieutenant Smith and Lieut. Nelson appeared to be cheerful over the decision to go to Fredericksdal. Lieutenant Smith said he was very glad that the question of a landing place had been settled and that he and Nelson would make their start from Reykjavik on the first day that weather conditions were favorable.

While his correspondent was talking with the American fliers, Lieutenant Locatelli, the Italian airman who reached Reykjavik today from Hoefn Hornafjord, called on Lieutenant Smith and handed him a letter from the American air attache of the embassy in Rome. The letter was twenty days old.

GILPATRIC LOST HEAVILY IN SPECULATING IN COPPER

A Citizen Who Lost $18,000 in a Copper Deal Asserts That Gilpatric Lost a Greater Sum— Elderly Woman Loses $1,000 Liberty Bond Entrusted to Gilpatric—Subscriptions Continue For the New Bank.

Putnam, Aug. 17.—That G. Harold Gilpatric, cashier of the wrecked First National bank and former state treasurer, who shot himself in an attempt at suicide August 7, lost a large sum in speculating in copper was disclosed today when another citizen of Putnam, reported that he had lost $18,000 in a copper deal and that Gilpatric, who had invested at the same time, had lost an even greater sum. Definite figures on Gilpatric's losses in this connection were not learned.

It was also disclosed today that national bank examiners examining the affairs of the wrecked bank have been unable to find a $1,000 Liberty bond, entrusted to Gilpatric's care by an elderly Putnam woman.

Mystery of the second document signed by Gilpatric at a bedside conference with his relatives Friday had not been solved definitely today but it was believed that it consisted of a power of attorney to his brother Walter Gilpatric. Ernest C. Morse, former prosecuting attorney, has been appointed by Walter Gilpatric general counsel for Gilpatric and he will start immediately in an attempt to straighten out the tangled financial affairs of the banker. Walter Gilpatric had returned to his office in New York but will come back to Putnam this week to aid his brother.

Three more subscriptions, amounting to $3,900, were received today towards the $150,000 needed to establish a new Putnam bank to replace the one wrecked. A mass meeting of the French people of the city was held this evening when plans to aid in the drive for funds were made.

Mr. Gilpatric's condition remained unchanged today, it being said at the hospital that he was "holding his own remarkably."

HAD STRESEMANN AND HERRIOT SHAKE HANDS

London, Aug. 17 (By the A. P.)—The story of the London conference closed last night with a noteworthy incident. When he came to Chancellor Mark, the prime minister, still gripping the chancellor's hand, led him to where M. Herriot, the French premier, was standing surrounded by friends.

Without a word, so the story goes, Mr. MacDonald lifted M. Herriott's right hand and joined it with that of Dr. Marx. Then he stepped back, smiling genially, while the Frenchman and the German tightened the grip and shook hands cordially.

Unqualified pleasure is expressed in all official quarters here at the success of the conference.

New York, Aug. 17.—Mrs. Bessie Harvey Weir, 21, who said she was a Follies girl, was held in $3,000 bail today after she had been arrested on a charge of "suspicion of bigamy." She was arrested by Detective John Kiernan, who acted on a telegram from St. Louis, Mo.

Mrs. Weir told the court that her arrest was due to suite work on the part of her husband, from whom she fled because of his alleged inhuman treatment.

According to the police, Mrs. Weir said she married Earl Harvey Weir in St. Louis on Christmas eve seven years ago, when she was 14 years. Her husband disappeared the following day, according to her story. Later she said she received a telegram from the war department saying that he had been killed in action.

Two years ago, according to the story she is said to have told the police, she married Milton Goldsmith, a photoengraver in St. Louis, after she had told him the circumstances regarding her previous marriage. His treatment became unbearable, she alleged, and she came to New York.

COOLIDGE AT CHURCH WITH FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 17—President Coolidge again attended services this afternoon in the one room Union Church here and with friends and neighbors who crowded the little building listened to a sermon on "the lesson of simplicity."

Because of his duties at his regular church in the morning, the Rev. John White, of Episcopal church, Shelburne, Vt., near here can come here only in the afternoon and the services started today as usual, at 2:30 p. m.

The president with Mrs. Coolidge and son, their son, and the president's father sat in the regular family pew, in the third of the seven rows of seats.

"Obedience to the simple demands of life," the Rev. White told the congregation, "is the course through which we receive God's greatest blessings. We must strif off affectation. We must learn from the humble folk."

This morning the family again visited the cemetery where were buried Calvin, Jr., the president's mother and sister. In the evening they took a short motor ride through winding roads of this hilly country.

As on yesterday Mr. Coolidge spent today reading and resting. This afternoon he was handed Mr. Kellogg's cable by C. Bascom Slemp, his secretary and this was the first physical attention he had given to official duties since arriving here yesterday. Through special wires, Mr. Slemp was in communication with Washington.

The roads leading to his village were crowded again today by motorists but those who stopped were kept at a distance from the Coolidge home. Three state police directed the traffic and two lots were opened for use in parking cars.

AUTOMOBILE CRASHED THROUGH SIDE OF HOUSE

Seymour, Aug. 17.—Donald J. O'Neil, of 157 Derby avenue, and his son were rudely disturbed shortly after 1 o'clock this morning by the terrifying sounds of the side of their house being caved in. The car was operated by Patrick Garrett, of Ansonia, who was later arrested on the charge of reckless driving.

Mrs. Andrew L. Gilmour was injured in an accident that preceded the crashing in of the O'Neil home. With her husband, she was riding toward Waterbury in a small machine when the car owned by Lindgren collided with their auto. The Lindgren car continued on its way after the accident. Garrett stated that after striking the small car he stepped on the accelerator, thus causing it to move forward at great speed toward the O'Neil house.

Mrs. Gilmour was taken to the Waterbury hospital where it was found she was suffering from a fractured right arm and bruises. Her husband sustained minor injuries. Garrett had three teeth knocked out and Lindgren was uninjured.

WILLIMANTIC

The business future of that part of Main street between Bank and High streets has been realized for some time, but never so strongly as in the past two years, since the Frank Sayles estate on the south side of the main thoroughfare was chopped up into lots and disposed of to local interests. Within less than 24 months over $250,000 has been laid out on the tract of land, for buildings already erected, others under construction and for alterations. The estate extended to the Mercier family property, opposite Willimantic postoffice, from a point nearly opposite the intersection of Walnut and Main street and had a depth of from 160 to 170 feet to the property of the New Haven Railroad. Sections of the large stone buildings which form part of the Stone Row were included in the estate. Buildings on the land now include those of The Jordan Buick Company, the John R. Gilman restaurant and the Gulf Refining Company filling station. The new Capitol Theatre which is in course of construction represents the remainder of the investments. Alterations have been made on buildings owned by the Bacon family, formerly part of the estate. New concrete sidewalks are being laid along the land and these will add greatly to the improved appearance of the section. With the Theatre and possibly other building erected on upper Main street, those who have observed the growth of the city for many years feel confident that, in the expanse of the business life of the community, a decided trend will be toward that section relieving future crowded conditions on center Main street. The idea has prevailed for years that the New Haven Railroad held under consideration a plan to remove the present station to a new building on desirable property which the railroad controls on the west corner of Bridge and Main streets. Should something of this nature, the movement toward upper Main street would be even more convincingly apparent.

With favorable weather the erection of the new home of the local lodge of Elks at the Elks' Park on Pleasant street will be started. The plans have already been completed and it is expected that the beautiful structure will adorn the proposed prominent location, by this time of year next fall. The new home will represent the latest word in modernity.

One of the large trucks of the Bristol Brass Company, loaded with five tons of brass packed in wooden boxes was overturned on the Hop River Road, just within the Columbia town line, Friday afternoon, when the front wheel was struck by a touring car manned by Charles Leonard of this city. The touring car signalled for the road to pass the truck which was traveling in the same direction, toward Hartford but cut in in such a manner that the back right wheel of the machine hooked with the left front wheel of the truck, throwing both vehicles out of their courses. It is said that the automobile was being driven by a woman who was under the tutelage of Mr. Leonard. The big truck straddled the edge of the bank and came to a standstill. The driver hid shut off the engine when the heavy load began to slide down the embankment and continued slowly downward until the truck lay on its side. An occupant in the cab jumped to safety, but the driver remained behind the wheel. He was uninjured, however. The touring car swerved to the left of the road after the collision and came to a stop near the bushes, after narrowly missing striking a telephone pole. Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink of Andover was summoned and after an investigation placed Mr. Leonard under arrest for a hearing in the Columbia town court Saturday on a technical charge of reckless driving. Following the trial the case was nolled, on the payment of costs. The brass was unloaded from the truck and a block and tackle was rigged up with a line of rope stretching from the truck across the highway to a fairly good sized tree which was pulled up by the roots when the weight of the truck was put against it. A second attempt was made by using a larger tree and the vehicle was righted.

"Jimmy" the $100 police dog owned by Walter L. T. Dickie of Oak street was struck and probably fatally wounded Saturday forenoon by a high powered car which sped up Jackson street and hit the dog while the animal was on the road in front of the Kilbourey property. The driver did not stop and several people who saw the accident were unable to secure the registration numbers on the car. Mr. Dickie was leaving no stone unturned during the day in an endeavor to learn the identity of the driver.

Joseph Popolowsky of Hop River, was brought before the Columbia town court Friday afternoon and charged with allowing his horse to roam on the highway, thus constituting a menace to travel. Popolowsky pleaded guilty and a fine of $1 and costs, amounting to $10.53, which was paid, was imposed by Justice of the Peace Hubert F. Collins, Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink of Andover was the complainant in the case, he having found the horse at large on the Hartford highway last Wednesday night.

Cars owned and driven by John Fiorin, of North street, this city and William Anderson of 53 West River street, Providence, came together at the head of Bridge street, on Main street, Saturday forenoon, causing slight damage to both machines for which the drivers agreed to settle between themselves. A report was made to the police.

An invasion on the bullhead habitants of Exeter Pond which resulted in the removal of 185 members of the fish family from their native haunts for more suited repose in the frying pan, was made during the small hours of Saturday morning by Francis White, Abrahim Robarge, Eugene and Daniel Pompei of 399 Valley St. Sanchez, Frank Smith and Philip Sabot, local "Sweet Adeline" quintet and fishermen of note. In the aggregate the catch weighed over 150 pounds and established what is considered a record.

Notifications of suspended licenses received from the state motor vehicle department at the police headquarters state that the driver's licenses of the following Willimantic men have been suspended from August 15th: Joseph Ozzajca of R. F. D. No. 1, Arlington J. Locke of 498 Main street.

Gardiner Stewart Dodge and Miss Martha Elizabeth Arnst of Denver, Col., were married August 3rd at the latter's home, Mr. Dodge was a former resident of South Windham.

William J. Sweeney who underwent a major operation at St. Joseph's Hospital August 7th is making steady improvement.

The Girl Scouts of the Congregational parish returned Saturday after two weeks of camp life at Crystal Lake, Eastford. Miss Ruth Chappel was director of the camp. She was assisted by Miss Helen Barrows.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dion a party was held recently on their daughter Claire's seventh birthday. Present were: Bertha and Bernice Butcher, Adelaide and Eloise Connelly, Evangeline LaPalme, Reta Bacon, Doris Brindamour, Florence Spencer, Fidelis Dufresne, Odette Gagnon, Edward Popham, Jr., Albert Dion, Jr.

The second collision of automobiles at the corner of Main and Bridge streets here within two days, and the tenth this summer, occurred Sunday morning shortly after 9 o'clock, when cars owned and driven by John D. Donovan of Taftville and Alice B. Keon of 28 Babcock street, Hartford, came together. The accident was slight and the owners came to a mutual agreement for settlement of the damages. No action was taken by the police, to whom the affair was reported.

BOY OF 4 STRUCK BY TRAIN AT FRANKLIN STATION

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, August 17—Walter Szczepaniak, aged four, of Franklin miraculously escaped serious injury Saturday afternoon at Franklin Station, when he was struck by a train on the Central Vermont Railroad and the engine, tender and one coach passed over his body as he lay unconscious in the middle of the track. The boy is deaf and dumb and of course, did not hear the approaching locomotive as he wandered up the tracks. He escaped with a gash over the left eye and minor scratches about the body. The engineer brought the train to a stop within its own length and it was at first believed that the child had been killed, but to the amazement of all he regained his senses and appeared to be quite all right. He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, this city, on the 1:40 train and made such rapid improvement that he was discharged and returned to his home Sunday afternoon. It is believed that the front of the engine struck him so that he lay parallel to the rails and as his body was small the train passed over him without catching his clothing and dragging him.

RUSSIAN LINIMENT FAILS TO KILL BREAULT

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, Aug. 17—Despondent over family troubles which included a recent dispute with his wife, Amos Breault, 28, of 167 Chapman street went out into the yard, about 9.30 o'clock Saturday night and attempted suicide by draining the contents of an ounce bottle of liniment. The concoction was of Russian make and according to Breault he found the bottle in the house when he moved, in some time ago. The liniment was made up of 41 per cent. alcohol and the remainder ether and chloroform. Dr. Smith was called to attend the man and after pumping the poison from his stomach declared him out of danger. Breault, who is the father of two children, was placed under arrest by Chief of Police MacArthur for attempting suicde and he will be given a hearing in the police court this (Monday) morning. STONE ROW RAIDS SUNDAY YIELD HOMEMADE HOOCH

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, August 17—The quiet Sabbath business of two Stone Row kitchen barrooms and liquor distilling plants was disturbed, Sunday morning, shortly after nine o'clock, by the sudden appearance of County Investigator William E. Jackson, Chief of Police Allan MacArthur, Lieutenant Frank McLean and Motorcycle Officer Grant Bombria. The raiding crew entered the home of Andro Czescowski at 36 Stone Row and were just in time to prevent Mrs. Czescowski from throwing down the sink, a pint of colored moonshine, contained in a quart glass jar. The woman refused to hand over the liquor but she was finally dispossessed of it, after a long struggle, by Chief MacArthur and Lieutenant McLean. A dozen bottles of home made beer were found in the room and several drinking glasses and money which lay on the table were seized as evidence. A man was sitting in the kitchen for the apparent purpose of buying liquor. Czesowski was not at home, but word was left that both he and his spouse were to appear in the police court this (Monday) morning to answer to charges of keeping liquor with intent to sell.

The officers then dropped in at the home of Wallack Juras, 29 Stone Row, but the man had been tipped off to their approach and had dumped a wash boiler full of mash down the toilet. The top of the boiler had been sealed with a paste and was being used for distilling liquor. It had been sitting on the kitchen range, in which was a coal fire. The boiler and a coil were taken by the officers, also two quarts of white mule, said to be strong enough to knock an elephant cold. Juras was locked up at the police station to await a hearing in police court this (Monday) morning on a charge of manufacturing liquor with intent to sell.

CAMPERS ASSEMBLING FOR 65TH ANNUAL SESSION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic Camp Ground, Aug. 17.—The 65th annual session of Willimantic camp meeting opened today. Fine weather prevailed, and there is already a good number of cottages occupied by owners or others.

The district superintendent, Rev. W. H. Bath, of Norwich, and Mrs. Bath, are at the Elderage, corner of Haven and Norwich avenues for the season.

The first Sunday of the camp meeting is devoted to the work of the Woman's Foreign and the Woman's Home Missionary societies.

Inspiring services were held in the interests of these causes. Bishop W. F. Thirkield, who was on the program as speaker for the day, was unable to be present.

At 10 a. m., the services were under the direction of the campground auxiliary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society.

Prof. H. U. Leedy, of Youngstown, Ohio, leader of the choir last year, has charge of the music again this summer.

After several hymns from the Methodist Hymnal had been sung, Miss Ella Stanley, of Manchester, who presided, called upon Mrs. Albert Boardman, president of the Norwich district W. F. M. S., to read the Scriptures. The district superintendent offered prayer and gave the notices.

India of Today was the subject of the interesting speaker, Mrs. Charles Rowe Vickery, of Hartford, a returned missionary, who has labored in India and Mayiayaia. She gave descriptions of her experiences in India, including calls of lepers, visits to heathen temples, conversions of people of different castes, and the tour of the country by King George some years ago. Speaking of Ganhdi, the Hindu leader, she said he was trying to carry out the principles of Christ, without personally embracing Christianity.

At the Woman's Home Missionary society meeting, at 2 p. m., the tabernacle was well filled with people who listened to an interesting address by Mrs. Cora Downs Stevens, of Hartford.

Mrs. H. A. Gallup, Eastern Norwich District secretary of the W. H. M. S., presided. After the preliminary hymns sung under the leadership of Prof. Leedy, the president presented Mrs. Jerome Greer, who read the Scripture. Rev. F. C. Baker, of Pascoag, R. I., secretary of the Campmeeting association, prayed. Professor Leedy sang Christ For the World We Sing. Mrs. Stevens spoke of a number of problems the American people are facing, including the Continental Sunday, the ignorance of American ways on the part of immigrants, and the coming of negroes to the north. She then told of efforts being made to remedy these evils, especially among children.

At 4 o'clock a missionary meeting for the children was held in the tabernacle. Mrs. Frank W. Gray, of Rockville, opened the service, reading from the Bible and offering prayer. Mrs. Vickery and Mrs. Stevens both addressed the children.

In the evening a joint meeting of both societies was held addressed by both speakers. Mrs. Vickery, clad in white sari, the high-caste Hindu widow's garb, gave a monologue, impersonating Shantabai, child wife and widow; her daily life and experience in her Hindu home. It was a realistic picture of East Indian life.

According to custom, the evening preceding the first Sunday was given over to a wideawake Epworth League social, held in the tabernacle. About a hundred and fifty young people and others gathered, and enjoyed games under the leadership of Rev. Frank W. Gray, of Rockville, fourth vice president of the Norwich District league. A hymn opened the service, followed by prayer by Mr. Gray. Among the games played were fox and squirrels, three deep and The Mill. Later, Mr. Gray announced the program of sports for institute week.

"SHORTY" FACCINI, OF NEW LONDON, IS FOUND WITH CASES OF LIQUOR

New London, Aug. 17.—If Nastralis (Shorty) Faccini entertained an idea that he was going to get back the money he paid the state when convicted at the September term of the superior court a year ago and was fined $1000 for transporting alcohol without a permit, he has probably gotten rid of any such notion, for Saturday he was bound over to the superior court that comes in at Norwich on the first Tuesday next month, for the same offense he was penalized for last September. At that time he was also committed to jail for a stay of a year, but in June clemency was shown him and he was released three months before his term of imprisonment had expired, on his promise not to engage in the business at any time in the future. Shorty was apparently imposing on the leniency of Judge Allyn L. Brown, who sentenced him and who gave consent to his parole, for last Friday night, with his wife, he was found to be moving five cases of whiskey and was again arrested. Mrs. Faccini was not taken into custody, though she might have been so treated, for she was as guilty as was Shorty, in that she was in the car with him. Shorty's apprehension was a bit of misfortune for him. The rear lights on his Maxwell coupe were extinguished and that attracted the attention of Motorcycle Officer Babcock. The policeman approached to ascertain why the lights were not in use and then discovered that Shorty was in the car. He was meeting an old friend, and greeted him with the inquiry as to what he had in the cases in the rear of the car. Shorty was a good sport, and told the officer he had a couple of cases of liquor that was being carried to a point nearby. The officer investigated and found that Shorty was transporting five cases of real stuff, so he took him to the police station where Shorty furnished a bond for appearance in the court later in the day. He was there, represented by an attorney who demurred to a complaint charging the transportation of liquor unlawfully. The demurrer was overruled and Shorty was held for trial next month in the superior court. His bond was fixed at $7500. He could not furnish as surety for so large a sum so went to jail.

David Friedman of Hartford and Henry Schupack of New Britain were fined $10 each Saturday for speeding along Ocean avenue at 35 miles an hour and displaying disregard for other vehicles, as they passed interesting streets. The charge against the offenders was a violation of the rules of the road. Each acknowledged his guilt, Schupack saying he had come from New Britain and was in a hurry because he was tired and wanted to get to the shore for a rest. Friedman declared that he did not realize that he was traveling as fast as he was going.

Santo and Elvira Ferro have sold a house and lot on East street to Ercole Pezzolesi.

The police were summoned to the corner of Ocean avenue and Fowler court, last night when residents stated that there was a strong odor of gas issuing from a house and that the place was not occupied, the owners being absent from the city. Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman Clarence Martin's investigation revealed that the roof of the house had received a liquid treatment during the day and that it was the odor from the application to the shingles that was detected and not a gas odor.

Louis Montague, 216 Paquot avenue, who was operating a Dupont roadster in Waterford Friday night when it collided with a machine owned and driven by Waldo Miner of Pleasure Beach and New London, the latter car overturning and being badly wrecked, was before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton Saturday afternoon, charged with reckless driving. Montague was fined $25 and costs and paid.

The police court docket Monday morning will include two drunks, for late yesterday and again this forenoon two inebriates were found helplessly drunk about the street.

I., and Miss Dorothy Walsh, 17 Tilley street, patients at Home Memorial Associated hospital, were able to return to their respective homes Saturday.

Laborers were engaged throughout the entire day making repairs at the platform of the union station. The westbound rails were leveled and an entire new section of planking laid both inside and outside the rails.

The fire department was called out this afternoon for a trivial blaze, corner of Federal and Main streets, when the two-story structure owned by Jacob Solomon and occupied for commercial and residential purposes, was threatened. The fire was located on a veranda, and undoubtedly originated from a smoker dropping a butt from a window of the living apartments, the lighted cigar or cigarette falling between the crevices of the veranda and causing the dry timbers to be ignited. The blaze was quickly extinguished with chemicals.

The investigation by officials of the Connecticut company into the cause of the collision of a Post Hill and a State street bound car of the Cemetery line, corner of Broad and Hempstead streets, a week ago, has resulted in Motorman Floyd Flynn being discharged. It is contended that the motorman disregarded a signal set against his car entering the block, corner of Broad and Williams streets. The car continued past the signal and at the corner of Broad and Hempstead streets the trolley car that left the terminal at 6.45 o'clock came in sight. Before Flynn or Motorman Sherrett of the Post Hill bound car, could bring the cars to a stop a head-on crash occurred. Two passengers, Mrs. Anna M. Richardson and her stepdaughter, of Williams street were injured.

Deputy Sheriffs Manuel J. Martin and J. H. Tubbs and Constable Frederick Dimock of Waterford raided the residence of Joseph Worrell in Spithead, Waterford, late Saturday afternoon. The officers seized 32 cases of whiskey, the greater part of which was William Penn rye, the remainder being Scotch. Worrell was not arrested, but probably will be within a day or two. He was not at home when the officers reached the house, but was met approaching the house following the raiding force leaving the place. Worrell declared that the whiskey was brought to his house earlier in the week by a truck driver who asserted that his truck had become disabled and requested permission to store the whiskey there until he could get the truck repaired, when he would cart it away. The officers give but little credence to the story, it being their belief that Worrell was storing the whiskey for one of two places in Waterford that are alleged to be selling to patrons.

Thursday night a truck was observed to enter the Worrell premises and a tipster at once supplied the officers with the fact, together with the information that Worrell had been suspected of being a source of supply for the place where the liquor was sold. Armed with a search warrant, Sheriffs Martin and Tubbs and Constable Dimock went to the house and directly to the cellar, where the case goods were found beneath the stairs, covered with bagging.

Three youths, the oldest 13, were arrested this evening by Patrolman William Riordan charged with the destruction of a sign belonging to Morris Greenblatt, 101 Bentley avenue, Ocean Beach. The funeral of Mrs. Bridget Schensky, 35, wife of Louis Schensky, 25 Douglass street, was held Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at undertaking rooms at 62 Washington street. Because of the priests of the Polish church refusing to celebrate mass for the dead woman, a suicide, against all laws of the Catholic church, the services were conducted by Richard W. Mansfield, superintendent of the E. P. Learned Mission. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The state laboratory at Hartford, to which was sent a portion of the woman's stomach to permit an analysis being made whereby the nature of the poison that killed her could be ascertained, has not rendered a finding yet to Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman, but a report, it is believed, will be received within the next 24 hours.

JEWETT CITY

He was born in Plainville, Montgomery county, Penn., the son of Algernon and Lydia Hoover. Dr. Hoover studied in Scarling Medical college, Cleveland, Ohio, and in the University of New York, five years in all. Before coming to Voluntown he practiced in Greene and Washington, R. I. Some time during Friday night burglars entered the R. W. Dearnley store, corner of Main street and Slater avenue. An attempt was made to force every door on the street floor of the building, by means of a pinch bar applied to the jams and to the panels. Failing in this, the burglars made use of the potato chute and slid into the cellar. This is the third break at this store within a few months. Three weeks ago the midnight visitor got away with $50, which had been left in the cash register. Friday night the evidence was clear that money was the motive that prompted this third visit. The cash registers were all opened by pressing a key. In one case the robber showed such little regard for future cash balances that he rung up $5 to open the drawer. No money is left in the till and he didn't get a penny. No disturbance could be detected among the thousands of dollars worth of miscellaneous merchandise with which the store is stocked. Deputy Sheriff John T. Dolan figured that an hour or more of work had been done with the bar in the attempt to force the several doors.

Among the floral decorations at the Baptist church Sunday morning, the bouquets of zinnias and dahlias were respectively from the gardens of Mrs. Arthur Brown and Everett H. Hiscox. Among the zinnias was noted the beautiful "Picotee," while in the dahlia collection a flawless Madonna was to be seen.

Information has been received that there is not a little second story and basement work going on of late within the borough limits. Several homes have been entered within a week and valuables stolen.

The late John P. Gorman had a great fund of rare stories, both old and new, some of which held reference to fine jokes upon himself, while others were unusual experiences of his own. In telling these narratives his pleasure was equalled by the delight of his hearers. One day he was sitting in his drug store on Main street, when a little girl appeared, no taller than himself. "My mama wants" said she "one ounce of sweet spiritual matter." Everybody that was acquainted with "Johnnie Gorman" is well aware that it was an outstanding trait of his admirable character, to dispense spiritual matter, and that, too, of the very best sort, the kind that has often proven a sure and infallible panacea to many an aching heart, but by the ounce was a sticker for John. Being assured by his small customer that he had it "somewhere in a bottle," a strict search was made among the long rows of labelled vials, but with no success. Finally the little Miss went home, bearing the request to her mother, that the name of the article desired be written on a piece of paper. Returning shortly, she handed a note to John, which upon being opened, disclosed the information, "Sweet spirits of nitre." Forthwith the order was filled.

Rev. A. H. Clement occupied the Baptist pulpit Sunday morning on an emergency call, because of the indisposition of the pastor, Rev. Elmer E. Scates, who has an attack of grip.

About fifty gaily decorated automobiles went up over the state road Sunday morning. Reports that it was the annual outing of the Ponemah Wheel club, were confirmed by a placard on the rear end of the rear machine. A state copper accompanied the expedition. He wore a new uniform and a sweet smile, indicating that he, too, had visions of clam chowder. A band discoursed a lively jazzy tune, for the benefit of the church going boroughites.

Whatsever circle of the King's Daughters held its annual picnic at the home of Miss Alice A. Brown on Thursday. There were twenty-six present besides members of Pathfinders circle and several children. Several games were played. Mrs. G. H. Robert Scates won the boys' race and Alberta Scates the girls' race. The walking contest was won by Edward Hewlitt. BROADWAY THEATER

If we were asked to sum up in one sentence our impression of Ungarded Women, the Alan Crosland Paramount production that opened at the Palace theater last night for a three days' run, we would say that it glows with the divine spark of life! It has that intangible something that grips the heart and stirs the imagination because its appeal is to the fundamental emotions of mankind.

All the highlights of the dramatic story which Lucy Stone Terrill wrote and which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post under the title Face are emphasized in the screenplay.

Richard Dix, as the hero, imparts a naturalness and sincerity to his role that is bound to add thousands to the countless other thousands of his admirers; Bebe Daniels gives a vivid portrayal of the reckless widow and Mary Astor plays her part of the loyal fiancee with all the winsomeness of her appealing personality. Honorable mention must also be made of Walter McGrail, Frank Losee, Harry Mestayer and Joe King, each of whom gives a sterling performance.

Several short subjects made an altogether excellent program, Jack Dempsey's new Fight and Win picture No. 4. So This Is Paris, pleased greatly. A Kinogram news completed the program.

Lyceum Theater, New London

Ralph Locke, who will be seen here as Solomon Iakovitch in George Broadhurst's new comedy Izzy at the Lyceum theater, New London, on Friday and Saturday, August 22 and 23, has achieved his prominent position on the American stage by hard work and constant application to his art through a period of over three decades.

Way back in 1877 Mr. Locke was one of the dancing boys with Barlowe's minstrels, that famous organization which has given so many stars to our theater, and it was while with them that he learned how to "put over" his comedy.

For a few years he stuck to minstrelsy then decided to try for a legitimate engagement.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Allen W. Yates, bee inspector for the state of Connecticut, was in the town of Killingly last week examining the bees in the town for American and European foul brood. These are diseases closely related to each other and the dread of all bee-keepers. When a colony is found that contains foul brood it must be destroyed and the hive box burned in order to prevent its spread to other bees. Mr. Yates found that there were no cases of the disease in this vicinity and that all the hives were registered in compliance with the state law. After inspecting this town Mr. Yates went to Brooklyn and Hampton.

Five members of the Service Battery left Sunday for Camp Eustis, Va. with two of the machines attached to the Danielson command. The men, Antonio Poirier, Philip Keech, Arthur Williams, Philip Armington and Clinton Stevens took down a Ford touring car and a Dodge truck that will be needed while the battery is in the southern camp. The remainder of the company will leave Wednesday on the boat train.

Two houses are being built by Henry Myers on upper Mechanic street on land formerly owned by Charles James.

Men have been engaged the past two weeks in removing the gas machines in the station on Mechanics street that was abandoned, as far as making gas is concerned, when the new high pressure line from Putnam was completed. The machine that has been removed has been in use for many years and until a few years ago when another generator was installed, made all the gas burned in Danielson. Since the installation of the other machine the gas was made alternately in each. A boiler that formerly drove the engine that generated electricity has also been partly taken out. When the juice was made here it was necessary to have two boilers, one for gas making and the other for making electricity. When the company began to buy the power from another concern the engine was dismantled and sold and the boiler taken out of service. The building will still be used for a garage and storehouse. It has been the scene of a number of bad fires and many of the more timid of the townspeople would never come near the structure for fear that it would blow up. It never did, however.

Albert Derneson, of New York, was a recent Danielson visitor. A number of years ago Mr. Derneson was employed by a tree man of this town. He is now with one of the largest wholesale flower stores in the big town.

The Pineville, Ballouville and Attawaugan mills of the Attawaugan company, have been forced to suspend operations a number of times in the past few weeks because of an inadequate supply of water. The mills are run by water power obtained from the Assawaga river and the level of the lake that is its source has not been so low in a number of years. This lake, Quadic lake, is in the town of Putnam and is well known as a place for camping. Up to a short while ago the mills were running on half time, but now they are operating more. The Attawaugan plant will not be forced to close in the future on account of low water, as electric power lines are being run to that mill.

Ransom Liner is spending two weeks' vacation at Oak Bluffs, on Cape Cod.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Conklin and family are spending two weeks with relatives in New York and Pennsylvania. They are making the trip by automobile.

Camp Kingswood, at Putnam Elms, in Brooklyn, is open and a number of girls from big cities are there. The camp is for the purpose of giving young women who could not afford it otherwise two weeks' vacation gratis, that they might have plenty of rest from the noise and confusion in their home city.

Edward A. Sullivan spent Sunday on Cape Cod.

The thrill and stiff necks that formerly came when an airplane passed over the town are now becoming a thing of the past. The machines pass through, or rather above Danielson quite frequently now, and a busy person gives them only a glance, when formerly he dropped all work to watch the plane sail by overhead.

An announcement of interest to motorists throughout this territory was one that the new highway to Putnam is open to traffic. The road is still under construction and the pavement is still only half laid at the bridge in the town of Putnam. When this stretch of highway is completed, the road will be one continuous concrete drive reaching from a point near the Putnam telephone office to about a mile north of Attawaugan.

Miss Ruth Franklin, of Peter Bent Brigham hospital, Boston, is spending a few days at the home of her parents on lower Broad street.

Edmond Champagne, 63, is dead at his home, corner of Mechanic and Oak street. Mr. Champagne has been ill for a number of years. His wife and several children survive him. Mr. Champagne was born in Baltic and was for many years was a boss weaver in cotton mills.

The funeral of Mrs. Ida Frances Clark was held at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Dowe of Hawking street. Services were conducted by Rev. Albert P. Jepson, former rector of St. Alban's church. The bearers were Herbert Pepler, Edward Hatch, Carroll B. Allen and Fred Miller. Burial was in Whitins, Mass.

Lost or strayed, white Ayrshire cow. Leon A. Shippee, Green Hollow road. —adv.

Motorists were given letters Sunday by members of the state police that read as follows:

STATE POLICE DEPARTMENT
Hartford.

To All Motorists:

The state police department of Connecticut wishes at this time to thank the motorists who have responded to our appeal of May 3rd and 4th to assist in the elimination of accidents on our state highways.

In the month of July the state police have made 260 arrests for reckless driving. Many of these arrests have been made for "cutting in," the passing on hills or dangerous curves, etc.

Many drivers have been led to take chances because the car ahead was moving too slowly. The driver of a car who comes under the classification of a "concrete crawler or mouchier" creates a dangerous traffic condition. Each driver is under a responsibility to maintain a reasonable average speed which shall not be too slow.

Do not give the fellow behind reason for cutting around you. Keep up with the line of traffic. If you need to stop for any reason, pull your car entirely off the traveled portion of the highway.

This is not an invitation to drive at a reckless rate of speed. It is the purpose of this letter to point out another traffic hazard and to renew our request for your co-operation.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) ROBT. T. HURLEY.
Supt. Dept. State Police.

Saturday night about 8 o'clock, a Ford coupe owned by Milton Carlstrom, of New Haven, and operated by Frank Carlstrom of the same city, collided with a touring car owned and operated by Henry K. Washburn, of South Coventry, on the state highway between Brooklyn and Hampton. The Washburn car was at the extreme right side of the road, headed toward Hampton, when the coupe turned a corner and crashed into it. The accident was investigated by State Officer Gardner and he arrested Carlstrom on a charge of reckless driving. In a court session of which Frank H. Bedard was the presiding officer, the Elm City man entered a plea of not guilty. The accused was found guilty, however, and fined $25 and costs of $8.27. Carlstrom was unable to pay, so was taken to the Brooklyn jail. His car was badly smashed and attracted considerable attention as a wrecker from a garage towed it through Main street.

Through the interest and generosity of Putnam lodge of Elks, eighty children at the Windham County Temporary Home will attend Chautauqua this year. Each year the Elks do something for the children at the home, a picnic or outing of some kind. This year it was thought that a chance to attend the seven joyous days under the big top would please the little ones. It will mean more than the seven joyous days to them, for they are already enjoying the anticipation of the coming of the week's entertainment. It will probably be arranged for the girls to attend afternoons and the boys evenings. Eighty will be guests of the Elks during the full week. There are 122 children now in the home. The smaller children will be given a picnic of some sort for their share in the pleasure.

While the children have attended before, never have they had the full week's enjoyment. The entertainments have a lasting effect, for during the year the children sing the songs they learn and play the new games taught at Junior Chautauqua.

Mr. and Mrs. James O. Bibeault of Woodstock avenue were married in Putnam fifty years ago. They recently observed their golden wedding anniversary in a quiet way following a nuptial mass at St. Mary's church. After the ceremony the family motored to Moosup pond, where a reception was given by one of their sons, Leo Bibeault. Mr. and Mrs. Bibeault have ten children living: Mrs. Oscar Counter of Worcester, Adelard Bibeault of Marlboro, Mass., Leon Bibeault, Moosup, Mrs. Ovilla Laflamme, Worcester, Mrs. A. Tereoux, Woonsocket, Adelmar of Woonsocket, Mrs. Alphonse Cursbane, Central Village, Mrs. Henry Trudeau, Moosup, and Aldor Bibeault of Worcester.

They have lived in Putnam since their marriage and are a highly esteemed and respected couple of the north end of the city.

Traffic Officer Edward J. Quigley, a former Pomfret boy, for five years a member of the Boston police force, who was dismissed from the force about two weeks ago on a charge of conduct unbecoming an officer, has been reinstated.

The charge against the officer was brought by a prominent Back Bay society woman whose automobile Quigley tagged. Quigley was exonerated at the hearing that followed, but later was charged with untruthfulness in filing his report of the affair, and was dismissed. Claiming that this was not so and that he had been "framed," Quigley was given a public hearing.

In the report made Officer Quigley stated that he tagged the car because it was left unattended and in the way of fire apparatus which was passing. Investigation of the fire records disclosed that there had been no fire on the morning stated in the officer's report. Chief Taber stated, however, that on that morning he had driven his fire department automobile down Tremont street, blowing the horn and siren, and that the policeman had probably been honestly mistaken in his belief that the apparatus was coming. This testimony figured strongly in the case and influenced the decision of Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson to give the officer his position back.

At a meeting of captains of wards and the ticket committee of Chautauqua held at the home of Mrs. W. J. Bartlett it was reported that sales were equal to if not better than last year at this time. Bradford, chairman of the ticket committee, presided. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Bartlett during the evening.

Residents of Putnam and vicinity are grateful for the spontaneous way in which the Danielson banks and bankers have come forward, offering their services during the suspension of the First National bank. The Windham County National bank not only has a representative at the office of the Putnam Light and Power Co., but has installed a special telephone through the Putnam exchange—its number being 36. This bank is also offering assistance financially to all who are so unfortunate as to have their funds tied up by the closing of the Putnam bank.

PUTNAM PLEDGES $112,850 TOWARD A NEW BANK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Aug. 17.—A new national bank in Putnam seems assured. From the wreck of the institution that has served faithfully for over fifty years is to arise a new institution, owned and controlled by the banking community of which Putnam is a center. This was emphasized at the third mass meeting of citizens held in the Bradley theatre Saturday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock. Shortly after the meeting opened it was announced that $112,850 had been pledged. Before the meeting closed this had been added to by subscriptions of $4,500 from the assemblage, making the grand total up to Saturday afternoon $117,350. Only $32,650 more is needed, for as soon as a total of $150,000 is raised the charter will be forthcoming and the new bank organized.

The meeting was opened by the chairman of the citizens' committee, Judge M. H. Geissler, who for the benefit of those who have not attended other meetings outlined what had so far been done. Seated on the stage were State's Attorney Charles L. Searls, Alexander Gilman, president of the Putnam Chamber of Commerce, John B. Byrne, state bank examiner, Dr. G. T. Lamarche, Senator John Ash of Pomfret, E. C. Rogers and A. N. Vaughn.

Words of commendation for John J. Whitehead, Jr., were uttered. Both the chairman and Mr. Vaughn stated that he deserved the gratitude of the citizens for his efforts toward forming the new bank. In his unavoidable absence Mr. Vaughn announced that $112,850 had been subscribed up to the time the meeting was called.

The state bank examiner, John J. Byrne, a Putnam man, in his short address, said that Putnam was experiencing its hour of greatest crisis. While much could be said as to what brought it about, the meeting was not the place for that. He declared that Putnam is not going to be without commercial banking facilities long—that it could not be.

Mr. Byrne said there were two things to consider—the real investment the formation of a new bank offers and the opportunity to show one's loyalty to Putnam. The people should first consider it as a great investment opportunity and then an opportunity to show that Putnam may be down, but it is never out! He said that the present opportunity would come to the people but once in a lifetime.

Alexander Gilman, president of the Putnam Chamber of Commerce, made a short address in English which he followed by an address in French. Dr. G. T. Lamarche also addressed the gathering in French.

Subscriptions for shares were then called for. Several subscribed for one share, two for five shares each and there was one subscription for ten shares. The audience was not as large as at the two previous meetings on account of its being Saturday afternoon. Pledge cards were handed out before the meeting adjourned.

Last night about midnight a large touring car drew up at the lunch cart at the corner of Front and South Main streets and a young man asked to be directed to the home of G. Harold Gilpatric. The car bore the registration No. 51, that of Governor Charles A. Templeton, and the woman passenger was the governor's daughter, to whom the resignation of Gilpatric as state treasurer was turned over.

The largest number of people since the bank opened to give out statements of account and to transact business other than paying out money was present Saturday, up to noon time, when the bank closed for the week end.

At the hospital it is reported that Gilpatric is holding his own, but that his condition is still critical.

WESTERLY

"Ku Klux Klan has not a hate program," said Rev. Dr. Parmelee to a Bulletin reporter at the close of his hour and a quarter talk Saturday night, on the farm of Rudolph Saunders, off Woody Hill road, below Dunn's corners, Westerly. The speaker said that its object was fundamentally Christian, a building up of the Kingdom of God when it is completely organized. It is a movement for service, as contrasted with the operations of crooked politicians, bootleggers, rum-runners, libertines and white slave traffickers, the controlling motives of whose operations is selfishness. Love is the strongest factor which controls men's lives and actions. A love for the ideals for which our forefathers fought should be exemplified in the actions of the present generation. To best obtain the proper idea of the klan one should go where it is working and organized. For example Mr. Parmalee said the city of Akron, O., a cosmopolitan city, was completely transformed and its large foreign element brought to a realization of the benefits to be derived. The business of the movement can be realized when it is known that eight years ago its membership numbered 16 while now it has unknown millions.

Saturday evening's ceremonial of the Washington county klan, which was the second held in the ten-acre lot on the Saunders farm, the first being held there Saturday evening, July 12th, exceeded the first in attendants and number of automobiles parked around the roped off rectangular enclosure. Some three hundred were reported ready for the degrees.

Features were the same as those which characterized the last meeting encounted. Klansmen on horseback, platform speakers, lunch stand, fireworks, quartet singing, Klansmen in robes, soloist, a tableau and winding up with three blazing crosses. In addition to the signing of new members there was a table reserved for the signing up of women for the Kian, the first unit of which was started at Foster Center, R. I., some six or eight weeks ago. The women in charge of this registration stated that this was not the first occasion of the registration of women for the invisible empire in Washington county.

The trip was made in the big bus of the Shore Line Electric Railway company and in the play the volunteers ranked twelfth, with 173 feet 1 3-4 inches and the Narragansett No. 1 of Wickford, R. The special was nearly on the time of the northbound accommodation so the local boys passed through the gateway in the fence between the main line tracks. The reservation band enlivened the stay at the Westerly station with stirring marches. There will be accompanying courses in mapping, plotting and tactical work, together with daily drills in infantry regulations and calisthenics.

Dornan of New York a guest at the Plimpton hotel, assisted by A. M. Hammell of Worcester, Mass., rescued the drowning man and brought him ashore. Saturday afternoon, a two-masted schooner without flags or marked held an almost due north course standing in, from the direction of Montauk Point toward Watch Hill light. The schooner apparently a freighter, sat low in the water and on her deck appeared to be nearly one hundred people and as it passed Watch Hill reef it was seen that they were all clad in bathing suites. They were racing back and forth on deck and so great was their activity that the lookout at the Watch Hill coast guard station communicated with Capt. Amos E. Broadmeadow, who put out in the fast coast guard boat with crew of two men to intercept the schooner, as it turned through Watch Hill passage and headed westerly. The skipper was determined that there would be no smuggling going on right under his nose. Approaching the boat, those on board went through motions as if drinking from bottles. Capt. Broadmeadow circled the bow and as he passed under the stern found the craft to be a schooner hailing from New Haven with a pleasure party of men, women and children, who were taking a week end sail through Long Island sound and returning to the Elm City.

ENDANGERING THE PUBLIC.

The registrar of motor vehicles in Massachusetts has sent letters to the chiefs of police of his state asking for their cooperation in reducing the number of unlicensed drivers of automobiles. What cooperation he will get remains to be seen. It was not so long ago that he sought to cooperate with the courts in an effort to bring about greater respect for the automobile laws. He simply asked the courts to do their duty, to give proper consideration to the public and to replace an easy going method of dealing with violators with jail sentences. In too many instances and in cases where his appeal was fully justified, resentment was the response he got.

It is to be hoped that a fearless official will get different treatment from the chief of police, for when he tells them that there are probably 18,000 operating autos in Massachusetts without licenses he reveals a condition which should be overcome as quickly as possible. It can be readily appreciated that he is right when he says that these individuals are of the lawless element and that "they are either persons who have not been able to get their licenses because they are unfit or have had their licenses revoked and are naturally lawless and irresponsible."

When there is such an element showing its defiance of the law it is time for every effort to be made to have them understand that the law means something and they are not above the law. Such a large number indicates conditions which need correcting and Massachusetts is fortunate in having a registrar of motor vehicles who is unafraid in the discharge of his duty, and who, in fact, is willing to enlist the aid of the law enforcers in giving that protection to the public to which it is entitled.

The condition is one which should concern many more than the registrar of motor vehicles. Inasmuch as he has the means of obtaining unusual information in this direction nothing further should be required than the statement which he has made to bring about a correction of the condition.

THE CHANGING TROLLEY CARS.

Fighting the one-man electric car is common. There was opposition to it the moment it was brought out. That opposition has continued and it can be expected to be displayed as long as there is a chance to show it, but regardless of the efforts to prevent the use of such cars they are increasing and, if we are to judge by the conditions which are being experienced by the trolley companies, they must continue to increase.

From Worcester comes the announcement that nothing but one man cars are to be run in that city. That doesn't mean that the large cars of that city are to be replaced by the small type of one man cars, but it means that the trolley company in Worcester has got to the point where it must adopt the expense saving plan of using one man cars and it will begin at once the conversion of its cars which are now being operated by two men into one man cars with the proper equipment for opening and closing the doors and for safety.

It was not many weeks ago that the Springfield lines declared that one man cars must be placed on certain runs in order to provide proper service and do so without piling up a deficit. The trolley roads are finding it necessary to trim their expenses wherever it is possible. The time has not come when they can be dispensed with, but the number using them is gradually being whittled down through the motor vehicle competition. Not only has the number of autos owners greatly increased, but they are carrying their friends and travel on most any highway and there is a steady string of those who are begging a ride to their destination.

It is characteristic of trolley lines that they are in a struggling situation. A glance at the roadbed tells the story. Where large expenditures were once being made little or nothing is now being spent. The revenue doesn't permit it, and in addition to that curtailment which is reflected in the service it is necessary to reduce other expense. The one man cars are not being adopted by the companies through choice but by force of circumstances. There will be more of them before there are less.

INCREASING RUM ROW.

Since the days when rum running was recognized as a chance to make money rapidly, though illegally, there have been all kinds of stories as to how extensively such operations were being carried on. Something more substantial in the way of facts has been revealed through the seizures that have been made. Rum row has not been all fiction by any means. There has been too much evidence of its existence to doubt its reality.

Now comes a new tale. To add to the stories about the vessels being equipped with plants where they manufactured the goods below decks of the ships that made up rum row and affixed any label that would suit the purchaser, there is one concerning a large 17,000-ton vessel said to be hovering beyond the territorial and treaty limits on which there is an orchestra, elaborately fitted up bars and lounging rooms and provisions for entertaining the visitors over night if they desire it. It is referred to as the mystery ship because it carries no name though the bed linen marks prompt the inference that it is a former German liner. That there is no secret about its existence is indicated by the claim that it has about 50 patrons a day with more on Sunday. From all accounts it is a palatial and floating barroom where anything can be obtained.

It adds another problem to the enforcement difficulties of this country. It may be claimed that inasmuch as it is far beyond the twelve-mile limit it does not interfere with the laws of this country, that there is no difference in going aboard that for a drink than going to Canada or Cuba, and yet it is evident that it is a studied effort to upset and break down the laws of this country. Such at least seems likely to be the view of this government. How Washington will deal with the ship and endeavor to eliminate it before it grows to a fleet will develop in time. That it will not be restricted to the enforcement authorities, if all the tales about the ship are substantiated, is probable, but its elimination will require some time if it disappears no faster than rum row.

FIGHTING FOG.

When Commissioner Putnam of the lighthouse service lays stress upon the importance of the radio compass in overcoming the handicap of fog he points out that radio signals are being sent out from eleven lighthouses and lightships in this country for the guidance of vessels. He likewise shows where vessels have been brought safely to their destination through that aid alone and it is not surprising that he waxes enthusiastic over the protection that is already provided and the possibilities which radio holds out for overcoming the uncertainty of navigation through fog.

Devices of various kinds have been provided from time to time, and all have been of much value in overcoming the fog blankets which are all too frequently encountered. There are the submarine bells, the whistles and the fog horns which have a friend in need to many a puzzled mariner. There are the bell buoys and the whistling buoys which have rendered invaluable service in picking out the entrances to harbors or which have warned against rocks and shoals. They are not going to be relegated to the shelves of forgotten things right away. With the sending out of radio bearings, it becomes necessary for all ships to be equipped with radio compasses in order to be in a position to receive the aid that is offered. It is no more of a precaution than should be provided in order to insure the safety of the human cargo. When ships can find their direction through fog there will be overcome one of the great terrors of navigation. If radio is destined to do it, it will be only another of the great accomplishments of science, and in the march of progress it is not too much to anticipate that such a goal will be gained. No one cares how it is done so long as it can be accomplished.

DESERVED RECOGNITION.

Too numerous are the instances where those in positions of trust are referred to as being accomplices of those who carry out well planned robberies. There is no chance for any such reference to be made in the case of Eugene L. Stack, a postal clerk at East Orange, N. J., who not only defended the mail bags that he was carrying from the station to the post office but shot and killed one of those who opened fire upon him in an attempt to get possession of the sacks and put the other to rout. This was not done without placing himself in a perilous position, for he was shot three times and virtually risked his life in protecting the property of Uncle Sam.

It was a devotion to duty and the rendition of heroic service that justified the calling of Stack to Washington and notifying him that a citation for his bravery would be placed to his credit and at the same time presenting him a check for $2,000. That he can make use of the money is unquestioned, that the citation bids fair to be of even greater benefit to him as time goes on seems apparent, while it cannot go unnoticed that it is the purpose of the department to see that proper attention is given to acts which are highly meritorious and call for special recognition.

Had Stack yielded up the mail sacks under attack he would have done no more than others have. He was at a disadvantage and yet his defense was magnificent. He had the courage and the aim and was not frightened by the fact that he was facing gunmen. It was not a case where claims of connivance would have been justified, but from the start to the finish Stack took good care to see that there was no chance for any such charge.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

As much as we need them there are few days when everyone would be satisfied to have it rain.

Now they say that Governor Bryan is going to back defense day. "While the lamp holds out to burn," etc.

While all the talk is about the Dawes plan, the $50,000 peace plan seems to have dropped out of sight.

The Loab-Leopold trial will cost $300,000, which is a terrible price to pay for the duty of using a piece of rope.

The man on the corner says: Some people commit murder without stopping to figure out the expense of alienists.

As soon as a few details are settled in the London conference Europe will begin to smoke the Dawes pipe of peace.

Governor Baxter predicts that there will be no more corruption in Maine elections. Jail terms for a few ballot-box stuffers would help to carry out the governor's prediction.

When a young man says he earnestly desires capital punishment for the sake of the thrill, there may be lurking in his subconscious mind a hope that the authorities will try to disappoint him, just for ——

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Utilize the short ends of paraffin candles by whittling over a floor that is to be waxed.

Boil pots and pans in lye once in a while and you will find that they have a freshness and newness that is pleasing.

When the glass stopper of a perfume bottle sticks, pour a little glycerin about the neck for a while, after which it may be easily removed.

If you keep an alarm clock in the kitchen and set it at the time your bread, roast or vegetables will need your attention you can then dismiss it from your mind.

Rusty steel ornaments, fire irons and the like may be cleaned by being rubbed well with sweet oil, enough of the oil being allowed to remain on the article to soak in for some time.

When using a baking dish or casserole, first butter the inside as you would a cake pan. It will add a bit to the flavor of the contents and cause them to be removed from the dish when serving.

A BEAUTY TIP

If your hands are sore and rough from housecleaning, try this method of making them soft and white. Wash hands in very hot water before retiring. Make a soapy lather from pure white soap and rub this lather into the hands along with a few drops of glycerine. Let the lather dry on the hands and in the morning wash off.

MATCH PINS

Matching sets of collar and cuff pins are very practical, since the vogue for separate collars and cuffs requires something of this sort.

MOSAIC EARRINGS

Earrings formed of mosaic of very small bits of glass are very novel and pendants of the same formation are equally so.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Snap the clasps together before putting the garment through the wringer. This will avert crushing and breaking.

After using a bowl of starch do not throw away what is left. Put the basin on one side and when the starch has dropped to the bottom pour off the water. Place the basin in the oven for five minutes. The starch will be found in hard cakes and can be put away ready for use another day.

Care should be taken when washing colored stockings to prevent the dye from running. First of all prepare a lather of good soap and warm, soft water. Add a pinch of salt to the water, and after washing and rinsing wring as dry as possible and hang out to dry.

ICED TEA VARIATIONS

Serve with slices of lemon, orange, pineapple, strawberry or other acid fruits.

Serve with cloves or cinnamon.

Infuse with a tiny piece of vanilla bean in the pot.

Add a few gratings of nutmeg.

Serve with chopped mint or grated cucumber.

Add one-quarter the quantity of rhubarb juice.

BREAD FOR SANDWICHES

The bread you use for sandwiches should be at least 24 hours old so that it will cut into as thin slices as you desire.

LASTS LONGER

Lettuce wrapped in waxed paper and then in a damp cloth will last for a long time and will be fresh when you take it out at picnics.

PRESERVES BINDINGS

Leather book binding can be freshened by the application of equal parts of milk and white of egg beaten together. Apply on soft flannel and polish with an old silk handkerchief.

SPINACH AND EGGS

It is not only because of the color effect that hard-boiled eggs are used to garnish spinach, but they also supply the protein necessary to make the combination a complete food.

AN EVEN HEM

When putting in wide hems by hand, run the material through the unthreaded sewing machine, with the gauge set for the desired width. The hem can then be creased on the line of needle marks and prove perfectly straight.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Red and black are cleverly combined at present in many new costumes. Dull red frocks have red georgette footings.

Hat crowns soar higher and higher. The only hat which lacks a high crown today is the small beretta type and even this has a notably high upturned brim.

Among the green tints which are enormously popular today is Epinard. This is much like the spinach shade, which its name implies. Almond green this season is less pale and cold than formerly.

The gowns one sees these evenings at smart London restaurants simply blaze with real jewels. These are generally arranged in patterns on the corsage.

For evening wear, a few women today are using the veritable Spanish comb high and wide—over which they drape the graceful Spanish mantilla. Even when the actual mantilla is not employed, this motif bids fair to dominate the evening headdress.

Though the beltless frock of today as translated into American styles is straight and slim as a wand, yet it has its mitigations. These come in clever plaiting at the sides, or in a swirl of ruffles.

NEW KIND OF LEATHER

While the vogue for alligator and snake skin—often brilliantly dyed—is at its height here come silver and gold leathers. The latter are reported to be chiefly for facings.

LINEN EASILY DARNED

Table linen and house linen can be easily darned with a sewing machine. The presser foot should be removed, and, with needle and shuttle duly threaded, the fabric can be moved backward and forward while the machine works row by row of stitching closely set. When the hole and surrounding thin fabric are covered in one direction the article should be turned half way around so that a similar set of rows of stitching may cross the first at right angles.

ABOUT WOMEN

The Housewives' League of Dallas, Tex., has taken steps toward establishing a large ice plant on its own account.

Hilda Hewlett, wife of Maurice Hewlett, the English novelist, was the first woman in England to take out an aviation certificate.

Mrs. Anna Welhart of Cincinnati, Ohio, mother of five children, recently won a silver sewing cup in a spelling contest in her home city.

The Women's Prison at Auburn, N. Y., has inaugurated a course in home hygiene and care of the sick. Already 15 of the women prisoners have enrolled as students.

The Icelandic Parliament has passed a law prohibiting the importation of hair pins, face powder, rouge and lipstick.

As jailer in Corsicana, Tex., Mrs. Thomas Smith is one of the few women in the United States to fill such a position.

Though she is just past 19 years of age, Miss Dorothy Secord of Niagara Falls is director of an orchestra playing in one of the prominent hotels in that place.

TO REMOVE PAINT STAINS

Paint stains that are dry and old may be removed from cotton or woolen goods with chloroform, first covering the spot with olive oil or butter.

MARK NEWER BAGS

The newer bead bags today seem to be in softer and often darker shades. One of them, in the navy and dark green with a dash of dark red, is just the thing to carry with a navy crepe de chine costume that has a touch of embroidery in these colors.

DOTTEL SWISS IS CHIC

Plain dotted Swiss muslin of the old-fashioned kind is chic this season for anything from frocks to hats and underwear. To distinguish it from the Swiss of other years, this season's muslin is likely to be white, with colored dots.

PEANUT BUTTER SANDWICHES

Fine close grained bread a day old will cut in thinner, neater slices; a good sized square loaf is preferable, that slices may be shaped with less waste. White, brown, rye, graham, whole wheat or raisin bread may be used in making peanut butter sandwiches; sometimes to give variety two kinds may be used together.

All sandwiches should be spread with sweet, fresh butter before filling. This not only gives palatability but prevents the filling sinking into the bread. The butter should be thoroughly creamed before using to make it spread evenly, and should be spread to the very edge of each slice on the sides to be put together. Spread the filling on the buttered surface of one slice only, proportioning it to the thickness of the slices of bread. Have the filling come well to the edge.

Peanut butter blends particularly well with various dried or preserved fruits in making sandwiches which are nutritious as well as appetising. When making peanut butter sandwiches in quantity it is advisable to cream the peanut butter with a little dairy butter, in proportion of one tablespoon of the latter to one medium jar of peanut butter.

RECIPES

Banana-Cheese Salad: Peel some bananas and cut in pieces about two inches long. Stand these in the centers of individual salad dishes. Around these place a layer of cubed bananas. Over this place a layer of grated pineapple and sprinkle with grated cheese. A little sugar may be added to the bananas and pineapple if liked.

Baked Apples: This makes an unusual dessert. Peel apples and scoop out the cores, then cook till tender in a sirup strongly flavored with vanilla. Drain and fill the hollows left by removing the cores with powdered macaroons.

Fried Summer Squash: Select firm, fresh squash. Wash carefully, removing bad places, and cut into slices half an inch thick. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Dip in fine cracker crumbs, beaten yolks of eggs, and crumbs again. Fry in hot fat, until golden brown on both sides, and drain on crumpled paper.

Root Always Had Work to Do

Elihu Root, always had work to do. It usually was mental effort, but it was work, and it had to be done.

Son of a professor at Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., he attended public schools and at 15 entered Hamilton. He was too busy for college pranks and when his mates in his junior year rebelled against the authority of the faculty, he refused to oppose his father. Furthermore he could not spare the time from his studies. He won the prize in mathematics and was valedictorian.

Complying with his father's wishes, he became principal of an academy at Rome, N. Y., but abandoned teaching within a year and at 20 decided to be a lawyer. After earnest application for two years at the University Law School of the City of New York, he was admitted to the bar.

Opening an office in New York, he attended diligently to his practice, and at 30 was a leading member of the bar. President Arthur appointed him United States District Attorney for the Southern District of New York and he proved a vigorous prosecutor. After two years service he returned to private practice.

At the close of the Spanish-American war, President McKinley appointed him Secretary of War. Conditions in the War Department were chaotic, and Root was called "a mere theorist who has never smelled gunpowder," but he restored order, and prepared plans to reorganize the army. Congress killed them. He presented them at the next session, they were adopted and congress approved his programme to return Cuba to the Cubans and to establish a government in the Philippines.

A year after his resignation, he was appointed Secretary of War in President Roosevelt's cabinet. In three and one-half years he negotiated 75 treaties with foreign governments, resigned and within a month was elected United States senator.

Since leaving the senate he has served on commission and committees in many international matters. He was awarded the Nobel Prize for his efforts in behalf of peace. he has been honored by many countries and, at 79, still is actively interested in universal questions.

Tomorrow—Achesen's Reverses Came Fast.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Few pople in America are aware of the fact that the title of Duke of Tetuan, borne by the new Spanish Minister for War, conceals the Irish patronymic of O'Donnell. The first to hold the title was an Irish officer named Leopold O'Donnell, who rose to fame and fortune in Spain during the reign of the late Queen Isabella. He likewise had devoted himself to the service of her mother, Queen Christina, when the latter was exiled in 1840, and, on being permitted to return, was governor of Cuba for a time. Before his death he achieved the rank of prime minister and of captain-general, receiving his title of Duke of Tetuan as a reward for his successful campaign against the Moors in Morocco. The present holder of the title, although in appearance a typical Castilian nobleman, of stately presence, fine face and dignified manners, is more the less proud of his Irish ancestry. He keeps up his Irish interests and two years ago was president of the Irish Race Convention.

POETRY FOR WIDE AWAKES
THE ARROW AND THE SONG

I shot an arrow into the air;
It fell to earth, I knew not where:
For, so swiftly it flew, the sight
Could not follow it in its flight.

I breathed a song into the air,
It fell to earth, I knew not where:
For who has sight so keen and strong
That it can follow the flight of song?

Long, long, afterward, in an oak
I found the arrow, still unbroken:
I found again in the heart of a friend,
And the song, from beginning to end
—By Henry Wadsworth Longfellow

FOUR-LEAF CLOVER

I know a place where the sun is like gold,
And the cherry blossoms burst with snow,
And down underneath is the loveliest nook,
Where the four-leaf clovers grow.

One leaf is for hope, and one is for faith,
And one is for love you know,
And God put another in for luck—
If you search, you will find where they grow.

But you must have hope, and you must have faith,
If you work, if you wait, you will find the place
Where the four-leaf clovers grow.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Probably every Wide Awake is interested in animals, especially the great big fellow called the elephant. This mammoth beast always interests young folks and old folks as well and perhaps you would like to learn something about them.

Of elephants, two distinct species are found in different continents, the one inhabiting Asia, the other residing in Africa. These two types can readily be distinguished. In the Asiatic animal the head is elongated, the forehead concave and the ears are ordinary size, while in the African elephant, the head is much shorter, the forehead convex and the ears of enormous size. Elephants shed their molar teeth six or seven times during their life. The Indian elephant only the males are furnished with tusks and not all males have them. The African elephants of both sexes have tusks. The size of elephants has been greatly exaggerated, some writers claiming them to be 14 to 16 feet in height, some even 20 feet in height. This is caused by the enormous bulk of the beast which makes the height appear greater than is the case.

In general color the elephant is brown, of a light tint when the animal is at large, but much darker when its hide is subjected to rubbing with a cocoanut brush and plenty of oil. The ivory of the elephant is extremely valuable and vast quantities are imported into this country annually. A pair of tusks weigh about 150 pounds.

The foot of the male elephant is easily distinguished by the roundness of form, while that of the female is more oval, and the height of these animals is ascertained by measurements of the footprints, twice the circumference of the foot being equal to the height at the shoulder.

It is a well known fact that these animals live to a great age, several in this country being over 100 years old. Modoc, a famous trained elephant with a circus which recently played in Norwich is 78 years of age and it is claimed that he is the largest elephant now in this country. This circus also carried with it, a young elephant named Pinto, whose age is 18 years.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES
THE PEACH DARLING

Dear Uncle Jed: I am sending you a story and the name of it is The Peach Darling.

Long ago there lived in Japan a man and his wife. They were very poor. They were very happy too. The woman cooked the rice and made the tea. She made the clothing too, and swept the floor with a brush made of hawk's feathers. The man worked in the fields and gathered firewood in the forest. But at last they grew to be very old. The old man could not work all day. The old woman grew tired as she swept the floor. "Oh," they said, "if we only had a child! He would care for us. He would not let us work now that we are old. One day the woman went down to the brook to wash the clothes. The little brook ran swiftly along. It laughed and danced in the sunlight. The woman soaked the clothes in the water, and rubbed them on the large, flat stones. All at once she saw something floating on the water. Nearer and nearer it came. Then she saw that it was a big, round peach. "Ah," she thought, "how good that peach would taste! I must get it." So she reached out over the water, and just as the peach floated by she caught it. How nice it looked! It was covered with soft down, and one side was a beautiful red. The old woman broke it open. There in the center, where the stone is, lay a baby. He was a very tiny baby. The old woman cried, "Dear me, what shall I do with such a tiny thing! But she took him home and showed him to her husband. Then she made him some little clothes and fed him on rice water. Because he came in a peach, they called him Peach Darling. The old man and woman were glad they found Peach Darling, even though he was so small and after a while he grew to be a fine strong man. Then the old man and woman rested all day, for they had a son to care for them. And after he was grown he did so many great deeds that the people called him Prince Peach.

MY TRIP TO WESTERLY

Dear Uncle Jed: Suppose I tell my Wide Awake friends about my trip to Westerly, R. I.

Westerly is located south of Norwich, being about seventeen miles distant. The streets are very wide there and each house has a very large yard which is very healthy for children.

Finding your way to Elm street, the principal street in the city, you will notice a great many rich houses, one of which cost half a million dollars.

In the center of this city is a beautiful garden called Wilcox Park, where they have music every Thursday evening. Beside the park is the high school built in 1902. The depot is grand.

Westerly is proud of its beaches. Watch Hill and Atlantic Beach. Near Providence is Narragansett Pier and its beach.

As this city is very pleasing to all as inhabitants and visitors, I hope that all of my Wide Awake friends may see it some day.

A PROFITABLE VACATION

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought that the Wide Awakes would like to hear about how I am spending my vacation time.

I go berrying every day now, and as my mother has enough berries my brother and sisters and I are selling them.

We start quite early in the morning for the decided place. We often go to Bailey's Field where many pickers go. We get between 7 and 8 1-2 quarts a day. We are much interested in this profitable occupation and we are saving our profits.

THE POOR WIDOWER

Dear Uncle Jed and the Wide Awakes: My story is as follows:

Once there was a poor widower, who had five children. Only one of them went to school. This one was a girl. The other four were boys. The widower and his five children lived in a little old house, on an old and dirty street. The widower went out every day to work. One of the little boys whose name was Teddy went upstairs while the widower, his father, was out working.

He found some jars of jelly up there. Teddy was a greedy boy so he ate it all. It wasn't very good in taste. A few hours passed and then Teddy, the greedy one, felt sick.

When the widower came home he asked him what he had eaten that made him feel sick. Teddy didn't want to tell that he had eaten the jelly and his father made him tell, after whipping him and telling him, he would have some kind of medicine that is given to the sick. With a moan he told him what he had eaten. After that he wasn't greedy in eating, jelly or other good things.

UNVEILING A MEMORIAL

Dear Uncle Jed: On Sunday July 13th, I went to the park in Westerly where I witnessed the unveiling of the statue in memory of the veterans of the Spanish American war.

In the morning the weather looked threatening, but about noon time the skies cleared and the afternoon program was carried out successfully.

Miss Brucker was the one who unveiled the statue of bronze and Tenting Tonight was softly played by the Westerly band.

The number of spectators was about three thousand people.

Later on in the afternoon a speech was made which was about The Spanish American War.

We returned later to the automobile and were soon home.

HANDSOME IS AS HANDSOME DOES

Dear Uncle Jed: Here is a true story and it is my favorite moral.

There was a rich lady whose daughter was very proud of her white hands. In the same town a widow had a daughter who had very ugly hands, yet they were considered beautiful by many.

Little Alice, the wealthy girl, did not see how they could be beautiful as they were red, and hard. Her mother said, "Mary helps her invalid mother, takes care of her sisters and brothers, scrubs the floor, sweeps, dusts, and then works all day in the factory, comes back home at night to cook the meal and helps her sisters in their school work. Her hands are real lovely. In other words, Handsome is as handsome does.

SWIMMING

Dear Uncle Jed: In our village there aren't many rivers, so Beach Pond is our favorite swimming place.

Every summer we go down to Beach Pond to spend two weeks. In the morning before breakfast we usually go swimming then we return to the cottage for breakfast. After we have satisfied our appetite, we start out to catch fish for dinner.

When we had caught a string of fish we went home, cleaned them and fried them. We could not go in swimming after our hearty dinner for a whole hour. Time had passed we went swimming. One boy went to far out and he nearly drowned. He was tired and couldn't come back to shore. He called for help. Boy scouts nearby didn't wait for any command from the captain. They jumped in with their uniforms and saved him. A boy took off his coat and laid him upon his stomach and pushed him between the shoulder blades and counted five as they pushed.

We watched them for some time. Finally the boy opened his eyes. He felt better so they took him home in an auto. Our last day at Beach Pond we had a party for the boy scouts. That afternoon we packed up and started for home.

SNOWBALL

Dear Uncle Jed: Yesterday during the shower I did not know what to do so I thought of writing a story that I composed, entitled, Snowball.

Snowball was the dearest little white kitten, and Grace loved her dearly. One night, Snowball did not come home for her supper. Grace ran out to the barn to look for her. She could not find her little white kitten.

Soon she heard a kitten crying over in a corner of the barn where a pile of old stove pipes had been stored.

Grace called, "Kitty, kitty!" and a little black kitten came running to meet her. At first Grace thought it was a little stranger, but when she saw the ribbon around the kitty's neck, she laughed.

"Oh, kitty, you've been playing in those old stove pipes. I can't call you Snowball tonight. I shall have to call you Sooty."

The Man With the Torch

Now as soon as the little old man had blown upon his great long whistle, as I mentioned in the last story, another little old man popped out of the woods with a lighted torch.

"I'll put you in my sack," cried the little man with the big bag.

"Begone!" cried the little man with the ax, "or I'll cut off your ears."

"Don't come a step nearer or I'll deafen you with the noise of my whistle," said the third little man. "I'll burn you up if you come near me," shouted the little man with the torch.

"I don't want anything from you," answered the little bunny boy. "But I would like to see what you are going to do."

The four little men whispered together for a few minutes, then, glancing over his shoulder, the little torch man replied:

"If you'll promise not to tell what you see, you shall come with us."

With a solemn promise, the bunny boy followed the little old men into a deep passage that led into the side of the mountain. And if it hadn't been for the lighted torch I guess they never could have found their way, for it was. Oh, so dark and gloomy.

Well, after maybe half a mile or maybe more, they came to a great door.

"Thunderation!" exclaimed the little man with the bag, turning it upside down. "I can't find the key!"

"You have lost it, you clown," cried the little torch-man angrily.

"Maybe I have a key that will fit," suggested the bunny boy, taking from his pocket a golden key but where he got it, I'll never tell you. But we don't care, for, would you believe it that key fitted the lock perfectly.

No sooner had they all entered than the door closed all by itself and the bunny boy found himself in the palace of the Little King of the Mountains, for there sat a little gnome on a throne with a crown upon his head, set with sparkling diamonds and precious stones.

"What ho, my trusty men!" cried the King. "Whom have you brought with you?" looking curiously, but not unkindly at brave little Jack Rabbit. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

HELPS ABOUT THE FARM

Dear Uncle Jed: I have decided to write another story of the farm.

I am on my uncle's farm having great time with Rover for he jumps with me in the hay. Five little kittens were born yesterday and we found them in the hay. I go horseback riding all over the field on Prince. At night I run over to the chicken coop and pick up the eggs then I milk the cows and then I have my supper and at 7 o'clock we go to bed.

MY PET DOG

Dear Uncle Jed: My pet dog's name is Brownie. We all like him very much. Brownie is an Airedale. When we first got him my little four year old brother put the cat and the dog in a shoe box. We all think it very cunning now that he is so big.

When he hears a noise in the night he will wake up and bark.

He is a very good watch dog and we would not like to lose him. I hope other children have dogs like him.

Stories That Recall Others

ONE THING AT A TIME

Marabel went to see her first circus. She experienced all the joys of circuses, lingered wide-eyed at the wild animal cages, ate peanuts and crackerjack to the monkeys and elephants and when she entered the big circus tent with its roll of drums, flare-flare and tom-tom, swift motion and dazzling costumes, her big, brown eyes opened wider and wider, but she never said a word, did not bombard her parents with questions as is usual. Nothing escaped her and when anything transpired outside her range of vision she did not hesitate to rise to her feet to see what was happening. On the return trip when conversation between the party in the automobile flew thick and fast, Marabel kept silent. Finally her father could stand it no longer and said:

Well, Marabel, what did you think of the circus?

"I was so busy," answered Marabel, "seeing things all the time I was there I didn't have time to think. I'm doing the thinking now, daddy."

IN THE WRONG PLACE

Two well-known actors were playing golf and every stroke proclaimed that they were novices at the game. Several fair-sized pieces of turf had been sent skyward and when one unusually large piece departed from its native soil one of the accompanying caddies turned to the other and whispered:

Did yer tell me they were actors, Bill?

"Yes," answered the other.

"Well," was the reply, "all I can say is, they ought to be scene shifters."

TWO ARMY PLANES FORCED TO LAND

Two army planes, A. S. 23-542 and A. S. 23-544 bound from Boston to Mineola, were forced to land on the Lucas lot at East Great Plain shortly after noon Sunday when the supply of gas began to run low and it was feared that the reserve supply would not carry them to their destination.

The planes were in charge of Captain Louis E. Bontwell of the 26 Div. Air Service and for some time they flew over the West Side section of the city while the pilots were looking for a good landing place. The wind was strong for the Fairgrounds so the planes swung back toward town then came in through Thamesville and landed on the Lucas lot. In landing one of the planes lost a tire, caused by turning too sharply on the soft soil.

For some time a search was made for high test gasoline but latter in the afternoon through Harry Rosenberg Richard Hourigan, proprietor of Dick's Service Station on North Main street learned of the plight of the flyers and he soon had 60 gallons aboard them, enough to carry them 200 miles further.

In speaking of the gasoline shortage, Capt. Bontwell said that there was a high wind in the upper roads and it was feared that trouble in making headway would use up the reserve supply before a landing could be made.

NORWICH MAN RE-ELECTED COUNTY COMMANDER OF AMERICAN LEGION

Legionaires from over 50 posts in Connecticut and several from out of the state attended the New London County Legion meeting held at the State Armory in New London at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon previous to the Voiture promenade.

The meeting was called to order by District Commander William A. Anderson of Norwich, the roll call showing nearly 100 present. District Adjutant Harry W. House of Norwich read the reports and Commander Anderson stated that since the Legionaires had visited Taftville, Friday evening, the committee of 10 Taftville men had secured 25 or more names and that a post would be formed in Taftville on Wednesday evening, August 20th, the meeting to be at the Army & Navy club in that village at 8 o'clock. Legionaries from New London, Norwich, Baltic and other posts are planning to welcome the new post into the fold.

The election of officers then took place, resulting as follows: William A. Anderson, Norwich, re-elected district commander. Other officers are: District vice commander, John H. Cruise, New London; adjutant, Harry W. House, Norwich; treasurer, Webster D. Copp, Norwich; chaplain, Clarence Gallup, New London; sergeant-at-arms, William Chartier, Baltic. Other officers to be appointed by the commander.

State Commander Armstrong was then called upon for a few remarks and responded by saying that there are two counties in the state of which he is proud. These, he said, are New London and Windham counties. Last year New London county lost 33 per cent. and Windham county 20 per cent. of the members. Now Fletcher post, of Norwich, has 153 members, New London has a like number and New London county has shown a percentage increase of 4 per cent. New London county, said Commander Armstrong, with its 49 per cent. increase wins the percentage cup for 1924 in Connecticut, winning from Hartford, which came second with 44 per cent.

In closing Commander Armstrong said the only way to put anything over is through district organization. You boys have sure shown that you have it in New London county, he said. It is probably the last time I will speak to you as state commander, but I want to tell you, that the support that I have received from New London county, my home town county (State Commander Armstrong is a Norwich boy), pleases me more than I can say and I deeply appreciate what you boys have done in backing me this year.

The meeting closed subject to the call of the district commander, after three rousing cheers for the state commander. The members pledged themselves to be at Torrington 100 per cent. strong yelling for him for re-election. The meeting was one of the best held by the district and plenty of activity is promised by Commander Anderson in the coming months.

JNO L. JOHNSON HEADS N. L. COUNTY VOITURE

Voyageurs Militaire, representing over 50 American Legion posts in Connecticut enjoyed an afternoon and evening filled with bang-up good times, in New London, Saturday, the occasion being the organizing of a Voiture Locale, a New London County Voiture, and putting 85 Prisonniers de Gare through their paces.

The New London County Voiture of La Societe Nationale des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux got off to a flying start. Grand Chef de Gare, E. P. Armstrong, state commander of the Legion, stating that the New London

Chef de Gare, Voiture Locale of New London County

County Voiture was the largest ever instituted in Connecticut and without doubt the largest ever instituted in the country, an honor his home county might well take pride in.

Gas wagons began to arrive during the afternoon dropping their loads of Voyageurs Militaire and P. G.'s (Poor Goofs), at the armory and by the time mess call was sounded nearly six hundred hungry Legionaries and friends had gathered at the state armory.

At this time the members of the Women's Auxiliary to John Coleman Prince, Post No. 9, of New London learned what Uncle Sam faced during the war, besides Kaiser Bill, for they were kept busy rushing clam chowder, sandwiches and coffee to the Voyageurs and those who were to enter the parade. The P. G.'s, informed that some of them might never live to eat again, hit the chowder on double time, and, let it be said right here, that the women of the New London auxiliary are "all set" with Connecticut Voyageurs and Legionaries.

The "prisen" hours passed all too rapidly for the Poor Goofs, who were soon to face the degree team and "get plenty," but the thoughts of the parade ahead helped them keep their spirits up.

Headed by Marshal H. S. Dorsey, and his aides, Brig. Gen. Morris B. Payne, Col. Joseph J. Gainey and Capt. Edward Cruise, the parade got under way at 8 o'clock and headed up Colt street, to Truman, to Bank, to State street and the monument, up State to Huntington, down Huntington to Washington where dismissal took place.

Thousands of people jammed the streets along the line of march and the sound of horns, in the parade and on automobiles, at times was deafening. Everyone was out for a good time and wherever the French blue chapeau was seen something was going on worth while. People got a taste of some of the noise of battle when the French engine and box car lumbered along the gatling gun purring out its message of noise all along the line of march. Buddy-in-the-Barrel and other features got a laugh and the P. G.'s came in for their share, both from spectators and Voyageurs.

The order of march was as follows:

Marshal and Aides
Platoon of Police
30th C. A. C. Band, Fort Wright, N. Y.
U. S. Coast Guard Cadets
Hdqtrs. Co., C. N. G., New London
Battery B., C. N. G., Norwich
1st Bn. Hdqts. & Combat Train, Norwich
102nd Regiment Band, New London
Wrecking Crew and Paraphernalia
Prisonniers de Gare
Voyageurs Militaire
French Boxcar and Engine
One Lung Machine
Estebrook and Cadi-Auto
Fire Chief
Squad Wagons, Nos. 1 and 4
Fire Companies Nos. 2, 5, 7

Immediately following the parade the work of initiation of candidates began. About midnight 82 new Voyageurs Militaire, New London County Voiture, were listening to Grand Chef de Gare E. P. Armstrong, as he complimented New London county on the splendid showing, the largest Voiture Locale ever organized in this state.

Anderson, Norwich; O. N. Arpin, Baltic; John Cruise, New London; W. R. Bliven, New London; Charles Olson, Norwich; Alfred Lemoine and William Chartier, Baltic. Alternates to be appointed by Chef de Gare, Jonathan L. Johnson.

The meeting of the Voiture was declared closed shortly after midnight, subject to call of Chef de Gare Johnson and it is expected that a clambake will be held in the near future and the first class of candidates be taken in during October. Posts represented in the County Voiture thus far are Norwich, New London, Baltic, Colchester and Mystic. Taftville, soon to be organized, and other posts are expected to come in during the next few months. Candidates initiated also included posts of Moosup, New Britain, Hartford, Waterbury and Providence.

The committees in charge of arranging for the Voiture were as follows: General committee, Jonathan L. Johnson, chairman, W. D. Copp, Percy Chapman of Norwich, John H. Cruise, vice chairman, and O. J. LARGE ATTENDANCE AT Y. M. C. A. MEN'S MEETING

There was a large attendance at the men's meeting held Sunday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. After the singing of hymns, scripture reading and prayer, the topic for discussion was announced as "Is hte Golden Rule practical?" The men entered heartily into the discussion and following are some of the points brought out:

A business man who practices the Golden Rule may not succeed at first, but in the long run success will come to him. Real success cannot be confined simply to the making of money. The measure of success is different in God's sight than it is in the estimation of many men. God measures success according to the life rather than the earthly achievement. "Golden Rule" Nash was quoted as one who had made wonderful success while practicing the Golden Rule; he has had wonderful success. The reason why the Golden Rule is not practiced more than it is, is because too many are suspicious of the other fellow. Selfishness prevents many from the practice of the Golden Rule.

The Golden Rule practiced by the manufacturer and the workman alike would do away with all of the unpleasantness in the industrial realm and would make the labor unions unnecessary. No business should refuse to follow the Golden Rule because other men refuse to follow it. It is a Christian man's duty to follow it regardless of what other business men do. We cannot measure success by the bounds of this life; that man is most generous who contributes most to the happiness of his day and generation. Jesus Christ was thought to have failed utterly when he was nailed to the cross, and even His closest followers had this opinion at the time; but Christ was winning His greatest success when he hung there. He then effected redemption for the world. A man is successful insofar as he contributes to hte good of mankind, whether he accumulates money or not.

A. S. COMSTOCK ON K. T. LOAN COMMITTEE

In a statement issued by Grand Treasurer H. Wales Lines he calls attention to the educational loan fund created to aid students in the various states. Albert S. Comstock of this city is a member of the committee in charge of the fund for this state. Mr. Lines, who is treasurer of the educational funds, says in his statement:

The Grand Encampment of Knights Templar, U. S. A., at its triennial session held in New Orleans, Louisiana, April 1922, in compliance with and pursuant to a recommendation of Grand Master Joseph Kyle Orr of Atlanta, Georgia, established a revolving educational loan fund which is to be available to assist worthy and needy students to secure a loan to aid them in completing the last two years of their course in the normal schools colleges and universities of their state. The grand master-elect, Leonidas P. Newby, was authorized to appoint a committee, with full power to carry the plan into effect. That committee consists of:

P. G. M., Joseph Kyle Orr, Atlanta, Ga., chairman; P. G. C., Alexander B. Andrews, Raleigh, N. C. secretary; P. G. C., Samuel P. Browning, Maysville, Ky.; P. G. C., Thomas J. Jones, Cleveland, Ohio; P. G. C., Fred A. Aldrich, Flint, Mich.

The grand encampment also established an education endowment fund the income of which only can be used by levying an assessment of one dollar per annum on each knight templar under the jurisdiction of the grand encampment, payable July 1st of each year; one-half of which was to form a part of the endowment fund, which was supplemented by a transfer of $100,000 from the fund of the trustees of the grand encampment. The total amount of this fund, Aug. 1924, was $265,228. When the balance of the assessment, due July 1st, 1924, is received, this fund will amount to approximately $315,000. The total amount of the income from investments received to August 1st was $9,236.30.

There has been paid by the grand treasurer of the grand encampment before August 1st, to the treasurers of the several grand commanderies, to be loaned in their states, $141,861. The total amount thus to be returned will amount to approximately $215,000.

These loans, in each state, will be made by a committee of their own sir knights, appointed as their grand commander may direct. The loans are made, not exceeding $200 in one year, to suitable students upon their personal notes, given without any security, with interest at 5 per cent, commencing upon the date of their graduation and the entire amount to be repaid, by annual payments, within four years from that date.

The amount of money available on this plan for Connecticut students is $3,082, and the name of the committee, having this matter in charge in this state is:

Albert W. Mattoon, chairman, New Haven; Albert S. Comstock, Norwich; Arthur C. Wheeler, Norwalk; William W. Frayer, Hartford; Benjamin L. Coe, Waterbury.

St. Elmo Commandery, No. 9, K. T., of Meriden, Connecticut, has contributed $284 to these funds.

California and Georgia instituted this plan several months ago and one of the beneficiaries writes as follows:

"This certainly is a wonderful thing. It means now that I am sure to graduate. I don't know how to express my appreciation to the Knights Templar for what this means to me."

Another:

"As to your loan, I cannot say enough about it. It has meant all to me—I do not know what I would have done without it."

In the words of Past Grand Master Orr, we have entered upon a plan "that will be helpful to young men and young women of hungry minds seeking to improve their condition by obtaining a better education."

FITCHVILLE DROPS ELEVEN INNING GAME TO SOUTH WINDHAM TEAM, 4 TO 3

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Aug. 17.—Willimantic was treated to its second extra inning baseball game in as many days when South Windham and Fitchville battled for 11 innings at Recreation park Sunday afternoon, the former winning out by a 4 to 3 score. Hoxie's bad toss with two out, lost the game for Fitchville and broke up a beautiful pitchers' duel between Mathewson of South Windham and Cannonball Jones of Fitchville.

Mathewson had one bad inning, the first, and apparently got all of the bad pitching out of his system as he outpitched the Fitchville speed king after the initial session. The visitors scored all of their runs in the opener on four bases on balls by Mathewson, the only ones he gave in the game, a fluky single to right by Coughlin and two passed balls by Donohue.

South Windham tied the score in the third when they bunched four of their total of seven hits off Jones' delivery. A wild pitch by Jones and a base on balls helped South Windham's cause along in this inning.

After this the two teams battled along on even terms until the last half of the eleventh inning when Joe Scribner led off with a fly to right on which Manager Lynch, who had injected himself into the fray as a pinch hitter, loafed and elected to catch the ball on the bound. It went for a hit and Scribner advanced to second on a short passed ball. "Red" Blackmar was patient and strolled. Both runners advanced a pair on Donohue's out at first. The stage was set for a squeeze play with one away, but Scribner started late from third and nipped at home on a good play by Jones to Paul. Melkie then hit to Hoxie who had an easy play in front of him but he threw wide to first and Blackmar came over with the winning tally.

It was a tough game for Jones to lose as he swirled remarkable ball aside from a single lapse in the third. The big righthander got seven South Windham batters on strikes, walked two and fielded his position well.

Dumb base running on the part of the Fitchville players lost them a number of chances to score. The "prize boner" was pulled by First Baseman Sweeney in the seventh. He had reached first on an error with one mas down. Gribbins lifted a soft fly for P. Scribner half way between first and second, Sweeney waited until Scribner caught the ball and then tried to get back to first but was easily doubled. In the ninth with two away Paul singled to second and kept on going when the ball went through "Red" Heller's legs but was nailed out for not touching second. Two other Fitchville runners were caught off the bases while two others essayed to steal but were cut down by Schley Donohue's deadly whip.

"Joe" Scribner, Doubleday and Mathewson led at bat for South Windham with a brace of hits apiece, one of Scribner's being good for a double. Coughlin and Paul each hit safely twice for Fitchville. Coughlin made a disastrous error in the third when he let Mathewson's single go through him, the South Windham pitcher going all the way around the sacks before the ball could be returned to the field of play.

There were not many fielding plays in the game although Percy Scribner played well for South Windham, accepting 13 chances without a bobble. McCall made one good catch in left for Fitchville and Paul caught a steady game.

A fair sized crowd witnessed the game. This was the second game between the two teams, Fitchville taking the first a week ago by a 3 to 2 score. The rubber will in all probability be played off in the near future. The score:

MANCHESTER WIN IN TEN INNINGS, 8 TO 4

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Aug. 17.—After two game rallies that tied the score in the fifth and seventh innings, Willimantic, with Pitcher "Pete" Wood in the leading role, went all to pieces in the tenth inning of Saturday's game at Recreation park with Herman Bronkie's Manchester outfit, and the visitors romped off with the contest by an 8 to 4 score. Four runners trekked over the plate in Manchester's half of the tenth, while in their turn at bat the locals went out in apple pie order. It was a tough game to lose, but Wood has got no one to blame but himself. He allowed 14 safe blows, including two triples, and as many doubles, besides walking five of the opposition.

The Threadmakers got to "Lefty" Thompson for three runs in the fifth and drove him from the mound in the seventh, when they tied the score for the second time. "Big" Jack Burkhardt then took up the pitching burden for the Silktown outfit and did very acceptably.

The locals had a wonderful chance to win out in the ninth when Smith led off with a single to center. Sharpe did the suicide act and Burkhardt purposely passed Adams, which proved to be the best of strategy, as B. Trauske hit to Wright and Adams was forced at second, while Hamel, whose all-around play was way off color, died out to center, leaving Smith stranded on third.

Three double plays by the same route, "Eddie" Trauske to Brother "Bunny" to Adams, proved a salvation for Wood at opportune moments in the game, but the Manchester sluggers were not to be denied.

In the early part of the game a peculiar accident occurred when a ball caromed off Adams' bat at right angles and struck Henry Pattenden of No. 61 Buckingham street, Hartford, full in the face. Pattenden was sitting on a bench half way between the home players' bench and the scorers' bench at the time. His nose was badly broken and he sustained a bad cut over the eye. He was given first aid treatment by Dr. Michael D. Riordan at the park and taken to St. Joseph's hospital. Mr. Pattenden was released from the hospital yesterday morning and returned to his home in Hartford. He had been visiting at the home of his brother-in-law, Alderman Fred J. Roy, of No. 264 Valley street. The score:

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Fordham Road Giants

Any inning. Runner on second. The team in the field has a six run lead. Batter hits ball to center field.

Should runner on second take a chance of going to third after the catch?

Although the batting team is six runs behind, the runner on second should not take a chance of going to third on a play to center, unless the ball is hit so deep that there would be no chance of the center fielder throwing him out at third. You see if the runner on second tried for third and was thrown out, the pitcher is likely to break up a possible rally. Another thing to remember is that a runner on second can score on a single just as well as if he was on third.

FIRST INNING HITS WIN FOR CUBS OVER PHILLIES

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Chicago bunched its hits in the first inning today and defeated Philadelphia 2 to 1 in a pitchers' battle between Blake and Oescheger, the former having the edge over his veteran rival.

Denver Grigsby, Cubs' outfielder, ran into the screen in left field attempting to catch a long drive, was badly shaken up and his face was skinned. He left the game, but was not seriously hurt. Score:

Firpo worked for an hour this afternoon, doing eight rounds of rope skipping, shadow boxing and bag punching and six rounds of sarring, two with Two with Mickey Ferrera. Joe Stoes-Townsend, two with Bill Tate and sel and Dixie kid are expected to arrive in camp tomorrow.

Brasscos Win Both Games.

Waterbury, Aug. 17.—Waterbury broke its losing streak of four straight games here today by defeating Worcester in both ends of a double header, winning the first game 4 to 1 and the second 6 to 3. Rush and Crowder were effective in the pinches, while the league leaders garnered 25 hits off the combined deliveries of Graham and Sterling Stryker, the Panthers aces.

POSICK ALLOWS FOUR SCATTERED HITS AND RIVERVIEW BEATS DUWELLS, 10 TO 1

Steve Posick, pitching for the Riverview club, let the Duwells down with four scattered hits and one run Saturday afternoon while his teammates found Tillie Daniels for 10 hits and an equal number of runs. Posick held the Riverview team to two lone hits until the seventh inning when a pass on balls and Joe Barry's hit put a man on third who scored on an infield out. This was the only tally of the game for the Duwells as only four men got passed first base during the game.

The Riverview team hit Daniels freely and aided by errors piled up a safe lead early in the game and increased it as the innings wore on. Couillard was the hitting star of the game, getting two singles and a double which accounted for four of Riverview's runs. His homer scored one ahead of himself and his single with bases loaded accounted for two more.

There were fielding features galore, Chip Dugas furnishing a one hand catch and Smith making a beautiful running catch of Belair's drive. Harry Mills, as usual, managed to get into the lime-light when he made a leaping one hand catch of Bill Liberse's liner in the ninth inning and doubled Dugas at first cutting down a rally and ending the contest. Eddie Burns also played a fine although not spectacular game at third for the hospital.

Dugas accounted for half of the Duwell hits and his fielding at third was good accepting nine chances with only one error. Barry and Daniels were the only other Duwell players to register.

Riverview took the lead in the first inning on hits by Couillard, Mills and Frechette and a sacrifice by Noel. They were never headed after this. In the second they added two more counters on a double by Laffey, a bad error by Ringland and a single by Noel. In the fourth with two down they tallied two more when Daniels passed Posick and Couillard hit for the circuit. The fifth inning was a loose affair and the Riverview team scored five runs. These came on two bases on balls, three errors and a single by Couillard. The score:

JOHNSON ALLOWS TIGERS BUT FOUR SCATTERED HITS

Washington, Aug. 17.—Walter Johnson allowed but four hits today, and Washington won from Detroit 8 to 1. Detroit scored in the ninth when with two out, Jones hit a fast grounder to Peckinpaugh which bounded over his shoulder for a single, and O'Rourke followed with a double to center, resulting in one tally. McNeely starred with four hits out of five times at bat. The score:

NATICK EVENS UP SERIES WITH MOOSUP

(Special to the Bulletin)

Anthony, R. I., Aug. 17.—The Natick Hustlers evened up the series with the Moosup Town team here today by sending the visitors back on the short end of a 7 to 1 score. The visitors scored their only run in the first inning and after that Sherman kept the hits scattered and was in little danger.

Natick knocked Harrell out of the box in the fourth inning and Davis relieved him but was found freely in the fifth inning and two runs were scored. After this it was a pitching duel between Sherman and Davis. Errors by Frechette and Noel at critical times were responsible for several runs. Kndrick led the hitting with three base hits but his work in the field was ragged. The score:

MARRIED MEN AND SINGLES PLAY SECOND GAME TUESDAY

The second game of the Married Men-Single Men series for the championship of the East Side will be played on Tuesday evening at Duwell field. The last game was a 9 to 9 draw in which Charlie Coleman displayed excellent pitching form, surprising even his most ardent supporters and putting to shame those who were wont to criticise. Manager Cook will use Coleman in Tuesday's game while the Single Men will use either Colberg or Pedace in the box.

These games are for blood and if anyone thinks they are a farce they should see one and be convinced. Of course there are some humorous happenings the same as in any game but they are far from a joke especially to those who participate in them.

HUDSON A. C. TEAM HANDS SUB BASE A CLOSE DEFEAT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 17.—After three other teams hailing from the same city had found it a difficult thing to upset the Submarine Base, the Hudsons finally gave the gobs their first defeat they received at the hands of a New Haven outfit. The game was full of good playing, and very few hits were wasted, for neither team received them in an abundance. The visitors won the decision after nine fast and furious innings, the final outcome reading 4 to 3 for the visitors.

The afternoon was filled with surprises and the defeat of the Sub Base was one of them. The stopping of the hitting rally which the sailors had started in the initial frame; conservative base running, and, last of all, the wonderful comeback of the visiting hurler, Bergeron, after he had been scored upon three times. His pitching after the initial chapter was excellent and the hits the gobs gleaned off his horizontal like slants were very few and far between. He occupied the twirling area with an air of dignity, and he proved to be a very dignified person if the final score has anything to tell. The score:
